MILLBROOK, July 27—(ENS).— A wedding of local interest took place at Whitby this week in the United Church, when Rev. C. Park united in marriage Joyce Marjorie, daughter of Thomas Kennedy, and the late Mrs. Kennedy, formerly of Millbrook, and William Gerald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley McBride of Port Hope. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length dress of white, figured sheer marquisette, veil of embroidered illusion, and sweetheart headdress. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations and baby's breath, and her only ornament was a triple strand of pearls, the gift of the groom.

The bridesmaids were rey Kennedy, who were gowned rey Kennedy, ho were gowned alike in white velour organza, with head crowns of pink and blue flowers, shoulder length veils; their bouquets were pink carnations and forget-me-nots. Manners Vital In Private Too

By ARLENE WOLF
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK, July 27.—(CP). — Manners have moved out of the parlor, and on to the international scene. The way you talk to the grocery boy or the bus driver may have seemed a pretty private affair so far—but take it from Margaret Culkin Banning, it's public property now.

In a bright but serious little book called "Conduct Yourself Accordingly," Miss Banning shows how the P's and Q's of good conduct can be the ABC solution to a lot of plaguing problems.

"At this hour, with the word democracy blaring from a hundred million radios," she says, "we are failing in the practice of democratic conduct, which means constant recognition of the rights, needs and feelings of the others."

Mere company manners won't do the trick, Miss Banning insists. Personal conduct isn't something to be put on in public, and shed in private. And since millions of individual conducts make up the national conduct, we'd better "conduct ourselves accordingly."

"If we want to improve democracy, we mus timprove personal behavior," she says.

Small Children Learn Rules Of Swimming

Hundreds of youngsters and business girls have learned the art of swimming safety rules in the Y.W.C.A. pool, and Tuesday morning another class of babies, between five and six years old, proved their worth, as they dove from the diving board, and swam the length of the pool. Others received prizes for swimming across the pool, or won sailboat prizes or free swims. The swimming classes at the Y.W. will be closing on Monday until September, but the pool will still be open.

Tiny Jackie Godfrey, four-and-one-half years old, and Kathyrne Magee, three-and-one-half, years old, swam across the pool on their backs. Sailboat prizes and free swims were presented to Peter Hall, Shirley Frost, Helen Walker, Maureen Masterson, Dianne Pearce, Peter Faulkner, Mary Tudhope, Barbara Jobe, Jane McIntyre, Phyllis Kylie, and Joan Chamberlain for jumping off the spring board and swimming the length of the pool, and Nancy Towsend, Betty Rutherford, Jean McPherson, Scott Allan, Ray Frost, Jackie Godfrey and Kathryne McGee received free swims for swimming across the pool.

Four members of the Y.W.C.A. life-saving class passed their bronze medallian tests for swimming councillors at Camp Inglestane. They are Misses Agnes Weddell, Helen Weddell, Lenore Edwards and Pat Martyn, and their certificates and badges are at the Y.W. office.

Vegetable Proteins Rank High in Quality, Low in Price

By MARY MOORE

From five different sections I'm being bombarded by convictions and requests regarding the value and the indispensibility of protein food in the diet.

My message to you this week was still an idea when I glanced through a current magazine and read a short article by a well-known doctor urging eggs and other breakfast proteins on us if we would avoid mid-morning droop, protein breakfasts as opposed to carbohydrate ones, no matter how plentiful the latter are.

Secondly, Peter came back from camp minus five of his precious pounds. Mom didn't like it, and on questioning him figured their menus had been long on starches, short on proteins and fats. Besides all that, being ten year old, he ran all day until he dropped in his tracks at dark.

Next I find I function more efficiently all day (and don't gain weight which is important) if my breakfast is a poached egg on toast instead of cereal and cream, which I am apt to eat because it is ready for the children anyway; the egg is an extra operation.

Furthermore I have a book—"Soybeans from Soup to Nuts," and since soybeans are very high in protein I'm giving you the best of the recipes I've tried so far. You can help to get soybeans more widely marketed if you'll ask for them until you get them.

Finally one of our readers wants to know how she can possibly crowd protein into three meals a day. She plans on taking off twenty pounds by substituting proteins for starches and fats.

Now meat and eggs and cheese are expensive but very desirable foods, but nuts and soybeans are vegetables and are equal in quality but much lower in price. Let's concentrate on them.

While your family may still prefer meat it is inevitable that they will feel satisfied for hours after eating

Macaroni and Cheese with Soybeans

Two cups cooked soybeans 1 cup cooked macaroni, 3 tablespoons butter or cooking oil or drippings, 3 to 6 tablespoons grated old cheese, 2 cups milk, 3 tablespoons sifted soybean flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ¾ teaspoon dry mustard or ⅛ tablespoon chopped mustard greens. Melt the fat, stir in the flour and seasonings, blend with milk, and cook over low heat 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Mix soybeans and macaroni with sauce, and pour into greased casserole, sprinkling the cheese over in two layers, and bake at 350 for 30 minutes.

NOTE—You will see you must stock up on soybeans and flour if you are to do the soybean recipes I plan to print justice.

Soybean and Meat Cutlets

One and one-half cups cooked soybeans, 1 cup leftover ground or fresh ground meat, 1 egg, 1 medium onion, 3 tablespoons soybean oil (other salad oil will do) bread crumbs, salt and pepper to taste, flour, soybean oil for frying. Mash soybeans with fork, fry meat and chopped onion in oil 3 minutes. Stir into mashed beans, add beaten egg and season. Add crumbs and shape into cutlets, roll in flour and chill. Fry in deep or shallow soybean oil until golden.

Tossed Salad with Peanuts

The well-known salad of shredded outer lettuce leaves, chives, and sliced radishes with French dressing is made super with the addition of salted peanuts.

Peanut Fancies

One-half cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 2 cups sifted enriched flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup milk, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 1½ cups chopped roasted peanuts. Cream together shortening and sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs. Beat well. Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt. Add flour mixture and milk and vanilla extract alternately to creamed mixture, mixing well. Add nuts. Mix only enough to fold in nuts. Drop by teaspoonsfuls on greased baking sheet. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for about 10 minutes. This recipe makes 4 dozen 2-inch cookies.

ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I have been married only a short time and I find your column in the paper very helpful for good recipes.

I would be very pleased if you would send me your recipe for mustard bean pickles. We are going to have too many beans in our garden to eat ourselves, so I thought I would pickle as many as I could. I would like a fairly sweet recipe. Thanking you.—Mrs. B. D.

◆ ◆ ◆

ANSWER: I think the following is exactly what you want:

Sweet Mustard Bean Pickles

Wash, stem and cut freshly gathered wax beans, and let stand in brine of ½ cup salt to enough boiling water to cover 6 quarts beans, overnight. In morning drain and boil for 5 minutes in 1 quart white wine vinegar and 1 quart fresh boiling water. Have ready a paste made of 1 cup sugar, 1 cup flour, 1 tablespoon tumeric, 4 tablespoons mustard. Stir this into the boiling mix, and cook stirring for 5 more minutes. Pour into sterile pint jars and seal with sterile rubbers, and tops. If you would like more sugar, or the liquid on the beans thicker, add more sugar and flour.

◆ ◆ ◆

QUESTION: Wil lyou kindly publish some recipes in which sour cream may be used, especially biscuits?—A. O.

◆ ◆ ◆

ANSWER:

Sour Cream Biscuits

Two cups sifted flour (preferably cake flour), 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon soda, ⅞ cup sour cream. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Mix the soda and the sour cream. Add slowly to sifted mix and mix to a soft dough. Roll out on lightly floured board to ½ or ¾-inch thickness and cut out with floured biscuit cutter. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. (very hot) for about 12 minutes if ½-inch thick. Serve warm wrapped in napkins.

Sour Cream Cookies

One cup sour cream, 1 cup sugar, 1 beaten egg, 2¼ to 2½ cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon baking soda, ½ teaspoon each nutmeg, cinnamon and salt, ½ cup raisins or chopped nuts or a combination of both. Cream the sour cream and sugar together. Sift together all the dry ingredients, then sift them into the cream and sugar mix. Stir in fruits or nuts. Drop by teaspoons on greased baking sheet and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for about 10 minutes. If liked stiffer add another ¼ cup sifted flour.

Sour Cream Raisin Pie

Plain pastry; 1 cup seedless raisins, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 cup sour cream, 1 beaten egg. Line a pie plate with good plain pastry. Grind (or leave whole if desired) raisins and combine with all other ingredients. Turn into lined pie plate. This is usually made with top crust but it is not necessary—criss-crossing of strips of pastry is very nice. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 326 to finish baking for another 20 minutes.

Sour Cream Dressing

One-half cup sour cream, 1 tablespoon vinegar, preferably tarragon, 1 tablespoon chopped chives or onions, ½ teaspoon salt, pepper and paprika. Mix and beat ingredients together with rotary beater, beating until well-whipped and light. Good with fruit or vegetable salads.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

A few recipes are given below, out of which you may pick some to make up a quick meal. If you have over-stayed your time shopping, or at that afternoon tea, you can still have a very tempting supper ready for the family and it takes so little time.

California Meat Loaf

¾ lb. ground veal, ¼ lb. lean pork, 3 tablespoons minced onion, ⅛ cup soft bread crumbs, 1¼ teaspoons salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 tablespoon celery seed, 2 tablespoons grated Canadian cheese, 1 egg well beaten, 6 tablespoons milk, 3 scraped raw carrots.

Mix all ingredients except carrots. Slice one carrot lengthwise in thin strips and arrange in bottom of pan. Put a thin layer of meat over carrot. Cut remaining carrots into eighths lengthwise. Repeat carrot and meat layers, having top layer meat. Pack firmly and bake, covered, in a moderately hot over for 1 hour and 10 minutes, uncovering for the last 20 minutes.

Baked Beets and Onions

4 cups pared diced raw beets, 1 cup coarsely chopped onion, 1½ tablespoon salt, ¾ cup boiling water, 4 tablespoons butter. Arrange beets and onions in covered casserole, add salt and boiling water, butter, cover, and bake in moderately hot oven of 375 degrees F. for about 1 hour.

Chocolate Pie

1 baked 9" pie shell, 2½ sq. unsweetened chocolate, 1 cup strained honey, ⅛ cup flour, 2 1-3 cups milk, 3 eggs, separated, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 3 tablespoons white corn syrup. Melt chocolate in double boiler, add honey and flour, which have been mixed together, and blend. Add milk gradually and cook over boiling water until thick, stirring constantly. Cover and cook for 10 minutes longer. Then pour chocolate mixture gradually over slightly beaten egg yolks, while stirring. Return to double boiler and cook five minutes longer. Remove from the heat, and add salt, butter and vanilla. Cool. Pour into baked pie shell and top with whites of eggs beaten to a froth and add corn syrup. Bake in a slow oven for 30 minutes.

Orange and Rice

Pare oranges, cut in half crosswise and remove core. Cook the halves until they are tender, but not broken, in a syrup made from equal parts of sugar and water, to which a little lemon juice has been added. Place around a mound of boiled rice and pour the syrup over the whole. Serve with plain or whipped cream, or custard sauce.

Put that Spare Room to use, Bedroom and Parlor can be Combined

Thursday, July 27, 1944.

DEAR HOMEMAKER—

What about that spare room? Is yours like the old time parlor which was only opened up when company arrived? Why not use it yourself?

The average Canadian home is not large enough to justify one room standing idle except for high days and holidays. Why not fix it up so it will serve a dual purpose? A little spending and a few pieces of furniture will give you a room which you can use and it will be available for overnight guests.

Turn your spare room into an extra living room or a studio which can be used as a bedroom when company comes. You can enjoy it while daughter or son are entertaining friends in the living room. Studio lounge, continental bed or chesterfield which can be made into a bed will give the room the facilities of "A Spare Room" without the spare bedroom impractical features. Be sure to get a well built sturdy piece of furniture with good, well constructed inner spring construction. It will be doing double duty and a poor spring is poor economy.

We can show you many new types of low dressing tables which do not have a "bedroom" look and which properly belong either in a bedroom or comfortable sitting room.

Keep some of your books in the converted room. A small bookcase will take care of your downstairs overflow and give the guest a choice of going-to-bed reading matter.

You will find the warm colored draperies and floor coverings which will lend charm to your part-time sitting room to be equally effective and attractive when the sitting room becomes a bedroom.

Two-rooms-for-one is a sound idea which will bring you material pleasure as well as fill a real need.

IN MEMORIAM

WOODCOCK—In loving memory of a dear mother, Effie Woodcock who passed away July 27th, 1940.

You 'oft times said we'd miss you,
Those words have proved too true,
We lost our best, our dearest friend,
Dear Mother, when we lost you.

—Ever remembered by Daughters and Sons.

DAVIDSON —In loving remembrance of my cousin, Stanley Davidson who was accidently killed one year ago, July 27, 1943.

Gone from us but leaving memories,
Death can never take away,
Memories that will always linger,
While upon this earth we stay.

—Always remembered by his cousin, Archie Davidson.

DAVIDSON—In loving memory of our dear son and brother Stanley who went home to be with Jesus, July 27, 1943.

July brings sad memories
Of our dear boy gone to rest.
Who will always be remembered
By those who loved him best.
His life was a beautiful memory,
His death a silent grief.
He sleeps in God's beautiful garden,
In the sunshine of perfect peace
Sleep on, dear Stanely, you are free
From sorrow and from pain,
We will miss you here so very much
But trust in God to meet again.

—Lovingly remembered by Mother, Daddy, Sisters and Brothers.

DAVIDSON—In loving memory of our dear grandson, who entered into rest, July 27, 1943.

Gone from the earth so swiftly
Just like a flower in bloom
So young, so fair, so loving
Yet called away so soon
We shall meet him some bright morning
Resting by waters fair.
He is waiting for our coming
In the upper garden there.

—Ever remembered by Gramma, Grampa and Evelyn Richardson.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late John Dolinak wish to thank all friends and acquaintances for their kindness during their recent sad bereavement.

Soldier's New Accent Puzzling To Family

OMAHA, July 27—(CP).—Lieut. Adrian Schultz, 26, injured while piloting a Liberator bomber in England last January, did not know who he was for more than four months. Shock and head injuries caused complete loss of memory and he learned to speak English again with a British accent.

His identity established through military records, Lieut. Schultz was returned to this country in the hope that old associations would bring back his memory. One day he opened a letter and recognized the picture of his pretty little sister, Joann, 16, of Omaha. His memory began to return.

Because he spoke with a marked British accent, his family at first had difficulty understanding him.

N. J. Begley Weds Lindsay Girl

A marriage of interest was solemnized recently in St. Mary's Church, Lindsay, when Norbert John Begley, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Begley of Lindsay, formerly of Peterborough, took as his bride Kathleen Adele Cook, daughter of Mrs. W. Cook and the late William Cook, of Lindsay. Very Rev. Dean McAuley officiated. Miss Ruth Shannon was at the organ, and accompanied Mrs. Jack Begley, of Peterborough, when she sang "Love's Angelus" and "O Sacred Heart."

Given in marriage by her uncle, Felix Gassien, the bride was gowned in floor-length white embroidered sheer, with a shoulder-length veil, and carried a white Missal. Miss Lucy Roach of Lindsal was bridesmaid, in pale pink taffeta with matching shoulder-length veil and halo, and carried an old-fashioned nosegay. Jack Begley, of Peterborough, brother of the groom, was best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, Georgina street. During the afternoon, the young couple left for a wedding trip to Montreal, St. Anne de Beaupre and other eastern points. On their return, they will make their home in Lindsay.

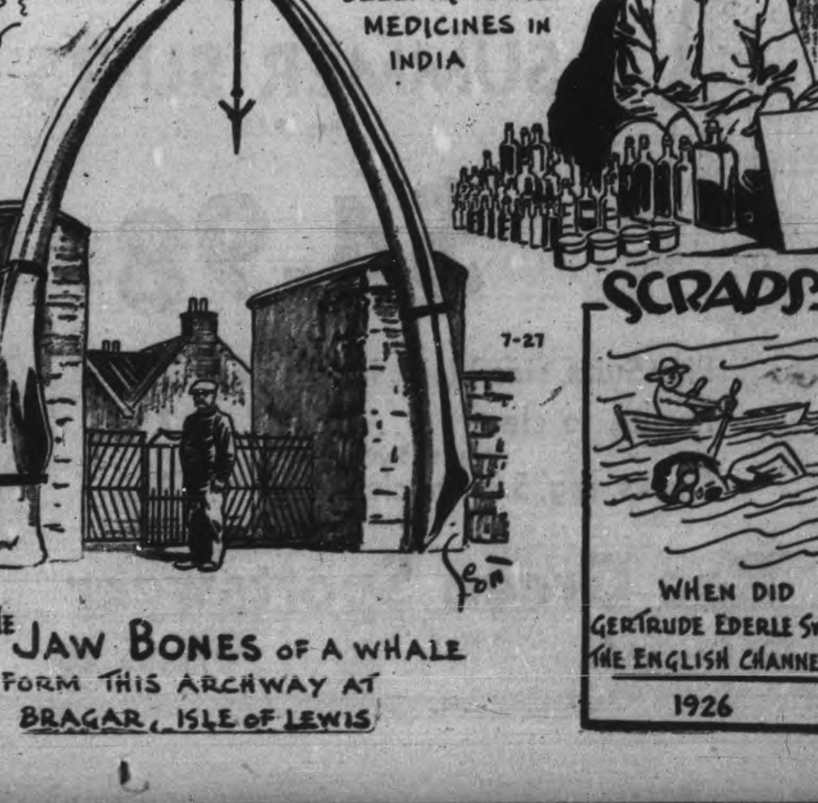
SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

—By J. R. Scott



How Townships In Peterborough County Received Their Names

It is generally known that the name Peterborough was not taken, at any rate directly from the old English city of Peterborough, but was so called after Peter Robinson, member of a family distinguished in the early history of Upper Canada. In 1825 he organized, under the auspices of Lord Bathurst what is now known as the Robinson Immigration which brought 2024 pioneers from Southern Ireland to the district. In 1827 Sir Peregrine Maitland, Lieut.-Governor of Upper Canada, visited here to see how the new comers were faring and on that visit the name of Scott's Plain was altered to Peterborough (Peter's Borough). It had been called Scott's Plains after Adam Scott, the first settler who came here in 1820. Incidentally, Ashburnham was also named after an English place name because it included the word 'Burnham' born by a family well-known in Peterborough's early and later history.

This naturally leads to the question as to how the townships received their names and it is an interesting story.

The names of two townships, Galway and North Monaghan, have an easily traced origin for they are named after two Irish Counties.

The origins of other names so far as they can be traced are as follows:

Smith—It was written.

"Smith; the Smiths are hydra-headed,
Smiths grow up three deep in rows,
Smiths in countless hosts and legions,
Everywhere have poked their nose."

So there is some doubt as to which of two Smiths gave the name to the township. The most likely is Sir David William Smith, Surveys-general who made a map of Upper Canada in 1798. He was a member of the three first Canadian Parliaments and Speaker in two of them. He was born in 1764 and died in England in 1837, and whs created a baronet in 1821. The other, but less likely, candidate for the honor was Sir Samuel Smith, member of government in 1817-1820, who died in Toronto, October 26, 1826.

After Duke of Wellington.

Douro — (182) — A secondary title of the Duke of Wellington was Baron Douro, because of his brilliant exploit of crossing the river Douro, despite the opposition of Soviet's army in the Peninsula War and driving the French out of Portugal. Sir Peregrine Maitland, Lieut. General of Upper Canada, son-in-law of the Duke of Richmond, Governor-General in 1918-1919, served under Wellington and probably suggested the name for township.

Dummer—1821—Another example of a township taking the Christian name of a well-known man. This was Sir William Dummer Powell, borne in 1755, Chief Justice of Canada and Speaker of the Legislative Assembly. He is described as "a gentleman of somewhat diminu-) tive stature, but withal of handsome and imposing appearance." He with Bishop Strachan, had great influence on the Government of Upper Canada as unofficial advisors of the Governor-General.

Harvey—1821—Named after Sir John Harvey, born in 1778, who served in the army in India under Lord Lake, whose daughter he married. He was appointed to Deputy Adjutant General of the Army in Canada in 1812 and planned and took part in the Battle of Stony Creak June 5, 1813. He was afterwards Governor General of New Brunswick, Newfoundland and Nova Scotia, and died in 1846.

A Trusted Adviser

Burleigh — 1822 — Named after William Cecil—Lord Burleigh, 1520-1598, Queen Elizabeth's trusted adviser. The connection is somewhat obscure but the name was probably givern by Sir Peregrine Maitland who had in mind Burleigh House, the Statesman's Mansion near Stamford, 14 miles North of the English Peterborough. There are also the ruins of a Burleigh Castle in the County of Kinross in Scotland.

Methuen—1823—Named in honor of the Lieut. Governor's father-in-law, Duke of Richmond and Baron Methuen, in the peerage of Scotland. This Castle of Methuen lies 6 miles from Perth in Scotland and the castle adjourns the village of that name.

Ennismore—1829 — Named after William Hare—Viscount Ennismore, 2nd Earl of Listowel. His father Richard, was member of parliament for Cork and died in 1827. First called Emily Gore, in an 1820 map, but in Canadian Seasonal papers of 1830 was called Ennismore. The name is taken from a small town in County Kerry, Ireland.

Asphodel—1821—Asphodel is a freak word for daffodil, and the township is not named after any person or place, but from physical conditions so probably the surveyors, noting the daffodils growing in the well-watered meadow on the shore of Rice Lake, thought the name an appropriate one.

Cavendish—1862—Named after Henry Cavendish, 1735-1810, described as a man of great wealth and scientific knowledge. There is a village Cavendish in Sussex, England where John de Cavendish, Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench lived. The Cavendishes of the ducal house of Devenshire are descended from him.

Belmont—1823—The name is Norman French in origin, and means literally "beautiful Mountains". In Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice" Belmont is the home of Portia There is a Belmont Castle in Perthshire in Scotland, and a Belmont House in Kilkenny, Ireland.

Scottish Towns

Anstruther—1861—Named after a group of two or three small towns in Fifeshire, Scotland, sometimes contracted to Anster. There was an officer of that name at the capture of Quebec, and there was a Sir Windham C. J. C. Anstruther described as 9th Baronet of Nova Scotia and 5th of Great Britain.

Chandos—1862—Duke of Chandos is one of the titles of the Dukes of Buckingham conferred upon Richard Teruple Brydges Chandos Greville in 1796. There was also a Robert de Chandos who come from Normandy with William the Conqueror who was granted large possessions in Monmouthshire, but there is no evidence available as to how the name came to be given to th township. As a matter of fact the connection, especially in the later named township is definitely obscure, but it must be remembered that after the Napoleonic Wars, many army and navy officers came to Canada and townships may have been named by them after persons and places know to them of which we have no direct knowledge.

Sidney J. English Dies Suddenly In Toronto

TORONTO, July 27. — Stricken in downtown Toronto on Tuesday afternoon, Sidney John English, Mus.Bac., of Buttonville, for thirty years prominent organist and choir leader, died suddenly.

Mr. English was preparing to take the evening train for Owen Sound to spend a few days at his summer cottage when he suffered the fatal attack. He had been a resident of Buttonville since his retirement six years ago.

He had served a number of Ontario churches and had taught music at Alma College, St. Thomas, and Ridley College, St. Catharines.

Born at Waterdown, Ont., Mr. English attended Trinity College and later studied at the Guild Hall School of Music, London, England, where he received the degree of Bachelor of Music. Returning to Canada in 1909, he became associated with the First Methodist Church, St. Thomas, as organist and choir leader, and later Knox Presbyterian Church, Owen Sound; St. Thomas Anglican, St. Catharines, and churches at Guelph and Niagara Falls.

Mr. English was twice married, his first wife, the former Olive Waite of St. Thomas, having died in 1919. Surviving are his widow, Harriet McGregor English, of Owen Sound, a daughter Mrs. E. A. Bartram of London, a son Douglas English, Toronto, and four brothers Herbert of Stamford, Ernest of Marmora, Ollie of Peebles, Sask., and Harry English of Vancouver.

Hundreds Of Letters Incorrectly Addressed

OTTAWA, July 27.—(CP). —The Postoffice Department said yesterday hundreds of incorrectly addressed letters for Canadians troops in France are being received by the base postoffice, and appealed to the public to use only the officially recognized form in addressing armed forces mail.

A statement said approximately 100 letters reach the base office every day lacking the number and name of the unit, which is comparable to leaving out the street number and street name on a civilian letter.

The department said addresses should give essential details in this order, with regimental number first:

Gnr., Smith, J.J.,
97th Battery,
280th Field Regiment, R.C.A.,
Canadian Army Overseas.

Hull Charges

during the past three months large Government contracts for public works were given to firms that were either enemy origin or actively co-operating with the enemy.

"As late as July 4 the Ministry of Finance placed display advertisements in Axis papers Deutsche la Plata Zeitung, Il Mattino d'Italia, El Federal and La Fronda. The June issue of the scurrilous Nazi publication Clarinada contained full-page advertisement by Ministry of Interior.

20,000 Christians Slain

According to reports received from a neutral independent source, victims from part of a batch of 170,000 people who have been deported to Poland and the Protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia after having been accused of facilitating the escape of many Jews and of sympathizing with Russia.

Plight Of Jews

LONDON, July 27—(CP)—The Archbishop of Canterbury expressed to Foreign Secretary Eden yesterday his concern over the plight of the Jews in German-occupied territory, particularly Hungary, and received Mr. Eden's assurance that all practical steps would be taken to rescue the largest number possible.

Tito Takes 3 Towns

LONDON, July 27—(CP)—Marshal Tito's headquarters in a communique last night reported by the Ministry of Information that his Yugoslavian Partisan forces had gained on all fronts and had captured three towns in Montenegro where "an enemy offensive group has been cut off and now is being finished off."

TELEPHONES ARE CUT

LONDON—(CP)—The Swiss radio said last night that telephone communication with Germany had been cut since this morning and attributed the suspension to Allied air raids.

HIS OWN MEDICINE

"TWO CAN play at that game" is the attitude of a wily cardsman when he finds an opponent trying certain moves, such as endeavoring to unblock a suit so that his partner may win a later trick in it. Watching developments carefully will disclose many opportunities to counter the other fellow's moves, like making a doctor take his own medicine.

Several duplicate pairs got into that contract, and three of the declarers began operations in like fashion, after West led the club 4 to the A and the J was returned. They counted one trick in clubs, possibly four in diamonds and one in spades, making six, so that three in hearts would complete their contract. All three started with the idea of getting two heart tricks with honors, if the finesse would work, giving up a third one and hoping thus to establish the last heart with a 10 thirteener.

At one table the club Q won the second trick, the heart Q was finessed, A scored and the 7 led, which West won with the K. With no club to return, he used a diamond, the K killing the J. Now the necessary tricks were run.

At a second table, when the heart was led to the third trick, West put on the K, and the A won. The Q took the next trick, West putting the J on it. Now East could win the third heart and promptly defeated the contract two with club tricks.

At a third table, West tried to unblock with the same play exactly, but South let him win the first heart with his K. That made it impossible for East to gain the lead before the declarer had his nine tricks. South had thwarted the move intended by West to make an entry for his partner, who had the established clubs.

British Push Steadily On Florence

New Zealand Troops Spearhead Of Attack Seven Miles From City

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, July 28.—(AP).—The British 8th Army plunged steadily on toward Florence today against stiff German resistance, with veteran New Zealand troops capturing the town of San Casciano only seven airline miles from the city, as American and German artillery duelled across the Arno River in the opening stage of the battle for Pisa.

New Zealand troops also were reported fighting in the vicinity of Cerbaia, eight miles southwest of Florence and only six miles from the Arno.

On their left, Indian units made one of yesterday's most substantial gains, punching three miles northwest from Monte Spertoli toward the Arno valley. Still further west, other 8th Army forces stabbed to within four miles of Empoli, on the Arno 28 miles east of Pisa.

Poles Cross Misa River

On the Adriatic end of the front Polish troops pushed patrols across the Misa River under heavy enemy artillery and mortar fire, and forward elements were reported fighting in the outskirts of Senigallia at the river's mouth.

The Poles found all approaches to the river heavily mined and the bridges destroyed.

In the course of their swift advance to the Misa the Poles occupied the towns of Mandriola, San Angelo, Filetto and Ostra.

The Germans continued to lay dense smokescreens to conceal their activities along the north bank of the Arno River, especially on the right wing of the Allied 5th Army. Downstream, big guns rumbled incessantly as American batteries hammered away at enemy troop concentrations and supply dumps, while the Nazis replied with heavy bursts of artillery fire.

American Infantry exterminated several small German patrols on the south banks of the Arno and enemy efforts to plant mines close to the north banks were dispersed by well-aimed fire.

Limited gains were reported in the central portions of the 8th Army front. Apnelli, 15 miles east to southeast of Florence, was found

17 Wounded Die In Plane Crash

LONDON, July 28 (CP)—Twenty-four people, including 17 wounded American soldiers, were killed when a United States troop transport plane hit a cliff near the Mull of Galloway, in southwest Scotland, last night.

The entire crew of six and a Nursing Sister were the other victims.

The wounded soldiers were on their way to a Scottish hospital from Southern England when the aircraft struck the cliffs and crashed backwards among the rocks. Fire followed the crash and many of the bodies were burned beyond recognition.

Two other aircraft flying with the transport reported the disaster.

The Mull of Galloway is the most southerly tip of Scotland, and about 17 miles northwest of the Isle of Man.

The accompanying planes landed at a Scottish airfield and reported that the aircraft smashed into a 40-foot cliff and would have cleared it if it had been flying only a few feet higher.

The bodies were being removed today by Sea to Portpatrick, Wigtown county, Scotland.

19-Year-Old Soldier Wins V C

By DOUG HOW—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 8TH ARMY IN ITALY, July 28—(CP Cable).—Representative men of a veteran Canadian formation stood on an Italian hillside and watched King George invest with the Victoria Cross a 19-year-old Indian soldier, Sepoy Kamal Ram, it was disclosed last night. This ceremony took place Wednesday in the course of a tour during which the King drove miles along roads lined with cheering soldiers and took his first flight in a "whizzer," a British single-engined small artillery observation plane.

His Majesty also decorated two other soldiers with the V.C. — the Empire's highest award for gallantry in battle—and performed the ceremony of knighting Lt.-Gen. Sir Oliver Leese, commander of the British 8th Army.

Up For Misdemeanour.

Kamal Ram, an Indian soldier, thought at first he was up for a misdemeanour when a provost came to get him for the V.C. decoration ceremony. The rookie private of the 8th Punjab Regiment knocked out three machine-gun posts with a bayonet and grenades during the crossing of the Gari River just south of Cassino last May 12. His action enabled his company to continue its advance.

The other recipients of the V.C. were not identified.

The King stopped to talk to Canadians of the veteran armored brigade in a party under an Ontario regiment's commanding officer from Victoria, B.C.

(The brigade presumably was the 1st Canadian army tank brigade, composed of the Ontario Regiment of Oshawa, Ont., the Three Rivers (Que.) Regiment and the Calgary Regiment. This brigade has been in action during several phases of the Italian campaign with Indian troops and took part in recent fighting from the Lake Trasimeno area northwest toward Florence.)

The King shook hands with and decorated officers and non-commissioned officers, including Maj. J. R. Walker of Three Rivers, Que., and Capt. Arnie Charbonneau of Ottawa, both of whom were awarded the Military Cross, and Sgts. R. Campbell of Clyde Forks, Ont., and F. J. Fontaine of Toronto, holders of the Military Medal.

Gen. Leese, who inherited a baronetcy in 1908, last year was made a Knight Commander of the Order of the Bath. This was the first opportunity for the King to carry out the formal investiture.

Many Persons Are Trapped When Bomb Wrecks Store

LONDON, July 28—(CP).—Flying bombs boomed through a Channel overcast today, bringing new destruction to southern England and the London area. Many persons were trapped when a robot at lunchtime wrecked a store, blew the top off a bus near a road intersection and flung an automobile from the street into a shop.

Fire started in the store. Scores of firemen and rescuers dug to reach buried shopgirls and customers. People nearby had mistaken the robot's roar for that of an airplane engine and had failed to take shelter.

One entire village had a narrow escape. Fighter pilots shot down several bombs but one glided nearly a mile after receiving a burst from fighter guns over the town and pancaked near a coalyard.

Saved By a Miracle.

"The town was saved by a miracle," a spectator said.

Throughout the night at another spot, rescue workers dug for nine persons buried in a house. They were guided only by the cries of the victims.

A number of apartment houses were hit last night, but occupants were in shelters and unhurt.

Bomb attacks during the night had tapered off shortly before midnight and it was comparatively quiet until dawn.

Japanese Have Lost Three Strong Points

KANDY, Ceylon, July 28—(AP).—Japanese forces are quickening their withdrawal along the Palel-Tamu road in northeastern India under strong air-supported attacks, and are abandoning equipment and blowing up supply dumps, headquarters announced today.

Enemy troops also were attempting to disengage pursuing Allies on the Tiddim road.

In 48 hours, the Japanese have lost three strongpoints and more than 200 dead on the road to Tamu.

Take No Action In Quebec Cases

OTTAWA, July 28.—(CP).—Justice Minister St. Laurent said today in the Commons his department had decided not to institute action under the Defence of Canada regulations against Jacques Dumoulin, Liberal member of the Quebec Legislature, and Jacques Sauriol, Montreal newspaperman.

Mr. St. Laurent made the statement while replying to Opposition members who asked that the Justice Department investigate speeches made by Mr. Dumoulin and Mr. Sauriol during Quebec election campaign rallies.

The Opposition members had expressed belief that parts of the speeches were breaches of the Defence of Canada regulations.

Mr. St. Laurent said investigation revealed it would not be advisable to proceed with action against Mr. Sauriol.

(Mr. Sauriol was quoted in newspaper reports as having told a Bloc Populaire political rally in Montreal that English soldiers were the "rottenest on earth" and that Cana-

Hale At 81, Ford Predicts Great Post-War Prosperity

By DAVID J. WILKIE
Associated Press Staff Writer

DETROIT, July 28. — (AP).—Henry Ford, who built a billion-dollar industrial empire with an initial investment of $28,000, will observe his 81st birthday Sunday, confident, he said to-day, that "prosperity and a higher standard of living can be attained after the war."

He predicted in an interview that the end of the war would bring a tremendous demand for motor cars and mechanized farm equipment.

"The time is coming," Mr. Ford said, "when man will be able to determine the length of his life span by controlling his diet. I think he will find everything he needs in wheat; wheat is the divine food."

Mr. Ford, whose factories are engaged in a huge arms-production program, indicated his antagonism toward war is undiminished.

"Even the victor loses," he said.

"Yet," he went on, "at terrific cost we shall learn something out of this war. The younger people will gain experience; science is making great strides that will hasten the post-war rehabilitation and raise the standard of living, and perhaps both the younger and older people will learn how to set up a society in which greed can be abolished and with it the causes of war."

Russian Army 30 Miles From Warsaw

Struggle For Warsaw Only One Of Series Where Nazis Routed

LONDON, July 28 — (CP) — Brest Litovsk, last great fortress position before Warsaw, was abandoned to the onrushing Russian Armies today along with Kaunas in Lithuania, Berlin announced.

Soviet troops charged with 30 miles of the Polish capital. In a 17-mile advance beyond the San River, they penetrated to a point 128 miles from German Silesia.

Brest Litovsk and Kaunas gave the Russians 10 major triumphs in 24 hours as they whipped through the Baltic States, Poland and the Carpathian foothills toward East Prussia, German Silesia and Czecho-Slovakia.

The German High Command announced the evacuation of Brest Litovsk in its daily communique, and soon afterward the Transocean Agency admitted the loss of Kaunas, the old capital of Lithuania.

Nearest Russian troops were within 340 miles of Berlin itself with the capture of Garwolin, 30 miles southeast of Warsaw.

Other Russian triumphs were announced in a record splurge of orders of the day by Marshal Stalin coloring Moscow's skies with many-colored flares for five hours until midnight.

These were the victories:

1. Brest Litovsk, historic city of 50,000 on the western Bug River, 112 miles east of Warsaw.

2. Kaunas, former capital of Lithuania and its second largest city with 152,365 population. It lies 55 rail miles from the East Prussia frontier.

3. Lwow, third city of pre-war Poland and one of Europe's greatest rail centres, toppled last night after days of street fighting. The city of 317,700 is on the Bucharest-Warsaw-Berlin Railroad and was a barrier to Czecho-Slovakia and Hungary.

4. Siauliai, third city of Lithuania with 31,199 persons, fell last night. Thus the last major railway was cut by which the estimated 300,000 troops of the 30 Divisions of the German 16th and 18th Armies could escape or be supplied. The victory placed the Russians 75 miles northeast of the East Prussia city of Tilsit.

5. Daugavpils, third city of Latvia with 45,160 population.

6. Bialystoc, 110 miles northeast of Warsaw, which had long been surrounded and by-passed.

7. Stanislaus, guardian city to Czecho-Slovakia and Hungary. Its fall and other nearby gains in the Canadian Unit Engages In Hard Fighting

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, July 28—(CP Cable)—In the annals of a famous Eastern Canada regiment the fighting this week will be recorded as some of the hardest the unit ever engaged in, and it will be said of every officer and man in the battalion that he performed magnificently.

The story of the fighting was told by Capt. Ron Bennett, 27, of Montreal, who was in charge of the battalion's assault company.

The battalion started out from an orchard east of St. Andrew Sur Orne, five miles south of Caen, just before daybreak Tuesday. The men moved into wide open ground with walled gardens and apple orchards just outside the town. The Germans were dug in behind big hedgerows and [illegible]ches and had lots of machine[illegible]

Advance Was Slow

The Canadians advanced in single file and took out one machine-gun post after another until about a dozen were cleaned out. Their advance was slow and as they approached a track they came under heavy fire from gun-nests on a sloping ridge on their left and from two or three machine-guns hidden in a grainfield on their right.

Two forward companies had been knocked out, so the battalion regrouped in the centre of St. Andrew and started out for the next objective between 10 and 11 a.m. The troops set out in an almost direct line for their objective, moving cautiously up the gradual slope to the enemy-held ridge.

Tanks Kept Busy.

They were supported by tanks, but as soon as the Shermans came out from behind the houses where they had been harboring, they were pinned down by German 88-millimetre guns. The tanks made a do-or-die effort to give the troops the support they needed but couldn't because of the heavy enemy fire.

The Canadians advanced in the face of a half-circle of enemy fire from 88's, machine-guns and tanks and succeeded in going over the crest of the ridge and were pinned down. They dug in and hung on. Beyond the crest of the ridge a terrific fight that couldn't be seen from our lines went on, Bennett said, but the easterns had won their objective.

Before the Canadians reached that far they sent back one batch of 30 or 40 German prisoners. The Germans were hidden in a wheat field. First the rat-tat of a Sten gun was heard and then Canadian Brens and machine-guns laid down a wall of fire in the field and up popped a line of Germans, their hands high in the air.

Dead Airman Awarded V.C.

(For Story See Page 8)

OTTAWA, July 28.—(CP).—Flt.-Lt. David E. (Bud) Hornell, 34, former Mimico, Ont., Sunday school teacher, has been posthumously awarded the Victoria Vross, it was announced today by Air Minister Power.

He won the coveted medal—sixth awarded the Victoria Cross, it was—for pressing home a successful U-boat attack a month ago after one of his motors was shot into the sea in an action which cost his own life and that of two members of his crew.

Five crewmen who survived 21 hours in a tiny rubber dinghy in the gale-swept North Atlantic also were decorated and the two men who perished with Hornell were mentioned in dispatches.

American Tanks And Armor Pour Through Gap 20 Miles Wide In Normandy

84th German Army Corps Is Cut Into Little Knots Of Resistance, Line Still Holds Against Montgomery

By GLADWIN HILL—Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, July 28—(AP). — A tide of American tanks and armor 20 miles wide poured through the gap in the Normandy lines today to within two miles of Coutances, field dispatches said, threatening that choke point of disorderly German retreat with imminent capture.

While the Americans plunged ahead, the Germans still were holding six armored divisions to confront General Montgomery's British and Canadians south of Caen, on the Allied east flank where the only activity was the turning back of various small-scale enemy counter-attacks.

Growing Nervousness.

Field dispatches said there was growing nervousness among enemy troops there, and much speculation among correspondents as to when General Montgomery might let loose another of his blows.

American spearheads, slashing more than 11 miles deep since the start of the armored push Wednesday and spreading out behind the enemy flanks, had cut the 84th German Army Corps into little knots of resistance.

But many of the corps apparently had escaped already from the Coutances pocket, where British newspapers estimated 50,000 to 70,000 of the enemy were being pressed against the sea.

Wtih Allied fliers reporting scenes of chaotic retreat rivaling Marshal Erwin Rommel's debacle in North Africa more than a year ago, the van of Lt.-Gen. Brandley's six spearheads reached at least to within three miles of Coutances from the northeast, headquarters said. Field dispatches said the Americans held heights overlooking the town.

To the north a column wending through booby-trapped Lessay pressed down upon the withdrawing enemy for a gain of two miles to Marguerin, and another ticked off a 4-mile gain from Periers to Corbuchon. Corbuchon is seven miles north of Coutances.

(To the home front the Germans spoke casually of the evident American intention of driving to the big centre of Avranches, 30 miles southwest of St. Lo, and Vire, 20 miles southeast of St. Lo—a possible hint that the German Army might have written them off.)

Three Divisions on U. S. Front

Field Dispatches said prisoners from six German Divisions had been counted at one advanced command post in a few minutes and it was believed that remnants of at least that many more divisions were threatened with encirclement.

Reports from advanced air bases in Normandy said more than 40 German tanks were destroyed, many of them 60-ton Tigers, and more than 65 damaged yesterday by fighter bombers. Much of the enemy armor had been driven off the roads and forced to divide into groups in the woods.

German air operations, headquarters said, have been confined to an average of 70 to 80 planes a night, with 110 of them shot down since the invasion.

One force stabbed to Notre Dame De Cenilly on its left, taking that town 11 miles southwest of St. Lo and about the same distance from the jump-off point in the offensive.

Here the Americans were nine miles southwest of Coutances, while othr columns of the same movement spread along an eight-mile front were pointed at the city itself. The nearest was within gunfire of the

3,000 Airplanes Hurled At Oil Centres

LONDON, July 28.—(AP).—American air forces hurled more than 3,000 planes to-day at dwindling German oil resources, striking synthetic fuel plants at Meresburg in the heart of the Reich and the rich Ploesti oil fields in Romania. Half the force was heavy bombers striking from both England and Italy.

Those attacks followed R. A. F. blows against Germany and the Ploesti oil centre of Romania.

Other flights of tactical aircraft returned to-day to the Normandy front in France supporting the American army advancing on Coutances by bombing and strafing enemy transport from Paris to the Atlantic coast. Yesterday, the tactical units destroyed or damaged at least 101 Nazi tanks.

Bombed Leuna Plant.

Around 1,000 heavy bombers with an equal number of fighters bombed the Leuna synthetic oil plants at Merserburg, for the third time this month, and other central German targets. Merseburg is on the Saale river west of Leipzig and is an important rail junction. The Germans said nearby Ahlle and Dessau also were attacked amid great air battles.

In a co-ordinated strike from Italy, more than 500 heavy bombers with probably an equal escort bombed the Ploesti oil centres 35 miles north of Bucharest for the 12th time. Ploesi had been bombed by R.A.F. air forces before dawn.

On the eastern front, the Russains said they again bombed the

C.C.F. Version Is Given House

OTTAWA, July 28 — (CP). — C.C.F. Leader Coldwell to-day gave the Commons his version of the expulsion of J. C. Landeryou, the Social Credit candidate in the Alberta elections, from Mr. Coldwell's meeting at Lethbridge, Alta., recently, and a tense moment passed off in laughter when Agriculture Minister Gardiner, one of the smallest men in the House said if he wanted anyone thrown out of a meeting he would do it himself.

"The incident as reported in the newspapers was an entire distortion of what occurred," said Mr. Coldell speaking on a question of privilege.

He said he had been speaking about the growth of racial animosity in Canada and referred to remarks made in the House by Norman Jaques (SC-Wetaskiwin) when Mr. Landeryou called out "That's a lie."

Red Officers In France

Military Mission Tours Western Front

By CHARLES LYNCH

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE July 28 (CP-Reuters) — Members of a Russian military mission composed of two Major-Generals, a Colonel and a Rear-Admiral, toured the Canadian and British sectors of the beachhead yesterday, visiting troops who took part in this week's bitter fighting south of Caen.

The brilliant Russian uniforms, heavily braided, contrasted strangely with the battle-dress of Canadian and British officers and men.

A guard of honor was on hand and a special force of provosts cleared the road ahead of the Jeeps carrying the Russians. They visited Caen and drove through the streets of the ruined city.

They also visited artillery emplacements and saw guns hurling shells into the German positions.

Men Wounded Near Caen Get Touch Of Home

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, July 28 (CP-Reuter) — Canadian casualties from this week's savage fighting south of Caen are being cared for in a Canadian General Hospital which opened Tuesday, the day the push was launched.

It is the first Canadian hospital to go into operation in the beachhead although a Canadian Casualty Clearing Station was opened about two weeks ago. Only a few hours after it opened, casualties from the fighting at Masur Orne, Verrieres and Tilly La Campagne started to come in.

Wounded soldiers found themselves treated by Canadian doctors and looked after by pretty nurses who spoke with Canadian accents.

The nurses have been in the beachhead for more than two weeks but they have been working at various British hospitals while the Canadian Hospital was set up.

Four Conservatives To Support Government Family Allowance Bill

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL—Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, July 28—(CP).—Debate on second reading to the Government's family allowance bill was expected to conclude today in the Commons, and speculation was rife in parliamentary lobbies on how Progressive Conservative party members would vote should the Government decide to call for a Four Progressive Conservative members promised yesterday that they would vote for the bill, but while they offered their support Liberal members called attention to the criticism levelled at the legislation by John Bracken, National leader of the Progressive Conservative party; Gordon Graydon, House leader, and Dr. Herbert Bruce (PC—Toronto Parkdale).

Because the principle of the bill was sound and because there could be no disagreement on its objective, John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre), A. H. Bence (PC—Saskatoon City), Lt.-Col. J. A. Ross (PC—Souris), and Howard Green (PC—Vancouver South) said they would vote for it. A fifth Conservative member, T. L. Church (PC—Toronto Broadview), criticized the bill, but did not indicate whether he would vote in support of the measure.

Among other speakers heard during the third day of debate on the Bill were Arthur Roebuck (L-Toronto Trinity), Philippe Picard (L-Belechasse), Dr. E. E. McGarry (L-Inverness-Richmond), Walter Tucker (L-Rosthern), G. E. Wood (L-Brant), and W. C. Macdonald (L-Halifax).

Submit Measure to Courts.

While announcing his support of the Alowances Bill, Mr. Diefenbaker said he believed the measure was unconstitutional and should be submitted to the courts at once with a view to determining whether it could be made operative.

He said great uncertainty and disappointment would result if the bill were thrown out by the courts after it went into effect. He thought the position could easily be clarified by getting a decision from the courts before next July, when payment of the allowances is scheduled to begin.

Mr. Bence also urged that the measure be submitted to the courts before it went into operation. If it was not constitutional it might just go into operation when someone opposed to the measure would take it to the courts and have it declared ultra vires.

Minimum Wage Scale

"I'm going to support the bill because half a loaf is better than none," said Col. Ross. He felt that the bill should have included some provision for the establishment of a uniform minimum wage scale across Canada.

"I intend to support this measure and I do so in the hope that it will benefit Canadian children and Canadian parents, thereby benefitting the Canadian nation as a whole," said Mr. Green.

He felt, however, that the bill was in general terms and left too much to be settled by regulations. He thought the whole arrangement should be written into the statute and suggested that the regulations, at least, be referred to a small committee of the house for study.

Mr. Church said there was no mandate for the passing of the bill. He feared it would mean the setting up of a nationwide bureaucracy and interfere with existing municipal welfare services in Toronto.

"The people of this country have got to decide by the ballot box whether they want a totalitarian state or whether they don't".

Against Allowances

Mr. Roebuck said Mr. Bracken had stated the allowances legislation had all the earmarks of a political bribe. This meant Mr. Bracken was "irrevocably against the allowances, because I take it that he himself would not be a self-confessed briber of the public."

Mr. Bracken's attitude could be taken as that of his party.

The attitude of the Conservative Party, apart from the members supporting the Bill, was typical of the hostility of that party to all progressive measures, said Mr. Picard.

He said that unfortunately the strongest opposition to the measure as expressed by Mr. Graydon and Dr. Bruce was based on parochialism. Dr. Bruce as usual had let no chance pass to "exude more venom on the minority" in this country.

Dr. McGarry said the bill was designed to improve social and economic conditions in Canada. Under present conditions it was impossible to have equality of opportunity. But the allowances would provide better food, living conditions and education for the children of the poor.

Must Be Federal

Mr. MacDonald said the Canadian people had put forth the greatest war effort of any people. They did not need to confess now that they could not afford social measures designed to raise the living standards of families. If payment of the allowances was left to the Provinces some of the Provinces would not be able to afford the payments.

Mr. Tucker said when the House was almost unanimous in support of the allowances and as there was no opposition from the Provinces it was a display of "Bankruptcy of thought" for the opposition to argue about the constitutionality of the Bill. It was no argument to say the Bill was brought down in too much of a hurry. If there was any real complaint it was that it was so late.

Mr. Wood said the allowances would help farmers and others who had small cash incomes. It would enable them to get some of the nice things of life for their children and supplement home grown foods with foods important to health.

East Prussia rail centre of Tilsit, destroying five military trains and setting "dozens of fires." The Russians said they destroyed 42 German planes.

The bombers were guided to Germany by Pathfinders who found Merseburg covered by thick clouds. They used the overcast bombing technique.

At Ploesti, the Germans attempted to make their own clouds by creating a dense smoke screen, but the bombers rained their bombs on the target, causing explosions and fires. A number of enemy fighters were destroyed, adding to the toll of more than 200 shot down by the Italy-based air forces from Monday through Thursday with a loss of 73 Allied planes. Flak was intense. The Germans said Bucharest also was bombed during the night.

Escorting fighters from England destroyed four German interceptors and the bombers got a fifth. Seven bombers and two fighters of these forces are missing.

The assaults were launched despite continuation of the cloudy weather which has restricted air operations over the Normandy battlefront, except for one day during the past two weeks, and which forced the raiders over the Reich to employ overcast aiming instruments.

The daylight raids, followed a night of activity by Italy-based bombers, which hammered the Romanian oil centre of Plesti while home-based R.A.F. Mosquitos handed Stuttgart its third pasting in four nights.

Bucharest Bombed

The Germans asserted that Bucharest was bombed anew last night.

Nazi broadcasts said Allied daylight formations thundered in this morning over Franconia, Thuringia and Saxony, which would carry them in a northeasterly direction to the general area of Magdeburg and Leipzig, and possibly to Berlin.

Although the weather continued bad for flying over the Normandy battle zone, Allied bombers and fighters began roaring out from Britain at daybreak, and continued intermittently most of the forenoon, suggesting that other sectors besides Germany were in for a heavy pounding.

Mosquito squadrons which attacked Stuttgart without loss last night despite a spirited defence found fires still burning in that German engineering and transport centre from smashing blows by British and Canadian heavy bombers Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

At least 5,000 tons of high explosives and incendiaries have been showered this week on Stuttgart.

9. Garwolin, a raial centre 30 miles southeast of Warsaw.

10. Other Russian troops broke into Siedlce, another rail centre 50 miles due east of Warsaw where street fighting was in progress.

All these tremendous achievements gave Germany her blackest day of the nearly five years of war. The conquests were never matched in the peaks of the German blitzkrieg.

The picture was one of German collapse along a meandering front of 1,000 miles from the wooded shores of the Gulf of Finland—an arm of the Baltic sea—to the Carpathians. Both northeast and southeast of Warsaw, the Russians were on broad plains leading into the very heart of the Reich, and there were no major natural barriers between.

Upwards of 1,532 towns fell to more than 1,500,000 marching men in the front ranks of the eight great Soviet army groups. The advance was two miles an hour in places.

Moscow made no immediate estimate of fresh German casualties. Earlier in the week, a Moscow announcement listed 580,000 Germans killed or captured since June 23 by five of the eight army groups alone. London estimated that at least 50,000 Germans had been besieged in the newly captured fortress cities; the final count may exceed that by many thousands.

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, July 28 (AP)—The beaten Germans fled to the suburbs of Warsaw today as Russian Cossacks and tanks surged across table-top grain fields in a frontal assault, 30 miles from the Polish capital.

The struggle for Warsaw was only one of a series of climactic battles in which the Red Army put the Nazis to rout in the Baltic Republics, massed for an assault along half of East Prussia's entire frontier, speared to within 140 miles of Germany proper and stormed the Carpathian gateway to Hungary.

Black Day for Nazis

It was the blackest day for the Nazis in the history of the German-Russian war, the Russians trumpeted last night the fall of six enemy bastions—Lwow, Bialystok, Daugavpils, Rezekne, Siauliai and Stanislawow.

Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky developed the frontal attack on Warsaw from Garwolin, 30 miles southeast, sending the first wave of mounted and armored forces rolling forward on both sides of the main highway which runs parallel to the Vistula river.

Suicidal German snipers attempted to harass the advance, which front dispatches said had as yet encountered no fixed line of fortifications in the flat countryside.

The second arm of Rokossovsky's combined Russian-Polish command was mopping up Siedlce, 50 miles east of Warsaw, and probing westward.

No Letup in Drive

On Hitler's shattered eastern front from the forested shore of the Finnish gulf to the cloud-wrapped mountains girting the Danubian Basin, there was no letup in the Red Army' annihilation campaign.

The German Armies in the Baltic Republics now must be evacuated by sea. Severing of the trans-Baltic Railway by Gen. Ivan Bagramian at the Lithuanian junction of Siauliai has effectively isolated the mauled German divisions in Latvia and Estonia.

Expanding the Siauliai bulge, the Red Army troops struck within 83 miles of the key port of Memel, lying westward, and they drove on Riga, 73 miles northeast, and Tilsit, historic east Prussia city 75 miles southwest. Other Russians are 65 miles south of Riga.

German resistance inside Lithuania was completely disorganized, Front dispatches said.

The occupation of Iland moved speedily under Marshal Ivan S. Konev, whose 1st Ukranian Army surrounded Jaroslaw and hemmed in Przemysl on three sides and advanced across the San River to within 128 miles of German Silesia.

Capture of Siauliai was credited chiefly to tireless Red Army infantry, who in a forced march covered more than 30 miles in 24 hours, and encircled and stormed the city.

Red Star said Nazi bombers intervened, but Soviet fighters smashed the attack as the survivors of the Siauliai garrison fled toward the Baltic Sea under shellfire on the one remaining road.

Heavy Forces Freed

The twin victories at Lwow and Stanislawow freed heavy Soviet forces for a direct blow at Germany's middle-Europe. It was declared in Moscow that the all-Slav committee's promise six months ago that direct help would be given Marshal Tito in Yugoslavia might be fulfilled in the not distant future.

Lwow fell after nearly a week of street fighting, but Stanislawow was evacuated at break-neck haste by the Germans when Konev's men outflanked it from the north and east by crossing four water obstacles.

Soviet confidence that the battle of Germany was about to begin was bolstered also by the superiority of the Red Air Force, which in merely one sector around Lwow reportedly flew 20,000 sorties in ten days.

The Germans used 160 anti-aircraft guns to protect Bialystok, but front dispatches told how Stormoviks blasted a path into the city and dispersed over 100 tanks. Infantry units that had been rushed from Romania and Germany to hold the fortress then demolished municipal buildings and fled.

Apsley Man Fined $50 For Carrying Rifle

Carrying a rifle in the Peterborough Game Preserve cost Thomas Harris of Apsley a fine of $50 and $2.50 costs when he entered a plea of guilty to the charge in police court this morning. The fine was imposed by Magistqrate R. B. Baxter.

The confiscation of the rifle was ordered by the court.

Harris was one of a party of three men seen by Fish and Game Overseer Vernal Windsor, coming out of the game preserv.e just at dusk one evening recently. He was carrying the rifle and the charge was consequently laid against him.

The overseer was driving along the Burleigh Falls-Apsley road when he noticed a car parked near the game preserve and he watched until he saw the three men coming out.

Others pushed to Le Deshayes, six miles south of Marigny and to the Soulles woods, 3q miles south of Canisy.

Two other columns closed in from the north from captured Lessay and Periers.

The Germans possibly were planning to make a stand behind the steep-bluffed Soulle and Sienne Rivers which run inland through Coutances, but already such a line was threatened by three other formations shoving deep into German territory from the west and east of St. Lo.

But 12 divisions have been disclosed in action on 48 miles of the front, and seven to four might be jammed in the Coutances pocket.

Field dispatches said at least 3,000 prisoners were taken in the first two days of the offensive.

A front dispatch from Canadian Press War Correspondent William Stewart said last night that three were smashed in front of the Canadian line from St. Andre Sur Orne to the area of Tilly La Campagne, south and southeast of Caen.

None had a chance to get started as artilleryfire dealt with troops forming for the first two and rocket-firing typhoons broke up the third.

As American tanks, half-tracks and self-propelled artillery units continued their advance, doughboys mopped up bypassed pockets of German resistance. Two stubborn pockets in the Vire River bend just west and south of St. Lo were wiped out.

East of St. Lo other American troops were reported to have improved their positions, driving the Germans out of a 13-mile stretch between St. Lo and Caumont.

No Question of Line

A spokesman at headquarters said the Americans were so extensively on the move on the 40-mile stretch from Caumon to the sea that there "no longer was a question of a line on the American front." He described the situation as fluid.

There has been considerable public speculation that Lt.-Gen. Patton, former commander of the American 7th Army in Italy, may be leading the Tank forces which have cracked German lines in the west.

Nothing has been said officially about the whereabouts of Patton, who arrived in Britain some time before the invasion, but the Germans have reported him in France.

Despite bad weather, Allied fighter-bombers continued their close support of the Normandy ground troops, striking at the battered enemy and providing cover for Allied armor and infantry.

Permits Missing For New Trucks

Three new trucks for municipal departments, ordered months ago by the council, have reached the city, but only one of them has been delivered. The two others are held up in local dealers' hands because the official permits are not at hand.

"The only explanation that I can make to the Board," Alderman Dutton, chairman, said at last night's meeting of the Board of Works "is that City Engineer Parsons had the three permits but has mislaid or lost two of them."

Hood & Cummings delivered their truck on permit authority, but the Duffus Company and Lillico Motors each has a truck for the city but the permits which were forwarded from Ottawa are missing, and two trucks are idle.

Meanwhile, the control authorities at Ottawa decline to issue any further permits to Peterborough, declaring that this city has already obtained three in one month, and that reply carries the implication that Peterborough ought to be satisfied in view of the scarcity of materials and the pressure of need from all parts of the country.

The Board expects that duplicate permits will be issued, but they are not yet available.

Brother Of VC Winner Flying With R.A.F.

The youthful bomb-aimer was Flt. Sgt. Bill Hornell, who flies with an R.A.F. squadron in glider towing and paratroop work.

Still saddened by his brother's death, Bill said he hadn't seen him since he was best man at Dave's wedding in January, 1943, at the family home at Mimico.

Provincial Rights Being Threatened

LONDON, Ont., July 28 (CP) — Premier Drew of Ontario said last night certain rights given to the Provincial Government at Confederation are being invaded today by the Dominion Government "which has proceeded to spend hundreds of millions of dollars with cynical disregard for the people of Ontario who are paying half the taxes."

Speaking over a London radio station, he said these rights were "in grave danger" and added that "once having taken them over the Dominion Government shows no inclination to relinquish them, with the result that the country is facing issues as serious in their effect upon the individual as the outcome of war itself."

Not Have Long To Wait For Newest Secret Weapons

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Nazi Propaganda Minister Goebbels assures his people that Germany has secret weapons, the sight of which made his heart "stand still"—and despite his tendency to falsehood and bombast we shall be unwise to dismiss this lightly.

Certainly the citizens of Britain, who are suffering death and destruction from Hitler's new robot bombs, don't discount the possibility and even probability of further devilish inventions. Prime Minister Churchill has warned them to be prepared for even greater trials.

We shan't have to wait long to learn the truth. The Germans will have to get their secret weapons into action quickly if they hope to gain any advantage before the swiftly rising tide of disaster engulfs them on the fighting front—as witness to-day's good news from both Eastern Europe and Normandy.

Hitler has promised Germany victory by means of secret weapons. Well, he certainly delivered one terrible instrument in the flying bomb, and his insistence on re-organizing for total war and making a fight to the finish might indicate that he has something further up his sleeve.

However, while the dictator may think he has a chance to secure a compromise peace, surely he and all his captains realize by this time that they can't win the war. The Prussian war lords, who represent some of the world's smartest military brains, turned against Hitler precisely because they realized that Germany had lost the war and they felt that further resistance was a waste of men and wealth.

The Prussian militarists presumably know all about any secret weapons which Germany may have. If they thought these weapons would win the war they would have stuck with the Fuehrer.

If Hitler has new weapons it's a fair bet that like the flying bomb, they're the type calculated to smash civilian morale, without having great military value. There's no secret weapon likely to halt the Allied offensives.

HAVELOCK BOY WOUNDED—L.-Sgt. Kenneth M. Buchanan, son of Mrs. L. Buchanan, Concession Street, Havelock, has been wounded in action in France July 21, according to information reaching his mother. He has been overseas three years, serving with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders.

Carrier Planes Attack Palau

PEARL HARBOR, July 28—(AP)—The sinking of 10 Japanese ships and levelling of defences in the Western Carolines by an American task force pointed the finger of offensive today at the Philippines.

The two-day attack of carrier planes, just disclosed by Admiral Nimitz, was centred on Palau, once-formidable naval base less than 600 miles east of Mindanao in the Philippines.

Today General MacArthur announced that his bombers swooped on an enemy convoy off Truk, another enemy naval base in the Central Carolines, setting afire and probably sinking a freighter and three lugger-type craft.

These sinkings, which included a destroyer, increased to more than 50 the shipping losses—from merchantman to aircraft carrier—Japan has suffered since the invasion of the Marianas opened a little over a month ago.

While these new successes sapped enemy strength along the way to Manila, ground forces spread out over more of Guam and Tinian, seeking to add them to Saipan as springboards of assault on the Philippines and Japan.

Godbout Would Jail Sowers Of Hate And Discord In Quebec

MONTREAL, July 28 (CP) — Premier Godbout said last night in an election campaign address at Sherbrooke that "sowers of hate and discord should be behind bars instead of being allowed to talk as they are" in the Quebec election campaign. He spoke at a rally in support of Hon. Maurice Gingues, Minister without portfolio, who is a candidate in Sherbrooke constituency in the Aug. 8 general election.

"Those who are reaping the benefits of the fight for democracy being waged by our sons overseas and who talk like that should be behind bars," he said.

He added that the youth of Quebec was doing as much for the war effort "as the sons of any other province."

The Premier said the policies followed by the Liberal administration were not necessarily the personal policies of the leaders but were "the policies of the entire population." The warming legislation resulted from suggestions advanced by Agricultural Associations and Labor legislation from labor groups.

Homeless and Hungry

Andre Laurendeau, Bloc Populyaire leader, addressed a meeting at Levis and said workers would find themselves "homeless and hungry" after the war if the Liberal or Union Nationale parties were elected. He added that the workers were threatened with a catastrophe "because the war will not last long now."

He added: "Shipbuilders and Levis and Lauzon workers: you suffered martyrdom before the war, but your fate surely will be worse if the gang of plutocrats and gangsters of finance succeed in having either Godbout (Premier Godbout) or Duplessis (Union Nationale Leader Maurice Duplessis) brought into power."

R. J. Lamoureux, C.C.F. provincial president and candidate in Montreal St. Henry, in a broadcast address said the Liberal and Union Nationale parties were representatives "of vested interests" while the Bloc Populaire was a group of young, inexperienced lawyers who "did not understand the needs of the laborer or farmer."

He added that recent statistics showed that it cost the government $537 a year for the maintenance of a prisoner in a penitentiary "but the rural school teacher is expected to live on a salary of $300."

Changes Candidates.

The C.C.F. changed candidates in St. Sauveur constituency in Quebec city last night when Paul Debois announced he would retire "in favor of Hon. Wilfrid Hamel," Minister of Lands and forests and Acting Labor Minister. Henri Laverdiere was selected to replace Mr. Debois as C.C.F. candidate in the contest.

Maurice Duplessis, Union Nationale leader, spoke at St. Gabriel de Brandon and said that if Premier Godbout had been living in the time of Ananias, the latter never would have been heard of. He was commenting on an address Mr. Godbout made at St. Hyacinthe, Que., in which he said, "I have never lied."

Never Left Canada In First Great War To Take Up Residence In U.S. King Says

OTTAWA, July 28—(CP)— Prime Minister Mackenzie King denied last night in the Commons that he left Canada during the years of the First Great War to take up residence in the United States.

Mr. King said that at no time between 1914 and 1918 "did I give up my residence in this city, at no time did I go anywhere to reside other than Ottawa, except temporarily."

He made the statement after Lt.-Col. J. A. Ross (P.C.—Souris) said he believed that between 1911 and 1919 Mr. King wrote his book industry and humanity, "and spent some years in the country to the south of us studying social problems—the years from 1914 to 1918, or something."

Mr. King said Mr. Ross was "repeating something, whether consciously or not, which is wholly untrue."

"My honorable friends says I spent some years, between 1914 and 1918 or something in another country. I did nothing of the kind. I spent those years for the most part in Canada. The book to which my honorable friend refers was written in Canada—every line of it. It is perfectly true that I did some work in the matter of industrial relations in that period, but at no time did I give up my residence in this city, at no time did I go anywhere to reside other than Ottawa, except temporarily."

Mr. Ross said he had not stated that Mr. King had written his book in the United States. He said the Prime Minister had indicated in the House Tuesday while opening debate on the family allowances bill that he had spent "that period (1914-1918) in another country.

"I am simply going through what he said with considerable heat the other day during the presentation of this bill," said Mr. Ross.

Mr. King interjected: "The honorable member said tonight that I spoke with considerable heat. That is something which honorable gentlemen opposite are seeking to repeat and repeat and repeat . . . I wish to say to my honorable friend that I spoke in no heat whatever in connection with this debate, and when honorable gentlemen seek to convey that impression by their words they are making a mistake."

Mr. Coldwell said he again quoted from Mr. Jaques' speech and Mr. Landeryou repeated his charge.

He then told Mr. Landeryou to withdraw his statement or leave the meeting and sat down. After a full minute the chairman rose, and gave Mr. Landeryou another five seconds to withdraw. When he did not, the ushers without any violence, escorted Mr. Landeryou from the hall. Outside, Mr. Landeryou became abusive and one man struck him.

Thomas Reid (L-New Westminster) raised a point of order and said Mr. Coldwell had no right to discuss an incident outside Parliament on a question of privilege.

Speaker Glen said Mr. Coldwell was in his rights as the incident had been mentioned in the House.

Mr. Coldwell was continuing his speech when Mr. Gardiner rose with another point of order.

"This incident is typical of dozens of incidents put on by the C.C.F. all over the country," he said. "I've been called a liar at least 20 times by C.C.F. organisers. They are simply getting a little of their own back."

Mr. Coldwell said if anyone called him a liar in a meeting when he was telling the truth that person had to withdraw and he was surprised Mr. Gardiner would not take the same stand.

"The Liberal Party to hich I belong has never organized storm troopers to throw people out of the meetings in Western Canada," said Mr. Gardiner. "If I want anybody thrown out of my meetings I will throw them out myself."

Fuel Wood Price At Last Winter Level

Announcement from the office of Wartime Prices and Trade Board today confirms expectation that fuel wood prices in the city of Peterborough remain at the same levels as last winter.

The wood prices quoted in the Examiner Thursday are in effect in the townships of Ops, Emily and Mariposa in Victoria county, and in Ennismore, Douro, Dummer, Smith, Belmont and all townships south of them in Peterborough county.

Some of the rural and city prices remain at an equal level as before, but local dealers point out that schedule as quoted does not affect the city trade.

Soldier Grabs Purse From Elderly Woman

COBOURG, July 28—(ENS)—Mrs. Adeline Skinner, 10 Cavan street, Port Hope, who has been visiting in Cobourg for the past three weeks, was robbed of about $700 Thursday when an unidentified soldier snatched her purse and ran.

Police searched the area without success and watched all railway and bus outlets but it was later established that the thief made his getaway in a waiting car with a dark-haired woman as his companion. Police of centres east and west of Cobourg were notified but so far he has not been picked up.

The robbery took place near the Baptist Church and Mrs. Skinner had just left the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Lane who lives on Ball street, just north of the church, when a soldier passed her as she proceeded south towards King street. As he passed, he wheeled suddenly and clutched at Mrs. Skinner's purse. The elderly lady instinctively tried to pull away and fell on the grass. The soldier, purse in his hands, disappeared around the corner and travelling via back fences for part of the route, made his way north to Blake street, which is two streets from the scene of the robbery, jumped into a waiting car and disappeared.

It was some time after the robbery that police received word that a blue coupe was parked upon Blake street and that a soldier had jumped in and driven off. A dark-haired woman was waiting in the car. The automobile headed west but might have doubled back and gone east again.

Too Dazed To Act

"It happened so suddenly that I didn't have a chance," declared Mrs. Skinner. "The soldier just made a grab before I realized what he was doing. It had been visiting my daughter and as I didn't want to leave my money alone in Port Hope. I brought it with me. I did think of putting it in the bank but didn't do it."

Mrs. Skinner believed that she had around six or seven hundred dollars in her purse along with her ration books and house keys.

The purse snatcher is described as being about five feet six inches in height, fair hair, medim build and wore a uniform, khaki rain coat and wedge hat. Prior to the robbery here, a soldier answering to the same description tried to snatch a purse in Port Hope but failed and fled.

WHAT POLES CLAIM OF GERMANY—This map shows the borders of Poland after the First World War and what areas of eastern Germany the Soviet-supported national council of Poland demands in a manifesto issued declaring itself the "sole lawful source of authority in Poland." It called upon the Poles for restoration to the motherland of old Polish Pomorze and Opolaska Silesia, from eastern Prussia, for a wide outlet to the sea, and for Polish frontier posts on the Oder River. The U.S. and Great Britain recognize the Polish government in London but Russia does not recognize that government any longer. King Decorates V.C. Winners

By DOUG HOW

WITH THE 8TH ARMY IN ITALY, July 28 (CP)—Representative men of a veteran Canadian formation stood on an Italian hillside and watched King George invest with the Victoria Cross a 19-year-old Indian soldier, Sepoy Kamal Ram, it was disclosed last night.

This ceremony took place Wednesday in the course of a tour during which the King drove miles along roads lined with cheering soldiers and took his first flight in a "whizzer," a British single-engined small artillery observation plane.

His Majesty also decorated two other soldiers with the V.C.—the Empire's highest award for gallantry in battle—and performed the ceremony of Knighting Lt.-Gen. Sir Oliver Leese, commander of the British 8th Army.

During the day he met for the first time Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski, commander-in-chief of the Polish Army, as well as Lt.-Gen. Wladyslaw Anders, commander of a Polish Army Corps in Italy, and Leopold Stokowski, composer and conductor, at an impressive review of Polish troops.

Before the troops passed, the King and Gen. Sosnkowski held a long conversation on the field.

Happy Surprise

Kamal Ram, an Indian soldier, thought at first he was up for a misdemeanor when a provost came to get him for the V.C. decoration ceremony. The rookie private of the 8th Punjab Regiment knocked out three machine-gun posts with a bayonet and grenades during the crossing of the Gari River just south of Cassino last May 12. His action enabled his company to continue its advance.

The other recipients of the V.C. were Lieut. Richard Wakeford and Fusilier Richard Arthur Jefferson, who were decorated together on a parade ground behind the front lines.

The King shook hands with and decorated officers and non-commissioned officers, including Maj. J. R. Walker of Three Rivers, Que., and Capt. Arnie Charbonneau of Ottawa, both of whom were awarded the Military Cross, and Sgts. R. Campbell of Clyde Forks, Ont., and F. J. Montaine of Toronto, holders of the Military Medal.

The ceremony of knighthood for Gen. Leese was performed early Wednesday in the striking scene of the King's mountain-top camp overlooking much of the battlefront.

Sir Oliver, who inherited a baronetcy in 1908, last year was made a Knight Commander of the Order of the Bath. This was the first opportunity for the King to carry out the formal investiture.

Both the King and Sir Oliver were in jovial spirits as they carried out the ceremony.

The King called to photographers, "Are you all set?" then the general knelt on the ground and the King tapped his shoulder with a sword.

Capt. Wakeford, practically a one-man army on the Gustav Line, was wounded in the face and in both arms and legs before he desisted from his solo charges against the enemy. Fusilier Jefferson destroyed one tank at 20 paces with a bazooka and charged another, which turned and fled.

Canada Benefits In Establishing Monetary Fund

By R. K. CARNEGIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, July 28.—(CP).—Officials of the Finance Department are studying the proposal made by the United States' monetary conference at Breton Woods, N.H., this month for an international monetary fund to facilitate world trade after the war.

A financial advisor to the department, empahisizing that none of the conference proposals would be effective until ratified by the various United Nations' governments, said to-day that provisions of the proposed monetary fund were of particular intrest to Canadians. He cited four aims of the fund which might affect Canada.

1. The fund recognized gold as the common denomination of national currencies and countries joining the fund would doubtless seek to increase their gold reserves, he said. Gold would continue in at least as favorable position as it now occupies, thus benefitting Canada, one of the world's greatest gold producers.

2. The fund would provide against wide fluctuations in the currency values of any member country. For instance, it would protect Canada from the jam this country encountered during the depression when sterling slumped and the United States dollar remained high. Canada was selling in sterling and buying United States dollars.

3. The fund would provide a cushion so that if the United States suddenly went into a depression Canada needn't be drawn into it immediately.

4. The fund would protect Canada in foreign markets against multiple currency values as used by Germany and to some extent by Argentina before the war. It would prohibit multiple currencies.

In addition, there also would be the overall advantage that the fund would practically elimiante speculation in the national currencies of member countries, said the advisor.

The fund also would recognize the sovereign right of each nation to regulate its own currency, but the advantage of membership in the fund would be so great that nations would willingly obey its rules.

One proposal would prevent any country from imposing restrictions on making payments and transfers for current international transactions, but could restrict movement of capital. For instance, the foreign exchange board of Canada could still restrict the withdrawal of capital from the Dominion, but could not restrict the use of foreign currency for travel on current purchases abroad.

Couple Driven Out Four Times By Bombs

LONDON, July 28 — (CP) — Lt.-Cmdr. S. C. Dickinson of Toronto has been chasing Germans over the Atlantic now for some four years, but he is beginning to feel that if he really wants to get into this war he ought to stay with his mother and father in London. They have been bombed out on four occasions.

First taste of being homeless came during the blitz in 1940 when bombs flattened their house at Wimbledon, near here. Cmdr. Dickinson's mother was pinned under debris for 36 hours, but his father escaped unharmed, being at work in the Admiralty.

The Dickinsons then leased another house and in the spring of 1941 German bombs levelled it once more. This time both parents escaped injury. And their luck held on the third occasion when their flat—they had stopped getting houses by that time—was flattened.

The fourth time both were shaken as a German bomber smashed houses around their place and left their flat so wrecked it had to be torn down.

Reporter Can Vouch For Sauriol Statement

OTTAWA, July 28 — (CP) — Justice Minister St. Laurent said today in the Commons that Royal Canadian Mounted Police had found one reporter who claimed he could vouch for the accuracy of a newspaper report of a speech by Jacques Sauriol, Montreal newspaperman, which was regarded as indicating an offense against the Defence of Canada regulations.

"At the present time the situation is that there is one person who claims he could vouch for the accuracy of the statements made in the paper," said Mr. St. Laurent.

Mr. St. Laurent said Mr. Sauriol was believed to have given some notes on his speech to a reporter but it had not been possible to locate these notes.

The Future Of The Robot

Walter Lippmann has pointed out that we have, in the robot bombs, a crude foreshadowing of the kind of weapon which will be used in the next war. At present the robot is a blind, wantonly destructive engine which may blow up a building filled with people, or drop uselessly in an open field; but a robot that could be guided would be a most formidable weapon, and we may be sure that some clever engineer will discover a way of guiding them.

There are reports at present that the Nazis intend to bomb the city of New York with robots discharged from U-boats; perhaps they will do so, for they have shown themselves capable of any folly. Bombing New York could not prevent the United Nations from winning the war, and it would harden the hearts of the American people against any German pleas for clemency, but the Germans might do it out of sheer devilment and love of destruction. But if the Germans try it, they will not be able to guide their robots; they may hit the Empire State building, or they may hit a parking-lot; it is very much a matter of chance.

There was a time when bombing from the air was a matter of chance too, but it is so no longer. The robot, having made its first awkward bow in the theatre of war, will go on and on until it is a finished and effective actor. When next we go to war we must expect to see, the robot in a very different guise.

The prospect is alarming, but we shall not banish it by foolish talk about "outlawing war", and "making certain that it can never happen again"; we went through all that nonsense after the last war, and it meant nothing at all. We shall prevent wars fought with new and superior robots only by collective security and co-operation among the victors in this fight. The cost of disunity is war—more terrible even than this. In the postwar years we must take care not to forget that.

A Time For Personal Gifts

The end of the war may not be far off, as Mr. Churchill has hinted, but the city of London is undergoing worse attacks now than it did in the autumn of 1940, and the suffering and the need for help there has not decreased. We can all do something to relieve that suffering by contributing to the Peterborough British War Victims' Fund which has, since the outbreak of war, sent more than $78,000 to Britain from this city and suroundING district.

Personal contributions at this time are particularly appropriate as thank-offerings for our own deliverance from the worst rigours of war. There are people here who have lost young men in the forces, or who have had men taken prisoner by the enemy, or who have heard that their men are wounded: they have felt the war closely. But the majority of us have not suffered directly or grievously because of the war; we have had extra burdens of one kind and another, but our well-being has not been menaced. When we think of our extraordinary good fortune in this matter we may also feel an urge to make a gift to those who have felt the war at its worst. The British War Victims' Fund gives us that chance.

The robot bombs are doing great damage; they have destroyed many homes, killed many people, and have maimed others. During the blitz on London thousands of people were stripped of everything they owned by the bombing; the robot bombs have the same effect. People who are the victims of this attack are civilians, and they have no regular channel through which to make their claims for help. But they have a claim upon us, for they are in danger and we are safe; they are fighting our common fight within range of the enemy, while we are at a distance. Their moral claim upon us is undeniable.

Every cent which is given to the Peterborough British War Victims' Fund goes to Britain to help those who are in straits. Already word has reached officials of the Fund of people who have connections in this area, and who have received help from the Fund after a robot bomb attack. The money which we give goes to help those who have the best claim upon us. Will you make a personal gift now?

"The Inside Story"

Since a year or so before the war we have followed with interest a variety of 'news letters'—those budgets of information about international affairs which are supplied to their subscribers by agencies which lay claim to exclusive and reliable sources of information. The 'news letter' is a very ancient institution; during the Middle Ages great merchant houses received information from their travellers which they distributed to rulers, prelates and other interested persons who were willing to pay well to have 'the inside story' about what was going on in foreign parts. It was the appeal of 'the inside story' which sold the news letter then, and which sells it now.

But, frankly, we have ceased to believe in these inside stories. Undoubtedly there is information known to high governmental officials in all countries which is not made available to the public, but it is certainly not made available to the publishers of news letters. During the war several of these services have undertaken to predict what is about to happen; "Watch Turkey during the next six weeks for significant developments...", they say, and we have obediently watched Turkey, but without observing anything out of the ordinary. In fact, we have never yet seen a piece of information, or a tip as to future happenings, in a news letter, which was of any value to us.

Nowadays the newspapers carry all the inside stories which are to be had. The reporting on the war in all its aspects which the press has done since 1939 surpasses in value all the prophecies and news letters which have been published. The inside stories which are to be had for a substantial subscription look very much like combinations of rumour, guess-work and obfuscations of the obvious.

The Longevity Of Jokes

Reading the jokes in a newspaper the other day we happened upon this one:

A farmer wrote to a rural paper to ask "how long cows should be milked".

"Why, the same as short cows, of course", advised the editor.

This carried us back to childhood, when we used to listen over and over again to a gramophone record called "Scene In a Country Store", which was a dialogue between the storekeeper, called Mr. Hill, and an excruciatingly comic customer, called Elias. This joke about long cows and short cows provided one of the highlights of the record. There was another witticism about a family called Damn, which had so many children with measles that "they had to quarantine the hull Damn family"; after this daring sally Mr. Hill and Elias went off into peals of delighed laughter, and we used to laugh at it too, in those days. Another mirthquake from this rural idyll ran as follows:

Elias: Them two boys? Why, them two boys is sisters.

Mr. Hill: Sisters? Why, you mean brothers.

Elias: Naw; sister lives over there in that white house and them two is her boys!

Haw! haw! haw! Mr. Hill and Elias nearly strangled themselves with that one. That was before the days of orthophonic recording and frequency modulation, and their thin, tinny laughter comes to me over the years like the merriment of ghosts.

But the impression of ghostliness is purely illusory. The jokes of Mr. Hill and Elias are still very much alive and kicking. We all know them, and we all love them. Like Mother Machree, their age and decrepitude merely serves to endear them to us. Nothing is so indestructible as a joke, and even a bad joke seems to be coined 'n iron; constant use, years of traffic do not efface its minting or lessen its value.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Crime doesn't pay. And it's surprising how little good behaviour brings in, too.

Premier Manning of Alberta says that the eyes of all Canada will be fixed upon his province on August 8. Personally, we hope to find time for one or two quick squints at Quebec.

An Italian peasant girl who has visions says that the war will be over by the end of July. Was she one of those who, in 1939, foresaw that there would be no war at all?

Why Family Allowances?

(By GRANT DEXTER)

OTTAWA: The first question that arises with respect to family allowances is: Why are they necessary? Why commit the country to spend $200 millions a year?

You can get any number of different answers from those who favor the policy. A few are attracted by the presumed political advantages. Most people, however, realize that the measure on balance will be a political liability and not an asset. Some are attracted to the policy by fear of socialism on the one hand or fascism on the other. Here, they argue, is a way of meeting a demand for social security which does not involve government intervention directly in business. It avoids increases in wages, because of family responsibilities, which would increase production costs uneconomically and cripple exports both in a direct and indirect way.

The best explanation is not specific but general. It is claimed that there has been a steady growth in public sentiment in favor of a greater measure of social security. This growth dates from the beginning of the century and received a marked impetus in the First World War. It found expression in social security measures which were widely adopted in this country in the first two decades of this century—the Fair Wage Act, the Industrial Disputes Act, the Combines Investigation Act, Mothers' Allowances, Workmen's Compensation and various public health measures.

THESE were followed by old age pensions, pensions for the blind, and an increasing agitation for unemployment insurance, penal reform and so on. The depression again stimulated the desire for social betterment and the present war, like the preceding war, has once more added vigor to the movement. The greatest forward step in the present war is unemployment insurance. Past achievements were reviewed in some detail in these columns a year ago.

The increase in expenditures for social purposes, given in the preceding article, reflect the growth of this public opinion. Further evidence, if it is required, is to be found in the Atlantic Charter, in declarations by national leaders among the United Nations. Mr. King's speech in Toronto on Oct. 9, 1942, is worth recalling: "The era of freedom will be achieved only as social security and human welfare become the main concern of men and nations."

But in the case of this country there were obstacles to progress—chief among them the British North America Act. The constitution placed jurisdiction in this field almost wholly with the provincial legislatures whose financial resources were strictly limited. It is argued, and not without force, that this country fell somewhat behind in the movement for social betterment. There was, in Canada, nothing comparable with the U.S. Social Security Act of 1935, with the advances made in the United Kingdom, Australia, New Zealand and other countries.

That there was a public awareness of this is indicated by the numerous commissions of inquiry which have been set up since 1930. There were two in Ontario, two in British Columbia, one in Quebec and in Alberta, and several Dominion inquiries.

THE major investigation, however, was made by the Rowell-Sirois Commission of 1937-40. The terms of reference to the commission, of course, were much wider than social matters, but it was to a considerable extent the pressure upon the provinces for social services which they could not finance (including relief) which led to the appointment of the commission.

More perhaps than the main report, the supporting studies published by the commission deal with social problems. The recommendations of the commission, by providing the provinces with adequate financial resources, would have tended to make the present Dominion policy unnecessary as a purely social measure. No doubt the economic arguments would still have stood. In any event, attempts by the Dominion in January, 1941, to implement the report failed.

At Ottawa in the past two years there have been a great many inquiries with respect to post-war reconstruction. There have been two committees of the House of Commons, and one of the Senate. There have been independent advisory committees. There have been departmental and interdepartmental committees. Parliament Hill has been a very beehive of post-war planning.

The odd fact is that family allowances practically escaped the notice of all these investigators other than the group of economists known as the brain trust. It is true that Leonard Marsh devoted considerable space to this policy, but you will look in vain for material in the stacks of Hansards which contain the work of the parliamentary committees. Mr. Marsh drew his inspiration from the Beveridge Report.

IT is being said in the present controversy that the British Government has rejected the policy of family allowances. This statement appears in the Ottawa Journal of July 13, 1944. The fact, however, is precisely the opposite. This is one of the Beveridge recommendations which the British Government has accepted, although at a lower rate of weekly allowance than Sir William proposed. The reference here is to the speech made by Sir John Anderson in the British House of Commons on Feb. 16, 1943, (col. 1667, revised Hansard). There have been a number of other and later commitments by the British Government in favor of family allowances.

Family allowances have been in operation for a number of years in Australia and New Zealand. The reasons for their adoption in these Dominions is no particular warrant for similar action in Canada. But the experience in Australia, as will be shown, is not without significance.

If the broad argument in favor of further substantial measures of social security is conceded the question still remains—Why adopt the particular policy of family allowances?

(This is the second of a series of articles on the development of Social Security in Canada.)

Twenty-five years ago on the eve of the Liberal nomination convention the Ottawa Journal expressed the opinion that Mr. Mackenzie King was more the scholar than the politician. But the paper confesses that since that time it has felt doubts about this judgement.

SOMETIMES, PAPA, I HAVE DOUBTS —By Thomas

Mr. Ghandhi's Two Offers

(BRITISH INFORMATION)

THE two offers made by Mr. Gandhi recently do suggest that a change for the better in the Indian deadlock has taken place, and they emphasize once again that this is much more of a Congress Party Moslem League deadlock than an Indian British deadlock.

But the idea that Mr. Gandhi has made a complete reversal of his former policy and "accepted the Cripps offer" may arouse undue hopes. The deadlock has been loosened but it is not yet broken, as a closer scrutiny of Mr. Gandhi's carefully limited offers will reveal. Fairly detailed summaries have been published in the newspapers, but in brief they are as follows:

1. Mr. Gandhi, through Mr. Rajagopalachari, has made Mr. Jinnah and the Moslem League an offer of Congress Party co-operation, with a proposal for the division of India into separate Hindu and Moslem states. The terms, however, were general and their lack of detail allows for too many interpretations and loopholes to suit the Moslems; furthermore they were not open to modification and they did not have the authority of reaching Mr. Jinnah from Mr. Gandhi, but through Mr. Rajagopalachari, no longer a member of the Congress Party. Mr. Jinnah therefore felt unable to present them to the Moslem League's Working Committee for consideration. As a result Mr. Rajagopalachari informed him that negotiations were ended.

2. Mr. Gandhi has, through a press statement, declared that he wished an interview with the Viceroy "with a view to help and not hinder the Allied war effort", and that he would be ready to ask the Congress Party to join a national government given full control of the civil administration. "So far as military operations are concerned, the Viceroy and Commander-in-Chief would have complete control but it must be possible for the national government to offer advice and criticisms even in military matters. Thus the portfolio of defense would be in the hands of the national government". Mr. Gandhi emphasized, however, that he could do nothing without consulting the Working Committee of the Congress Party. He also said that he had no intention of invoking civil disobedience today unless a grave emergency arose in which India's national aspirations were being thwarted.

Mr. Gandhi's aims are always difficult to assess but, since he must have known that Mr. Jinnah would not accept his proposals in their present form, he was perhaps trying to discover the strength of Hindu feeling against Pakistan and, at the same time, to pass on to Mr. Jinnah the responsibility of refusing an ostensibly generous offer.

Yet the important fact remains that Mr. Gandhi has recognized the principle of Pakistan, i.e., separate Hindu and Moslem States. Any real understanding between Hindus and Moslems would be valuable, and it is disappointing that negotiations are not proceeding.

As for Mr. Gandhi's second offer—of participation by the Congress Party in a national government—his terms sound very insisted during their negotiations with Sir Stafford Cripps, and which would deprive the Viceroy of his veto power and weaken the Commander-in-Chief's responsibility for defense. The Viceroy, Lord Wavell, has made it clear that he will welcome any constructive suggestion to solve the political deadlock and to associate India's party leaders with the conduct of the war, but it must be within the framework of the existing constitution.

Mr. Gandhi's immediately purpose doubtless is to secure the release of the members of the Working Committee of the Congress Party. Furthermore a recent suggestion by Sir Srinavasa Sastri, one of India's elder statesmen, that Mr. Gandhi should be India's sole representative at the peace conference may have been an important consideration in Mr. Gandhi's mind.

More Fire With Less Smoke

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

FIFTY-THREE years ago this month—in July, 1891—experiments were being made at Sandy Hook in New Jersey in an effort to evolve a smokeless gunpowder. German and French scientists had already reduced gunpowder's smoke-producing qualities, and the talents of American scientists were being directed to carrying the process still further.

Certainly, the battle-smoke of the old days had been more than a dramatic figure of speech. When the batteries fired, the smoke rolled heavily and slowly, in great thick clouds, which were only gradually rent by whatever breeze there might happen to be. Indeed, the sheer thickness of the battle smoke added immeasurably to the difficulties of commanders, who tried to survey the obscured field, and to detect the changes that were taking place.

Even the discharge of an old-fashioned musket could leave a smoke-screen that might conceal the movements of the man who had discharged it. Advice on the use to which musket-smoke might be put was given by Col. James Fitzgibbon, the officer commanding at Beaver Dams in the War of 1812, to whom Laura Secord brought her famous message. Col. Fitzgibbon had had a good deal of experience in forest warfare, and he found that musket-smoke might be the skirmisher's friend.

It was Col. Fitzgibbon's advice that a soldier retreating through the woods "should run to the right or left, having in each case previously fixed his eye upon the tree to which he intends to run; and if he can fire to advantage before he quits the tree that covers him, so much the better, as the smoke may conceal his retreat, and his enemy will not know where next to find him until he fires again".

Certainly science has transformed warfare, as it has most other things, and in the modern battle there often is more fire than smoke.

Lessons of an "Incident"

I HAPPENED recently to be at the scene of an "incident". I was much struck by two features of it. One was the way sightseers rushed from all directions to the vicinity and formed themselves into solid, wedged masses, so that it was a practical impossibility for civil defence personnel and vehicles to approach without having to fight their way through, thus causing delays with tragic consequences. The other was the way American troops in the neighborhood rallied round to help. Before many minutes a line of jeeps was formed to take the injured to hospital and, apparently without formal authority, a number of American soldiers threw a cordon at one point to stem the flow of the surging crowd and divert and regulate the traffic.—Mrs. B. Ruthven-Murray in London Times.

On the Rails

THAT the rail lines do not intend to be caught napping, if advance planning may enable them to hold their freight and passenger traffic, is evidenced by the ambitious new types of motive-power projected by American railways. The Pennsylvania has a new steam-turbine locomotive nearing completion and visualizes a turbo-electric which will burn pulverized coal. New York Central finally has succumbed to the Diesel and will have both freight and passenger locomotives of this type, to be tested opposite steam power under precisely the same conditions, to decide which is more efficient. And car-builders urge that new freight cars have trucks capable of 100 m.p.h. speeds, with passenger cars capable of withstanding 150-mile speeds. One can scarcely say that the rails are disposed to rest on their laurels.—Christian Science Monitor.

The British System

IF we had a parliamentary system, the executive and legislative branches and all appointees would be merged into a single unit and be compelled to accept responsibility overnight for any blunder. This does not necessarily mean in actual practice a series of elections. It means that the mere threat of an election to test power could force a change in policy or in personnel. This has worked in the British Commonwealth of Nations, and it can work successfully for us because it is true democracy to give the people an instantaneous check on their rulers.

The Canadian parliamentary system is what the United States should adopt. Then we could avoid the necessity of holding elections in the midst of some national crisis where continuity of administration might be imperative. We could acquire also a new sense of responsibility in the relations of the executive and the legislative branches of the government. Woodrow Wilson foresaw this need as far back as the 1880's and advocated it again as president-elect in February, 1913, in a historic letter to Congress on the subject of presidential tenure.—New York Sun.

Contemporaries

NOTHING IS LOST.

It looks as if there are no lost cultures and that whenever man does something worth his while it is bound some day to flourish, to embellish and enrich the world and its inhabitants.

We are told to weep over fallen empires and lost civilizations. Nobody should weep over an empire. It is a political structure and therefore a thing subject to changes and adaptable to circumstances.

There are no lost civilizations. If they are of any significance, if they have any message at all, they expand into less advanced territories; intellectual and cultural endosmosis is a constant and marvelous reality.—News From Belgium.

A VERY GOOD BULL.

The Oxford Dictionary's description of a bull, of the variety commonly known as Irish, is "an expression involving a ludicrous inconsistency unperceived by the speaker". The qualification "unperceived by the speaker" is obviously important; it means that one cannot intentionally make a bull.

For that reason we feel some hesitancy about extending to Mr. McAree, of the Globe and Mail, an award of merit for the best Canadian bull of the current summer, for we gravely suspect Mr. McAree of deliberately trying to write a best bull. Anyhow, he assured us last week in his column which we follow with the most punctilious regard, that Senator Bouchard's appointment to the chairmanship of "Hydro Quebec" was not "a bone flung to a faithful party wheel-horse".

And it is pure desire to paint the lily that makes us want to add the further detail "out of the inexhaustible armory of the public funds".—Toronto Saturday Night.

A Bible Message

MOREOVER Job continued his parable, and said....My righteousness I hold fast, and will not let it go: my heart shall not reproach me so long as I live....I will teach you by the hand of God; that which is with the Almighty will I not conceal....

He setteth an end to darkness, and searcheth out all perfection....There is a path which no fowl knoweth, and which the vulture's eye hath not seen. (Job 27: 1, 6, 11; 28: 3, 7.)

My little children, these things write I unto you, that ye sin not. And if any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous....

He that saith I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him. But whoso keepeth his word, in him verily, is the love of God perfected: hereby know we that we are in him.

He that saith he abideth in him ought himself also so to walk even as he walked. (I. John 2: 1, 4-6.)

Germans Have Failed To Contain Allied Invasion Of Normandy

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Nazi admission that Russian spearheads had punched across the Vistula southwest of Warsaw headlined the war news from Europe, although sustained second-day progress of a closely knit American airtank advance in Normandy hold promise of significant events to come in the west.

As the air-escorted tank columns mushroomed out to east and west from the deep penetration of enemy lines below St. Lo, there seemed no qustion that the desperate Nazi effort to contain the Allied invasion had failed. Front-line despatches told of American infantry swarming through the air-and-tank cut gap to consolidate the ground, disrupt German rear echelon services and outflank his battle lines in both directions.

Hasty Retreat

West of the St. Lo dent American troops had taken Lessay and passed the Periers Nazi road-hub block to threatenn Coutances from the north while tank columns rolling down from the St. Lo-Coutances highway pressed upon it at even close range from the east. There was little doubt that the German hasty retreat from the Coutances-Lessay coastal triangle of the Cherbourg Peninsula was in progress to escape a closing Allied trap.

There are glittering possibilities in the developing situation. While it is as yet doubtful that the Allied immediate purpose goes further than to widen and deepen the Normandy bridgehead to accomodate larger forces in preparation to more decisive action, the means for immediate exploitation of enemy confusion appears to be at hand. The situation in German ranks as well as in Germany itself invite bold action.

Brest Litovsk in Peril

Russian crossing of the Vistula on the 30-mile span where they have reached the river southeast of Warsaw seemed highly probable. Red forces had seized east-bank towns, Deblin and Pulawy, guarding the important rail and road crossing west of Lublin. Nazi evacuation of Brest Litovsk was clearly impending since the breach of the Vistula line meant Warsaw was due for a flanking, not frontal, attack, and the Brest Litovsk garrison was in growing danger of being cut of and annihilated.

Once beyond the river in the Deblin-Pulawy sector in any force, the Russians could swing northwestward to take the old Polish capital from the rear, its vulnerable side, or cut its communication lines. Whatever the Russian plan however, the battle is rolling back upon Warsaw again, just two months short of five years from the day it fell to German arms, Sept. 27, 1939, and launched the world into the greatest war it has ever known.

Douglas Denies Plans For Repudiation

TORONTO, July 28.—Rumors that Saskatchewan's new C.C.F. Government might repudiate interest payments on provincial bonds, or arbitrarily lower the interest rates, were emphatically denied here yesterday by Premier T. C. Douglas of that province. He was in Toronto for the day, leaving for the West last night.

Premier Douglas said these rumors arose from a misunderstanding at a press conference after his election, when he discussed refunding at lower interest rates provincial bonds which were coming due.

"We are not repudiating or reducing interest payments," he said. "But we have a considerable amount of bonds coming due. I think we can get a fairly good refunding rate without much trouble, at what would have been preposterously low interest rates 10 years ago."

Some Saskatchewan bonds now pay 5½ and 6 per cent., he said, and the C.C.F. Government hoped to refund them eventually at rates as low as 3 per cent.

Not Seeking Flotation

Asked whether his visit to Toronto, along with C. M. Fines, Provincial Treasurer, was to negotiate any loans for Saskatchewan, Premier Douglas said:

"No, not just now. We're just meeting some of the bond men and establishing contact with them. We're not trying to borrow any money. Fortunately, Saskatchewan is in a very good financial position."

The slender five-foot-six C.C.F. veteran was in excellent cheer, and wore his new mantle of premiership easily. To the friends who were telephoning and visiting him at the hotel he was just "Tommy" — not "Mr. Douglas."

New Job Different

Known in the House of Commons since 1935 as a hard-hitting critic of the Liberal Government, he realized his new job would be different, since it would call on his administrative ability. One of the post-war problems concerning him was provincial taxation.

What we want is an income and corporation tax collected by the Federal Government, and divided back to the provinces on a basis of population," he said.

"That is because the corporations and financial institutions which make their money in the West pay their income taxes in the East, so that the Western people, from whom they make their money, get none of the benefit in taxes," he explained.

The prewar system whereby the provinces levied their own corporation and income taxes, or the present system whereby the Federal Government handles income and corporation tax collections for the provinces, was said to be unsatisfactory. By either system the Western Provinces were unable to raise sufficient revenue.

Will Be in Alberta

Premier Douglas said he would campaign for the C.C.F. in the Alberta elections next week, but was wary on predicting the outcome. He believed British Columbia, however, would go C.C.F. when an election was called there.

It would be a "grand thing" if all three Western Provinces became a C.C.F. bloc, however, because they could co-operate on housing, rural electrification and other programs.

Contrary to some predictions, he did not foresee a C.C.F. daily paper and radio station an immediate prospect in Saskatchewan. When a daily paper was realized, however, it would not be financed by the C.C.F. Government, but would be run as a co-operative venture by C.C.F. supporters, who would buy shares in it.

MORE GAS FOR WAR MEANS LESS FOR US

IT'S a matter of simple arithmetic. There's only so much gasoline to go round. With over 50,000,000 gallons of petroleum products going from this hemisphere to the fighting forces every day—there's not a lot left for the civilian.

Think of aviation needs alone. The present demands for aviation gasoline exceed, in themselves, the peak total demand for all petroleum products during the last war. From 1939 to 1944 Canada's demand for aviation gas increased more than 3,000%. Only 5,453,980 gallons were used in 1939 for pre-war flying. More than 176,198,000 gallons were used by Canada in the fourth year of the war.

Think of invasion needs. Oil drove the ships to the point of rendezvous. Oil drove the battleships that pulverized enemy coast defences. Oil drove the landing craft ashore. High-octane gasoline sent the bombers and fighters into action. Gasoline is powering the tanks, trucks, jeeps, mobile guns, bulldozers and portable cranes that are swarming by thousands into France. The invasion surges ahead on a wave of oil.

Think of the needs of the war at sea. Canada's navy today has more than 43 times as many ships as in 1939. These ships are on patrol from Murmansk to Cape Town. The vast majority of them are powered by oil. Many of these are fast craft, designed to chase submarines—and heavy consumers of fuel. Yet, never has a single Canadian ship been held up for lack of fuel oil.

Every drop of petroleum for war comes from the same common pool as the gasoline for your car. The gasoline allowed for your car is issued for a purpose—to keep essential civilian transportation rolling.

Waste here at home means want in the battle zones. Thoughtless, needless, frivolous use of a single gallon robs the fighting man.

NEW YORK, July 28—(AP)—He's been 1-A in the draft four times, and 4-F four times, but he's the hottest hitter in the American League. We mean Al Zarilla, the St. Louis Brown's outfielder who has whisked back and forth between the club house and his draft board so often that he hardly has had time to get into a baseball uniform.

Two weeks ago, operating mostly as a pinch-hitter, he had a batting average of .204. Then he blazed into the starting lineup, and in nine games has fashioned 16 hits in 24 times at bat, boosting his mark to .286. Sprinkled among the 15 bingles were three doubles, a triple and two homers.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Joe Louis defended his heavyweight boxing title in a four-round battle at Yankee Stadium in New York that left tubby Tony Galento, the Orange, N.J., barkeep, bleeding and helpless five years ago to-night. The burly Tony exercised his frightening portside fist in the third round, dropping the Brown Bomber suddenly and amazingly to the seat of his pants on the canvass. But from then on it was Louis' fight.

Scullers Meet In Singles Of Three Events

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., July 28 (CP) — Canadian and American sculling experts will be seen in action today for the first time in the 62nd annual Royal Canadian Henley Regatta when they clash in three singles events.

Whether the Canadians can keep the titles on this side of the International border is a question facing the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen who will start contestants away in the first event—the quarter-mile dash for 145-pounds—at 2 p.m.

At 3.20 p.m., the quarter-mile dash, open, will be staged and the last race of the day—the Association Singles—will be run off at 4.40 p.m.

Ken Thorburn, leading singles contestant from Toronto Argos, last year's aggregate winners, and two of his clubmates, Ed Fullerton and Bill Durnan, will meet in the quarter-mile singles, 145-pounds, against Lou Tank, American hope from Ecorse, Mich. They are the only entrants.

A precedent was set here last night when twilight sculling was held for the first time in the 62 years of the Henley.

Three Events Yesterday

Three events were run off, the last finishing in dusk. They were two junior 145-pound eights heats and the high school fours with Cox, originally scheduled for the first event Saturday but moved ahead at the request of the competing scullers.

The winner and runner-up of each heat in the eights qualified for the final today. The Ecorse, Mich., eight won the first heat with Buffalo second and Wyandotte, Mich., third. Time was 6.40.

In the second heat, Hamilton, Ont., Leanders nosed in front an open length over Detroit, who had four open lengths on St. Catharines. Winning time was 6.40-2-5.

In the third event last night—the high school fours with Cox—Ecorse finished a quarter open length over their neighboring Grosse Pointe four. The Pointes were a half-open length ahead of Lafayettes of Bufalo, rowing under Westside sponsorship. Wyandottes scratched the event. Time or the three-quarter-mile race was 4.03.

In the only other event held yesterday—before a squall forced postponement—the high school fours, Grosse Pointe finished one-third length ahead of Wyandottes, who were a length in front of Buffalo. They were the only entrants. Time was 6.05-4-5.

On account of the men holding an open doubles tournament on Wednesday, August 2, all the games scheduled for that date have been postponed.

And speaking about that open tournament, entries have already been received from Lindsay, Cannington, Oshawa, Port Hope, Cobourg and Campbellford. So it looks like a real crowd. Many local pairs are also lining up. Let us hope for a fine day.

To-night we are to have our usual week-end tournament for men's rinks, and the hour is the same as before—7:30 p.m.

The race for group honors in both ladies' and gents' sections is begining to tighten up. With the schedule games entering the home stretch every game won adds two points to the total and off-hand we would say that the finishes are going to be real close and interesting.

Whipper Watson In Iron Man Stunt

Recent brawls at the Brock Street Arena have stirred up the usually calm Whipper Watson so much that after Tuesday night's scrap here he declared that he could throw both Bunny Dunlop and Jack Washburn within an hour, wrestling each in turn. Promoter Tunney was quick to take him up and the iron man stunt will be staged at the Brock next Tuesday night. Watson has to get one fall over each of his opponents in an hour while of course if either of them throw him the battle is over.

SPORTS—Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Switchgear and U.E.W. will make their third atempt of the week tonight to get their semi-final playoff series started at Riverside Park. The teams had been slated to play on Monday and Wednesday evenings and were washed out on both occasions, so that tonight is the last opportunity to get a game in until the week after next when the playoffs will be resumed after a layoff caused by the C.G.E.-Genelco holiday period. Both clubs are anxious to grab off this opening game and get the jump on the opposition. U.E.W. are counting on the speed-ball offerings of Hatty Eakins of Lindsay to turn the trick for them. Eakins beat the Switchgear in the only game he has pitched against them this season, in fact he hog-tied the leaders, who got only three hits off his deliver. If he comes back with another game of that kind tonight Switchgear are facing a tough time even if their opponents did finish in fourth place in the regular schedule. Whether it will be Akers, Harrison or Elliott on the hilltop for Switchgear will be disclosed tonight. The leaders haven't tipped their hand as to the probable pitching choice. The game is called for 7 o'clock and will undoubtedly draw a real crowd, especially as it will be the last playoff game in nearly two weeks.

As predicted, the Soldier-Plaza series is developing into a real dog fight, and with the semi-final round tied up at one win each and the interest at fever heat, it is too bad that there has to be a long break in the schedule, and that the rivals will not meet in the third game until a week from Tuesday. These two clubs battle for every point, and there is bound to be fireworks when they get together. Lots of scrap and pepper is all O.K., but it should be held at that. And this is a good time to remind the league officials that before somebody is hurt or a riot ensues, one player in the loop should be asked to remember that he is playing first base in softball and not behind the blue line in hockey. Body checking has no place in the diamond pastime, and this man has collided with too many runners this season for it all to be accepted as accidental. If it is allowed to continue the league is going to have a man-sized riot on its hands in one of these playoffs. There came close to being one last night. Bodily contact is no part of softball, and if persisted in will surely lead to grave trouble.

While nothing is said about wheelchairs in the stories about baseball in Kingston, the fact remains that some of the old boys who are still helping to keep the game alive down there must have transportation troubles every time they try to run out a hit, and a lot of their fielding must be done from memory. Mike Rodden lists the probable lineup of a team that has been chosen to represent the Kingston Ponies in the National Baseball Congress series, and although none of them were around when Sir John A. Macdonald was a resident of Kingston, a few of them have been familiar figures in the Limestone City for many, many years. Bob Elliott, Jakey Quinn, Vin. McQuaide and Jim Corkey are some of the ancients who are performing in the monkey suits down there. The Rodden list of possible players is given as follows: Connor (Navy), pitcher and outfielder, average .500; Elliott (Aluminums), catcher and utility, .457; Harding (Vimy), catcher and first base, .444; Quinn (Aluminums), second base, .429; Radley (Aluminums), left field, .424; Gee (Navy), shortstop, 419; McGuaide (Locos), left field, .417; Effnert (Navy), catcher, .400; Lay (Navy), right field, .400; Wood (Locos), first base, .369; Corkey (Locos), catcher, .348; Collintina (Ordnance), centrefielder, .333; Udall (Locos), third base, .323; Edwards (Aluminums), pitcher and outfielder, .321; and Mortimer (Aluminum), centrefielder, .303.

Speaking of old-timers, "Jake" Biddle, well-known Oshawa left-hander of yesteryear, Al "Ty" Tyson, smooth-working catcher of Cobourg and Oshawa teams in the days when the Central Ontario League was full of stars, and other old-timers got together the other evening and played an exhibition game with the Oshawa juveniles, the stars of tomorrow. What's more, the old fellows won the argument, too, defeating the kids 4 to 2. Biddle pitched a couple of innings, and also played in the outfield. While "Jake" has been on the retired list for some time, it doesn't seem very long since the days when he used to be a tough hombre for Peterborough batters to work against; as a matter of fact, Biddle once pitched a no-hit game against the Petes and made them look very bad. As for Tyson, it is over a score of years since the Cobourg management persuaded the Rochester backstop to come over and do the catching for the old Cobourg team. Tyson was a crack catcher with a fine arm and he had a lot of power at the plate, driving out clothes-line hits that crackled into the outfield with Spitfire speed. It was no wonder that when Oshawa were in the market for a catcher they got hold of "Ty" and imported him into the Motor City where he has lived ever since.

Two Big Games

Mountain View R.C.A.F. Bomberettes and Westclox Big Bens will supply the softball excitement when they meet twice tomorrow at Riverside Park in benefit games for the Westclox cigarette fund which supplies smokes for Westclockers overseas in the armed services. The afternoon game is billed to start at 3 o'clock and the teams will meet again at 7. Both contests should be thrillers. Westclox can be counted upon to play good ball all the way, while the Bomberettes are the sort of team who will make the local girls produce their best brand. The R.C.A.F. girls, who hail from all over the country, have a lot of talent, and reports say they are especially strong in the pitching department. Westclox battery for the afternoon game will probably be Joyce Withers on the mound and Isobel Bullock behind the plate. In the evening battle Isobel Bullock will move out to do the hurling and Beryl Dobbin or Jean Castle will handle her offerings. Westclox will field their strongest team for these engagements, and the game should be decidedly interesting. A brisk demand for tickets indicates that the attendance will be large at both games. The proceeds will all go to the fund for supplying cigarettes for Westclox employees in the Navy, Army and Air Force, a very worthy cause.

The race in the American loop tightened yesterday when the Athletics threw a road block into the winning streak of the St. Louis Browns and slapped them down 7 to 5. While Brownies did not lose any ground so far as the New York Yanks are concerned, for the McCarthyites also took a beating yesterday and slipped out of second place, the leaders yielded ground to the Boston Red Sox and the fast coming Cleveland Indians, now only a few points out of third slot. Boston had an easy win over Detroit with Tex Hughson allowing only six hits as he picked up his 16th win of the season as against only four losses. Meanwhile the procession in the National League continued with the Cards grabbing off both ends of a double-header from the Phillies and building up their lead to 14½ games, their biggest margin of the season. Mort Cooper allowed only two hits in shutting out the Phillies 2 to 0 in the second game. The second-place Cincinnati Reds won a single game over the Boston Braves and thus slipped back another half game because of the Cards' double win.

SPORTING CHILE CON CARNE: One odd feature about last night's City League game was the fact that every member of the losing team got at least one hit, while the hitting of the winning Soldiers was confined to four players....Kavanagh, Procyk, Dunkerley and Mortimer got all the Soldiers' 11 hits and all their seven runs....Interestingly enough six of the markers were scored by two players, Kavanagh and Mortimer, who sat out the first playoff game....Mike Conroy, secured by the Plazas as a military replacement, broke in with his new club in impressive style by slamming out three hits and batting in two runs....There was a long argument when Clapp, Soldier second baseman, was called out on a bunt....Official explanation was that the batter had hit the ball twice in laying down the bunt....After tonight's game there will be no more playoff battles until the week after next....The schedule for the week calls for Plazas and Soldiers to meet on Tuesday and Thursday, August 8 and 10, and Switchgear and U.E.W. to clash on Wednesday and Friday, August 9 and 11.

Soldier Pitcher Wins Own Game To Even Series

Pitcher Pete Procyk of Soldiers slashed a hit on the ground into left centre field in the last half of the ninth inning of Thursday night's tilt with Plazas at Riverside Park to drive in the winning run and win his own game as Soldiers came from behind with a two-run rally to square the semi-final series with a 7 to 6 victory after a scrappy battle.

Big factor in the win was the batting of Kavanagh, Procyk and Dunkerley for the Military Training Centre. Between them the Soldier big three collected 10 of their team's 11 hits and Dunkerley drove in four of the seven runs. Outside of that trio and Doug Mortimer who walked twice, beat out an infield hit and scored three runs, Dave Wilson who pitched for Plazas didn't have much trouble but the cleanup crew did enough damage to win the game.

Plazas collected 15 hits off Procyk who went the distance for the Soldiers but the Winnipeg boy stayed in there and battled in the pinches and the result was the losers in spite of the fact that they had runners on the bases in every innings left 13 of them stranded.

Mike Conroy of St. Peter's who played for Plazas as a military replacement for Bill Jones, now with the R.C.A.F., led the losers with three hits in five trips to the plate.

Fielding honors were taken by George Hawks, Plaza third baseman who handled seven chances, several of them on hard-hit balls, in fine style. Doug Mortimer had a spectacular catch of a long fly to left.

Soldiers Score First

Soldiers started the scoring in the second half of the first inning with two out. Kavanagh dropped a single into left and Procyk ripped a hot one down the third base line on which Hawks made a fine one-handed stop but had no chance to make a play. Dunkerley then doubled to centre, scoring Kavanagh but Burton threw Proyck out at the plate when he tried to score on the play.

Plazas evened it up in the first of the third. Burton reached second when Dunkerley dropped his fly to centre. Tucker rolled to Anderson and Blewett popped to the same player but Jim Ellis drove a long triple over Dunkerley's head to send Burton in. Hawks rolled to Procyk for the third out.

The ultimate losers broke out in front in the last of the fifth. Burton opened with a single to centre and Tucker singled to left. Blewett flied to Herrick in right but Ellis singled past first scoring Burton. Mortimer made a fine catch of Hawks long drive to left, Tucker easily scoring after the grab. Conroy then laced a single into left to send Ellis in. Maloney grounded to Morgan for the third out.

Tie Up Game

Soldiers had a big inning in the sixth to tie up the game and they might easily have scored a few more. With one out Mortimer beat out a

TORONTO, July 28 — (CP). — One of the last strongholds of the old-fashioned amateurism in sportdom is found in the realm of paddling, rowing, and similar aquatic sports, opines Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara.

The paddlers and rowers for the most part are in the game just for the fun they get out of it, which is payment enough. Then too, there's a more potent reason in the fact that the sport hasn't any great spectator appeal and you can't get large crowds to turn out for a regatta and roll large quantities of money through the ticket office. They are staged in the open, and the people who attend usually are relatives and friends of the contestants, or citizens who want to spend a lazy afternoon in the sun and fresh air.

Paddling has been hit harder by the war than perhaps any other sport and the ranks have been thinned almost to the vanishing point. Those carrying on now are mainly youths under military age, but they are getting plenty of fun out of it and putting on some keen competitions in the localities where they still flourish.

Incidentally:

Oshawa Generals are starting to build for next winter already. They have thrown out a line to Jackie Gibson, goalkeeper with St. James' Canadians in Winnipeg last winter. They also are seeking Harry Taylor of the same squad....Soccer is being revived in Windsor, Ont., after a lull of several years. They are talking of the "finest league in the Dominion" now.....When Los Angeles downed San Diego in a Pacific Coast baseball loop game the other night they had a former Toronto battery in action—Dick Conger on the mound and Eddie Fernandes receiving.....The recent Regina race meet grossed $295,399, which works out to about a dollar a day from each resident of the city. Westclox Girls Defeat Lock Team 12-5

Taking an early lead, Westclox Seconds, aided by effective pitching by Alice McIvor, who allowed only nine hits, wound up a Ladies' Softball League game at Ashburnham Bowl on Thursday evening with a 12 to 5 win over the Peterborough Lock team.

The Clockmakers started the ball rolling in the first inning, when Mina Dunford scored on a single into left by Marjorie Miles. The second frame netted Westclox another run, with Millie Miller scoring on an error in the infield.

The Baby Bens ran in two counters in the third, starting with Rita O'Heron hitting to left for a base. Millie Miller struck out, Dorothy Starr rolled an easy one to pitcher and was out at first, but Florence Robinson singled to centre field, scoring Miss O'Heron. Miss Robinson stole second base, and completed the run on a hit over third by Millie Miller.

Mina Dunford was safe on an error, Dorothy Johnson singled to centre, Verla Ferguson struck out, and Rita O'Heron got a life on a miscue. Marjorie Miles rolled one into the infield that no one made any attempt to nab, and Miss Dunford scored. Dorothy Johnson was put out between second and third, and Miss O'Heron came home on a hit into left by Millie Miller.

In the eighth, Westclox had a five-run splurge, starting with Verla Ferguson singling into short left field. Rita O'Heron was safe on an error, Miss Ferguson stole home, and Marjorie Miles hit into centre field to score Miss O'Heron. Dorothy Starr singled to centre, Florence Robinson faned, and Marjorie Miles scored on an error. Millie Miller shot one over third base, to score Miss Starr, andAlice McIvor singled to left. Mina Dunford bunted, and was out at first, and Dorothy Johnson singled, bringing home iss Miler.

The Lock company boosted their score two points in the ninth. Betty McMahon popped to first base, Mickey McFarland singled over third, going to second on a pased ball, Myrtle Falls hit to the centre, scoring Miss McFarland. Audrey Stinson was out at first. Miss Falls dashed home on an error, and the next batter, Jane Succee, was out at first.

Alice McIvor, hurling for Westclox, faned seven, and walked two, holding the Lock company to nine hits.

Bears Drubbed 15-5 By Bisons

By The Associated Press

The red-hot Buffalo Bisons have shoved Newark Bears back into the second division with a 15-5 drubbing. The rampaging Herd has momentarily taken the fight out of the Bears as big Mike Roscoe pitched his 14th complete game for his 13th victory to tap the league in games won.

The Bisons actually lost ground on the first-place Orioles, however, as the Flock swept two from Montreal. The first game was commonplace enough with the Birds coming out on the long end of an 8-5 score.

However, in the afterpiece the Orioles won the game, 6-3, but scored al of their runs on exactly two hits. The two were big enough blows, being home runs by Sherman Lollar, who contributed one in the first game, and Felix Mackiewicz. John Corriden poled a homer for the Royals in the second game.

Syracuse and Toronto split a twin bill up Syracuse way, 2-0 and 4-3. In the opener Al Jarlett and Earl Cook chipped in to do a neat pitching chore, allowing the Chiefs only two hits. George Woodend went all the way for Syracuse.

Bob Katz engineered the Chiefs' revenge in the second game by doing a tasty job of work as he shut the Leafs out with five hits to gain his fifth win.

Cooper Pitches Two-Hit Shutout

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Rookies come and rookies go but Mort Cooper's powerful right arm still represents much of the pitching strength of the pennant-bound St. Louis Cardinals.

After he staggered through the early season and was batted off the hill three times in a row, Mort answered the "what's the matter with Cooper?" remarks by opening a spurt May 28 that has produced 11 wins in 12 starts and boosted him into a tie with Bucky Walters of the Reds for most shutouts with five.

As the Cards opened up a 14½-game lead on Cincinnati, their longest margin of the year, Cooper hurled a two-hit shutout against the Phils for a 5-0 decision over Ken Raffensberger, after Harry Brecheen wobbled to an 8-7 verdict over Bill Lee in the opener of a double.

Ray Mueller's double in the eighth inning boosted Cincinnati back into second place by a 4-2 nod over Boston.

The St. Louis Browns missed a chance to boost their lead when Sid Jakucki was upset by the Athletics, 7-5.

Cleveland dropped the New York Yankees into a second-place tie with Boston by pounding Walt Dubiel for an 8-1 score.

Boston moved up by trimming Detroit, 6-1, on Tex Hughson's six-hitter, earning him the honor of becoming the first big leaguer to win 16 this season. Orval Grove of the White Sox went the route for the first time in eight starts to shut out Washington, 4-0.

Research Work Safeguards Lives Of Men In Royal Canadian Air Force

By JEAN THOMPSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, July 28 — (CP) — There is something incongruous about the presence of such things as sewing machines and rubber valves, pressure chambers and cold chambers in a laboratory devoted to research in aviation medicine.

But war's necessity once again is the driving force behind inventions which are more often the result of numberless experiments with apparently insignificant items than of sudden, brilliant discoveries. Scientists and research workers are constantly striving to increase the degree of safety under which Canada's airmen and members of other fighting services wage a battle with death to bring victory to the Allied cause.

Sqdn. Ldr. J. R. Thompson, R.C.A.F., medical intelligence officer, put it this way:

"Research in aviation medicine is functional and preventive. Its purpose is to help man, whose physiological background is the earth, to be as normal as possible in the air."

Co-operation Keynote

All aviation medical research is organized in sub-committees under the National Resea[illegible] Council of Canada. Service ar[illegible] members serve together [illegible] to conserve scientifically [illegible] personnel, small in number for Canada's peacetime requirements and doubly valuable for functional and operational research when the urgency of war demands top-speed results. The work is concentrated in Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa.

"There has been admirable co-operation and complete collaboration between service and civilian personnel in aviation medical research in Canada," Sqdn. Ldr. Thompson stated. "It has been an outstanding example of team spirit."

R.C.A.F. medical research, concerned with keeping airmen as safe and comfortable as possible, concentrated, among other things, on the oxygen supply as the best means of assuring the flier of a feeling of physical well being.

Oxygen masks have been in use for years, but those used by Canadian fliers in hazardous flights over Berlin and the Normandy beachhead are vastly different from those used in pre-war days. During five years of war Canadian research workers have developed what is known as the demand oxygen system with an aneroid unit controlling the mixture of oxygen and air. The new feature of the system is that the airman gets exactly the necessary amount of oxygen with each breath without waste of oxygen.

Meets All Requirements

Not every member of air crew needs the same amount of life-preserving oxygen. A gunner working fast and strenuously requires more than an observer whose work may be done sitting down. The "demand valve" used by the R.C.A.F. has been so delicately adjusted that it is sensitive to the slightest respiratory demand and at the same time is much smaller than the German oxygen valve unit.

At high altitudes one of the dangers is ice formation, not only on the outside of the plane, but within the mask closely fitted to the flier's face. To reduce the hazard the R.C.A.F. established units for drying all oxygen used in aircraft. Specially designed drains carry off moisture exhaled by the lungs.

At present aviation research is being directed toward the improvement of night vision and means of teaching the correct use of the eyes at night. Specialists are working on the acoustic efficiency of various air crew to find out, for instance, if there is loss of hearing in the course of training. The calibration of instruments measuring degrees of hearing in preparation for the problem is a demanding job in itself.

Repairs At Cherbourg Far From Complete

WASHINGTON, July 28—(AP)—War Secretary Stimson indicated today that the Port of Cherbourg, captured by American troops June 26, still has not been repaired sufficiently to permit full use of its facilities to supply the Allied armies in Normandy.

Telling a news conference some of his impressions of his recent trip to the combat area, Stimson praised the invasion supply services and made particular reference to the orderly and methodical handling of equipment in the field.

"Most of the time," he added, however, "they have been landing on the same beaches they originally took, while the port of Cherbourg is being made ready for permanent occupation."

Liberal Candidate

FORT FRANCES, Ont., July 28—(CP).—Wing Cmdr. William Benedickson of Kenora, now serving overseas with the R.C.A.F., last night was nominated Liberal-Labor candidate for the Federal constituency of Kenora-Rainy River in the next election at a convention here. The seat was made vacant recently by the death of Hugh P. McKinnon, Liberal.

The nomination was made unanimous when four other nominees, including Hon. Peter Heenan of Kenora, withdrew. Benedickson has been overseas two years.

Earthquake In Aleutians

NEW YORK, July 28—(AP)—A "very severe" earthquake occurred last night 4,000 miles from New York city, probably in the Aleutian islands, the Rev. Joseph J. Lynch, Fordham University seismologist, reported to-day. Two shocks were recorded on the Fordham Seismograph, at 8:14:17 p.m. and 8:22:19 p.m. E.D.T.

First RCAF Pilot Wins Posthumous V.C. For Sinking Sub Crew Also Decorated After Drifting In Ocean 21 Hours

OTTAWA, July 28—The Victoria Cross has been awarded posthumously to Flight Lieutenant David E. "Bud" Hornell, 34-year-old Mimico, Ont., pilot, for his successful attack on a German submarine after his R.C.A.F. flying boat had been badly damaged by enemy cannon. The first V.C. award in this war to a member of the R.C.A.F. was announced today by Hon C. G. Power, Minister of National Defence for Air.

Shot down in flames into icy waters of the North Atlantic near the rim of the Arctic Circle, Flight Lieutenant Hornell and two other members of the crew perished later from exposure. Of the five flyers who survived 21 hours pitching about in a gale-lashed Arctic sea—soaked to the skin and numbed with cold—all received decorations.

Flying Officers S. E. Matheson, navigator, Nelson, B.C., and Graham Campbell, wireless air gunner, 3015 16th Avenue East, Vancouver, were awarded immediate D.F.C.'s. Matheson's wife lives at 1640 Ottawa street, Regina.

Immediate awards of the D.F.M. went to Flight Sergeants I. J. Bodnoff and S. R. Cole, wireless air gunners. "Joe" Bodnoff lives at 69 Nelson street, Ottawa, and "Syd" Cole at 256 Lake Promenade, Long Branch, near Toronto.

Two others died in the water-logged little rubber dinghy, Sgt. D. S. Scott, first flight engineer, Almonte, Ont., and the second engineer, Sgt. Fernand St. Laurent, of Pointe au Pere, Quebec.

The crew were members of an R.C.A.F. squadron based in Iceland which already had suffered casualties in several effective attacks on German U-boats. The exploit was the most recent of a series which had been accompanied by heavy losses in aircraft and crews, Mr. Power said.

Catch Sub. in Sun

The submarine was sighted in the early evening about a month ago. The midnight sun outlined it clearly as at noon. Spotting the enemy at five miles, Hornell immediately wheeled to the attack. At four miles, the submarine's guns open up. Hornell took violent evasive action, bouncing airmen and equipment about in the big Canso, but the lumbering flying boat was holed several times before it neared the enenm. Cole, at the radio, was pounding out flash reports of the attack and giving their position, but the radio aerial was shot away and the messages failed to reach base.

"By the time we were within 500 or 600 yards we were badly hit and burning badly. Our starboard engine received a direct hit and was in flames. While Dave Hornell was wrestling with the controls, Denomy (F-O. B. C. Denomy, co-captain, Chatham, Ont.) had just succeeded in 'feathering' the propeller when the whole engine fell off into the ocean. The leading and training edges of the starboard wing were flaming furiously and there were two big holes a couple of feet square in the wing. The flak was coming into the fuselage like hail, so thick you could see where it was punching holes in the metal.

"A large piece exploded beside me and knocked me off my feet. Pieces grazed my leg and my cheek and the concussion stunned me for a few seconds. When I picked myself up off the floor, Campbell was in my seat at the radio sending out an "S.O.S." I ran to take his place at the nose gun, not knowing that we had dropped our depth charges on the submarine and were going down almost out of control.

"On the Deck"

"I could see that we were within five to ten feet of the water then, and with the whole starboard wing in flames we were going to ditch. (An air force term for a forced landing on water).

We landed on waves twelve feet high and bounced 150 feet. With most of the controls shot away. Dave had to fight with every ounce of strength he had to bring us down safely at all. We bounced 50 feet the second time we hit the water, yet the skipper still had control. I believe we all owe our lives to his courage and skill.

By this time the oil and fuel in our starboard tanks had caught fire and we could only escape through the port blister. The starboard side was a mass of flames. The pilots went out through the escape hatches over their heads."

Sgt. St. Laurent immediately launched the starboard dinghy as soon as the plane hit the water, and when the others left the machine and plunged into the sea with a second dinghy, they saw St. Laurent about 100 yards away.

"We wanted to get to St. Laurent partly for his sake and partly for ours. Alone he couldn't climb into the dinghy, and we needed it for extra passengers. Dave Hornell took off his trousers so that he coudlw kick better and we fought through the tumbling seas to reach St. Laurent.

In Icy Waters.

Campbell got in first and helped Matheson aboard. Just as they were pulling in St. Laurent, the dinghy blew up, leaving the three struggling in the water. St. Laurent already had been immersed 15 minutes and he was a mighty cold boy when we pulled him aboard. Dave Hornell didn't put his trousers back on. He tied knots in the legs and used them to bail. He was that kind of a guy. When he saw a job to be done or when he could help his pals, he didn't worry about himself.

"Ever since we actually got into the dinghy Hornell had been telling us that help was practically there, and did all in his power to keep our spirits high.

"He did his share of the bailing, although he must have been terribly cold, because he was using his flying suit as a bailing bucket and sat in the bottom of the dinghy almost up to his waist in the water to do it.

"We were kidding each other about all the quarters we had wasted on the roller coaster at Sunnyside (Toronto amusement centre) for thrills when we could have been doing this all the time for nothing.

"We tried singing, but we never got much further than 'Mairzy Doates' and 'Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition.'

"Shortly after we were sighted, Dave (F.L. Hornell) led us in short prayer of thanksgiving, because we knew it was little short of a miracle that had caused that aircraft to happen along at just the right time.

Found by Plane.

"An aircraft sighted us after 5 hours and stayed with us for the next 15. It flew over to investigate the oil patch and signalled us by Aldis lamp that it was obviously a kill.

"That cheered us up considerably, although we had previously figured it was almost a certainty. When we were tossing around in the waves we saw piece of wood 10 feet long and three inches thick with iron bolts in the ends—obviously a piece of decking from the submarine. We floated within 15 feet of a German face down in water. We didn't know if he was alive or dead and didn't care much. We didn't have room in the dinghy for enemy survivors, and I grabbed the can of water to bash him over the head if he had tried to come aboard.

Waves Were High.

"The waves kept getting higher, until we were pitched about in a 40-foot swell lashed by a 50-mile-an-hour gale. We capsized a couple of times and had juite a time righting the dinghy, for some of the crew were getting weaker.

"Half an hour after we capsized the first time, St. Laurent started to go. He didn't last long after that; We kept his body aboard for a time trying to resuscitate him, but after he turned cold, we lifted him overboard. It was a hard thing to do, but we had to have the room.

"An aircraft of Air-Sea rescue service swooped low and dropped an air-borne lifeboat. They are a swell idea, but this one didn't help. The rockets which are supposed to shoot out lengths of floating cord didn't go off and the parachutes didn't fall away as soon as it hit the water, as they are supposed to do. The wind caught the 'chutes' and swept it out of our reach.

"Shortly after, Scott died and we put him overboard. Hornell was sinking fast, too. We were pitching pretty badly in a high sea, so I made a sea anchor out of my airman's cap and a piece of cord. I tied the cord to the chin strap, cut a piece out of the top of the cap, and it held. We didn't take quite such a tossing after that. The dinghy was full of water all the time, so a few more waves didn't matter, but it reduced the sickening motion.

Cries of Welcome.

"I hapened to be standing up when we stopped the rescue launch and let out a whoop you could have heard up in Ottawa. Matheson and Campbell looked up and sighted it, too. They were wonderful moments. The low-flying Sunderland flying boat dropped flame boats around us to guide the rescue launch and it shot off red Very lights.

"By the time the boat drew alongside we were pretty weak Everyone in the dinghy had to be hoisted aboard with exception of Flying Officer Denomy and myself. I got aboard with the help of a couple of sailors but he clambered up quite nicely by himself.

"The sailors worked over Dave Hornell five hours before giving up hope, but he never regained consciousness. Denomy's feet were swollen from immersion and Matheson had some pieces of flak behind his left ear to be extracted but the other [illegible] were all right after a rest. From the Shetlands we were flown to Northern Scotland, and later to Iceland before being returned by air to Canada on leave.

Flt. Sgt. I. J. Bodnoff, D.F.M., a wireless air gunner in Hornell's crew pays this tribute to his late chief:

"Dave Hornell was tops as far as I am concerned as a pilot and as a man. His men always came first with him. He was a regular guy."

Dive Bomber Plays Aerial Tag With Canadian Pilot In India

WITH THE R.C.A.F. IN INDIA, July 28—(CP)—FO. Eb Ettinger 23, of Saskatoon, was proud of his sleek Veangeance dive bomber—until the day it played aerial tag with him with clouds for company.

Ettinger, serving with an Indian air force squadron, took off with a live bomb load. Before his aircraft got aloft a tire burst, crumping the undercarriage and making the hydraulic system for the flaps unserviceable.

Unable to crash with live bombs aboard and unable to jettison them because the jettisoning mechanism was also damaged, Ettinger climbed to 4,000 feet, headed his plane seawards and ordered his gunner, Flt. Sgt. Mike Steel of Stoke-on-Trent to jump.

Ettinger himself bailed out from 3000 feet, but as he floated down he saw his bomber, as though piloted by ghost, turn neatly, lose height and head straight for him, said Sqdn. Ldr. J. Crampton in an R.C.A.F. press release to-day.

The pilotless plane missed him, made another circuit and came at him again, missing him once more. Then the bomber made one more circuit and dived earthwards. About 400 yards above ground the Vengeance shot up in a sheep climb, then turned over and crashed in the jungle.

When maintenance men reached the spot next day to salvage what they could they were too late—a herd of elephants was playing pitch and toss with the aircraft's remains.

"I was glad to see the end of that airplane," was all Ettinger said when he reached his base later.

CHIMNEY FIRE

In a week that has been practically devoid of fire alarms, there was a chimney fire this morning at 9 o'clock at 273 Thomas street, residence of D. Menzies. Chief Gimblett, saying that not a great many householders had as yet responded to his warning that chimneys be cleaned out well in advance of the end of summer, today repeated his advice that everybody will be saved a lot of trouble if the matter is attended to at once.

JOIN ACTIVE ARMY.

Two men have enlisted in the Canadian Active Army this week. They are Gordon S. Purcell, 494 George street, and Thorald R. Williams, 36 Glenelg street, Lindsay.

CLOCKS REPAIRED

A subject of many curious upward glances in recent days while a maze of intricate scaffolding rose around it, work on the Post Office clock tower is now complete and the clocks' faces shine with a brand new brilliance. But they will continue to point to 12 o'clock for a few days yet, until the regular caretaker of the building gets back from his vacation.

NO CANVASS AT PRESENT.

Officers of the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind told the Examiner to-day that salesmen from the Institute were not making a canvass in the city at the present time. They also intimated that all goods made by the National Institute bore the blindcraft stamp and this assured purchasers that the goods were actually made by the blind of the National Institute.

AWARDED MILITARY CROSS

Lieutenant Douglas J. Chant, son of Mrs. J. Chant, 231 John street, Belleville, has been awarded the Military Cross, the Department of National Defence announced today. A clerk in civilian life, the 26-year-old officer was appointed to the Canadian Active Army as Second Lieutenant in August, 1941, and attained his present rank in February, 1943. He went overseas, where he is now serving with the Canadian Armored Corps., in April, 1942.

Scouts At Camp Have Great Fun Feel Luckiest Boys In Peterborough

Seventeen miles north of Buckhorn—the last five of which are along the most narrow, twisted roadway imaginable— and through a miniature white garden gate, from which hangs a sign proclaiming "The Scout Law is the Law of Canada," lies Camp Katchacoma, where for nine exciting days more than 80 members of the 9th Parkhill Community group have been playing, laughing and learning, in the first joint Scout and Cub camp ever held here.

On the shores of scenic Lake Katchacoma, 21 large tents house the youngsters, including five extra large circus-type tents, used for dining halls recreation rooms and various other purposes. Here they are learning how to live with others, good citizenship, good manners, friendship and courtesy, virtues that will make themselves felt from coast to coast in Canada in later years. Together with this training the boys are learning handicrafts, life-saving, rudiments of outdoor life, and physical preparedness, training that is bound to help them in the coming years. The organization that Sir Robert Baden-Powell founded in 1908 is vitaly alive today, and is accomplishing everything the German youth movement tried for, but with none of the regimentation associated with the Nazi plan. Instead, individual freedom and importance is stressed; democracy rules the camp, and every boy is treated fairly, with no favors or special privileges.

Perhaps a visitor to Camp Katchacoma would be most impressed with the occupants themselves. Neat, clean and mannerly young Canadians going about their way, having fun in a boisterous way, but serious enough to pass test after test in stiff exmainations; minor squabbles ironed out between themselves with no display of temperaments, and an all-out sense of fairplay, demonstrate equally clear and forcefully the benefit of training already received, and a responsiveness to further training.

Many Activieits.

Tall, smiling, boyish-looking Reg Perks, Scoutmaster, is the commanding officer of the camp, and under his direction the leaders a busy schedule of camp activities going; swiming periods under eyepeeled supervision, a canteen operating twice a day, play periods highlighted by various types of games, both indoor and outdoor, learning periods when regular Scout and Cub work is carried through, and leisure time, not for play, but for reading, writing letters there's a mail collection every day, or just resting.

Breakfast is served at 8 a.m. after the boys have had a swim, washed and cleaned up their tents. Regardless of how sleepy one becomes in the early hours of the morning, there's something about the sharp tang of blue wood smoke, the smell of crisply frying bacon, and the knowledge that breakfast is basking on the table, that is potent enough to arouse even the most vigorous devotee of sleep to a quick dash in the general direction of the dining hall. There Pat Jodrell, who has been up since 5 a.m., busying around the kitchen, is ready to serve 80 Scouts and Cubs just as much food as they wish—and fast, too. A Scout's average breakfast would be something like this: Any one of several cereals, toast and jam, milk or cocoa, fried bacon and eggs.

After breakfast a system of washing dishes has been inaugurated to speed up the distasteful chore as much as posible. Each boy collects his dishes, stacking them in a neat pile, and marches to the front of the kitchen, where three or four Scouts or leaders wash them in three enormous tubs, whereupon the boys take their dishes, dry them and replace them on the table. The dishes are washed in a very few minutes. A prayer of thankfulness is offered after each meal.

Neat Tents.

Many activities help pass the afternoon, and in the evening after supper the flag is lowered and the tents are inspected. Leaders make the rounds of tents, inspecting each one, and rare is the tent that isn't found spic and span, with clothing on hangers, beds folded neatly, and no papers or other refuse loitering around. At nine o'clock the boys go to bed, each going to his individual tent, with no fuss, no rowdyism, but in a quiet, orderly manner.

In the night, a leader checks every tent every hour, covering up children who have somehow slipped out of the blankets, placing more blankets on those who appear to be cold, and giving each boy separate and complete attention. A campfire period before bed offers the boys an opportunity to pull any old skeletons out of the closet, sing favorite songs, or discuss the day's events. In the event of rain, a sing-song is held in the huge dining hall. There is homesickness here, as it is everywhere, but few have had it. Usually boys who become homesick are given some little job to do and made feel important. It usually clears up immediately.

The bathing beach at Katchacoma offers excellent swimming, and everyone of the group has taken advantage of it. Of course, for those who hold first-class rescuers' badges there are adventuresome boat trips out on the lake, through twisted little lagoons and around thickly wooded islands. Hikes in the woods are also held daily; the boys are given lunches to take, and are away for long hikes, all under expert supervision.

R. Perks, Scoutmaster, said the 1944 camp is the best camp ever held in his estimation, and praised the leaders and the boys for their co-operation in making the camp a success. "The leaders are an exceptionally efficient group of men, and believe me, the boys are tops. We are having a real time out here and I've never seen a better camp in operation in eight years of camp work."

Boys Help Out.

Mr. Perks told how the boys were helping in many different ways, and lauded th leaders for their interest in the camp. The boys, he said, gather wood, bring up water, do kitchen duty and other jobs, and pointed out that the C.B. tent has never been occupied. He said he was gratified to note the fairness in competitive sports, and the healthy maner in which the children are enjoying themselves.

The boys wash their own clothes and hang them out on a line to dry. Even the youngest boys share in the washing, and do kitchen duty, too.

"Scouter Perks, when is the swimming period?" queried another. Litle Neil Reynolds, 6 years old, is the mascot of the camp, but that does not stop him from hiking, swimming, and having as much fun as the rest. When Neil was asked how he liked camping, he murmured, "Fine."

Maurice Pontin, Asistant Scoutmaster, said he thought the Boy Scout organization was the greatest help to relieve juvenile delinquency Peterborough or any other city has ever had. "After the experience of living in camp here, every boy will be much better qualifid to face life. It's an excellent training for them, and they've all been regular sports. If any of the boys should get into trouble, they will all be given a fair way of rectifying themselves," he said.

R. Willis, Cubmaster, said: "This is a mighty fine camp for the boys. They received excellent meals, and the experience of living out here will be marvellous for them."

J. P. Hallihan, Cubmaster in charge of Cubs, said that although there are several boys in the camp who have never been away from home in their lives, he is extremely pleased with their conduct, and he said he was amazed at the way the boys acted in the camp.

In the Family.

Craig Lambert, Peterborough, who is working at the Sigma Mines in Quebec, came home for his holidays and spent a few days at the camp where last year he was Assistant Scoutmaster. S. J. Lambert, his brother, is the youngest boy in the Peterborough district to receive his warrant. He received it when he was 15 years old, and is 16 now. Recently it as announced Mr. Lambert had won the honor of being the first First-Class Scout in the 9th Parkhill Community. The youngest Lambert boy in the Cubs is nine-year-old Terry Lambert.

Wally Windsor, Wellington Street didn't think he would be able to visit the camp because he was going to a summer cottage. The cottage, it was revealed later, is located about a stone's throw from the camp.

One of the leaders, who will go unnamed, umpired a baseball game recently between the Parkhill group and the boys at Woapak Camp, located near Katchacoma, consisting of boys from Toronto.

After the game, the Scouts, who were considerably concerned about a decision he called at first base, took the ump, all in good fun, and bodily dumped him into the sparkling waters of the lake—clothes and all. It was all fun, and the leader 'tis said, holds no grievances, although rumor has it he has forbidden himself to umpire another ball game between two rival packs of Scouts.

Among the other leaders are: R. Pearson, Asistant Cubmaster; B. Young, Asistant Cubmaster; Ralph Goodfelolw, Acting Assistant Cubmaster; E. McDougal, Troopleader; K. Gordon, Assistant Troopleader; G. Elcombe, Senior Sixer; C. McCullaugh, Senior Sixer.

Sgt. John Brown Enlisted At 17 Killed Overseas

Enlisting when he was 17 years of age, and fascinated with the army all his life, Sgt. John Herbert Brown, son of the late Harry Brown and Mrs. Brown, 285 Dalhousie street, has been officially reported killed in action in France, July 21, according to information received by his mother.

One of three brothers taking part in the invasion of France, John Herbert Brown was a sergeant in the Prince of Wales Rangers (R) before the war started. In the late part of 1939, he gave up his stripes with the intention of joining the active army, and on January 8, he joined the Toronto Scottish regiment, when 17 years of age.

A brief training period in Trois Rivieres, Quebec, was taken, and in June 1940, four months after enlistment, the young soldier was in England. A letter written to his mother, June 5, 24 hours before D-day, offered no hint of the impending invasion, but said that he was in good health, and told his mother not to worry. The latter was signed by John, and his brother, Sgt. Archie Brown.

Since then, it has been learned that all three of the Brown soldiers, all sergeants, are taking part in the invasion of France.

Sgt. John Brown was born and brought up near Springville, attended Fraserville Public School, and Town Hall Public School. He won a scholarship in his entrance year, and after, attended Peterborough Collegiate. Proficient in his studies, he left the peak of his education to enlist. While attending collegiate, he spent mich time with his aunt, whom he adored, Miss M. Reynolds, 285 Dalhousie street. His only uncle, Thomas Brown, Downie street, was also a favored relative of the dead boy.

Before enlisting, he attended every Orange Walk he could, and was an enthusiastic member of the Fraserville Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 46.

Surviving are his mother, two sisters, Mildred, head of the Girls' Training School in Cobourg, and Vivian, a Registered Nurse in Welland, Ontario, and by two brothers, Sgt. Thomas Brown, with the Highland Light Infantry in France, and Sgt. Archie Brown, who joined the same day as John, with the Toronto Scottish in France. His father, the late Harry Brown, passed away three months after John went overseas.

Shrapnel Wounds

MARMORA, July 28 — (ENS).— Word has been received by his brother Harold Jackson of Cobourg, that Roy Jackson, who lived in Marmora Township prior to his enlistment with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in 1939, has been wounded in France. He was wounded in the left leg by shrapnel.

Robot Victims Get More Personal Help

Once again, people living in the south-eastern counties of Britain and the area of greater London, have taken to living underground, the dug or shelter being about the only spot in all of this district, where there is a reasonable hope of security, from the robot bombs which have now been attacking their homes in an indiscriminate manner for the past six or more weeks.

This cowardly device which kills, maims and destroys both life and property, without their victims having a chance to put up a man to man fight in self defence, must have a very demorilizing effect, something of which is sensed through the fact that most reecntly a secret session of the British House of Commons was held to give the much disturbed members an opportunity of a free discusssion on the whole matter involved.

There is much practical and moral support given to a people who are in distress occasioned in this manner, when a sympathetic and freedom loving people thousands of miles away does that which lies most in their power to assist them, by sending financial help which at least gives them a chance to get a fresh start, if they have been unfortunate enough to become afflicted in this manner through no fault of their own.

Less than three weeks ago the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund made a special appeal on behalf of those who have suffered in this manner, that a more wider personal interest would be taken by people who live in this part of the Globe immune from such hazards, for it was felt many could well afford to do so in a personal way. At that time those responsible for the management of the fund including his worship Mayor Hamilton and other citizens, endeavoured to lead the way through a personal interest in a practical way.

Since that time, the response has been such as to allow of two further lists of purely personal gifts to be acknowledged in this column, which is now followed by a 4th of a similar nature in today's receipts, all of whom undoubtedly by their act would surely wish to encourage a further help by others for the same purpose in this real humanitarian work the fund seeks to carry on.

From a knowledge born of a thorough intimacy with the list of contributors since the fund began to operate, the writer is able to positively state that the contributors all listed to-day, have assisted this same cause on a number of occasions, causing one to reflect that when peaple catch a real vision of the good they are able to do in this manner, they do not lightly set it aside, and just sit back with the feeling that having given on former occasions, there is now no necessity for doing anything more about it. This is the highest type of interest any one person can take in a personal way, and further gifts of a like nature will be most welcome indeed be they small or large, towards this blessed work of helping to bridge the terrible strain that war has thus placed on the people in the front line of danger in Britain.

Money Stolen From Vault Of Cobourg Bank

COBOURG, July 28 — (ENS) — Discovery of the theft of a package of money being sent by registered mail from the Dominion Bank to Ottawa was made here last night when Frank Spooner, Post Office clerk, found a package to be missing in the course of making up the registered mail for dispatch on the 11 o'clock train a half-hour before train time. The amount of the money lost was not revealed.

A routine check had been made earlier after the Post Office closing by Peter Quinn in the absence of Morgan Hewson, postmaster, and at that time the registered mail was found to be in order. Registered mail is kept in the outer vault for the convenience of postal clerks.

Mr. Spooner immediately notified police on finding that the money was missing, and an investigation was initiated by Chief of Police W. J. Carey and Ken Bridges, which will be taken over on the arrival of the postal inspector from Ottawa.

Work Continues To Find Spot For Airfield

Peterborough's airfield project is still simmering, although Alderman Bradburn told the manufacturers committee Friday night that nothing material had yet been accomplished.

The chairman was recently in Ottawa and again called on Commander Edwards and the acting Deputy Minister of the Department of Transport; and since then has been corresponding with other departmental representatives.

With Mayor Hamilton the other day Alderman Bradburn and two members of the RCAF looked over some of the proposed sites, and further examinations in the neighborhood are planned.

"Everybody realizes that Peterborough has quite a problem on account of hills, but that is all the more reason why we have got to keep at it," Alderman Bradburn said. He told the committee that one possible solution was seen in a diversion of the Peterborough-Port Hope highway, probably at Scott's Corners, to obtain property on both sides of the pavement generally in the area west of the fox farm.

Alderman Bradburn said he had been recently informed that Peterborough would require a run-way of 3,000-feet at each end, making a total length of 6,000 feet and width of 500 feet for planes of approximately 10,000 pounds, which could be expected to include Peterborough in their routes if an airport was available.

Alderman Bradburn said he was simply reporting to the committee and other members the present stage of enquiry and effort.

Account Passed

An account of $36 for J. W. Pierce for the surveying of property on the order of the committee planning the Peterborough Memorial Community Centre was passed for payment.

Two Enquiries

John T. O'Connell wrote the Board of Works enquiring whether any property west of the Locks Bridge was available for a pavilion which was being planned by a Toronto man. Alderman Swanston, property chairman, was asked to inform Mr. O'Connell that the city had no property in that vicinity and anyway there was no water service there.

It was reported that some one has been enquiring about a pavilion site beyond the city's fringe, one of them being out near the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, along the No. 28 Highway cut-off.

Alderman Swanston said it might be better to admit dance spots if they were coming into the city's neighborhood, than leave them outside and beyond the city's authority.

"We had a junk yard in the city and could do something about it," Alderman Swanston said, "so they moved out of the city into Douro at the north end of Ashburnham."

A letter from the Lake Simcoe Ice and Fuel Company of Toronto was sent on to the arena committee. The company is interested in the refrigeration system of the proposed arena and also in ice business of their own here.

Miss Roberta Keefer Fractures Her Leg

Miss Roberta Keefer, in charge of the Y.W.C.A. Inglestane Camp for Girls, suffered a broken leg on Thursday night when she went out to investigate some noises heard around the camp, and fell in the dark. She was brought to Nicholls Hospital after Miss Isobel Wray had telephoned from Jack Gillespie's cottage for medical assistance. It was intimated that Miss Wray would take over charge of the girls' camp.

Miss Keefer, who has been in Peterborough a little over a year, is girls' work secretary at the Y.W.C.A. She formerly lived in the West, and is planning to return to Edmonton to complete a university course this fall.

Mrs. Thos. A. Hastings Dies At Age Of 89

GORE'S LANDING, July 28—The death occurred in Toronto Thursday of Mrs. Thos. A. Hastings, after a two-year illness. She was in her 89th year.

A summer resident of Gores' Landing for the past 20 years, Mrs. Hastings, widow of the late A. H. Hastings, bought Terrace Hill, the residence of Miss May Waddingham of Peterborough. The late Mr. Hastings helped organize the annual Gores' Landing regattas, and was well-known to athletes from Peterborough and district.

Surviving are Mrs. S. J. Mayo, a daughter, of Oak Point and Toronto, Mrs. Carson, Toronto, and Harry Hastings, of Gores' Landing.

The funeral will be Saturday afternoon in Toronto, to Mount Pleasant cemetery.

Spared Disgrace

NEW YORK, July 28—(AP)—Wives of two servicemen have been indicted on burglary charges—but enemy action prevented their husbands from knowing. Mrs. Ann Joseph received word shortly after indictment that her husband, Paratrooper Horace Joseph, was killed June 16. Mrs. Arlene Hanley was notified recently that her husband, Lieut. Dward Hanley of the United States Navy, is missing in action.

WRITES FROM FRANCE—Pte. Joe Youdell, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Youdell, R.R. 4, Peterborough, who has been overseas four years, is now serving in France with the South Saskatchewan Regiment. His father served overseas for three years in the last war.

Company Asked To Give Property For City Park

"I'd suggest the word 'convey' " said City Solicitor Huycke as the Board of Works Friday night decided to ask the Peterborough Hydraulic and Power Company, offspring of the Quaker Oats Company, for the water front property north of Argyle street.

Mayor Hamilton in his motion had used the phrase "turn over", and the idea in the Board's mind could have been simply expressed by the little word "give". The council is asking the company to give to the city their property along the west bank of the river, north of Argyle street.

Alderman Sullivan said he understood the position of the company was that they would 'convey' the property to the city on condition that it was to be used for park, but not for parking, purposes. Some people in the neighborhood had tried to buy it. Alderman Glover seconded the motion of Mayor Hamilton who remarked trat the company and the nearby residents would approve the council's request.

Cars At Inverlea

"People have got so they don't want to walk a foot farther than they have to," Mayor Hamilton commented on a report that cars were parked afternoons and evenings on the north side of Park Hill Road between the bridge and Denistoun Avenue. The roadway is rather narrow, and as a matter of safety it was felt that this practice should be discouraged.

"They all want to get as near as they can in their cars to the beach and the dressing rooms, and that's the way everywhere," His Worship said.

City Engineer Parsons will be directed to have no parking' signs placed on that side of the street, and the public will be permitted to use the east side of Dennistoun Avenue, even if they do park their cars on the Inverlea grass.

One of the members mentioned an untidy condition at the corner of Water street and Park Hill road caused partly by persons buying hot dogs at the Harrison store and throwing on the sidewalk and road the paper napkins in which they are wrapped.

"Good gracious," said Mayor Hamilton, "you want a city and you want more people and more business and you have to put up with the things that go with it. I suppose Percy Harrison would like to keep that corner as tidy as he can, but cars blow the paper up the street."

Alderman Bradburn suggested that receptacles should be distributed around town, in such places, as a means of encouraging public order and keeping Peterborough the neat and tidy ctiy it had always been.

Wounded In Italy

MARMORA, July 28— (ENS)— Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Gray have been notified their son, Gunner Harry John Gray, who has been serving with the Canadian troops in Italy, has been wounded and is now in hospital.

KILLED OVERSEAS—Sgt. John Herbert Brown, son of Mrs. Harry Brown, 285 Dalhousie Street, has been reported killed in action July 21. The young soldier joined up when he was 17, and went overseas four months after enlisting. Two brothers, Sgt. Archie Brown, and Sgt. Thomas Brown, are carrying on the fight, with the invasion forces in France.

Need Of Market To Be Basis Of City Survey

An investigation of Peterborough's farm produce market was proposed by Alderman Dutton at Thursay night's meeting of the finance committee of the council as a preliminary fact-finding step in the course of deciding the market's future.

Producers of the county and district will be invited to discuss with the council the place and importance of the market in their business of selling their products, and a similar conference with consumers was also proposed, both meetings to be held during September.

Information and probably some expert assistance will also be sought from the Ontario Department if Agriculture in the course of trying to determine a market policy for the period that will begin after the war.

City Clerk Outram was instructed to write other cities comparable with Peterborough in its population and also its location in the centre of a large agricultural district to obtain further information as to present accommodation and especially observations indicating the trend of the local marketing of farm produce.

"We must realize," Alderman Dutton remarked. "that present conditions of business and of buying and selling should hardly be regarded as a criterion for the future."

Alderman Swanston, chairman of the property and market committee, agreed with that statement. One of the effects of price control, instituted by the Government as a means of meeting wartime conditions, was the fixing of prices of many farm products as sold in both stores and on the market. That levelling of prices would continue indefinitely and was a factor perhaps in the decline of the volume of local market trade during the last three or four years.

Is Market Wanted?

Do the farmers of this district wish the market accommodation to be continued? How many of them make use of the market, and will likely use it when the war is over?

To what extent do the people of the city want the market maintained? What percentage of them buy produce directly from farmers over the market counters?

These are some of the questions arising in the discussion last night as demanding accurate answers for the guidance of the city council in their day of decision.

Alderman Bradburn commented that the council had problems enough on hand and more pressing than the market. That fact was not disputed, but it was generally felt that the future of the market seemed to be linking itself with the city hall location, and that it might be well to proceed with a broad survey of the market in its service to both sellers and buyers.

"We also might invite some of the farm organizations to give us their views," Mayor Hamilton sai. He also suggested that the Local Council of Women might be asked for their opinions, especially as they had expressed a wish to assist in community matters in which they might be of help.

"I'd like to get as exact information as possible," Mayor Hamilton said.

Belongs to Old School.

"Perhaps I belong to the old school of thought on this question, but I always considered that a good marketing town for farmers was also a good town generally," Alderman Glover said. Farmers should be given every encouragement to make Peterborough their business centre, and that meant in both selling and buying. "I came through Bancroft one Saturday evening, and there were so many cars and people on the streets you might think you were in Peterborough," Alderman Glover added.

"Wednesday nights, too," Alderman Swanston said. If farmers were not afforded ample opportunity of doing business in the city they would find their way to the smaller centres.

"I'm told you can buy vegetables as cheap in the retail stores as on the local market," Alderman Ovens stated. "Many farmers are taking their eggs and poultry to the Co-Operative, and I think that is making a difference."

"Do the producers want to deal directly with consumers?" Alderman Dutton asked. "The council would like to know that, and to get the information let us ask farmers what they feel about it."

Possibly New Location.

In the back of the committee's mind was probably a growing conviction that Peterborough will have to consider a new market location, if the information and facts indicate the advisability of continuing this accommodation so long a feature of local business and also of relations between the city and rural people.

One of the remarks in the course of the discussion was to the effect that a market can be just as successful "as you make it."

Sentiment of the council seemed to be much in favor of retaining the market and of providing accommodation that would promote its successful operation.

DOWNEYVILLE, July 28. — (ENS).—St. Luke's church, Downeyville, was the scene of a pretty wedding recently when Vera, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Lucas was united in marriage to David Morrissey, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Morrissey.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white satin and embroidered lace and her finger-tip veil was held in place with a coronet of American Beauty roses. Friends Honor Mrs. G. Davidson

MILLBROOK, July 28.—(ENS). —The home of Mrs. Suttie Pritchard, 4th Line, Cavan, was the scene of an enjoyable gathering this week when a miscellaneous shower was held in honor of Mrs. Gordon Davidson (Wilma) Armstrong) a bride of recent date, who, since her marriage, has resided in Port Hope. Mrs. Davidson is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Armstrong.

Upon arrival of the guest of honor, she was seated in a specially-decorated chair, when Miss Margaret Larmer made an informal address speaking appreciatively of Wilma's popularity and the good wishes of her many friends for her happiness and prosperity. A large doll carriage, artistically decorated in pink and white, was brought in by Miss Edna Francey, and brought to rest by the bride's chair; it was piled high with gifts. Fine linens, china, silver, crystal, pyrex and granite ware made up the lovely shower, and after the recipient had opened the parcels and expressed her thanks, tea was served.

Mrs. John Rowland poured tea at the lace-covered table, centred with a silver basket of summer blossoms. Those assisting the hostess were her daughter, Velma Pritchard, Doris Hutchinson, Margaret Larmer and Edna Francey, the two latter heading the committee which planned the enjoyable event.

Among those present were the bride's mother, Mrs. W. H. Armstrong; her two sisters, Mrs. Alice Fallis, Millbrook, and Mrs. E. Martin, Port Hope; her bridesmaid, Mrs. Percy A. Buck, of Port Hope; a cousin, Mrs. Roy Randall, St. Catharines; Mrs. Sandford Brown, and daughter Alice; Mrs. Allen Dawson, Bensfort; Mrs. J. M. Armstrong, Fraserville; Mrs. M. W. Kinsman, Cavanville; Mrs. E. J. Powell and daughter, Nancy, Misses Henrietta Wood, and Blanche Fallis, of Millbrook.

Young Widow Says Husband Fought For An Ideal

TORONTO, July 28 — (CP). — The pretty, young widow of Flt. Lt. David Ernest (Bud) Hornell of suburban Mimico, Canada's newest winner of the Victoria Cross, was bewildered when she was told that her husband had been posthumously awarded the most coveted honor of the Vritish Empire.

"I was sceptical at first," said Mrs. Hornell, the former Genevieve Noecker of Drayton, Ont., "as I had never heard of anyone in the Air Force winning the Victoria Cross. I am extremely happy that he has received the award.

"Dave would have been pleased to know that some of the other boys in his crew were decorated as well as himself. He loved the Air Force, but he often said he wanted to get out of the war as soon as it was over. I firmly believe he fought for an ideal and not for the adventure of it.

"The whole family shared his enthusiasm for his work and we are all gratified at the honor bestowed upon him."

Auxiliary Makes 70 Calls On Families of Casualties

An idea of the scope of the work being done in connection with Peterborough casualties, by the Active Army Auxiliary, was given to members Thursday, when reports on various projects in connection with these casualties were given. Mrs. J. Duncan said that she had sent 24 airgraphs and parcels of cigarettes to wounded Peterborough soldiers during the period from June 14 to July 27, and the members voted a further sum of $100 to be set aside for the continuance of this work, since casualties have been coming in at the rate of 12 to 16 a week.

Mrs. James Turnbull reported for the visiting committee and gave the list of casualties from June 14 to July 27 as 17 dead, four missing, 51 wounded and 13 repatriated and said that during that period approximately 70 calls had been made on families of casualties. In the absence of the corresponding secretary, Mrs. William Ovens, Mrs. R. Allin gave her report, which stated that 15 letters of sympathy and three letters of thanks had been sent out from June 24 to July 27. Two letters of thanks from wounded soldiers, for the letters and cigarettes, were received, one from Sgt. Max Parnell in Italy, dated July 16, and the other from Pte. Joseph McIntosh, serving overseas.

A proposed list of articles for the Christmas boxes was read and approved by the meeting. Mrs. L. E. Tomkins, for the buying committee, said that plans were already being discussed for the boxes. Mrs. H. G. Mason reported for the knitting, stating that there was plenty of wool on hand, as well as a large number of sox.

Name Committee.

A committee of six women, Mrs. J. Post, Mrs. James Morley, Mrs. G. McMeekin, Mrs. Eric Haley, Mrs. B. L. Fowler and Mrs. A. Nelson, was named to act with representative committees from the Navy and Air Force Auxiliaries. These groups are to be in complete charge of the refreshments for the proposed Labor Day Field Day, which was organized by a body of men from the city, with proceeds to be divided among the three auxiliaries. In this connection, it was decided to hold the August meeting on August 24, to give more time for action in case any important factors came up for discussion.

In her report for the salvage committee, Mrs. James Turnbull said that the Auxiliary had received $6.69 from the June drive, and that the August drive would get under way on Tuesday, August 1. She stressed the fact that salvage must be out at 8 o'clock in the morning, and urged members to contact people in their districts and remind them to get their salvage out. Mrs. D. T. Diplock, who gave the secretary's report, also read a letter from the Local Council of Women, asking the support of the members of the Auxiliary for the much-needed Memorial Health and Athletic Centre, now being planned.

Mrs. J. A. Dewart presided, and Mrs. William Masters expressed the appreciation to Lieut.-Col. Dewart and Mrs. Dewart for the hospitality etxended to them at the June picnic at the Dewarts' cottage.

Madeline Spence Tendered Shower

Mrs. Thomas Maudsley and Miss Verna Porter were joint hostesses at a miscellaneous shower Wednesday evening, in honor of Miss Madeline Spence, a bride-elect of August 12. During a social evening, the bride-to-be received many gifts from her friends, and a dainty lunch was served.

Those present included Misses Margaret Skitch, Shirley McKee, Margaret Udy, Irma Rosborough, Margaret Spence, Shirley Ashby, Kathaleen Casey, Eleanor Hawley, Isabelle Spence, Jean Garbutt, Mrs. H. Hawley, Mrs. H. Perrin, Mrs. H. Spence and Mrs. L. Smith. Those who sent gifts but were unable to be present were Misses E. G. Jackson, Evelyn Gardner, Margaret Hooper and Mrs. J. Hunter.

JUST FOR WOMEN

By CONNIE NICHOLSON
(Society Editor of The Examiner)

Since electric refrigerators have become as "scarce as hens' teeth", the old-fashioned ice-box has come into its own again, and is doing a fine job protecting precious foodstuffs during this hot summer. One thing ice box owners should remember, if they are going away on holidays, is that the door of the box should be left open. This allows the air to circulate throughout, and will prevent that musty smell which is so hard to eliminate.

No matter what the weather, the ice box should be thoroughly washed once a week with good soapy water to which a teaspoonful of baking or washing soda has been added. Take everything out of the box; wash the lining the shelves; and dry well. If the drain pipes are metal, the hot soapy water can be poured down them to keep them fresh and pure. If they are plastic the special directions which come with the ice box should be followed.

Here's an added tip to remember to make ice last longer. Always keep the door of the ice box itself closed, thus keeping the temperature even, and the ice will melt more slowly. Insulate the ice by wrapping it in newspaper before putting it in the ice box, and it will last much longer. Never try to keep the temperature lower than 40 degrees, since this will keep food fresh for an indefinite period. However, the temperature should not be allowed to rise to more than 50 degrees, and preferably not more than 45 degrees.

Handy Aprons

Now that pinafore fashions are so popular, Mrs. Housewife can be right in style with very little trouble and effort, by making herself an array of handy, smart aprons, in pinafore style. Cute patterns are now available, and gay, bright prints that just seem to be waiting to be made into an assortment of styles. Pinafores are cute on daughter too, and the man of the house will be most pleasantly surprised when wife and little girl blossom out in matching mother and daughter aprons.

Of course, other styles in aprons are just as dainty and appealing, and a great many of them are a little easier to launder and press. A snack apron, for instance, made of muslin, organdie or voile is just the thing to put on over an afternoon dress, to serve iced tea and sandwiches to the weekly table of bridge. It can be brightened up with pastel bindings, or if the wearer is particularly ambitious, with embroidery.

Something gay, and yet serviceable, is the idea borrowed from the old-fashioned crazy quilts, which will utilize left-over pieces of print. Sew the sections in different color combinations, and, for an added rainbow effect, gather it at the waist and sew bright strips of bias binding across the waistband.

For more practical use, make a roomy apron of chintz or heavy print, and add a pocket running the full length of the hem. This latest idea is handy for holding clothespins while hanging up the clothes, or to tuck the duster in, while moving furniture or other articles. The little woman always knows where her duster is then, if she has had to leave her work to answer the phone or the doorbell.

Summer Snacks

Here's a delicious drink that's nourishing and tasty, and will tempt any jaded summer appetite. It's made by adding two dessert spoons of a new chocolate sauce to a glass of thoroughly chilled milk, and the children will love it, especially for picnic suppers.

This is the formula for a sure-fire hit: take one half a cup of cocoa, and three-quarters of a cup of granulated sugar, and mix together well. Then slowly add three-quarters of a cup of boiling water, stirring continually. Boil the mixture for one minute, then pour into a clean, dry glass jar. Cover, and let cool and put into the refrigerator. This syrup keeps indefinitely, and is always ready for instant use.

Food Fact

When making orange or lemon marmalade, squeeze out all the juice, and then shred and cook the pulp and skins. Then, just before adding the sugar, add the juice. This gives a finer flavor to the marmalade, and also preserves the precious vitamins which would have otherwise been lost had the juice been cooked for a long period.

Glitter for Glamor

Newest trick yet in the way of quick changes is attributed to busy New York business girls, who have dinner dates, and no time to rush home and change. They now make no change in their practical tailored suits, but add a big pair of glittering, sparkling earrings for a little touch of glamor, or place a sequin pin in their hat on berets or on their jackets.

Needlecraft Pattern

The richness of the pineapple crochet edging blends with the colorful stitchery of the peacocks in this doily set for buffet or table.

Variety in needlework makes handsome set. Pattern 925 contains a transfer pattern of peacock bodies; crochet directions; stitches.

People of India Described To Church Group

"India, Its Peoples and Customs" was the topic chosen by Mrs. C. M. Scott when she addressed the monthly meeting of the Church Women's Year of All Saints' Anglican Church Thursday afternoon. She spoke of the two chief races, Hindus and Moslems, each with its own religion, and outlined their customs and beliefs. In discussing the war effort of the Indian people, the speaker said that they were, for the most part, loyal to the British crown, and cited India's volunteer army of 2,000 men as a prime example of that loyalty, in addition to the factor of its ever-growing air force and navy.

Members expressed their gratification at being able to help in any way when a letter of thanks was read from a woman in England, who had received baby's clothes sent by All Saints'. The letter expressed the writer's sincere appreciation, since articles of that nature were so hard to procure in England. Another letter, from Rev. E. J. Smith of Peace River was read, thanking the members for the large bale he had received.

In her report for the Navy League Mrs. R. N. Jones said that only 18 articles had been knit for the month. She explained that the drop in quantity was due to holidays, since a number of regular knitters were away. Mrs. T. M. Fowler reported that six visits had been made, and nine cards had been sent to sick and bereaved members.

Mrs. J. Adams presided, and Mrs. W. H. Logan read the Bible lesson. Mrs. J. Morley and Mrs. A. Watkins sang an enjoyable duet, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Logan. The rector, Rev. W. A. Filer, introduced the speaker, and closed the meeting with prayer. Mrs. J. Morley and her group served tea after the meeting had been adjourned.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

They can be prepared in the morning, put in a cool place and about 1 hour before meal time put in the oven. They are all ready when the family arrive for tea and the housewife can still have her afternoon to do anything she likes, without worrying about what she will serve f r the evening meal.

Draft Dodgers Go Both Ways

LONDON, Ont., July 28 (CP)—Existence of a two-way movement of young men across the Canadian-American border, in an attempt to beat the draft in both countries, was disclosed today by Canadian mobilization authorities. Officials of the Mobilization Branch of National Selective Service and the United States Selective Service, are reported working together to combat the traffic.

An enforcement officer of the Canadian Mobilization Branch is at present in the United States checking on Canadian draft delinquents, believed to have fled the country and disappeared in business or industry over there.

Paralleling this movement is a minor influx of Americans, hoping to cover their tracks from the United States draft enforcement officers. A number in both categories have been ordered returned to their homes and eventually into the call-up mill of either the United States or Canada.

"In some cases, however, it is not an attempt to beat the draft, but merely a preference for service in the army of the other country," officials reported. "An unknown number of Canadians have attempted to enlist with the American armed forces, and a great many Americans have done the same thing here."

In the case of entry into Canada, the crossing is usually made on a visitor's permit. In cases of Canadians entering the United States for such purposes, the crossing is usually made by "slipping past" American immigration officials.

Would Permit Public To Be Heard At War Labor Board Hearings

OTTAWA, July 28.—(CP).—John L. McDougall of Queen's University, Kingston, last night made public a letter to Labor Minister Mitchell asking that an order-in-council be passed making provisions for representatives of the public to be heard at National War Labor Board hearings.

Prof. McDougall attached to his letter an exchange of correspondence concerning his request to be heard by the Board in the application of railway workers for a general wage increase earlier this year. The request was refused on the ground that he was not a party to the case.

In his letter to the Minister, Prof. McDougall said the case, rather than being a dispute between the railways and their employees, was a case between the general body of citizens and the railway workers. He asked that an order-in-council be passed making it clear that the public might be heard in all cases before the Board.

"The alternative is to take from the Board any power to grant blanket increases on the ground that all bona fide corrections of inequities existing when the ceiling was established have now been made and continued existence of the present powers of the Board is a standing invitation to evade the ceiling upon one excuse or another," he said.

Railway Case Cited.

"This situation is intolerable. Those unions which tried to observe the wage ceiling find themselves compelled by the concessions granted to others to ask for equal or greater favors for their own members; and the public, which must bear the cost, is denied the right to even raise its voice in protest."

"A year ago these unions might have protested against the way in which those industrial unions ready to use methods approaching political blackmail were able to extort concessions from the government which were totally indefensible on any reasonable interpretation of the wage ceiling order, while the railway unions which have lived loyally under it got nothing, they chose to follow the others and to present a case for wage increases," he said.

If the Board decided to give a small increase to the railway workers it would have to be borne by the public because it would reduce profits which were subject to income and excess profits taxes. If the increase were large it would have to be met by increased rates or a government subsidy.

Health Board Is Appointed

TORONTO, July 28—To co-ordinate medical services and sickness insurance as planned for Ontario communities under the new Municipal Health Services Act, Health Minister Dr. R. P. Vivian yesterday announced appointment of a Municipal Health Services Board, whose members will appoint their own chairman. Members will represent both recipients of services and those giving them, draw up regulations and allow municipalities to form units for participation in the new service.

Appointed to the Board are Mrs. R. J. Marshall, Miss Jean Masten, Dr. H. D. Logan, Dr. D. W. Gullett, J. H. Bower, R. E. W. Lawrason, E. E. Woollon and Dr. K. G. Gray.

The board was chosen from a panel of names submitted by labor organizations, Federation of Agriculture, women's organizations, municipalities, medical and allied professions, together with a representative of the Department of Health. The Agriculture Federation appointee will be announced shortly he said.

"This board becomes a corporate body and shall appoint one of its own members to be chairman. It is representative of any community and of the Province and consists of members who will speak for both those giving and those receiving medical services. The duties of the board are to draw up the necessary regulations, which will deal with the establishment of a medical service within a community, and to empower a municipality or group of municipalities to form a unit under their own by-laws to participate in this service," Dr. Vivian declared.

To Handle Funds

"The board will act as the agency for receiving money from the local community and for paying for the services rendered. The money will come from funds raised by taxation in the local community together with a Provincial contribution. The board will also act in supervising the administration of this plan, in which it will be assisted by a local committee in each municipality concerned.

"The Municipal Health Services Act makes it possible to establish a community plan for sickness insurance by means of taxation. This form of sickness insurance provides an economical way of paying for the cost of illness and will make it possible for a wider distribution of medical personnel into areas which could not otherwise be served. The coupling of these two factors will not only alleviate the fear of the cost of illness but will make better treatment services available.

176 Crippled Children Go To Summer Camp

TORONTO, July 28. — Forty-four excited little girls at Queen's Park headquarters of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children could hardly wait this morning until the bus arrived to take them to Blue Mountain Camp near Collingwood on Georgian Bay for a glorious 3-weeks holiday.

Some were on crutches and four infantile paralysis cases were on stretchers. A 15-year-old on one of the stretchers was probably the happiest of the lot, and little wonder for until the society discovered her in the backwoods of Northern Ontario last year, and brought her to Toronto for hospital treatment, she had never been away from home. For the first time she will associate with children her own age.

This is the third group of a total of 176 crippled boys and girls to holiday at the society's camp this summer, through the generosity of interested friends and numerous service clubs throughout the province. Sixteen of the children leaving to-day ere from the south-western part of the province and the remainder were from Toronto homes.

DOROTHY DIX . . . .

BE GOOD TO HIS MOTHER

Dear Miss Dix: I married the only son of a widow. She worships him and she is nice to me, but in my heart I hate her. I tell my husband everything I can to estrange him from her and to make him angry at her. To please me, at times he is very rude to her but she says nothing. Only looks hurt.

She never asks any favors of us. We have a fine car, but we never take her out for a ride. We have a little girl 6 years old. I teach her not to like her Grandmother and I destroy everything that my mother-in-law gives the child. I am a good wife, but at times I am very vicious with my little girl.

What are my chances with my husband? Will the time come when he will hate me for the way I treated his mother? PUZZLED.

Wife Will Lose Mate's Love

Answer: Unless your husband has a nature as cruel and ruthless as your own, the time will surely come when he will turn from you in hatred and loathing for the way you are treating his mother. While you are still young and beautiful you may have a physical attraction for him that enslaves him, or it may be that he is afraid of your vicious temper, but you will lose that hold upon him as your looks fade and your anger no longer terrorizes him.

Then his heart will go back to his mother. He will remember the sacrifices she made for him, her tenderness, her love that was great enough to make her bear in silence your insults and ill-treatment. Then he will be filled with shame and remorse for his weakness and he will blame you for it.

There is nothing a man appreciates so much in his wife as being good to his mother. There is nothing he resents in his wife so much as her unkindness to his mother. And that is something that every wife who is jealous of her mother-in-law and who tries to separate her husband from his mother should remember.

You ask what are your chances with your husband. You have a problem much more important to worry over than that. It is what punishment the Great Judge of us all is going to mete out to you when you die for the way you have treated your mother-in-law.

Dear Miss Dix: My husband is in the army. Whenever he gets a furlough, which is so far every four months, he writes home for either his mother or me to send him $50 railroad fare. We love to have him come, but his mother is a hard-working woman and the baby and I are living solely on the $80 a month I receive from the Government. So how can we manage to get him home on this small income? He gets furious, accuses us of not wanting to see him, and says if we begrudge him a price of a railroad ticket he will NEVER come home.

Is there some sort of a budget I can work out so I can feed and clothe the baby and save for the future and still send him money? L. P.

Answer: Not unless you are a miracle worker who can wave a dollar bill in the air and make it turn into a five. The one who should work out a new budget is your husband. He could do it if he would cut out some of the crap games and beers he indulges himself in and do a little penny-pinching on his own account.

The most vicious habit that a man ever acquires is asking for money from a woman. Whenever a man lets his mother or his wife support him, he throws away his self-respect and is on his way to becoming a bum. If your husband wants to see you and his mother and the baby badly enough he wil sweat the price of the railroad ticket out of his pay.

Dear Miss Dix: I am in love with a very nice soldier who asked me to write to him when he went overseas. As I write a very poor hand, I had my girl friend answer his letters for me. Now I see I made a mistake, but I don't know how to tell him because I don't know how he will take it. What should I do? ELIZABETH.

◆ ◆ ◆

Answer: You can do either one of two things. First, I would suggest that you improve your hand-writing. If that doesn't appeal to you, learn to run a typewriter. I think nearly everybody would rather get a typewritten letter than one written by hand. I know I would.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, July 29

A very lively state of affairs in which business as well as pleasure may clamor for first place in the attentions. There is fine promise in either direction, although there may be minor set backs or postponements. The outstanding prospects are for carrying social indulgences to excess with over-extravagance, enthusiasm or show, exacting penalties. There are unusual stimuli to conviviality, and celebration, easily turned to strife or unguarded words and acts. There should be much progress and pleasure if reason and moderation rule.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may have a promising year before them, with much progress, enjoyment and achievement, if they will but put the brakes on innate tendencies to "splurge," exaggeratate, or indulge excessively in the pursuit of pleasure. Hospitality, congeniality and mirth are in order, with affairs of the young to the fore. But high emotional stimuli may lead to quarrels and regrets. There is much promise of gain, pleasure and recognition. Professional matters may thrive.

A child born on this day may have excellent talents, with a gay and pleasure-loving disposition. If the emotional balance is preserved and the social qualities well-directed there should be much profit and happiness in life.

TRAFFIC MANAGER—Albert A. Gardiner, who has been appointed to the position of general passenger traffic manager of the Canadian National Railways, it is announced by Alistair Fraser, vice-president in charge of traffic. He began his railway career 37 years ago and has been assistant general passenger traffic manager since 1930.

$10,000 For Services

HARTFORD, Conn., July 28—(AP)—A gift of $10,000 from the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey combined shows to the Hartford Chapter of the Red Cross was announced last night by Red Cross officials. It was given as a "small token" of appreciation for relief work in connection with the recent circus-fire disaster in Hartford.

Cattle Prices Hold Firm

TORONTO, July 28.—(CP).—Cattle prices were steady to strong in trade on the Livestock Market here this week. Calves, hogs, lambs and sheep were unchanged.

Lighter runs of cattle brought a better feeling to the trade. While prices were generally unchanged, trading was more active and any killers of medium quality and upward were cleared. A few hundred plainer stockers were unsold at the close. Weighty steers sold at a top of $12.75 with others downward to $11. Butcher steers and heifers were $10-$11.75. Fed yearlings sold at $12-$13.75. Butcher cows were $7.75-$9.25. Bulls sold from $6 for light bolognas up to $9 for good light butchers. Stockers moved slowly at from $7 to $9.50 with stock calves up to $10.50. Good milkers and springers were $130 to $150 each.

Calves were steady at $13 to $14 for choice with common vealers downward to $7. Grassers were mostly $6.

A light run of hogs sold at $17.75-$17.85 for grade A and $17.35-$17.45 for grade B1, dressed. Sows were $13 dresed.

Lambs were $14.50 for good ewes and wethers with a carload from the Manitoulin Islands at $14.75. Bucks were $1 cwt. discount. Sheep sold at $2.50-$5 cwt.

potato balls, the onions and mushrooms in a little fat, stirring them lightly around until they are well browned. Put these with the chicken in the casserole, season with salt, pepper and paprika. Cover and cook for ¾ of an hour, then remove the cover and allow the chicken to brown before serving.

Hungarian Goulash en Casserole

4 onions, 2 pounds veal, bacon fat, 1½ pints brown stock, pepper, 1 pint potato balls, 12 small onions, 1 cup sliced carrots, 1 cup sliced turnip, salt, paprika.

Slice the onion and cut the raw veal in cubes. Cook together in a little bacon fat, until brown. Transfer to the casserole, pour over it the brown stock and season with salt, pepper and paprika. Place in moderate oven. Add more fat to that in the frying pan and brown the potato balls, onions, carrots and turnips in this. Add the vegetables and salt to the casserole when the meat is partly cooked. Finish the cooking, adding more stock if necessary. This dish should cook two hours. If the broth is too thin when ready to serve, thicken with a little flour, rubbed smooth in water.

Chopped Beef en Casserole

2 lbs. beef, 2-3 cup tomato catsup, boiled beets salt. Mix chopped beef with tomato catchup, season well with salt. Place in casserole and bake slowly from two to two and half hours, basting frequently with water or Worchestershire sauce. A few strips of bacon across the top will add to the richness and improve the flavor. Garnish with quartered beets.

Johnson's Job Is "Knock 'Em Down"

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE

WITH THE RCAF IN FRANCE, July 28 (AP)—Wing Cmdr. James E. (Johnny) Johnson sat in a trailer caravan and explained with great simplicity why he is the Allied ace of aces with a bag of 35 enemy planes destroyed in combat.

"It's just because I have been on it longer, I think," he said. "After all, I've been flying for four years, minus one six-month break."

Johnson, a compact, brown-eyed, pleasant man, had just come from a horseback ride. The horse was sweating, and Johnson carefully unhaltered and unbridled it, then sat down to discuss, not himself, but the air war in general.

A wing commander at 27, he is an Englishman who leads an RCAF outfit. He has also served with or in command of Poles, Czechs and Australians.

Strictly Business

"It's just our job to knock 'em down," he explained. "It's no race at all. For example, Sailor Malan (previous record-holder) is off ops (operations) now and I am on."

He noted how the air war has changed from the old days of quick sweeps over the Channel to the present phase of close support of ground troops by pilots based here in France.

Better Shots Then

"I've seen only six or seven German planes since D-Day," he said. "Last year in those flying sweeps over France, as flight leader, naturally I was the first man in and got a lot better shots than I'm getting now.

"In those old days we were always fighting over enemy territory. Now it's usually just a patrol of six here and four there—that and beating up the Hun's transport."

He couldn't see any particular design in German air activity along this front other than a rather disorganized hope that by little harassments here and there it could pin down a certain number of Allied fighter squadrons.

As for the German fliers themselves, Johnson said: "Their leaders are still first-class blokes and will still fight, but their number two and three and four men are not much good. They haven't got the spirit of training. For example, the other day we caught a German pilot and he turned out to be a Romanian corporal."

EARLY SIGNALLING

Wigwagging and heliographing, utilizing reflected flashes of sunlight were among man's earliest systems of signalling.

Graham Trophy 3rd Round Play Postponed

Owing to the fact that many of the contestants will be out of the city over the civic holiday week-end it has been decided to postpone the third round of the C. G. Graham Trophy until Sunday, August the 13. It was originally planned to redraw the losers in the second round of the trophy into the consolation round for the R. R. Faryon prize. However after giving this idea more careful thought the committee decided such an arrangement would carry the consolation round too late into the season and some couples might find themselves playing in the snow. Therefore all couples who have been eliminated in either match will be drawn for play in a sweepstakes, prizes will be awarded to the couple posting the lowest gross score for the round and to the team turning in the lowest net score.

Some matches which were tied in the last round must be played over again before August the 13. Changes in handicaps will not be taken into consideration when replaying ties.

The following changes in handicaps have been made in the men's division:

H. T. Cranford, 18; W. S. Cowell, 20; Wm. Derry, 20; G. H. Munroe, 17; J. E. McKercher, 24; R. G. Maniece, 21; T. Rodgers, 18; G. Whatman, 14; C. B. Westbrook, 24.

These new handicaps will be used for all matches and sweepstakes except when replaying ties.

Stratton Trophy

The Stratton Trophy has advanced into the third round. The following contestants are asked to complete this round by August 7th. Gordon Maniece is the referee in this tournament.

T. T. Rodgers vs. J. G. Wharry.
W. S. Cowell vs. G. D. Whatman.
C. V. Elliott vs. C. B. Westbrooke.
R. Kitchen vs. A. Rutter.
J. M. Watson vs. Dr. C C. Cragg.
M. J. Starr vs. Rev. G. Kelly.
W. E. Lloyd vs. J. R. Jobe.
R. Abbott vs G. H. Munroe.

Macdonald Trophy

The G. A. Macdonald Trophy has advanced rapidly and the following players will be asked to play their matches before August 7th. No handicaps are used. Match play rules will apply and stymies must be played. Stanley Northrop is the referee of this tournament.

Geo. Kelly vs. H. Chown.
W. S. Cowell vs. G. Maniece.
W. E. Lloyd vs. S. McBride.
J. E. McKercher vs. W. Brady

A number of games have still to be played in the President's Tournament and the referee in this event, Joe Jebson points out that these must be cleaned up at once or the delinquents will be struck from the board.

Quakers Squeeze Packers For Win

Coming from behind to push two runs across in the eighth inning, Quaker Oats took the verdict 4 to 3 over Canada Packers in an Industrial Softball League game played on Thursday evening on the Brinton Field.

The Packers took a 2 to 1 lead in the first inning. A. Downer was safe on an error, completing the run on a hit by Detlar. Detlar scored on a passed ball.

Two more runs by Quakers in the eighth gave them the one-run edge, enough to take the game, as the Packers failed to score during their times at bat in the eighth and ninth. Fisher and Horton singled, and Weaver made first on a ball fumbled in left field, Fisher scored. Pollock flied to short, Willshaw popped to catched, and Roote singled over first, scoring Horton.

Fisher pitched for Quaker, holding the losers to 10 hits, fanning six and issuing no walks. Foley hurled for the Packers, also fanning six, and walking none, while he held the Quakers to 11 hits.

The teams:

slow grounder to Kingdon for a hit. Kavanagh singled to centre and Procyk to short, filling the bases. Joe Dunkerley singled to left scoring Mortimer and Kavanagh. Morgan walked, again filling the bases and then Wilson passed Herrick, forcing in the tieing run. The Plaza pitcher got out of the hole by striking out Clapp and Paris with the bases loaded.

Soldiers once more tied it up in their half. With one away Mortimer walked and Kavanagh bunted safely with three and nothing on him. Procyk flied to Conroy in left. Once more Joe Dunkerley came through in the clutch by singling past Tucker to send Mortimer in. Morgan flied to Conroy.

Plazas again took the lead in the eighth. Bun Kingdon opened with a double to left and Burton singled to the same field, Kingdon stopping at third. Tucker popped to Paris. Blewett got a freak hit on a ball that hit the end of his bat and rolled crazily in front of the plate. Kingdon registered on the play. Ellis popped to Anderson.

Soldiers won out in the last of the ninth. Anderson was tossed out by Tucker but Mortimer walked to start the rally. Kavanagh got his fourth hit, a single to centre and Burton threw high to third when Mortimer dashed for that base and the runner scored the tieng run, Kavanagh reaching third. Procyk then slashed a single past Tucker, scoring Kavanagh and the ball game was over.

Children Electrocuted

NEW YORK, July 28—(AP). — A sudden thunderstorm was the indirect cause of the death yesterday of Maureen Zane, 14, and two-year-old Theodore Smith. The girl was carrying her neighbors' child across a street after the storm when, police said, she stepped in a puddle into which a high-voltage wire had fallen. Both were electrocuted.

Did Not Feel Injury

SEATTLE, July 28—(AP).—A Japanese mortar shell landed in the hole in which he was sleeping on Saipan, and although it blew off his right arm just below the elbow, Pte. Ray Anderson of Georgetown, Del., now in hospital here, told reporters he was so exhausted that he did not feel the injury until a wounded comrade woke him 10 minutes later.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

Jack Shewchuck, former defenceman with Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League and Brant County Golf champion, yesterday was announced winner of the Spalding Ringer Trophy at the Brantford Golf and Country Club, taking the best of 36 holes for a net 66. His handicap was three. Bob Fletcher was runner-up.

The Phillies announced last night they had recruited Harry Shuman, 28-year-old former Toronto Maple Leafs pitcher, from a Philadelphia shipyard job. Shuman previously tried out with the Athletics and the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Word from Winnipeg last night indicates that city will field at least one football team to defend the Western Canada title won by the R.C.A.F. Bombers last year. A. E. Bert Longstaffe, president of the Winnipeg Rugby club said it had been decided to find out whether servicemen would be allowed to play.

Jimmy Ripple, outfield sparkplug of New York Giant pennant drives in 1936 and '37, has been signed as a free agent by the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, it was learned yesterday. Ripple, now 34, performed with Cincinnati and Brooklyn in the National League after his stretch with the Giants, and last year was with Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League.

Three major league teams suffered heavy loss of talent yesterday when five players were reported draft-bound. Hardest hit were the Boston Braves, who will lose Pitcher Stan Klopp, First Baseman Max Macon and Outfielder Chet Ross. Cleveland Indians' pennant hopes were dimmed by the prospect of losing rollicking Rollie Hemsley, 37-year-old first-string catcher, to the Army Aug. 8. At Cincinnati, the Reds announced that Outfielder Max Marshall had been ordered to report for Navy induction.

Tokyo Denies Executing Fliers

LONDON, July 28 (AP)—Tokyo broadcast today an official denial that "American pilots who crashed on Japanese soil have been executed or would be executed."

The Japanese broadcast said it had so notified the United States government, through neutral Switzerland, repudiating a Singapore broadcast of two weeks ago which referred to a "single journey ticket" for Superfortress airmen landing in Japan. Tokyo's denial apparently was intended to cover only the Superfortress fliers, since the United States government has announced officially Tokyo's acknowledgement of the execution of some of the fliers who bombed Tokyo in the Doolittle attack of 1942.

The Japanese, in an English-language broadcast from Singapore, were reported by Allied listeners July 15 as saying "Any Allied airmen who falls or bails out over Japan will be executed" and that B-29 fliers who came down had met "the same fate which was meted out to the raiders of Tokyo some years ago."

The Japanese broadcast said "American propaganda is false and tendentious when it stated that the Japanese government intends to punish bailed-out American airmen of B-29 planes."

Dr. Henri Laurup Envoy To Peru

OTTAWA, July 28 (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King last night announced appointment of Dr. Henri Laureys as Ambassador to Peru and the promotion of L. B. Pearson to the rank of Minister Plenipotentiary to the United States.

Dr. Laureys will be the first Canadian Ambassador to Peru and recently returned from South Africa after a term as High Commissioner there.

Mr. Pearson has held the rank of minister-counsellor at the Canadian Embassy in Washington. That rank was established when the Embassy was a Legation and the head of the mission, Hon. Leighton McCarthy, held the rank of Minister. Since Mr. McCarthy has been promoted to the rank of Ambassador the elevation of Mr. Pearson brings his status up to the next grade.

Arrangements for an exchange of Ambassadors with Peru have been in progress for some time, Mr. King announced the Government of Peru had designated Dr. Umberto Fernandes Davila as charge l'affaires in Ottawa pending the appointment of an Ambassador.

Other Latin-American countries with whom Canada has previously exchanged diplomatic representatives are Brazil, Argentina, Chile and Mexico.

Mr. Pearson has played a leading role in the organization of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

Litter Of 18 Survives

DUNDALK, Ont., July 28 — (CP) — Sow owned by a farmer west of here, is more than doing her share to keep the Canadian bacon quota to Britain. She gave birth to 18 young porkers. The entire litter survived.

PROTECT GOOD CARDS

IF YOU must give the defenders a chance to ruff one round of a suit in order to get it established, it is better to have them do it to some worthless little card instead of a high honor which you may need later as a trick taker. It is better, therefore, to lead toward that honor from the other hand. If it is ruffed, you play low. If not, you come up with the honor and win a trick with it.

Bidding of that general nature came at two duplicate tables, one declarer making the contract and the other botching it, though both got a lead of the heart A.

The unsuccessful declarer, after ruffing with the club 2, scored the club K and A, used the heart K to discard the spade 7, led the diamond 4 to the A, killing the Q, and then the diamond K, which East ruffed. He laid down the spade A and led the spade 2, which South ruffed with the club 10. The club J put both South and East out of trumps and the diamond J won. But then West won the diamond 6 with the 10 and finished with two hearts, setting the contract three tricks.

The other declarer, after ruffing the heart A, went after diamonds before trumps, laying down the A. This dropped the Q, and South then led the club K to the A. The heart K brought a discard of the spade 7, and the diamond 9 was led. East ruffed, but notice that South was now able to play the diamond 2, saving his K and J. East desperately underled the spade A with the 2, West winning with the K and returning the diamond 8.

The dummy's club 9 was too high for East to over-ruff, so he discarded a heart and South played the 3. The club 7 to the Q, the J and 10 were followed by the diamond K and J and the now good 6, making the contract.

Eden Promises Support To Greek Premier

LONDON, July 28 — (CP-Reuter) — Foreign Secretary Eden in a statement in parliament today named E.A.M., the left-wing resistance movement in Greece, as responsible for the dealock in Greek Unity negotiations and promised continued British support for George Papandreou, Premier of the Greek government-in-Cairo.

Mr. Eden said that if E.A.M. persisted in refusal to join the Greek government on the basis of the LeBanon agreement they must be held responsible for the failure to achieve unity in Greek policy and arms at this supreme moment in the common struggle.

"The British government," he stated, "have frequently emphasized their will to see the establishment of a Greek government which would be fully representative of all patriotic opinion in Greece Last May agreement was reached at a conference of Greek delegates in LeBanon which was subscribed to by duly authorized representatives of all the principal Greek political parties including Eam and other Leftwing parties.

"The LeBanon agreement held out every promise that such a government would be formed and George Papandreou has since made every effort to put the LeBanon Agreement into effect."

Mr. Eden stressed that in this task Papandreou received and will continue to receive the full support of the British government. The leaders of E.A.M. in Grece have, however, declined to ratify the signature of their representatives at the LeBanon conference or appoint ministers to post in the government which it was agreed should be reserved for them, he said.

Instead Mr. Eden added, they have put forward fresh and unreasonable demands the effect of which would be to give them control over all the Guerilla forces in Greece and the Greek forces abroad and representation in the Greek government out of all proportion to their actual strength.

New Westminster, B.C., July 28

MAJ. Jack Mahony, winner of the Victoria Cross, has written his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Mahony, about receiving the famous decoration.

"I am going around in a whirl but hope to wake up soon," he wrote.

"Naturally I feel very proud as it does not happen to a man every day."

Full-Time Chairman Asked For Radio

OTTAWA, July 28—(CP)—The Parliamentary Radio committee, reporting to the Commons Thursday, recommended the appointment of a full-time salaried chairman for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation to have charge of policy and a general manager to have charge of administration. This recommendation had been forecast on the basis of reports in Parliamentary lobbies.

The committee report said:

"This would not involve a dual authority, as each would have his own definite field of action, and their respective functions should not involve and conflict, and should any conflict arise, the authority of the chairman must be predominant or such matters might be referred to the Board."

Send Force To Europe

MEXICO CITY, July 28—AP)—A Mexican expeditionary force—armed with machetes as well as guns—may soon be on its way to Europe if President Camacho gives his permission. The unit would be composed of veterans who fought under revolutionist Pancho Villa and their sons and friends.

Three Germans Escape

CHATHAM, July 28—(CP)—Officers in charge of the prisoner-of-war work camp in Harwich township today reported that no word had been received in regard to the whereabouts of three prisoners who escaped on Tuesday from the farm of Charles Snobelen near Blenheim, Ont.

The men, Frederick Poprich, Hans Euligem and Helmut Hack, were working in a cornfield at the time of their escape. Royal Canadian Mounted Police are in charge of the search.

25 Children Keep Parents Busy

By BONNIE WILEY
Associated Press Writer

Just down from Alaska, Mamma and Papa Arketa brought 20 little Arketas with them, 18 adopted and two of their own. The others have just sort of "moved in" temporarily. The three older boys work in war plants. Older girls help with the housework.

"Every child," claim Mr. and Mrs. Arketa, who went to Alaska from Montana seven years ago to do missionary work, "is entitled to a good home." So when nobody else seems willing to provide it, the Arketas open wide their arms and in runs another little waif.

"Why, up in Juneau we had 40 or 50 youngsters and once we had 14 bottle babies, all at one time," motherly Mrs. Arketa said.

Deserted By Parents

"Some of the Alaskan children were brought to us by the police when their parents deserted them. Some we found, neglected and hungry in the slums. We've put weight on them."

Most of the little Arketas are part Alaskan Indian. Father Arketa, who supports his ever-growing brood by selling his hand-tooled leather work, is part Iroquois.

"Everybody is so kind," Mrs. Arketa beamed. "It takes lots of food, 25 quarts of milk a day, 25 loaves of bread at a time, but God is going to see us through, you know."

Feeling that their big brood needed more fresh vegetables and more sunshine, the Arketas loaded the children onto a Seattle-bound ship and set forth. After the home is running smoothly with someone in charge, they'll go back to Alaska for more missionary work.

On Sunday, the entire brood attends Sunday school in the front room, and the young worshippers also hold daily prayers.

School Board Meets

GLEN ALDA, July 28—(ENS)—A voucher aggregating $326.26 was passed for payment by the School Board at a recent meeting held with the following members present: George Woodbeck, Amos Forbes, Mrs. Floyd Post and James Walke.

Other business transacted by the board included setting the trustee's levy at $2.00 and authorizing purchase of a new register and $10 worth of books for Mrs. B. Wilson, the teacher. Mr. Woodbeck acted as chairman.

HAPPY CAPTIVE — There is little of the "give me liberty or give me death" spirit about this young German soldier, who obviously is tickled to death to be a prisoner and out of the war. He was taken by the British near Caen, and hasn't stopped smiling since his capture.

Gestapo Tactics Invade Ontario Court

TORONTO, July 27.—(CP). — Conviction of James Lillico of Cornwall, Ont., on a charge of not being gainfully employed for seven days and with failing to register with the National Selective Service to-day was quashed by Mr. Justice J. Keiller Mackay, who said the "only conclusion that I can come to is that this man was denied natural justice."

Lillico, claming to be minister of the Jehovah's Witnesses sect, appeared before Magistrate P. C. Bergeron in Cornwall June 14 and a week later was fined $25 or one month. Lillico claimed he had not been asked to plead and had been denied the opportunity to make full answer. Also, he had been given no opportunity to produce evidence and had not been made aware he was on trail. He had not been given opportunity to obtain counsel.

Justice Mackay Shocked.

"I read the document in this case with considerable care and surprise to say nothing of being shocked," Mr. Justice Mackay saaid. "It is bad enough to have a Gestapo in Germany without it invading the courts of this country."

A statement from Magistrate Bergeron said Lillico was questioned and heard in an "ancillary court room" and that he pleaded guilty. On being sentenced he had asked for an adjournment. The Crown argued that instead of presenting a motion to quash the conviction, Lillico should have exercised his right to appeal.

"What concerns us vitally is that the law is no respecter of persons and it is not affected by the fact that one happens to belong to a sect with which you and I do not agree," Mr. Justice Mackay said.

24 Leaders In Mutiny Greek Army Sentenced

CAIRO, July 28—(AP)—As the result of the conviction of six more sailors in court martials at Alexandria, 24 alleged ring leaders of the Greek army and navy mutinies last April now are under sentence of death.

Four members of the crew of the corvette Sahtouris and two of the repair ship Hifaistos were sentenced to death at the Alexandria trials. Twenty other persons were given prison terms and eight were acquitted.

Eighten persons already were under death sentences imposed at previous court martials for participation in the mutinies, which the prosecution charged had interfered seriously with the Greek war effort against the Germans.

REPORTED SUICIDE — After writing a letter to Hitler in which he described the military situation as "hopelessly tragic" and demanding that a war now being fought for "personal ambition or party prestige" be brought to an end, Field Marshal Von Busch, above, committed suicide, according to a Polish underground report received in London. Von Busch was identified as one of the generals involved in the revolt against Hitler.

Normandy Fishermen Put Out Into Channel

GRANDCAMP, Normandy, July 28 — (AP) — A little fleet of fishing boats from this village chugged out into the English Channel early to-day and for the first time in four years the fishermen found they could keep their entire catch of mackerel, shrimp and lobster to eat or sell instead of having to share it with the Germans.

The Allied Supreme Command was anxious to have fishing resumed to restore the economic life in the fishing communities and prevent the slaughtering of Normandy beef. It desired to conserve this beef for other French areas suffering deficient food supply. It was also anxious to obtain fish for military and civilian use.

Partisans Singing Of Exploits Cross Adriatic Under Hun Nose

(In the first despatch written from a Partisan troopship in the Adriatic, Astley Hawkins, Reuter special correspondent, reveals the completeness of Allied air and naval supremacy along Marshal Joseph Tito's supply lines. He tells of a motley fleet sailing day and night under the very noses of the Germans).

By ASTLEY HAWKINS
Reuter War Correspondent

ABOARD A PARTISAN TROOPSHIP IN THE ADRIATIC, July 28 (CP-Reuter)—In this small British-built troopship of the Yugoslav Partisans, its holds packed with ammunition and food and its decks and lounges crowded with British and Partisan troops—including girl soldiers—I have just "cruised" across the Adriatic.

We formed part of the motley fleet of small steamers and sailing craft which day and night cross this sea with little or no interference, although operating virtually under the noses of the Germans on Hvar island. They bring steady quantities of Allied supplies to help keep Marshal Joseph Tito's forces fed and armed.

Transport planes also deliver large cargoes to Partisan territory in the interior.

The small convoy, of which my ship was a part, deliberately made the crossing in daylight because the Allied air forces and navies now command the Adriatic. The voyage was uneventful apart from one false air raid alert when all the Partisans poked their rifles through the port-holes ready to meet any attacker.

Some of the Partisan girl soldiers wore British battledress. So did most of the men.

Courageous Sailors

I remarked to one of the Partisan officers on the size of the ship or the job, and he replied: "We would take her to America if we had to get our supplies there."

The little vessel appeared badly in need of an overhaul and a new coat of grey war paint, but the Partisans are too busy fighting the war to worry much about such things.

It has no sleeping or feeding accommodation for the troops. Everyone slept in his clothes wherever he could find room on the open deck or on the tiny lounge room floor. Meals were improvised on the same basis with individual rations brought for the voyage.

Partisan propaganda posters were plastered around the walls of the ship's lounge with Marshal Tito holding a commanding position among pictures of Winston Churchill, President Roosevelt and Marshal Stalin.

The Partisans spend most of their time singing—singing about themselves, about Tito, and the destruction of Fascism.

The captain and his young officers, even the steersman, all in the same khaki uniform and cap with the red Partisan star, would stand together on the bridge singing sometimes for hours as the ship sailed on.

Long Lines Of Poles Returning To Homeland Follow Russian Advance; Thousands Of Troops Thown Across Vistula

LONDON, July 29—(CP). — Red Army spearheads rolling across the Polish plain were reported within sight of Warsaw today and the German communique said other Soviet forces had penetrated the Latvian rail hub of Jelgava, which would practically bisect the Baltics. The German bulletin claimed a Nazi counter-attack had thrown the Russian vanguard out of Jelgava, 120 miles northwest of Daugavpils (Dvinsk) and about 21 miles southwest of Riga on an arm of the Baltic Sea.

British dispatches from the eastern front said Warsaw could be seen by advance Soviet forces in the Polish offensive, made up of cavalry, scout cars and tanks.

Fighting apparently raged on in the vicinity of Jelgava as the Russians threatened to pinch off German Baltic divisions by gaining mastery of the rail line from Siauliai to Kaunas. The Russians already held Siauliai, 50 miles south of Jelgava.

(A London broadcast recorded by the United States Office of War Information said Russian troops had reached "the outer fortifications of Warsaw," quoting Moscow press dispatches.)

By EDDIE GILMORE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, July 29—(AP)—The big guns of the Red Army opened up today on German troops in the suburbs of Warsaw, while advance cavalry, scout cars and tanks pushing from the southeast were believed within sight of the Polish capital.

Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's advance units stabbed forward during the night from Kolbiel, 20 miles southeast of Warsaw, followed by powerful artillery pieces that were wheeled into position for the bombardment.

3 Divisions Held

The marshal sent units under Kuban Cossack Gen. Pliev to help special mopping up squads tackle three Nazi Divisions pinned against the western Bug river. Field dispatches said it was the same old story—thousands of Germans waiting too long to retreat.

In northern Lithuania, meanwhile, the Russians plunged to within 50 miles of Riga, Latvian seaport on the Baltic with the capture of Joniskis, 23 miles north of the rail junction of Siauliai. A German Army estimated at perhaps 300,000 was imperilled in Estonia and Latvia with the cutting of the main route to East Prussia.

In the south, the Nazi strongholds of Jaroslaw and Przemysl fell to the Russian Ukraine forces thrusting westward toward Krakow on the main Trunk Railway to Germany. A march into Czechoslovakia through the Carpathian mountain passes loomed.

Follow Army In

A dispatch from the Army newspaper Red Star said long lines of Poles, driving wagons and carts, riding bicycles and pushing baby carriages piled with household goods, were following the Soviet forces as they moved towards Warsaw.

Bulgaria Hints Evacuation Of Nazi Troops

ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 27 — (Delayed) — (AP). — The government of Premier Ivan Bagrianov has asked Germany to evacuate all German armed forces from Bulgaria and there are indications the request may be heeded, according to information received here today. The Bulgars were reported told that the government would defend the nation against attack "from any quarter."

The Germans at first refused to grant the Bulgarian request, the report said, on the ground their other satellites might make the same demand and that prestige was involved, but developments suggest this stand was reconsidered.

Bombing Target.

They have pointed out to the Germans, the report further related, that the Nazi troops in Bulgaria estimated now less than two divisions, are of no military help and draw Allied bombing.

Among indications the Nazis may be preparing to get out of Bulgaria was a report from Ruschuk that Germans, just withdrawn from Varna and Burgas, now are concentrated in Ruschuk on the Danube just across from the Romanian port of Girugiu. Another report said Germans in southern Bulgaria now are massed close to the Greek frontier.

These advices from Bulgaria came in the midst of others that Bulgaria was negotiating with the Allies in an effort to get out of the war and reports that a break in economic and diplomatic relations between Germany and Turkey was imminent.

Allies Threatening Burma Frontier

KANDY, Ceylon, July 29 — (CP) —British Imperial troops have driven to within nine miles of Tamu in the rapid clearance of Manipur State of the enemy after a 30-mile advance from Palel in six days, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's Headquarters announced to-day.

The increasingly disorganized state of Japanese resistance indicated the Allies soon would be able to cross the Burma frontier.

The communique said American and Chinese troops had advanced in all sectors in the battle for Myitkyina, Japan's last major base in North Burma.

Traffic Cop For Channel

Channel Traffic So Heavy Policeman Is Required

LONDON, July 29.—(AP). —The tricky English Channel, once Britain's last line of defense, is rapidly becoming a safe highway for thousands of Allied troops and their equipment pouring into France.

Before D-Day this swirling mass of water teemed with mines, U-boats, E-boats and underwater obstacles and was under the constant threat of German planes and shore batteries. On my eighth crossing. I found it calm except for distant flashes of gunfire over France.

Our convoy was closely guarded by destroyers, corvettes and other craft. Minesweepers continued their painstaking work. Scores upon scores of ships are flowing, so many that we need a traffic cop to keep them from tangling in collisions, as a few have done.

The life line of Allied troops broadening their toe-hold in France is secured. The British and United States navies have done that.

As the ships ply back and forth, skippers study the currents which might carry them from the swept channels into minefields. They now know more about the almost constant winds which push vessels off their course. They have studied the rise of full tides which are very important in beaching LSTS and LCIS.

The commandant of an Allied port says the army has so many supplies in France it must advance to make room for more.

FOXHOLE BUILT FOR TWO—Two of the first American soldiers to enter the German bastion of St. Lo, squeeze down in the bottom of their foxhole in the town square — the place Du Champs De Mars—as German shells come too close for comfort. St. Lo was taken after eight days of some of the most savage fighting of the Normandy campaign.

Super-Fortresses Strike Mukden Area In Manchuria

WASHINGTON, July 29—(AP).—The roving American fleet of super-fortresses struck today at Japan's transplanted war industries in Manchuria, in the first daylight attack made by the 20th Bomber Command. A terse communique, issued here by the 20th Air Force, reported only that the B-29's attacked "industrial objectives in the Mukden area, Manchuria," and added no further details were available at the time (1.51 a.m., E.D.T.). It was then daylight in Manchuria.

The two previous operations of the 20th Bomber Command — against Yawata June 15 and against Yawata and Sasebo, third largest naval base of Japan, July 7—were night attacks, at low level.

Test B-29's In Daylight.

Women Shoulder Heavier Tasks

LONDON, July 29.—(CP).—Germany's women will have to shoulder heavier burdens on the home front, Nazi broadcasts disclosed today, as Reichsminister Goebbels and his staff hastened the process of squeezing into the hard-pressed German army the last available manpower fit for military service.

Extension of the working woman's maximum age from 45 to 50 appeared among the first measures expected in the latest "all-out" mobilization, said Transocean, Nazi propaganda agency. It added that "real employment" for women was contemplated, noting that up to now many women, "although legally obliged to work, did only nominal work by registering with relatives."

Apparently attempting to put the best possible face on this new scraping of the barrel for more men for the army, the broadcast sought to give the impression that bararcks in Germany now were filled with reserves ready to rush to the fronts.

Th speed of mobilization of Germany's reserves will depend on how quickly the barracks can be emptied, Transocean said, adding:

"For as troops now in the home country's barracks will go to the front, able-bodied men from industry and commerce will be drafted. Their places will be taken by men and women from enterprises and offices which are not war-important.

From Turey came rumblings that Hitler was faced with a diplomatic set-back there. Rumors circulated in Turkey that the Turks were plunging swiftly toward a break with the Axis and might even enter the war. German envoys were said to be admitting that a break in economic relations with Turkey was imminent and that it might be followed by a diplomatic break.

U.S. Tanks Drive To Siene River

BY HAL BOYLE
Associated Press War Correspondent

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS IN FRANCE, July 29 — (AP) — Hammering back initial armored counter attacks in fierce battles, U. S. tanks drove to the Siene River seven miles south of Coutances today and brought the enemy's road hub of Brehal witrin gun range.

The village of Le Mesnil-Aubert was taken in the advance on Brehal, 11 miles south of, captured Coutances. The advance on Brehal was denying to the enemy one of the last routes along the coast.

The Germans threw in tanks without regard for casualties in an attempt to cut the Cenisy-Notre Dame-Le Cenily highway and shear off the armored spearhead driving south. Enemy artillery joined the battle.

After they were flanked on both sides of fast-moving columns of American armor they waited until 3 o'clock this morning (9 p.m. E. D.T. Friday) before trying to smash their way clear.

The deadly work of dive bombers had forced this enemy tank group and numerous other remnants of Nazi armor and artillery to hole up in the woods.

New "Mass Attack" Technique Is Adopted In Hurling Flying Bombs

LONDON, July 29—(AP)—The Nazis adopted a new "mass attack" technique in hurling flying bombs at London and Southern England during the night, sending the robots over in batches with brief lulls between each onslaught.

The attacks took a fresh toll of casualties, including patients in a hospital which was badly damaged.

Among the vicitms were nurses, some of whom despite their injuries, helped volunteer rescue squads carry patients from the hospital under showers of sparks and embers.

Last night R.A.F. heavy bombers, probably carrying six-ton "earthquake" bombs, attacked a supply depot in the Pas de Calais area near Watten, believed connected with the Nazi threat to launch 10-ton rockets against Britain.

It was estimated meanwhile, that 200,000 persons had left London for safer havens in the country—far more than the number evacuated in 1941.

Despite the toll taken by the fly-bombs, a poll conducted by the London Daily Express showed only a bare majority of those under attack in Southern England favored reprisals. The poll found 54 per cent in favor, 42 per cent against and four per cent in doubt.

14 Squadrons Of Canadians Are In Action

BY ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE CANADIAN BOMBER GROUP, SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, July 29 — (CP-Cable) — The Canadian bomber group last night sent more than 1,000 airmen into the bomber Command's renewed battle of Hamburg, to drop hundreds of tons of high explosive and thousands of incendiaries in concert with the R.A.F. in a 1,000-plane raid.

At least 14 Canadian group squadrons worked in the Hamburg operation and in the laying of mines in enemy waters.

The night's work cost 62 planes. Of these 23 were Canadian heavy bombers, the heaviest loss suffered by the Canaidan bomber group in any one night since its formation more than a year and a half ago.

It later was officially anonunced that the Canadian group never before had put such a large force of heavy bombers over one target. The annoucement added: "Although enemy fighter opposition was intense, our aircraft pressed home the attack and left many large fires burning in the target area."

Defences Are Strong

Anti-aircraft defences were particularly strong around Hamburg, and enemy night fighters were plentiful, returning fliers said. One enemy plane was destroyed over the North Sea as it followed the bomber group on its way home. Credit for the victory went to Gunners Flt.-Sgt. Gus Penny, Abernethy, Sask., and P. O. Ralph Bullivant, Okotoks, Alta.

Among the Canadian Group Squadrons was the group's newest one, still unnamed and flying in its first operation.

It was led by Wing Cmdr. J. O. McNeill, Calgary.

Returning airmen said they could see clouds over the target illuminated by great explosions and fires.

A force of 1,100 American Bombers struck Germany's Leuna Synthetic oil plant at Merseburg for the second successive day this morning, and also attacked the northwestern port of Bremen, following a night in which British and Canadian heavy bombers lost 62 planes—including 23 Canadian craft—in huge operations over Germany.

They also raked Nazi airdromes at Juvincourt and Laencouvron north-east of Paris.

New Zealanders Crack Nazi Defences

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, July 29 — (AP).—Desert-hardened New Zealand veterans of the British 8th Army have cracked Nazi defences south of Florence and knifed into the last mountain line only five miles from the historic city, allied Headquarters announced to-day.

The break-through provoked strong German counter-attacks, and bitter fighting was reported in the hils overlooking Florence. Savage counter-thrusts by Nazi infantry and tiger tanks swept the leading company of New Zealanders back 600 yards, but official reports said the enemy then was brought to a halt and advances were being firmly held.

The New Zealanders took off from a bridgehead over the small Pesa River at Cerbaia. The threat to Florence also grew as South African troops crossed the Greve River, two miles south of Impruneta, 6½ miles from the city's boundaries.

Situation Unchanged.

Official reports said the situation on the Allied 5th Army front was unchanged, with American and German artillery continuing a duel across the lower Arno River. No mention was made of whether either side was shelling the city of Pisa after a plea by Pope Pius for consideration of its historical and religious significance.

One extreme left wing of the 8th Army was within two miles of Empoli, on the south banks of the Arno nearly 30 miles east of Pisa and within 2½ miles of Monte Lupo. It was reported approaching the river on a wide front.

North of Arezzo British and Indian troops drove the foe from the Campriano area and captured the village of Scoiano.

Farther east in the Apennines only slight contacts with the enemy were reported. Sassoferrato and Perticano were found clear of enemy troops. Polish troops occupied the southern part of the coastal town of Senigallia.

The 5th Army disclosed its artillery observation pilots had flown tiny defenceless cub planes 8,600 hours between May 5 and the fall of Rome June 3, spotting targets, and that practically all of the pilots have been awarded air medals.

King Reviews British Pilots

WITH THE R.A.F. ON THE 8th ARMY FRONT IN ITAY, July 27 —(Delayed)—(AP) — King George VI of Britain, on a tour of the Italian battle-front, reviewed British pilots stationed with the 8th Army today and watched them take off and return from a successful bombing mission against a fuel dump south of Florence, only a few miles away.

The King sat in as the crews were briefed for the mission and wished them "good luck" as the English, South African and Australian airmen filed out of the room. An hour later he had tea with them on their return from the mission.

During the brefing the King examined photographs of the target and asked about the possibilities of flak. Col. Laurie Wilmot of the South African Air Force, showed him the "flak chart" which happened to be decorated with flippant caricatures of Hitler and other enemy leaders, suitably captioned in air force language.

The young colonel noticed the King closely examining one of the drawings, laughed uneasily and said: "I'm afraid that's a rather vulgar one, sir. I censored the board this morning and it wasn't there then." The King joined in the general laughter.

The King, dressed in an open-necked bush shirt with the insignia of Marshal of the Royal Air Force, visited three fighter wings during the afternoon and was loudly cheered by the hundreds of airmen who saw him.

Later the King reviewed the troops under young Col. Johnny Human, South African Commander of a Spitfire wing, and had dinner with the men.

Americans Take Coutances Drive To West Reaches Sea; British Front Remains Quiet

5,000 German Prisoners Are Captured 15 To 20 Miles Gained Few Nazis Left In Coutances Pocket

By GLADWIN HILL—Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, July 29 — (AP). — U.S. tanks clashed with counter-attacking German armor in fierce battles along a 10-mile sector east of captured Coutances today as Field Marshal Rommel reacted violently to the American offensive threatening to burst his lines blocking the way to the heart of France.

There was no mention in today's Allied communique No. 107 of ground fighting on the British-Canadian front south and southeast of Caen where action has been light for the last few days.

Shifting Nazi Armor.

Rommel apparently had decided at last to shift part of the armor he has been holding south of Caen to meet any impending blow from Gen. Montgomery's forces.

Observers reported a movement of enemy vehicles yesterday along lateral roads toward the American sector from the Caen area, where Rommel had concentrated at least six tank divisions. When the American blow fell there are no more than two armored enemy divisions among the 12 deployed against U.S. troops, according to unoffical estimates.

Fighting centred on the hamlet of Pont Brocard, on a highway between Canisy and Notre Dame, after the Americans jumped off at dawn on the fifth successive day of their offensive.

(The BBC said a tank column was driving on Brehal, 11 miles south of Coutances and 2½ miles from the sea. All main coastwise roads meet at Brehal.)

The encircling movement which forced the enemy from his strong hedgerow and swamp positions above Coutances was being repeated, and one tank column drove westward to the sea southwest of that Normandy road centre.

General Takes Prisoner

Tank elements in a column miles long hammered on six miles south of Coutances as a U.S. general on foot, with a prisoner he personally captured, led triumphant American forces into the city.

The U.S. Ninth Air Force reported more than 180 German tanks were knocked out of action Wednesday and Thursday, and 242 other vehicles were destroyed in attacks on strongpoints and troop concentrations.

5,000 Prisoners Taken.

Thus far 5,000 German prisoners were reported taken in the new American thrust, and Lt.-Gen. Bradley's men were 15 to 20 miles south of their jump-off line of last Tuesday.

Due south of St. Lo another American column pushed down the Vire River from captured Tessy Sur Vire toward the key communications centre of Vire, 12 miles away. On the section of the 40-mile front east of St. Lo the road to Berigny and Bayeux was cleared of Germans. St. Jean des Baisants on the lateral St. Lo-Caumont highway and Vidouville were captured.

However, the onslaught was so rapid and was penetrating so deeply into the ranks of the retreating Germans that it appears Rommel well may have lost as many men outside the pocket as he might have in it.

National Plan Of Housing Is Recommended

OTTAWA, July 29 (CP) — The Commons committee on Reconstruction today recommended that proposed National Housing legislation contain provisions to allow the government to give every city, town and village the help necessary for the "improvement of present homes, the building of new homes and the elimination of slum conditions."

That recommendation and others were made in a committee report tabled in the Commons by Gray Turgeon (L-Cariboo), chairman. A final report will be tabled later.

The committee recommended "any immediate action that may be needed to make certain that all Canadian people have an opportunity to secure proper homes through ownership or tenacy."

The report added:

"But we firmly believe that in the matter of housing the objective of government and parliament should be the complete eradication of any industrial condition which creates a 'low-income' group of people who work and render service to the community but whose remuneration for such work is so small as to make it impossible for them to have decent, healthy home conditions without government assistance."

Another recommendation urged that "all possible steps" be taken to make certain discharged members of the forces will be given "every opportunity to establish themselves in adequately decent home surroundings."

The committee urged that the government made certain "of its authority to give sufficient help to housing and rehousing in farm and rural areas generally."

"Actual operations under the present legislation gave no help whatever to many towns and villages removed from centres of population or to rural areas," the report said.

27,000 Japs Killed In The Marianas

PEARL HARBOR, July 29—(AP) —Capturing a second airfield, some American forces to-day chased the fleeing Japanese into the south half of Tinian Island while others tightened a trap on 2,000 of the enemy at Guam, swelling the total to more than 27,000 of the enemy killed in the Marianas.

Ground gains on both islands were reported by correspondents.

The Marine drive on Tinian, the island next to the conquered Saipan, was turning into a rout, as it swept across eight square miles in a move on shell-shattered Tinian Town.

Mussolini Tried Suicide

Tired Of Living Il Duce Said Following Fall of Italy

ROME, July 29.—(AP).—Hysterical and fearful of being handed over to the Allies, Benito Mussolini made a feeble attempt at suicide last Sept. 12, a reliable informant said today, by slashing a wrist with a razor blade.

The half-hearted attempt was made a few hours before Mussolini was freed from the Hotel Campo Imperatore by German parachutists, said the informant, who requested anonymity.

This was the story told by the informant:

"On Sept. 12, about 2 a.m., carabinieri who were at Mussolini's disposal . . . hurried to the superior officer and told him that Il Duce was almost hysterical. The officer ran to Mussolini's room and found him standing up. One wrist was cut and blood had stained a pyjama sleeve. Mussolini held a razor blade.

"I am tired of living," Mussolini said. He handed the officer a letter in which he had written that he wished to end his life. The officer treated the cut, calmed the Duce, and, wihout much difficulty, persuaded him to return to bed."

The fallen Duce also was said to have feared being given to the Allies.

Further information on how Mussolini was freed by the Germans was given by the informant, who said that carabinieri guarding Il Duce were informed that "Government orders" to hold Mussolini with their lives had been modified, and that they should be very prudent. Consequently, when SS parachute troops dropped on Gran Sasso where the Hotel Campo Imperatore is located at 2 p.m., Sept. 12, the carabinieri held their fire.

Long Lines Of Poles Returning To Homeland Follow Russian Advance; Thousands Of Troops Thown Across Vistula

LONDON, July 29—(CP). — Red Army spearheads rolling across the Polish plain were reported within sight of Warsaw today and the German communique said other Soviet forces had penetrated the Latvian rail hub of Jelgava, which would practically bisect the Baltics. The German bulletin claimed a Nazi counter-attack had thrown the Russian vanguard out of Jelgava, 120 miles northwest of Daugavpils (Dvinsk) and about 21 miles southwest of Riga on an arm of the Baltic Sea.

British dispatches from the eastern front said Warsaw could be seen by advance Soviet forces in the Polish offensive, made up of cavalry, scout cars and tanks.

Fighting apparently raged on in the vicinity of Jelgava as the Russians threatened to pinch off German Baltic divisions by gaining mastery of the rail line from Siauliai to Kaunas. The Russians already held Siauliai, 50 miles south of Jelgava.

(A London broadcast recorded by the United States Office of War Information said Russian troops had reached "the outer fortifications of Warsaw," quoting Moscow press dispatches.)

By EDDIE GILMORE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, July 29—(AP) — The big guns of the Red Army opened up today on German troops in the suburbs of Warsaw, while advance cavalry, scout cars and tanks pushing from the southeast were believed within sight of the Polish capital.

Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's advance units stabbed forward during the night from Kolbiel, 20 miles southeast of Warsaw, followed by powerful artillery pieces that were wheeled into position for the bombardment.

3 Divisions Held

The marshal sent units under Kuban Cossack Gen. Pliev to help special mopping up squads tackle three Nazi Divisions pinned against the western Bug river. Field dispatches said it was the same old story—thousands of Germans waiting too long to retreat.

In northern Lithuania, meanwhile, the Russians plunged to within 50 miles of Riga, Latvian seaport on the Baltic with the capture of Joniskis, 23 miles north of the rail junction of Siauliai. A German Army estimated at perhaps 300,000 was imperilled in Estonia and Latvia with the cutting of the main route to East Prussia.

In the south, the Nazi strongholds of Jaroslaw and Przemysl fell to the Russian Ukraine forces thrusting westward toward Krakow on the main Trunk Railway to Germany. A march into Czechoslovakia through the Carpathian mountain passes loomed.

Follow Army In

A dispatch from the Army newspaper Red Star said long lines of Poles, driving wagons and carts, riding bicycles and pushing baby carriages piled with household goods, were following the Soviet forces as they moved towards Warsaw.

Bulgaria Hints Evacuation Of Nazi Troops

ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 27 —(Delayed) — (AP). — The government of Premier Ivan Bagrianov has asked Germany to evacuate all German armed forces from Bulgaria and there are indications the request may be heeded, according to information received here today. The Bulgars were reported told that the government would defend the nation against attack "from any quarter."

The Germans at first refused to grant the Bulgarian request, the report said, on the ground their other satellites might make the same demand and that prestige was involved, but developments suggest this stand was reconsidered.

Bombing Target.

They have pointed out to the Germans, the report further related, that the Nazi troops in Bulgaria estimated now less than two divisions, are of no military help and draw Allied bombing.

Among indications the Nazis may be preparing to get out of Bulgaria was a report from Ruschuk that Germans, just withdrawn from Varna and Burgas, now are concentrated in Ruschuk on the Danube just across from the Romanian port of Girugiu. Another report said Germans in southern Bulgaria now are massed close to the Greek frontier.

These advices from Bulgaria came in the midst of others that Bulgaria was negotiating with the Allies in an effort to get out of the war and reports that a break in economic and diplomatic relations between Germany and Turkey was imminent.

Allies Threatening Burma Frontier

KANDY, Ceylon, July 29 — (CP) —British Imperial troops have driven to within nine miles of Tamu in the rapid clearance of Manipur State of the enemy after a 30-mile advance from Palel in six days, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's Headquarters announced to-day.

The increasingly disorganized state of Japanese resistance indicated the Allies soon would be able to cross the Burma frontier.

The communique said American and Chinese troops had advanced in all sectors in the battle for Myitkyina, Japan's last major base in North Burma.

Traffic Cop For Channel

Channel Traffic So Heavy Policeman Is Required

LONDON, July 29.—(AP). —The tricky English Channel, once Britain's last line of defense, is rapidly becoming a safe highway for thousands of Allied troops and their equipment pouring into France.

Before D-Day this swirling mass of water teemed with mines, U-boats, E-boats and underwater obstacles and was under the constant threat of German planes and shore batteries. On my eighth crossing, I found it calm except for distant flashes of gunfire over France.

Our convoy was closely guarded by destroyers, corvettes and other craft. Minesweepers continued their painstaking work Scores upon scores of ships are flowing, so many that we need a traffic cop to keep them from tangling in collisions, as a few have done.

The life line of Allied troops broadening their toe-hold in France is secured. The British and United States navies have done that.

As the ships ply back and forth, skippers study the currents which might carry them from the swept channels into minefields. They now know more about the almost constant winds which push vessels off their course. They have studied the rise of full tides which are very important in beaching LSTS and LCIS.

The commandant of an Allied port says the army has so many supplies in France it must advance to make room for more.

Super-Fortresses Strike Mukden Area In Manchuria

WASHINGTON, July 29—(AP).—The roving American fleet of super-fortresses struck today at Japan's transplanted war industries in Manchuria, in the first daylight attack made by the 20th Bomber Command. A terse communique, issued here by the 20th Air Force, reported only that the B-29's attacked "industrial objectives in the Mukden area, Manchuria," and added no further details were available at the time (1.51 a.m., E.D.T.). It was then daylight in Manchuria.

The two previous operations of the 20th Bomber Command — against Yawata June 15 and against Yawata and Sasebo, third largest naval base of Japan, July 7—were night attacks, at low level.

U.S. Tanks Drive To Siene River

BY HAL BOYLE
Associated Press War Correspondent

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS IN FRANCE, July 29 — (AP) — Hammering back initial armored counter attacks in fierce battles, U. S. tanks drove to the Siene River seven miles south of Coutances today and brought the enemy's road hub of Brehal witrin gun range.

The village of Le Mesnil-Aubert was taken in the advance on Brehal, 11 miles south of captured Coutances. The advance on Brehal was denying to the enemy one of the last routes along the coast.

The Germans threw in tanks without regard for casualties in an attempt to cut the Cenisy-Notre Dame-Le Cenlly highway and shear off the armored spearhead driving south. Enemy artillery joined the battle.

After they were flanked on both sides of fast-moving columns of American armor they waited until 3 o'clock this morning (9 p.m. E.D.T. Friday) before trying to smash their way clear.

The deadly work of dive bombers had forced this enemy tank group and numerous other remnants of Nazi armor and artillery to hole up in the woods.

WomenShoulder Heavier Tasks

LONDON, July 29.—(CP).—Germany's women will have to shoulder heavier burdens on the home front, Nazi broadcasts disclosed today, as Reichsminister Goebbels and his staff hastened the process of squeezing into the hard-pressed German army the last available manpower fit for military service.

Extension of the working woman's maximum age from 45 to 50 appeared among the first measures expected in the latest "all-out" mobilization, said Transocean, Nazi propaganda agency. It added that "real employment" for women was contemplated, noting that up to now many women, "although legally obliged to work, did only nominal work by registering with relatives."

Apparently attempting to put the best possible face on this new scraping of the barrel for more men for the army, the broadcast sought to give the impression that bararcks in Germany now were filled with reserves ready to rush to the fronts.

Th speed of mobilization of Germany's reserves will depend on how quickly the barracks can be emptied, Transocean said, adding:

"For as troops now in the home country's barracks will go to the front, able-bodied men from industry and commerce will be drafted. Their places will be taken by men and women from enterprises and offices which are not war-important.

From Turey came rumblings that Hitler was faced with a diplomatic set-back there. Rumors circulated in Turkey that the Turks were plunging swiftly toward a break with the Axis and might even enter the war. German envoys were said to be admitting that a break in economic relations with Turkey was imminent and that it might be followed by a diplomatic break.

BY ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE CANADIAN BOMBER GROUP, SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, July 29 — (CP-Cable) — The Canadian bomber group last night sent more than 1,000 airmen into the bomber Command's renewed battle of Hamburg, to drop hundreds of tons of high explosive and thousands of incendiaries in concert with the R.A.F. in a 1,000-plane raid.

At least 14 Canadian group squadrons worked in the Hamburg operation and in the laying of mines in enemy waters.

The night's work cost 62 planes. Of these 23 were Canadian heavy bombers, the heaviest loss suffered by the Canaidan bomber group in any one night since its formation more than a year and a half ago.

It later was officially anonunced that the Canadian group never before had put such a large force of heavy bombers over one target. The annoucement added: "Although enemy fighter opposition was intense, our aircraft pressed home the attack and left many large fires burning in the target area."

Defences Are Strong

Anti-aircraft defences were particularly strong around Hamburg, and enemy night fighters were plentiful, returning fliers said. One enemy plane was destroyed over the North Sea as it followed the bomber group on its way home. Credit for the victory went to Gunners Flt.-Sgt. Gus Penny, Abernethy, Sask., and P. O. Ralph Bullivant, Okotoks, Alta.

Among the Canadian Group Squadrons was the group's newest one, still unnamed and flying in its first operation.

It was led by Wing Cmdr. J. O. McNeill, Calgary.

Returning airmen said they could see clouds over the target illuminated by great explosions and fires.

New "Mass Attack" Technique Is Adopted In Hurling Flying Bombs

LONDON, July 29—(AP)—The Nazis adopted a new "mass attack" technique in hurling flying bombs at London and Southern England during the night, sending the robots over in batches with brief lulls between each onslaught.

The attacks took a fresh toll of casualties, including patients in a hospital which was badly damaged.

Among the vicitms were nurses, some of whom despite their injuries, helped volunteer rescue squads carry patients from the hospital under showers of sparks and embers.

Last night R.A.F. heavy bombers, probably carrying six-ton "earthquake" bombs, attacked a supply depot in the Pas de Calais area near Watten, believed connected with the Nazi threat to launch 10-ton rockets against Britain.

It was estimated meanwhile, that 200,000 persons had left London for safer havens in the country—far more than the number evacuated in 1941.

Despite the toll taken by the fly-bombs, a poll conducted by the London Daily Express showed only a bare majority of those under attack in Southern England favored reprisals. The poll found 54 per cent in favor, 42 per cent against and four per cent in doubt.

Mussolini Tried Suicide

Tired Of Living Il Duce Said Following Fall of I[illegible]

ROME, July 29.—(AP).—Hysterical and fearful of being handed over to the Allies, Benito Mussolini made a feeble attempt at suicide last Sept. 12, a reliable informant said today, by slashing a wrist with a razor blade.

The half-hearted attempt was made a few hours before Mussolini was freed from the Hotel Campo Imperatore by German parachutists, said the informant, who requested anonymity.

This was the story told by the informant:

"On Sept. 12, about 2 a.m., carabinieri who were at Mussolini's disposal . . . hurried to the superior officer and told him that Il Duce was almost hysterical. The officer ran to Mussolini's room and found him standing up. One wrist was cut and blood had stained a pyjama sleeve. Mussolini held a razor blade.

"I am tired of living," Mus[illegible] said. He handed the officer a [illegible] in which he had written th[illegible] wished to end his life. The o[illegible] treated the cut, calmed the [illegible] and, wihout much difficulty, [illegible]suaded him to return to bed."

Unanimous Vote Is Given Baby Bonus Bill

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, July 29—(CP)—Political affiliations were temporarily laid aside in the Commons yesterday while all parties joined to give their support to the government's family allowances bill.

The unanimous support was given when the government, in an attempt to find out if there was anyone who would oppose the measure, forced a vote on second reading of the bill which will provide a cash grant to every family in respect of every child in Canada under the age of 16.

The House was tense with expectancy as the vote was being taken but the tenseness snapped when Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, stood and voted for the bill.

"And that goes for John Bracken, too," said Mr. Graydon amid applause from all sides. Some had expected his party to split their votes on the issue because some of its members had criticized the bill while others supported it.

Prime Minister Smiles

When 139 voted for the bill and none opposed it, Prime Minister Mackenzie King smiled as seldom before in this session.

In a lengthy speech winding up the debate, he portrayed the enactment of the legislation as the culmination of a campaign for social reform begun by himself as a young man. He put forward the allowances as the foundation of a new social order for past-war Canada.

Speaking at times as a social reformer and at others as a political leader, he:

1. Served notice that a general election will be held before the end of the war, if the war does not end soon.

2. Lashed out at government critics who sought to stir up prejudice as between the rest of Canada and the Province of Quebec.

3. Rapped men who, in the midst of war when men were needed, left posts in the public service to organize political parties.

4. Criticized men who travel about the country "seeking to destroy a government that has been sent here to carry on the prosecution of the war."

At the evening sitting the House devoted its time to disposing of a bill providing for several amendments in the civil service superannuation act.

Farm Products Prices

Today, the members will begin debate on another post-war measure—a bill to set a floor under farm prices.

Mr. King described the allowances bill as a measure for the establishment of social justice, justice as between those who have and who have not, between families with children and families without children, between children in poor families and children in better-off families.

The bill provides for the payment of allowances ranging from $5 for children up to six years old to $8 for children between 13 and 16. The rate of the allowance would be reduced for the fifth and subsequent children in a family of more than four.

Natural resources had not been given to individuals but to all the people, Mr. King said. A system of private property had grown up. It should not be lightly tossed aside but it was not sacred. It was justified only so far as it served the well-being of all.

The wage system took no account of families. One-thirl of the children of the nation received no benefit from the exemptions allowed on income tax and one-third only partial benefit. The families of the nation were performing a national service in rearing children.

John Blackmore, Social Credit House Leader, speaking after the bill received second reading, said he was thrilled to see members who had ridiculed the $25-a-month national dividend proposal of the late Premier Aberhart of Alberta voting for the allowances bill.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said that with such unanimity on the bill he could not understand why the government had not introduced such legislation sooner.

Mr. King said it would not have been possible to obtain such an endorsation before.

Unworthy and Absurd

Mr. King said suggestions of Progressive Conservative party members that the family allowances were introduced to assist the Liberal party to win the Quebec election were unworthy and absurd.

The allowances were announced last January in the speech from the throne, long before the date of the Quebec election was known. It would be as reasonable to say they had something to do with the Saskatchewan or the Alberta elections.

"At a time when young men from the province of Quebec are giving their lives along with their comrades from other provinces in the defence of this country and in the defence of freedom, it ill suits any member of this House to seek to raise, in their absence, prejudice against the province from which they come," he said.

"There is no greater disservice that any member can render than to see to raise in this country any form of prejudice, racial prejudice, religious prejudice, class prejudice."

Mr. King said not a single Progressive Conservative member in the House had supported the stand taken on the bill by John Bracken, leader of the party.

He recalled Mr. Bracken had described it as 'political bribery' which should be stopped.

"I thought those who profess to be his followers in this House would have supported him," said Mr. King. "It is quite clear that no member of this House, in his seat, has wished to repeat any such allegation."

Mr. King said two speakers in the Opposition opposed the bill — Mr. Graydon and Dr. Herbert Bruce (P.C.-Toronto-Parkdale), "a voice from a past era." Dr. Bruce spoke for those who believed in a stratified class society with the lower classes kept in their places.

Mr. King said there was a silence from the Opposition for a day and then Progressive - Conservative speakers took a different attitude and supported the bill.

Called a Smoke Screen.

Progressive Conservative members had argued that the bill was unconstitutional. This stand was simply a "smoke screen" to hide past positions taken by the party.

Mr. King said it was within the power of Parliamet to make grants out of public monies. The family allowances were grants. He knew of no court which had ruled the Canadian Parliament did not have the power to make such grants out of the public funds. Nor did he know of any court which had ruled the Parliament of the United Kingdom did not have such power.

Mr. King said that during the debate C.C.F. members took to themselves credit which he did not think they deserved.

The C.C.F. members had stated their party had constantly urged social reforms and as a result the Liberal Government had decided to bring in social legislation.

Mr. King said he was urging social reforms long before some of the C.C.F. members were born. The Liberal governments had brought in more social legislation than any other government.

With reference to a Federal election, he said:

"I have indicated that it is not my intention if I can possibly prevent it, and I think I may be able to do so, to deny to the people the right which they have of an election every five years.

"This parliament is not going to be permitted to continue, whether the war is continuing or not, beyond the five years of its term."

The five-year term runs out next April.

He said he was sure the people of Canada had a morale sense and opponents who took advantage of the government's preoccupation with war duties would find the voters would not be indifferent to their activities.

30,000 Coupon Books Seized In Montreal

MONTREAL, July 29.— (CP).— Royal Canadian Mounted Police officials here said Friday that four persons had been arrested and a printing press seized in Quebec city during a raid on a printing plant which they said had been used to turn out counterfeit gasoline ration coupons.

The raid, which police said netted 30,000 coupon books worth a total of 4,200,000 gallons of gas, came a few hours after four men were arrested and 1,500 books seized in Montreal Thursday.

The village of Scrignac, consisting of between 300 and 400 houses, had been evacuated of the civilian population and a German garrison had been installed.

Other British planes carried out attacks on Nazi Supply Depots near Watten and Pas de Calais. Mines were laid in enemy waters.

The Air Ministry communique said thick clouds obscured bombing results over Stuttgart, which previously had been battered three in a week, but returning crews reported large fires were left burning in the Hamburg target area.

Stuttgart is 10th on the R.A.F.'s list of important target cities, and is the site of manufacturing plants producing essential parts for Nazi planes, ships, motor transport and buzz-bombs.

Officers Laud Hobbins Brothers Killed By Mortar Fire At Gruchy

Mrs. Mary Hobbins, 200 Lake Street whose two sons with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders were mortally wounded at Gruchy, an outpost of Caen, in Normandy has received letters of sympathy and tribute from their company commanding officers, Major John F. Peterson, formerly of the Examiner and Major F. W. Lander.

The Hobbins boys were injured and died on the same day, Saturday, July 8.

The letter from Major Peterson follows: "Somewhere in Normandy, July 16. Dear Mrs. Hobbins:

I cannot tell you how very sorry I am to have to write this letter. My only hope is that it will not add to your grief; but I feel I must write to you, both because I believe you have a right to know what happened, and because I was so very fond of him.

We were all tremendously fond of Mike in this company. He was an exceptionally good soldier? His death means more to us, and to me personally, than do the deaths of nearly everyone else.

Mike had such a high good humor and ease of living,—I mean the ability to take things in their stride without worrying,—and he was easily one of our most popular men.

Great Courage

Perhaps it will be some comfort to you to know that Mike fought through the first month of the invasion with skill and a great deal of courage. There was never a job that we had to do that he wasn't willing to do; and he did them all well. I can say quite sincerely that he showed himself to be one of our very best soldiers. His steadiness under fire was so pronounced that it had a wonderful effect on men who were inclined to be nervous.

Mike was very badly wounded in our attack on Gruchy, just before we took Caen. We attacked from a village called Vieux Caron, and in spite of very heavy machine gun and mortar fire, captured the position. Mike was up at the lead of his section and fought splendidly.

Just after taking the position, while everyone was busy digging trenches, a heavy bombardment of enemy mortar shells arrivd on top of us. The first one struck beside Mike and his chum named Henderson. Both were knocked unconcious, both hit in the stomach by shrapnel. Our stretcher bearer ignored the falling shells to get them out and back to the Medical Officers.

Didn't Suffer

I know there is nothing I can say to lessen your grief, but it may help to know that Mike did not suffer. He was hit and unconscious at one and the same moment. Please do not think that I tell you this to to ease your mind, for I feel that every parent has the right to know exactly what happened. I tell each one the truth, and I am glad to be able to tell you that Mike did not suffer.

I know how deep your grief will be, because I know how fine Mike was. I had to write this because I wanted you to know that in battle under the most nerve-wracking conditions, your son proved himself a man. He was true to the highest ideals of Canadian youth, and to the motto of his Regiment; "Dileas Gu Bas—Faithful Unto Death.... We shall not forget him."

Heavy Mortar Fire

Major F. W. Lander, officer commanding A company of the S. D. and G. Highlander in which Pte. John Hobbins was serving at the time he was killed paid the following tribute in a letter to his mother:

"It is with deep regret that I write to you of your son's death on July 8 during a battalion attack on Gruchy, a small village four or five miles north west of Caen. "A" company was one of the assaulting companies and came under heavy mortar and small arms fire.

'It was during this assault that your son fell. The attack was successful and the objective was captured as a result of the splendid effort and high courage displayed by everyone. Your son was well liked in his platoon and a number of the lads asked me to express their sympathy to you during your period of deep sorrow. Details of the location of his grave will be forwarded to you in due course.

"John was a good soldier, a credit to his unit, the Canadian Army and his country," Maj. Lander concluded.

Report Oat Crop Rust Not Serious Menace

"Some farmers are inclined to paint the shadows darker than they really are in the changing picture," Eric Vincent of Quaker Oats smilingly commented to The Examiner today in a reference to reports of rust in the Ontario oat crop.

"Our information from the Western fields of the province is that there is very little rust, and dealers tell us the quality of new crop seems to be particularly good. There is some rust here and there. I have heard of some in Peterborough County and next door in Victoria, but I don't think there is anything serious. In the same way we had been hearing rumors of smut on wheat. Since then we have been getting hundreds and hundreds of car-loads, but we have yet to see any smut."

There was no evidence that any large number of Germans was caught in the Coutances area pocket formed by the junction of the westward thrust and the drives southward from the region of Lessay and Periers.

The absence of a pronounced delaying action in Rommel's precipitous withdrawal was interpreted by some as indicating he had time to evacuate the pocket.

The Japanese, with the menace of Allied attack increasing with each forward surge of forces in the Pacific, have accelerated their program for removing to or duplicating their war plants in Manchuria.

The Mukden industrial region contains a number of big factory cities. Anshan, a city of about 200,000 population, is a highly important iron and steel centre.

Acknowledges Raid

NEW YORK, July 29—(AP)—More than four hours after the war department announced American B-29 Superfortresses had raided the Mukden area of Manchuria, the Tokyo radio acknowledged today the important industrial cities of Anshan and Penhsihu had been attacked. The Japanese minimized the effectiveness of the raids.

Anshan Bombed.

A later dispatch from China said:

B-29 Superfortresses to-day bombed Anshan in Eastern Manchuria.

In the first daylight assault of these long-range super-bombers, the weather was reported favorable for the success of the massed raiders, which loosed bombs from high altitudes.

Anshan, city of 200,000 in the Mukden industrial region of Manchuria, is one of the most important producers of chemical by-products vital to Japan's manufacture of munitions. Its output includes sizeable percentages of the total empire production of benzene, roloene, phenol, and synthetic oils. The mills there are the second largest producers of pig-iron and the third largest of rolled steel and ingots in the empire.

art reported last night. Poor weather restricted flying, he said, and activity was limited to small-scale artillery exchanges.

Stewart said it was believed some Germans forces which had been facing Canadian positions—from the east bank of the Orne at St. Andre eastward about three miles to the area of Tilly La Campagne—have been withdrawn westward to meet the American 1st Army's drive.

A front dispatch from Associated Press War Correspondent Roger D. Greene said last night that German troops are reported "digging in for all they are worth" on the British-Canadian front, as both sides—hampered by drenching downpours—prepared for renewal of battle in that sector.

The American spearhead that closed the Coutances pocket reached the sea south of the Sienne river estuary some four miles south of the city as columns from the north and west gained heights above the city, put it under artillery fire and then moved in.

At least two more columns driving south in an 18-mile stretch south of Coutances have reached St. Denis Le Gast and Maupertuis on the east-west highway between the Tessy Sur Vire and Brehal, about 10 miles south of the Coutances Line. An additional force was forging down the Vire river itself.

U.S. 9th Air Force pilots yesterday knocked out 70 German tanks over the Granville-Villedieu area. They damaged or probably destroyed 34 more, and altogether attacked 1,000 other German vehicles.

American armor had yet to bump into an organized enemy line and the Germans were trying to protect their withdrawal with small groups of infantry and tanks left behind as rearguards. It appeared the Americans' push would force Rommel within the next few days to pull back his forces roughly to a line running diagonally across northwestern France from Caen to Avranches, in the corner at the bases of the Normanv and Britanny peninsulas.

However, this whole defence plan is based on holding Avranches and the American column at St. Denis Le Gast was only 18 miles away from that city.

(The Germans reported the Americans were using 12 motorized divisions, with 2,500 tanks).

The Germans have against the American front at least 10 identified divisions—five infantry, three armored and two parachute.

Air support was limited by weather again yesterday but the fighter planes nevertheless escorted tank columns, knocking out German tanks, mowing trees for snipers and battering German defence positions on both the 1st and 2nd army fronts.

Boy Tells Magistrate Plans To Join Army

Arrested early this morning, Ernest Joseph Basciano, 18, of 378 Dublin street, pleaded guilty before Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court to a charge of vagrancy and was finally remanded for sentence, which Magistrate Gee explained meant that he was allowed to go until called upon.

Basciano told the court that he was not working at present.

"Where is the Selective Service officer?" asked the Magistrate.

"Have you tried to enlist; don't you know there is a war on?"

The youth replied that he was going to enlist next week.

"Do you mean that or is it just a stall," asked the Magistrate and the cere in his statement.

Basciano had been arrested when police were looking for a prowler about whom they had had complaints.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, July 30.

Sunday's horoscope encourages seeking promotion, honors and favors from employers, superiors or others in influential positions. It enhances prestige and personal popularity in a social, friendly or romantic sphere, but an element of secrecy or subtlety may jeopardize the best interests. Guard the energies, resources, and financial standing and credit as well. Shun extravagance and excess.

Those whose birthday it is may expect preferment and favors from high places, with promotion, social popularity and prestige. Friendship and romance may be assured, although some secret or undercurrent phases may prove disquieting and have unhappy reactions on the nerves or health. Shun intrigues and all dubious entanglements. Also shun extravagances and excessive outlay on pleasure.

A child born on this day should have a bright and gay nature, with social graces and talents assuring popularity and happiness in life.

For Monday, July 31.

Monday's astrological forecast is a very confusing and conflicting one, with promises of definite gains and progress as well as hazards and devastating circumstances. A sudden upset may be due to an over-tempestuous or impulsive mode of conduct, ending in separations or estrangements. Shun accident and quarrels. Maintain calm, restraint, charm and personal magnetism, for results.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year shaped by their own restraints and graces of personality, with friendliness, charm and composure, and not rashness and emotional flareups. These precipitate less estrangements and trouble and regret. Big gains may come from progressive ideas, sensibly developed, and not from erratic or temperamental behavior. Plan well and go calmly toward success.

A child born on this day, while gracious and kindly, may be erratic, emotional and self-indulgent, to its detriment. Its personal safety may be in jeopardy.

Legislation Notice Unnecessary

A Galt resolution requesting the provincial government to notify municipalities when legislation affecting them is afoot, either being contemplated or drafted, failed to obtain Peterborough's endorsation Friday night.

Galt was perturbed over the amendment relating to fire departments, by which men are not required to respond to calls after completing their own shifts, except in serious outbreaks.

"The government put on the 48-hour week and did not consult us," said Alderman Swanston. "And that was one thing that really affected us as a municipality. If the government thinks a thing is worth doing they'll do it. I don't thi . they'll do anything that will put municipalities in jeopardy."

Not Much Help

Alderman Dutton said he was not objecting to the amendment relating to members of fire departments, but as a matter of principle he felt that the government should acquaint municipalities of pending legislation affecting them.

Alderman Ovens said he had heard that Galt had their men doing ambulance service and a lot of other things they were not hired to do.

Alderman Dutton moved that the Galt resolution be supported, but failed to attract a seconder. "Another lone wolf", he said, quoting Alderman Bradburn's earlier and solitary position on another question.

Sneak Thieves Looting Valuables In Cars

S. F. Irvine, Bloor Building, Toronto, reported to the police department Friday that a B gasoline coupon book had been stolen from his car which had been parked in front of 385 Reid street. The automobile itself had been moved from where it had been left and was found a block away.

H. Kelly, Fuel and Transfer Company, lost a valuable fishing rod which was stolen from his car parked on Hunter street. Miss Beatrice Moncrief had her bill-fold containing her registration card stolen from Moncrief's dairy, Charlotte street.

Date Of Shower Draw Postponed To Sept.

The draw for 40 prizes offered in the recent Linen Shower for war-torn Russia will be held sometime in September.

The date has been postponed from August 15, as it was at first announced by the Linen Shower committee of the Canadian Aid to Russia Fund."

"We have been requested to advance the date of the draw," explained Mr. J. Creed, provincial chairman, "because so many more groups than we expected have taken part in this campaign, and we cannot complete the clerical and other work that is involved for the draw to be held on the announced date."

"Our linen shower has been a marvellous success," Mr. Creed announced. "Almost every type of citizens' organizations is represented in it. The people in Ontario have been most generous in their donations of good bedclothes and we shall be able to ship close to two carloads to the suffering people in the liberated areas on the great Russian front.

"We are now baling these gifts for shipping," he stated, "and we are assured they will be distributed to the needy people in the Soviet Union long before the cold weather sets in. The donors can imagine how welcome their gifts will be to the families in the devastated areas. These welcome gifts will strengthen the bonds of unity and friendship with our gallant Russian allies. The Canadian Aid to Russia Fund is most grateful to all who helped to make this campaign a success."

Gideons Faithful Few Save Israel from Midianites

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL.

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for July 30 is Judges 6, 7, 8, the Golden Text being Samuel 14, 6: "There is no restraint to Jehovah to save by many or by few.")

After Deborah's time the Israelites again went back to their old evil ways and worshipped Baal in the place of their own God. For this they were delivered into the hands of the Midians, who came up as "grasshoppers for multitude" and they despoiled the land for the children of Israel so that there was little for them to eat and they were driven to live in caves.

Of course the people cried to the Lord to deliver them, and one day when Gideon, son of Joash, was threshing wheat near the wine press on his father's land, so that the Midianites ould not see him, the angel of the Lord appeared, and, seating himself under an oak, said to Gideon, "The Lord is with thee, thou mighty man of God."

Gideon asked how it was if the Lord was with him that they were so oppressed, and the Lord answered, "Go in thy might, and thou shalt save Israel from the hand of the Midianites." Gideon protested that his father as poor and he, Gideon, was the least of his sons. The Lord reassured him, "Surely I shall be with thee."

Gideon requested a sign that this messenger really was the angel of the Lord. He told the angel not to leave until he had presented him with a gift. He therefore prepared a meal, and the angel told him to put the food on a rock and pour the broth over it, and the angel took his staff and touched the food, and fire rose out of the rock and consumed it. Thus Gideon was convinced that this was God's messenger.

That night Gideon was instructed to slay a young bullock, then to wreck the altar to Baal and to erect one to the Lord, and lay the bullock thereon. He did so, and next morning the people were so angry they demanded Gideon's death, but his father, Joash, whose faith in the Lord was renewed, told them that "if he be a god, let him plead for himself, because one hath cast down his altar." No one touched Gideon after that.

All the Midianites and Amalekites gathered themselves together for battle and pitched their tents in the valley of Jezreel. With the spirit of the Lord upon him, Gideon blew his trumpet, and sent messengers to all the tribes to gather his people for battle against their enemies. Gideon, however, was still not quite convinced that the Lord was with him, so he asked the Lord to give him another sign. He would put a fleece on the floor and if it was wet with dew in the morning and all about it was dry, he would take that for the sign. It was so, and then he asked that this sign be reversed, and the fleece be dry while the rest should be wet; and it was so.

Too Many Men.

The Israelites gathered, but the Lord said there were too many. Some left, but still there were too many, said the Lord. Then all were to go down to the water to drink, and Gideon was to see those that lapped water like dogs, and those who knelt to drink, and when all drank 300 men lapped the water as if they had not time to drink kneeling. These were chosen.

Gideon was then told to take his servant Phurah, and go to the Midians' tents and hear what they were saying. The two men went and heard a man telling of his dream—that a cake of barley tumbled down into the host and it fell; and his fellow said that meant that Gideon and his men would triumph.

Gideon and Phurah worshipped, and then Gideon divided his 300 men into three companies, giving each man a trumpet in his right hand and a pitcher with a light therein in the other. They were stationed around the Midianites' encampment. Gideon told his followers to watch him and do as he did. He raised his trumpet and blew and smashed his pitcher so that the light flared. All his men did likewise, and all shouted, "The sword of the Lord, and of Gideon."

The Midianites, suddenly awakened from sleep, were so terrified that they led, mistaking one another or enemies, and the rout was overwhelming.

As they pursued the Midianites and captured two princes, Oreb and Zeeb, whom they slew, Gideon's men grew faint with hunger. They asked the men of Succoth and later those of Penuel for food, which was refused. Gideon later punished them severely for this.

The Israelites wanted Gideon to be their king, but he refused. He did, however, take all the jewellery that the Israelites had taken from their enemies and made an ephod—a richly embroidered garment for a Jewish priest. This rich garment was a source of temptation to all Israel. During Gideon's lifetime there was peace in Israel, but when he died they again were unfaithful to their God.

The Half Baked Cake

REV. E. R. JAMES

Ephraim Is A Cake Not Turned. Hosea 7; 8.)

A farmer prophet gives us a lesson from the every day experience of simple people. "A cake not turned" is burnt, indigestable, unpalatable. It cannot be eaten. Who is Hosea? He is a farmer prophet living before the exile. Through his own family trouble and disgrace he has made the astonishing discovery that God is love. He makes the startling statement that God is drawing men with the cords of love. Hos. 11; 4.

Hosea looks out on is people who are outwardly very religious—"Temple treaders". It is a condemnation which is very modern. Of us also it may be said that "we are a cake not turned". Multitudes attend Church on Sundays. Why? To hear the preacher. It is the popular idea. It is a half truth. The preacher, the modern prophet of God, has a most influential work to do. He is called by God to reveal something of the Everlasting Father through his preaching and his personality. Like Ezekiel he must truly say:—"I did eat the Book and [illegible] in my mouth as honey for sweetness. It is the preacher's privilege to be so filled with the revelation of God's character that he is truly on fire. He wishes to set his people also on fire. Some are touched. If you are one of such are you satisfied? Beware. You are touched only on one side of your character. You are a cake not turned.

When your heart has been moved by this spiritual fire from God it is your duty to worship God; to give God your thanks and your prayers "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God in spirit and in truth, for the Father seeketh such to worship Him." God in His great mercy has opened your ear. You must keep it open and attuned to His still small Voice speaking to you in private and public worship. God needs the whole of man and not a part. Your emotions have been purified by the fire of the Holy Spirit that others may be attracted to you. Your Christian life must fascinate. Men must see you have something they have not.

Think of the hundreds of preachers in our Canada who on Sundays pour out their hearts and minds in preaching to their people. Many are satisfied to listen and perhaps praise the preacher. They have been warmed by his enthusiasm. Before the middle of the week they are once more cold. They are hearers only. They are cakes not turned.

A famous business man never opened his ledgers without offering the ascription:—"In the Name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost". He was turning the business side of his life towards the fire of God's Spirit Who would guide him into all truth. He was willing to be guided by that Spirit and would refuse business which he felt was not in accordance with the mind of God. Are you just and upright in all your dealings? Do you still from Monday to Saturday hold the pagan view:—"Business is business"? If so, you "are a cake not turned."

One of the gravest problems of religious life is the great stress laid on the emotional side. The appeal is to the heart. It is an important side. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy mind" The ancient Christians stood persecution because their minds were fixed on God and His Christ. They held the deep mental conviction that Jesus Christ is the only begotten son of the Father. Who for us men and for our salvation came down from heaven and incarnate by the Holy Ghost of the Virgin Mary and was made man. This is the fundamental truth of the Christian religion. God became man that man might become like God.

Do the deep things of God make an appeal to your mind? You are a plain ordinary man you reply The Apostles were just like you. Jesus Christ thanked the Father that He has revealed these things to babes. Simple, plain every day people whose eyes were opened to see and understand something of the deep things of God by the Holy Spirit. Is your emotional religion braced and strengthened by a deep mental conviction. As the years pass by are you developing a clearer, saner faith in the Christ through the wisdom and power of the Holy Spirit. If not, the day of storm will cruelly shake you. You are a cake not turned.

THESE THINGS HAVE I SPOKEN UNTO YOU THAT IN ME YE MIGHT HAVE PEACE. IN THE WORLD YE SHALL HAVE TRIBULATION. BUT BE OF GOOD CHEER. I HAVE OVERCOME THE WORLD.

Canadian Birds

By G. H. RICHARDSON

As one wanders through the country at this time, a large bird whose color suggests a gull, may be seen, beating back and forth over the fields. The male marsh hawk is about the size of a crow, but very slender, with long wings and tail. His best field mark is a white patch at the base of the tail on the upper side. Females and immatures of this species are brown, but the white rump is even more conspicuous on them.

Marsh hawks destroy great numbers of meadow mice, but like humans they apparently enjoy a change in diet. In fact they seem glad to take whatever comes along, mammals, birds or frogs, and they do include a fair percentage of birds in their bill of fare, sometimes a small quantity of poultry. Along with spring songs, some birds have flight performances. The marsh hawk does not sing, but it does perform in the air, the male flying to a height, then diving headlong and somersaulting, often several times in succession.

New migrants from the south may be irregular and scarce at this time, so it may be of interest here to speak instead about some birds which, while they winter with us, yet become more noticeable now. Among these are the white-breasted nuthatch, downy and hairy woodpeckers, and golden-crowned kinglet.

Nuthatch a Tree Creeper

The white-breasted nuthatch attracts attention at once by its nonchalant way of creeping around a tree trunk, head down or up to suit the whim of the moment. Smaller than a sparrow, it is softly colored with blue-gray back, white breast, slightly tinged with rusty, this being set off by a jet black cap and patterned tail. It could scarcely be classed la songster, yet its nasa whinny has a certain softness which sounds pleasingly mellow at a distance. The usual call note sounds like "ank ank ank."

The downy and hairy woodpeckers, white-breasted nuthatches and golden-crowned kinglets commonly travel together with a band of chickadees.

Woodpeckers give an impression of perpetual workers. Certainly they are industrious. One might wonder if the nourishment they get is worth the effort even though some of the tree borers are fat grubs an inch long and a quarter-inch in diameter.

Downy and hairy woodpeckers look almost identical except for size. The downy is about sparrow size; the hairy about robin size. The downy has black spots on his white outer tail feathers, the hairy has not. When one gets used to it, the relative length of bill is a good field mark, the hairy having the longer for his size.

White-Breasted Nuthatch

Proportion Varies

Why should two species of birds be so alike and yet distinct? Such questions lead to much interesting speculation. Although the downy is the commoner bird over most of its range in Ontario, there are places where the hairy has been found to be the more common bird. Quite possibly a similar condition exists in the other provinces.

Next to the ruby-throated hummingbird, the kinglets are our smallest birds—a little over four inches in length. They are very active, commonly frequenting the top of trees where without the aid of binoculars, they are difficult to distinguish. Usually attention is drawn to them by their notes which are frequent but thin, high-pitched hisses in rapid groups of three—sss—sss—sss.

Love Subject Of Lesson

"Love" is the subject of the Lesson Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, including First Church of Christ Scientist in Peterborough on Sunday. The Golden Text is: "Let him that glorieth glory in this, that he understandeth and knoweth me, that I am the Lord which exercise loving kindness, judgment, and righteousness, in the earth: for in this things I delight, saith the Lord." (Jeremiah 9:24). Selections from the Bible include the following from I John 4:16: "And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him." Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, include the following: "A misplaced work changes the sense and misstates the Science of the Scriptures, as, for instance, to name Love as merely an attribute of God; but we can by special and proper capitalization speak of the love of Love, meaning by that what the beloved disciple meant in one of his epistles, when he said, "God is love."

Gideon's Faithful Few

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Judges 6, 7, 8

By Alfred J. Buescher

Gideon threw down the altar of Baal and erected one to the Lord; the Midianites demanded his death, but his father, Joash, told them Baal should be able to defend himself.

The angel told Gideon he was to lead his people against their enemies, but Gideon demanded a sign, and the angel caused fire to come from a rock and consume Gideon's offering.

The Israelites, sorely oppressed by the Midianites, called on the Lord for help; and an angel came to Gideon, who was threshing grain, and sat down under an oak tree.

Gideon's men held trumpets in one hand, pitchers with lights in the other, and at a sign they blew their trumpets, broke the pitchers.

Do We Need Another Cadet Corps?

The Minister of Justice, the Hon. Mr. St. Laurent, suggested in the House of Commons recently that the R.C.M.P. might sponsor a cadet corps, as a means of fighting juvenile delinquency. We wonder whether Canada needs another cadet corps? Already we have cadet corps attached to the three services, and we have the Boy Scouts; are there any boys left to be members of a junior R.C.M.P.? If there are, we do not imagine that they are the sort of boys who get themselves into juvenile delinquency scrapes; certainly the boys in the other cadet organizations are not of that type; boys whose bent is for hooliganism and petty crime do not hasten to join groups of cadets. This is clear from the fact that since the war began we have had a marked increase in juvenile delinquency in Canada, and we have also had more boys in cadet training than ever before. As a means of checking delinquency, establishing another cadet corps leaves much to be desired.

What would an R.C.M.P. cadet corps teach? The other cadet organizations give a specific training in army, navy or air force work and are looked upon as good training grounds for the regular service. But we do not see where the R.C.M.P. fits into this pattern. It is a secret police, like the F.B.I. or England's Scotland Yard; the Mounties who are to be seen in red tunics are of little importance compared with those who do their work in plain clothes. We cannot see what an organization of this kind has to teach boys.

Nor would it be practical to recruit men for the R.C.M.P. from such a cadet corps. It takes more than the desire for such work to make a detective today. The best men of the R.C.M.P. are men with an impressive academic — often a scientific—background. It does not seem reasonable to establish another cadet corps which we do not need and which would not serve any useful purpose.

Lo, The Poor Indian!

The Kingston Whig-Standard does not like the stand which has been taken in certain quarters on the matter of votes for the Japanese, and it expresses its displeasure thus:

> "There has been a good deal of weeping and wailing in certain quarters because in the revised Wartime Elections Act the Japanese were not given the right to vote. In this connection there also has been much confused thinking and writing. Certain church officials, purporting to represent their church organizations (but in all probability representing their own views and those of a few other officials), have been bombarding parliamentarians with telegrams and letters in regard to the matter. The trouble with a lot of paid church officials is that they seem to feel that the elected representatives of the people at Ottawa are a lot of nit-wits and in need of constant guidance. They find it difficult to allow the members of Parliament to make up their own minds and use their own judgement upon important questions. Yet, M.P.s are quite capable of doing so".

We are in complete agreement with this, although we do not go the whole way with the Kingston paper in its attitude toward racism which, as we said in a recent editorial, is a serious danger in Canada.

But we feel that our contemporary shows remarkable hardihood in ending its editiorial on this note:

> "And in the meantime, the loyal Canadian Indian—the true native son—from whom the franchise was taken nearly fifty years ago, will still not be allowed to vote. But we have heard no church official raise a voice of protest at this condition".

This is not true: the loyal Canadian Indian who fought in the First Great War has a vote, and so has any Indian who has proved to the Department of Indian Affairs that he can support himself and his family and bear the responsibilities of full citizenship. Most Indians do not want to be citizens; they want to be treated as children.

The Indian is the skeleton in our closet, but as the Whig-Standard has hauled him out and give him a shake we might as well face him. We white people took this country from the Indians and we were not always over-scrupulous about the way in which we did it. We divided Indians into two classes: "bad Indians" who resisted us in our conquest, and "good Indians", who would be better described as "quisling Indians"; it has truly been said that when our forefathers landed upon these shores they first fell upon their knees, and immediately afterward upon the aborigines. When we had successfully stripped him of everything which was his, we became indulgent toward the Indian and gave him a dole, some reserves and a few schools; the Indian, not being a political fellow, has accepted his lot stoically. Now he resists only when we talk about making him a full citizen, which in effect would mean putting him on relief and wiping out entirely his ancient way of life.

Upon the whole it is better for us to ignore the existence of the Indian; we cannot right his wrongs now, and there is no food for self-satisfaction in contemplating him.

Aristocracy Of Talent

> "What we want in England is an aristocracy of talent", said R. A. Butler, president of the Board of Education, at Oxford.
>
> "I do not want to destroy all the old standards and traditions, but to try to link up all the different types of education. I hope I shall be able to link up all the schools, whether of the old-fashioned public schools or the new type of secondary schools, into one vast family.
> "I do not want the top places reserved for certain people but reserved for anyone who has the talent to carry them out. That is the basis of the whole idea of the Education Bill".

There is a truly democratic statement. An aristocracy of talent is the only sort of aristocracy which a democracy can logically support, and a democracy which has no aristocracy of talent is a poor thing.

Of course all aristocracies began as aristocracies of talent. Many of the great families of England were originally ennobled because they showed undeniable talent for war or statecraft; some of these families still maintain their great traditions, and one or two of them have given distinguished servants to the state for three hundred years. But an aristocracy of talent is never full; there is always room for the man who can make good his claim.

We need aristocracies; we need an aristocracy of talent in Canada, and when we have a larger population we shall doubtless have one. We need aristocracies to give us good examples in thoughts and deeds, in manners and in modes of living—and dying. The wisest of the ancient Greeks dreamed of philosopher kings—not the same thing as schoolteacher parliamentarians, by the way—who would bring the highest wisdom to the service of the state. The dream has never come true yet, but it may still do so. Meanwhile we need our aristocracy of talent, for without it the Common Man will fare very badly.

Boredom, Fatigue And Absenteeism

The Labour Gazette has recently published some interesting findings which were the result of an investigation made in British industry about the causes of absenteeism. The reasons for absenteeism were many and varied, but the most important by far were fatigue and boredom.

This should be interesting to Canadian industry. When the compulsory savings clause was removed from the Income Tax in the last Budget, Mr. Ilsley said that it had been a cause of absenteeism; undoubtedly the Minister of Finance knew what he was talking about, but we do not think that he would have said that the compulsory savings was the chief cause of absenteeism. In Canada, as in Britain, we think that fatigue and boredom would lead the list.

Fatigue was inevitable during the period when we had to put every possible ounce of pressure behind our production effort. Men and women in industry worked for long hours at top speed, and although they were able to keep up the pace as long as it was necessary they paid the price for it afterward in fatigue which extended for weeks and months. This sort of fatigue is a good beginning for several kinds of disease, and many hours of labour were lost in this way. And boredom, too, is often an outcome of fatigue; admittedly many industrial jobs are boring, but there has been absenteeism also among skilled men, whose jobs provided enough variety to prevent boredom.

The information which has been collected by the British survey ought to be of value after the war, as well as now. Its results, briefly, show that long working hours mean poor work and absenteeism. Shorter hours, with rest periods and some care for recreation and health, mean more hours of efficient production in the long run.

Diary Of A Glue-Boiler

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: Listened to Gracie Fields on the radio tonight, and was amazed by her attempt to remodel her comic style to suit her American audience. She has done a remarkably complete job in this respect, but I think it is a pity. I liked Gracie when she was a first-rate vulgar comic singer in the English tradition, and not just another molasses-voiced crooner. "Walter, Walter, lead me to the altar, And I'll show you where I'm tattooed!" she used to sing, and I rolled on the floor in happy glee. But now she is somebody's Melancholy Baby, and she wants her G. I. Joe, and Walter has been completely forgotten. Too bad....As a matter of fact, nobody seems to sing comic songs any more. Perhaps it is an outcome of democracy; it is no longer polite to recognize the fact that we are all funny, more or less. In the bad old days of economic feudalism the rich made fun of the poor and the poor made fun of the rich, and everybody had a good laugh. But for many years the trend of the world has been away from laughter; the belly-laughs of the old music hall have given way to occasional nervous giggles.

MONDAY: To the movies tonight and by chance saw a short of Gracie Fields in which she sang one funny song and three which were not a bit funny—a reversal of the proper proportion. Also saw a short in which a girl who was supposed to be very plain and dowdy was made beautiful by some lessons in make-up, diet and exercise; the only trouble was that she was beautiful to begin with, and the fact that she had mussed her hair and put on her worst face could not obscure her natural gifts. The chief film was "In Our Time" and it was a good entertainment, though I was moved to laughter by the girl who set out to modernize Polish peasants—and succeeded. I once knew a group of Polish peasants quite well, right here in Canada, and they do not change as simply as that. Nazimova was in the film, and as usual made the other woman look shoddy; even in the movies being able to act is a great asset to an actress....What can one possibly give a newborn baby? It does not read or smoke, and it cannot even lift a rattle, and yet one is expected to give it something. And why, by the way, are all things for babies so ridiculously priced? Part of a Baby Racket, like Mother's Day, I suppose.

TUESDAY: Nobody seems to know whether Mussolini is alive or dead, but the news has come that he possessed, in 1944, the same splendid set of stomach ulcers with which he began his career in 1923, and that he lived almost entirely on milk, fruit and sugar. This news gives me a good deal of quiet satisfaction. For years I saw newsreel pictures of Mussolini playing tennis, skiing, helping with the harvest, riding unbroken horses and running nimbly along the street at the head of his Bersaglieri. I disliked him because he was a dictator and a very bad actor, but I hated him because he was a health fanatic; I have always detested people who insist that discomfort and needless exertion are necessary to perfect health. Let Mussolini stand as a warning to all calisthenic addicts, weight-lifters and physical culture friends; he exercised like a maniac for twenty years and what did he have at the end? . . . The ulcers he began with. The thought of it decides me to knock off work and go into a happy, healthful, healing torpor for the rest of the afternoon.

WEDNESDAY: Passed a house today which had a funeral crape on the door; although it is called a "crape' it was actually a rosette of purple velvet. What is the origin of this custom, I wonder? My own theory is that it is a continuance from the days when it was usual to muffle up the knocker on the door of a house where there had been a death, so that it would give an ominous and funereal thump instead of its usual businesslike knock. Nowadays we have no knockers, but we still hang up the muffler....The crape business must have declined sharply during the last forty years. At the turn of the century it was impossible to have a funeral without using yards of the stuff for hatbands, veils, armbands and other incidental badges of mourning. Crape, as I remember it, had a special smell, like no other cloth —not unpleasant, but strongly characteristic. ....Black gloves, too, used to be sold by the dozen for funeral purposes, and I have been told that undertakers kept several boxes on hand so that mourners who turned up without a pair could be suitably outfitted. But the grisliest accompaniment of an old-fashioned funeral was the corps of 'mutes' or hired mourners, who were chosen for length and lugubriousness of countenance; they carried tall staves draped with crape, and added a faint odour of gin to all the best funerals.

◇ ◇ ◇

THURSDAY: Continued with my job of interior decorating today, and sized the walls which I shall paint later. Size is interesting stuff, made out of the hooves, bones and horns of defunct cattle. It has to be boiled before it can be used, and during the boiling the whole neighbourhood smells as though someone were burning a witch. The only comparable smell in my experience is that of a blacksmith shop where a hot shoe has just been placed on a horse's hoof. And yet this very same substance, I am assured, can be refined to the point where it makes delicious jellies, and provides a nourishing food for invalids. As a matter of fact, a man can eat anything if he tries. I recall that a banquet was held in New York a few years ago at which the guests ate their old boots; these had been treated by an expert chef—marinated for days, pounded till tender and served with a pungent sauce—and they were quite delicious when they came to the table. It was a gathering of scientists, and they wanted to prove that boots were edible, for some reason. Maybe it was a move to show that the Depression was not as bad as people pretended.

◇ ◇ ◇

FRIDAY: A horrible story is reported in the papers about a girl whose arm was chewed off by a bear in Central Park Zoo in New York. She and some friends woke the bears up at 2 a.m., climbed inside the barrier and began to tease them. People who tease bears are asking for it, and she got it....Bears, in captivity, are likely to be savage, although I am told that they are quite amaible in their wild state. The bears one sees in zoos behave like clowns, rolling foolishly on the ground, shoving their noses into honey pots, leaping clumsily for buns, and so on. But it is doubtful if the bears consider themselves funny....There was a time when dancing bears were sometimes seen in the streets, jigging heavily to the sound of a barrel organ. The popular belief was that they were taught to dance by burning their feet with hot irons. And in the days of our more rugged ancestors, it was good sport to see a bear worried by dogs....I suppose that bears attract this sort of cruelty because of their foolish and roly-poly appearance. But a full grown bear weighs almost 1,000 pounds, and can be very nasty when roused.

SATURDAY: As I was cutting my grass today a passer-by said "Hullo; are you cleaning up your yard?" By this I knew him to be a Canadian of at least three generations standing, for no other English-speaking race uses the word 'yard' to describe a lawn surrounded by flower beds. To me a 'yard' is a small enclosed area, perhaps paved, in which clothes are lined. I looked the word up in my dictionary, and found that the use of 'yard' to describe a garden was labelled as 'dialect'. Presumably it came to Canada many years ago, and took root here. The true Canadian would describe the gardens of Versailles as "Louis XIV's front yard" without any sense of insufficiency....The exact opposite of our national habit may be observed in England where any grassless, desolate, junk-filled bit of vacant ground is called 'the garden' ....Another word which persists in Canada and the U.S. is 'stoep', for a sitting-out place, although most of us now use the elegant Portuguese word 'verandah'. Thus a Canadian of the uncompromising old stock sits on his stoep and looks at his yard, whereas his more cosmopolitan children sit on the verandah and look at the garden. If the verandah roof leaks it may also be called a 'loggia'.

POST-WAR WORLD No. 13 —By Goldberg

Russia Is Freed

(WINNIPEG FREE PRESS)

THE sensational Russian successes on the Eastern front, which saw the Germans Saturday thrown out of Pskov, their last stronghold on Russian soil, have been aptly described by a British commentator as "the most amazing advance of the war".

The liberation of Pskov means that the last German has now been cleared from the prewar soil of Russia. Farther south, Pskov is at the extreme north of the 800-mile front, the Russians have advanced deep into Poland.

The smashing Russian advance has now achieved the momentum of a tidal wave. They have reached within striking distance of Dvinsk, of Kaunas, the capital of Lithuania, and of Bailystock. They have by-passed Lwow and Brest-Litovsk, and are hammering at the gates of the great fortress cities of Lublin and Przemsyl.

In terms of miles travelled in a single week, in the number of places captured and in the revelation of sheer power, the Russian advance last week surpassed anything yet seen in this war. The actual accomplishments of the Russians, however, must be left for later calculation. We do not now know what the position of German forces was before the attack was mounted. Until this information is in, a true evaluation of the Russian accomplishment is impossible.

In the long hiatus between the end of the Russian winter offensive and the beginning of the summer, the Germans may have done either of two things. They may have reinforced the long front in an effort to hold the Russians this summer. Or they may have withdrawn great numbers of troops for a last-ditch defence of the German frontier and left skeleton armies to withstand the Russian attack.

If the Germans have reinforced the front, a step possible only if we regard them as complete military lunatics, then an unparalleled disaster is in the making for the enemy. On the other hand, if they have withdrawn important numbers of troops, the Russians have been taking space but have not succeeded in destroying the German army.

During this great offensive, the Russians have inflicted substantial numbers of casualties upon the Germans. They have taken prisoners, but the number is not large in comparison with the territory regained. The country through which they have advanced is ordinarily not easy fighting country, a fact which makes their accomplishments all the more amazing. As the Russians approach the borders of Germany their difficulties with terrain will increase.

The advance to the west in Southern Poland has now gone so far that some danger is involved for our Russian allies. In order to protect their northern flank and prevent a counter-offensive from swinging down upon their rear, it would seem imperative that East Prussia be cleared of the Germans. That may be a task of considerable difficulty.

But enter all the caveats possible and this fact emerges with crystal clarity: The Russians have made the week which has passed the biggest week of the war for the United Nations.

The Hecklers

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

AN election meeting in the Quebec town of Lauzon fizzled out Monday night when 250 noisy interrupters made it impossible for Premier Godbout to be heard. When Mr. Godbout spoke in Hull last week 200 youths very nearly accomplished the same thing by shouting and jeering. The premier was able to finish his speech in Hull, but the attention of the audience of 2,000 was very largely distracted by the antics of the 200.

This is a most unwholesome development in Quebec politics. We say "development" not with any idea that heckling is a new thing or that political meetings have never before been broken up by hecklers. But it does seem to be a popular scheme just now, reports of similar activity coming in from many parts of the province.

The remedy is not easy. Freedom of speech presumably means that a man may speak his piece without fear of being jailed. In our political democracy it has come to mean that every candidate has a right to be heard. It is in the Hyde Park tradition, however, that hecklers have an equal right to voice their complaints and objections—with the fight going to the fittest.

What to do with the noisy ones? The law could be used against them, charging them with disorderly conduct. But it is a dangerous precedent that has a tendency to arouse the spirit of martyrdom. However, if these Quebec rowdies are organized there would seem to be no limit to the confusion they can provoke throughout the province. In that case there must surely be some strong action taken.

The World's Narrow Escape

AS the German armies are being driven back towards Germany and out of the lands they have looted and ravaged we can better realize the mortal peril through which the world has begun to emerge.

No conqueror in history ever came so close as Hitler came to achieving his ambition to dominate the world. Hitler with a little more imagination, with less intuition and more realism, might have turned back the pages of history by centuries.

Today no more than a thin strip of Russia is held by the Germans. A few months ago the German armies stood at the gates of Moscow—and, though fortuntaely they did not know it, the gates were practically undefended. Again the enemy thrust deep into the Caucasus on the way to the East and eventually India—but he was turned back. Egypt and the Suez were saved by the British at the last moment when all seemed lost. We can see now that had Hitler concentrated on the British Isles and North Africa, when France collapsed, the cause of freedom might have been lost in the summer of 1940. Instead he wasted months in the fond delusion that Britain would surrender, he brought Russia into the war on our side in the insane delusion that the Soviet Union could be conquered in a few weeks—and by these facts, one of omission, one of commission, he made his eventual defeat a certainty.

Of the three bandit states, Italy, Germany and Japan, the first has been beaten and subdued—two are still fighting, still capable of doing enormous mischief. They can now be overthrown, and will be, but at the cost of a tremendous outpouring of blood and incredible money and lab[illegible]

Hitler, this [illegible] of unimaginable evil, might have ruled the world but for his grave miscalculations. Now he sees the avenging Russians marching remorselessly to the frontiers he has to try to defend. He sees the sword of outraged humanity rising for the death blow.

TURKEY'S TROUBLES

A series of political trials now taking place in the Turkish courts show that an attempt is being made to clear up a serious political scandal.

A well-organized Turkish Fifth Column, with Istanbul as its centre and with its branches throughout the whole country (including the most remote places of East Anatolia) had been working systematically for Hitler. Its slogans were Pan-Turanism and Pan-Islam; they were also chauvinistic, anti-foreign, and anti-Jewish.

Its aim was a Fascist coup d'état. Right under the noses of the Turkish political police this Nazi organization was able not only to form itself but also to work and agitate undisturbed for almost four years, nd keep closest contact with the Mohammedan S.S., whose leader is the notorious Mufti of Jerusalem. — London New Statesman.

A Bible Message

EXAMINE me, O Lord, and prove me; try my reins and my heart. For thy lovingkindness is before mine eyes: and I have walked in thy truth....

I will wash mine hands in innocency: so will I compass thine altar, O Lord: that I may publish with the voice of thanksgiving, and tell of all thy wondrous works.

Lord, I have loved the habitation of thy house, and the place where thine honour dwelleth. (Ps. 26: 2, 3, 6-8.)

◆ ◆ ◆

Now our Lord Jesus Christ himself, and God, even our Father, which hath loved us, and hath given us everlasting consolation and good hope Today's Bible Message—C through grace, comfort your hearts, and stablish you in every good word and work. (II. Thess. 2: 16, 17.)

Finally, brethren, pray for us, that the word of the Lord may have free course, and be glorified, even as it is with you: and that we may be delivered from unreasonable and wicked men: for all men have not faith. But the Lord is faithful, who shall stablish you, and keep you from evil....

And the Lord direct your hearts into the love of God, and into the patient waiting for Christ. (II. Thess. 3: 1-3, 5.)

Again Chief Draper and Delinquency

SOME time ago we commented in these columns on a reported statement by Chief Constable D. C. Draper of Toronto that the school was the proper and logical authority to give leadership in correcting "totally inadequate" controls over juvenile delinquency. The news story containing this report gave no other details of Chief Draper's opinions, and we naturally assumed that he gave preference to the school over the home as a primary juvenile control agency. Since then we have received a full copy of a report submitted to the Toronto Police Board by Chief Draper in April of this year which denies that assumption, and we take this opportunity of correcting any false impression of his views which may have resulted from the earlier article in these columns.

Early in his report, Chief Draper states that "the problem of crime prevention begins in the home with the training given children by parents." This uncompromising recognition of responsibility is followed by others of the same nature: "In the treatment of juvenile offenders . . . the most important item of all is the co-operation of the parents. . . . A nation can fly no higher than its homes. If we are to have non-delinquent children, we must first have non-delinquent parents. . . . There should be a great movement . . . to impress upon parents and guardians the fact that a great deal of the grief caused by wayward juvenile can be prevented by a happy and contented home life."

The report contained other references to the importance of the home in the prevention of juvenile delinquency, but those quoted above should be sufficient to prove that Chief Draper has no false ideas on that score. Admittedly his report emphasized heavily the part played by the schools and urgently advocated increased participation under the Board of Education in his city, but there is nothing incompatible in the two viewpoints. They are the natural and logical complement of each other, and Chief Draper's recorded support of them removes any doubt which might have existed about his thorough grasp of the problems relating to juvenile delinquency.

Crowley—Leahy

Immaculate Conception Church was the setting for a pretty wedding recently, when Patricia Catherine Leahy, duaghter of Mrs. Catherine Leahy and the late Edward J. Leahy, became the bride of Joseph Gerard Crowley, son of Mr. Charles Crowley and the late Mrs. Crowley. Rev. J. Lynch, cousin of the bride, officiated. Mrs. J. A. MacDonald was at the organ, and accompanied Mrs. Basil Murphy as she sang "Ave Maria" and "On This Day Oh Beautiful Mother" during the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Vincent Moher, of Douro, the bride was gowned in floor-length white embossed satin, with fitted bodice made with Sweetheart neckline, and long sleeves coming to points over the hands. Her veil of embroidered silk net was caught with carnations, and she carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, the gift of the groom.

She was attended by Miss Marcelle Healey, as bridesmaid, in floor-length pink net, with fitted lace bodice. She wore a Queen Anne hat of pink net, and carried a nosegay of gladioli and delphinium. The best man was Leo Shing, of Dunnville, and the ushers were Vincent Garvey and Bazil Murphy.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a gown of navy and white sheer, navy accessories, and a corsage of red roses. The groom's aunt, Miss M. Donoghue, also received, gowned in navy and white silk crepe, matching accessories, and a red rose corsage.

For a wedding trip to Ottawa, the bride chose a dress of rose silk jersey, brown accessories, and a corsage of red roses. On their return, the young couple will make their home in Toronto.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold-filled cameo bracelet. The best man received military brushes, and the ushers received billfolds.

WHITE COLLAR WORKER—First look at this fashion suggests that its designer gazed long on the coy bathing girl pictures of the Gay Nineties. It's smarter in its 1944 version, and is suggested as a college outfit for bicycling students. The guinea pig, not from Guinea and not a pig, is a South American cavy, distinctly related to the rabbit.

Fine China Pieces Rare Invasion Halts Supply

The familiar "What is so rare as a day in June?" is gradually finding its equal in the wail "What is so rare as a piece of china anywhere?" as lovers of china desperately search for pieces of their choice. Since most fine china comes from England, and shipping space has been restricted, even the little trickle that managed to get through to the wholesqalers before D-Day, has been cut off for an indefinite period. Wholesalers have been forced to dole out supplies to their regular customers in ever-lessening quantities, to meet an ever-increasing demand.

Canada has in a way been fortunate for the past few years, in that any china which was exported from England, was routed here rather than on the long trek to South Africa, Austr alia or New Zealand. The United States which even in peace times did not import in any great quantity the heavily-dutied china, is feeling the scarcity acutely, and American tourists are viewing with awe the displays Peterborough stores are even yet able to show.

The demand, among tourists and residents alike, has grown greatly in the past few years, and the better types of china, Spodes, Crown Derby, Royal Doulton and others are heading the list. Cups and saucers and odd decorated pieces are becoming increasingly scarce, the former because the handlemakers cannot turn out as many articles with shortage of help, and the latter because the extra work and time required can no longer be spared.

Crystal Important.

Crystal and wooden ware are now coming into the fore because of the shortage of fine china, and stores are beginning to display these articles prominently. The crystal, since it is made in the States, does not catch the eye of the average tourist, since he can get it much cheaper at home, and neither does the wooden ware, since a great deal of it comes from the States also.

However, these new styles are finding favor with Canadians, who cannot buy china any more, and the cute articles in both types are quite appealing. Odd shaped salt and pepper shakers, for instance, or a dinky little pig in polished wood, make ideal little knick-knacks, and the large polished sandwich trays, decorated with bright hand-painted designs, are eye-catching and useful. Beautiful trays are now available in crystal, as well as candlesticks, creams and sugars, and various other useful as well as charming pieces.

It is feared that the shortage of china will continue for some time, since it will take a long while to return the mills to their pre-war production, and bombings and labor shortages have wrecked havoc with work that has continued. Some lines, of course, are still available, and will continue, as long as wholesalers' supplies hold out, and they will gradually be augmented with some pieces from England, as soon as the ban is lifted. It is estimated, however, that it will take about two years after the conclusion of the war, to resume normal production of china.

Cholette-Aspero Vows Pledged At St. Peter's

Rev. F. Marrocco officiated at the ceremony in St. Peter's Cathedral this morning when Marguerite Rose Aspero, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raphael Aspero, 402 Dublin street, became the bride of Roger Cholette, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Cholette, of Sudbury. Miss Marion Best, A.T.C.M., played the wedding music and Mrs. D. Campanero sang "Ave Maria" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in floor-length white satin on long torso lines, with a full skirt. The fitted bodice was trimmed at the neckline with white net and sequins, and the long fitted sleeves, coming to a point over the hands, were similarly finished. Her veil and train of white tulle was caught to her head with white lilies, and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Miss Mary Schiarizza was bridesmaid in floor-length blue sheer with full skirt, ballet sleeves and matching accessories. She wore a blue net veil caught with flowers and carried a bouquet of red roses and maiden hair fern. Two little cousins of the bride were flower girls, in pink and blue taffeta, and carrying nosegays. Louis Ronco was best man.

At the reception, held at the home of the bride's parents, the bride's mother received the guests in a gown of blue crepe with matching felt hat and a corsage of roses. For a trip to Sudbury and Montreal the bride wore a blue silk jersey dress with white accessories. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Cholette will make their home in Peterborough.

Betty Brady Wed In White Chiffon

St. Peter's Cathedral, set with pink and white gladioli and bouvardia, was the setting for a pretty wedding this morning when Elizabeth (Betty) Brady, daughter of Mrs. Carolean Brady, 478 Murray street, and the late Claude Brady, became the bride of John James Duggan, on of Mr. nd Mrs. William Duggan, 563 Gilmour street, Rev. J. Greenan officiated. Miss Marion Best, A.T.C.M., was at the organ, and accompanied Mrs. D. Campanaro when she sang "Ave Maria" and other selections, during the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Elrick White, of Toronto, the bride was charmingly gowned in white chiffon and lace, with a full skirt. The fitted bodice was made with a Sweetheart neckline, and long sleeves coming to a point over the hand. Her finger-tip veil of embroidered silk net fell from a matching coronet, and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Ferdinand Wolff, only sister of the bride, was matron of honor in pale blue chiffon, made on similar lines as the bride's gown. She wore a matching net coronet and carried pink Briarcliffe roses.

I. F O'Neil, brother-in-law of the groom, was best man, and ushers were Ferdinand Wolff and Laurence Courneyea.

At the reception, held in Hooper's Palm rooms, the bride's mother received the guests in a gown of pale green printed sheer, white accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses. Also receiving was the groom's mother, in black and white sheer, black accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses.

For a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, N.Y., the bride donned a powder blue shantung dress, white accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Duggan will make their home at 709 Water street.

MEMORY RECALLS GOOD THINGS

ONE of the pleasures of age is reminiscing about our childhood. In memory we see our youth through the light that never was on land or sea, a time of undiluted joy without a disappointment or disillusion to mar it. No house is ever so beautiful as the old home. No cooking is ever as good as Mom's was. We go through life hunting for little red apples that taste like the ones that used to grow in the orchard behind the barn.

And especially, after we have children of our own, do we delight in recalling the kind of youngsters we were. Never were such paragons. We haul out of the faults and shortcomings of the present generation. We enjoyed being usefully employed and rose with the lark to go about our chores. If we were girls, we were Mother's little helpers. If we were boys, we preferred taking the baby out in his go-cart to playing ball with the other lads. We appreciated the blessings of an education and never had to be scourged to school. We loved our dear parents and never thought of such a thing as not obeying them and following their wise counsel.

Now these glamorous memories of our childhood are a priceless possession with which we would not part at any price, but while we are revelling in them it is a pity that we do not also recall some realistic facts of our youth that would enable us to get along better with our own offspring. For the greatest barrier between parents and children is that the parents have absolutely forgotten what they were and how they felt when they were young, and so they cannot understand or sympathize with their youngsters.

Mother Forgets Teen-age Experiences

Take the teen-age girl, for instance, who is in desperate need of some older woman to guide and protect her along the road she is just starting to travel. But she can't go to Mother with her problems because Mother has forgotten all about when she was boy-crazy and thrilled at her first kiss, and wanted to dress like she was 60 when she was 16, and thought she would die if she didn't make her sorority.

Mothers are always confiding that their daughters don't confide in them. But how can a foolish young girl open her heart to a mother who was always a prunes-and-prisms model of propriety who preferred to sit at home and read an improving book at night to going out on a date with a boy?

And the same thing holds true as between fathers and sons. Father has forgotten all about when he wanted to play instead of work; when he wanted a little red roadster more than anything else in the world, when he came home tipsy one night; when he thought he was in love with his teacher, and when he got into scrapes at college that his father had to pay him out of. Father is certain he was always sedate, ambitious, serious business man, and he calls Johnny a young fool, instead of showing him sympathy and understanding that would forge a bond between them that nothing could ever break.

If parents remembered the follies they committed in their own youth, they could do so much to keep their children from stumbling into the same pits.

Old Days On Riverside Park Are Recalled By Joe Begley

Today, Riverside Park is very much in the news with the various carnivals, and sports activities. I spent many happy hours in my boyhood there, playing games on that field when the horse and buggy was in style. Let me recall some of the memories associated in my mind with Riverside Park.

Many of the games we played then are almost extinct now, but we seemed to enjoy ourselves immensely playing "shinning", one of the games that has lived and been glorified under the name of golf. We also used to play another game much like "shinning", called Pig-In-The-Market, Duck-On-The-Rock was another old favourite, and many were the happy hours we spent playing those games. Somehow, I think that we who played those games over 50 years ago were the best sports in the real sense of the word.

The park, as I remember it, was started by the late Harry Calcutt, and the original intention was to have it for a lacrosse field. After my bare-foot days, I remember playing hockey, on what was left of an old curling rink. I think some cricket was also played, but lacrosse was the chief sport then, and many a good battle was fought with teams coming from Madoc, Beaverton, and most other towns in this district. But time has passed, and the only members of the lacrosse team still living are Ab. Rose, Tom Duncan and myself. Looking back, I see that people have changed so very much; blame it on the wars if you will.

There are very few fields around Peterborough on which I didn't play. Baseball took a lot of time to get started, but it was fun, and many of us enjoyed it. Today, when sometimes I see baseball being played, I cannot help but feel the fans have been changed by war and the modern age, and nowadays, they seem a dead lot.

Of course, it's not well to live too much in the past, but it is impossible to keep from recalling sports as we knew them, then. I remember the old swimming hole, and the friends that congregated there; each with their own nick-name; believe me, it was pleasant to hear nick-names being used . . . and Curly, Red, Skinny, Shorty and Stinky are names that still can bring back memories. My nick-name came after we used to go and hunt for beach-nuts. We'd spread a blanket under a beach-nut tree, and shake the tree. They said I always spread the blanket under a hemlock tree . . . so, I was known as Hemlock Joe after that.

In those days, yes, the good old days, we didn't have to dance every night in order to enjoy ourselves. We had some good shows, well acted performances like "Uncle Tom's Cabin", and "Away Down East". Negro minstrels always were popular . . . and mind you, these shows all came our way for only 25 cents.

Picnics up the river were enjoyable events, and I can remember that old lunch basket, and the way we used to dance up-town after.

Wars, and hatred did not exist then, as they do now. Things have changed . . . and are changing. But I wish very much to see Riverside Park remain in the minds and hearts of the people. It is dear to me, more so, I feel, than any other spot I know.

TORONTO, July 29 — (CP). — Swimmers and the swim game in Vancouver are poorer for the loss of Percy Norman, known internationally for hisefforts training and developing young swimmers. Percy, because of the hectic pace of his private business, had to resign as coach of the Vancouver Swimming Club, but it's a cinch he still retains a feverish interest in all things natatorial.

During his career on the coast, Norman developed such champions as Joan Langdon—voted the Dominion's outstanding athlete in 1942 and 1943—Phyllis Dewar and Noel Oxenbury, as well as springboard acrobats like Lynda Adams and George Athans. Seven Vancouver splashers made a good showing at the 1936 Olympics, due mainly to Norman's coaching.

He believed in getting 'em young too, and he made a valiant attempt to have swimming introduced as part of the curriculum in all the Vancouver schools, but the trustees were not quite so far-seeing as he was.

Western relic:

The old Merchants' Casualty Trophy, competed for by teams of the old Western Canada Professional Hockey League between 1923 and 1933, is being donated to the Hockey Hall of Fame at Kingston, Ont. It has been in the trophy room of Gordon (Duke) Keats, one of the puck experts who helped to bring the trophy to Edmonton. Jack Delong, holiday conductor of the Edmonton Bulletin sport column, says Duke got the trophy from an admirer, who found it in an Edmonton store after it had been lost several years, and presented it to the centre ice star.

Possibility that baseball players might be organized into unions is being discussed, but nothing much has been done. Attempts have been made before, points out J. P. Fitzgerald in the Toronto Telegram, but their movers have been drawn from the ranks of players and have always petered out when the owners applied the pressure....Johnny Greco weighed 178 pounds when he first came out of the Army, and shaved off 30 pounds before his first fight. He blames his Army weight on the 10 hours of sleep he used to get each night....Myrtle Cook, now a sport columnist on the Montreal Star, is working on memoirs of her Olympic days.

Union Outfit Murders Switchgear 19-8

U.E.W. and Switchgear were rained out twice this week in the City Softball playoffs and now Manager Murph. Chambers of the latter team is probably wishing that it had happened again last night.

But the showers held off with the result that the Union outfit sprang the biggest surprise of the season by murdering a couple of Switchgear pitchers and winning the opening clash in their semi-final bracket with the league leaders by the picnic game score of 19 to 8.

The fourth-placers, exploding hits all over Riverside Park and cashing in on a flock of errors made by the demoralized Switchgear drove Ronnie Akers to cover with a 13-hit barrage, good for 11 runs, in less than six innings and then turned on relief pitcher Freddy Elliott in the ninth to score eight more markers as a good-night salute.

Big Mac McPherson was on the hill top for the winners and in spite of some fielding lapses behind him and a bunting attack by the losers that turned up a bunch of infield hits, stuck to his guns and finished up triumphantly by retiring the side in order in the ninth, the first time feat had been performed all evening. McPherson did not give a base on balls, blanked the Switchgear for the first four innings and had a nine run lead to work on before the leaders were able to push a run over the plate.

He Also Hit

Girard, Thrasher, Doughty and Platt each had three hits for U.E.W. while Ashmore with three hits, two of them triples and Holmes and Brockley, also with three, were the most effective hitters for the losers. Brockley had a three-run homer and altogether drove in five Switchgear runs.

The fielding gem was contributed by Vic Griffin, young left fielder for U.E.W. who came in a mile for a short fly to left by Nicholls and made an impossible catch, rolling over two or three times but holding on to the ball. Jack Carpenter, Switchgear left fielder, ran far over the foul line to make a nice grab of a long foul.

U.E.W. gave preview of what was coming in the third when they broke through Akers' delivery for five runs. A couple of errors by Barney Ashmore, one for failing to touch first base after taking a throw set the stage by putting Harding and Platt on and then the Union cut loose with four solid hits in a row, singles by Murduff, Griffin and Thrasher and a long triple by Girard, to send in five markers.

They came back in the fourth to score another when McPherson, who had singled to left, went home on Murduff's single.

Thrasher's double, a single by Doughty, a wide throw by Nicholls, McPherson's triple to right and Platt's single to the same field sent three more across in the first of the fifth to make it 9 to 0.

Switchgear's Big Frame

Switchgear blanked for four frames, struck back hard in their half. Holmes and Carpenter bunted safely to start the attack and Ashmore laced a triple to deep left scoring Holmes and Carpenter. Mowry was safe on McPherson's fumble and Brockley drove a homer to deep right, scoring three more runs. There was still no one out but McPherson retired the side without any more trouble.

Then U.E.W. started right in scoring again. In the sixth with two out Girard singled and scored when Thrasher hit a long triple. The batter also scored when Mowry dropped the throw to the plate in tagging the runner. That was enough for Akers and Elliott came in to retire the side.

Switchgear got one in the sixth when they filled the bases on two errors and Mowry's scratch hit and Holmes scored after Harding had made a nice running catch of a foul near the U.E.W. bench.

They added another in the seventh when Murduff missed Playford's fly to centre and Holmes singled and their last one in the eighth on Ashmore's long triple which should have been a homer. The batter failed to touch third base and had to go back there. He scored on Brockley's single to centre.

U.E.W. made Switchgear's downfall complete in the ninth by cutting loose on Elliott with a seven-hit attack that with the assistance of a few misplays enabled the winners to chase eight runs over the home station before the league leaders finally got the side out.

By FRED D. CRAIG

Softball fans are reminded that they have an opportunity this evening of seeing one of the best girls' games of the season, and at the same time to help to send cigarettes to a lot of Peterborough boys in the armed services. Westclox senior girls clash at Riverside Park at 7 o'clock with the Mountain View R.C.A.F. Bomberettes, and the game should be a colorful and exciting battle. The Air Force girls have a reputation for playing snappy ball, and all reports indicate that they have more than a fair pitching staff, backed up by clever fielding and considerable power at the plate. The ability of the Westclockers is well known to Peterborough fans, and they will be interested in seeing how the 1944 Big Bens shape up against strong outside opposition. Isobel Bullock is slated to do the pitching for the local team. The proceeds from the game will be turned over to the fund which supplies cigarettes to Westclock employees in the Army, Navy and Air Force who are serving overseas. Such a game and such a cause deserve a real crowd for this entertaining battle between two well-balanced girls' outfits. The teams also play an afternoon game at 3 o'clock today.

With the 19-8 surprise slaughter of the first-place Switchgear by the fourth-place U.E.W. team last night, the City League playoffs have called a recess until the week after next, leaving the two semi-final series in a most interesting position. In one bracket Soldiers and Plazas have broken even in two games, which means that when the two rivals hook up again a week from next Tuesday night they will really be starting a best-two-of-three series. Plazas, who had to go through this week's games with a minimum of man-power, having only nine players for Tuesday's game and ten on Thursday, will have all the regulars back by the time the battle is resumed. Soldiers also should be reinforced by the addition of Tony McIlveen. In the other division U.E.W., who incidentally have beaten Switchgear twice in a row, have a tactical advantage through the fact that they were able to win the first game and get the jump in the series by winning without the services of Hatty Eakins, and they have the Lindsay fireballer as a distant threat for the remainder of the series. If Eakins should happen to come up with one of his good performances the league leaders will have something to worry about. Interest in both series is keen, and it is unfortunate that there should have to be a layoff at this stage. However, it was unavoidable.

Peg Started Something

Ten years ago Peg Hurst strode out to the plate in the ninth inning of an Oshawa-Peterborough game at Riverside Park and smacked a homer with the bases full that not only gave Oshawa a 5 to 4 victory but started an argument in the Petes' dressing room that made history. Hurst was known as a sucker for a hook; that is he couldn't hit a curve, and somehow or other Archie Deyell, who was pitching for the Petes that day, cut loose with a fast ball that the Oshawa hitter drove to the left field fence to break up the game. Back in the dressing-room after the Petes had failed to move a wheel in their half, the fiery Knotty Lee exploded. He took turns in demanding of Cy Whatley and Deyell the reason why Hurst had been handed a fast one instead of a hook, and that kept up for five minutes until big Bud Murray, playing second for the Petes, ventured the remark that Deyell should have been out of there the innings before anyway. Then the Petes' pilot really went up in the air, and what he didn't call Murray for second-guessing was just a few things he had forgotten. He didn't forget many, and that explosion was a master-piece of dressing-room eloquence in which the original argument was completely overlooked.

Comes a letter to this column from E.R.A. Red Eason, former Peterborough junior hockey player who is with the R.C.N.V.R. on the Pacific Coast and has been having training trips on C.P.R. ships. Red states that he saw Russ Scriver, another former Peterborough junior, who is in the R.C.A.F. and stationed at Boundary Bay, just outside of Vancouver, and that he also ran across still another former local junior player, Clint Curtis, who is in Victoria. Incidentally E.R.A. Eason says that he has seen a number of girls' softball games in Vancouver and that the fair sex out on the coast really can play the game. "When they throw the ball around you'd think you were watching a bunch of men. None of this stuff of throwing it high so that it will get to second base," the Peterborough sailor writes. "No fooling. For ladies' ball they are just about tops. They play on men's diamonds with a shorter pitching distance. Their pitchers can really send them across, too. I don't think I have seen any more than maybe two or three at home who could stand up to the game played out here." Red also discusses the Arena project. "I see they are really going to do something about the arena or sports centre for Peterborough," he comments. "It will be a wonderful help to the town, even although it is a few years overdue. I certainly hope it goes through the way they planned it."

Nicholson Comes Through

It required a four-homer outburst in last Sunday's Cub-Giant double-header to convince the baseball experts that Bill Nicholson, slugging gardener of the Chicago team, was in line for the homer and runs batted in honors for the second consecutive season, note Niagara Falls Bill Gaynon. This feat never has been accomplished before, but the Windy City ball hawk seems a sure bet to repeat his 1943 feat. He might also win a berth on the game's all-star team, which would likewise be repeating his accomplishment of the previous year. All considered, Nicholson is a mighty capable ball player and the best outfielder Cub followers have seen since such established greats as Hack Wilson and Ki Ki Cuyler were on duty at Wrigley Field. He hits them hard and far and his defensive play is also of a high order. He's one of the few in high roles today, who would be a fixture in pre-war days, and the poor showing the Grimm forces have made this year is in no way due to any shortcomings on Nicholson's part.

Hottest threat in the American loop right now are the Boston Red Sox, who have crowded up into second place and are breathing on the necks of the St. Louis Browns. With a good pitching staff headed by 16-game-winner Tex Hughson and an attack paced by Bobby Doerr and Pete Fox, who are first and second in the American League batting list, Joe Cronin's men are a definite pennant possibility. Yesterday they finished up a clean sweep of a series with Detroit by winning 15 to 5, and they are making their present road trip as successful a parade as the Red Army's move into Poland. New York Yanks stopped the Cleveland march 13 to 7 with Ernie Bonham tossing his sixth straight win, and the Brownies kept pace with their opposition by knocking off the Philadelphia A's 8 to 5, on the strength of a four-run rally in the seventh. In the National League Bill Voiselle, one of the season's finds, pitched the Giants to a 4 to 0 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates. Voiselle ran his strikeout string to 101 and allowed the Corsairs only four hits. At Brooklyn, Bob Chipman, traded by the Dodgers to Chicago earlier in the season, subdued his former teammates with a seven-hit effort, the Cubs taking the decision 4 to 1.

SPORTING CHILE CON CARNE: After being rained out twice during the week the Switchgear and U.E.W. teams evidently went in for mass production last night....Altogether they piled up 27 runs, 36 hits and 17 errors for a season's record....Incidentally the error total might have been larger if it had not been for compassionate scoring....Every player on the U.E.W. team got at least one hit and one run....As a matter of fact, all but two of them got at least two hits and two runs....Six of the 14 Switchgear hits were bunts and several others were infield safeties. ....Brockley's line drive homer to right in the fifth was one of the hardest hit balls of the season....The Switchgear fielder really teed off on that one....Barney Ashmore had another long one that was really

Plenty Of Action On Wrestling Card

Promoter Tunney's bill for next Tuesday night shapes up as the most exciting of the entire season. In the main bout Whipper Billy Watson, fed up with Washburn and Dunlop, will undertake to throw both of those back-alley fighters inside an hour, of course, tackling one at a time. Both Washburn and Dunlop say that no matter which one starts will end the bout anyway. In the semi-final Toar Morgan will wrestle Earl McCready and in the opening battle Joe Christie will meet the sensational newcomer Dr. Len Hall. There will be action all the way with that card.

Gets Divorce And Million

RENO, Nev., July 29 — (AP).—Martha Devine Dodge, former Vanities beauty, yesterday obtained a divorce and nearly $1,000,000 from Horace Elgin Dodge, New York City wealthy sportsman.

Mrs. Dodge, who was awarded her maiden name of Martha Devine, displayed her decree at a bank and was handed a "lump sum" which Dodges attorney, William Woodburn, described as "closer to $1,000,000 than to $500,000."

In exchange for the payment which would relinquish him from all obligations, "present, past, and future," Dodge was handed a box by the bank. Martin Scanlan, Reno attorney, said he thought the box contained testimony in her New York divorce action which was discontinued yesterday just before the Reno trial.

When asked the contents of the carton, the former show girl said "That's a secret."

Local Bowlers Eliminated In District Play

By HERB MARTIN

With some of the finest lawn bowling that has been seen here in years all three Peterborough entries in the play-offs for District No. 14 championship went down to defeat yesterday afternoon and evening. And while they were defeated they made a real battle all the way and in each of the contests the result might easily have gone the other way.

In the singles C. Renaud, off to a bad start, made a rapid recovery and was only down three shots to Ben Ward, Oshawa.

In the rinks G. Gimblett and Bill Livingstone were close all the way and each were playing hard and hoping for a break. There was some nice bowling in this game and the Peterborough boys only lost out by one shot.

But possibly the best bowling of the day was seen inn the doubles competitions. In the semi-finals Peterborough and Oshawa fought out every end, with Peterborough having a slight advantage. It was all square coming home and Bill Jeffries pulled off a remarkable shot to save the day.

In the final doubles between Lindsay and Peterborough Bill Jeffries again played real high class bowling. It was his remarkable playing that kept this game so interesting. They were fighting two old campaigners in Leo Rogers and H. Norton and every bowl had to count to stay in the running. Harold Coleman and H. Norton were setting a fast pace and it was do or die with the skips. This game was also a tie coming home, but that first bowl of H. Norton on the final end that laid about two inches from the kitty settled the issue and Lindsay finished one up.

It was a grand day for bowling, although the weather man did threaten several times. These winners will now go to Hamilton on Labor Day to compete with other district winners, and the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club wish them all the best of luck.

It will be mixed rinks this evening at 7.30 p.m.

Fishing Chums Land 17-Pound Muskie

MARMORA, July 20—(ENS)—No sooner were they back from a short trip to Algonquin Park Friday afternoon than those two local angling chums, Alphonse Shannon and Harold Nayler decided to visit Beaver Creek in quest of game fish. Last year they figured in a humorous episode in which a loon got caught on their line. This time they captured the largest muskie so far reported in this district, one weighing 17 pounds. It measured 41 inches from the crotch of its tail to the tip of its nose.

Four Games End In Shutouts In International

(By The Associated Press)

A series of outstanding happenings made last night one of the most eventful of the International League season. They were:

1. Four of the seven games ended in shutouts.

2. The Newark Bears went into the first division for the first time by defeating the Buffalo Bisons twice, 3-2 and 3-0.

3. Jersey City not only suffered a double shutout at the hands of the Rochester Red Wings, 2-0 and 7-0, but dropped into the second division for the first time in more than two months.

4. Baltimore made it 14 of 15 in Municipal Stadium by defeating the Montreal Royals twice 14-3 and 2-0 before 15,500 to increase its first-place lead.

5. Red Embree, Oriole hurler, despite a late start, hung up his 12th victory of the season, a two-hit shutout, and struck out 13 men to increase his league-leading total to 120.

6. The Royals, after leading the league for 10 days, sagged to only one point out of the second division as a result of the double loss.

Syracuse and Toronto closed out the night's schedule with the Chiefs easing out a 4-3 win over the Maple Leafs. Bud Bebber gained the verdict over Luther Knerr although Toronto outhit Syracuse 9-5.

NEW YORK, July 29—(AP)—Bits of this and that from here and there: Marty McManus, the old St. Louis Brownie, is still in baseball—managing the Kenosha Comets in the American Girls Professional League ...The St. Louis Cards are winning so easily and often that the baseball bookies are planning to "build a fence around 'em" so far as betting is concerned ...George Magerkurth, the umpire, had 76 professional fights before turning to baseball—and he hasn't lost a decision as an arbiter.

Ford Andrews, the Huronite, Huron, S.D.: "Two men are outside," an usher said to the manager just before Sunday's game. "They want passes to the game—said they were friends of the umpire."

Hamilton Crew Leading Henley Events

PORT DALHOUSIE, Ont., July 29.—(CP).—The 62nd annual Royal Canadian Henley moves into its final day to-day with Hamilton Leanders leading contestants for the aggregate championship.

Toronto Argonauts, the defending champions, however, are close behind and will be making a strong bid to retain the title. Leanders have 27 points and Argos 21.

In third place is the Ottawa Rowing Club with 11 while Detroit and Ecorse, Mich., clubs are tied for third place, each with nine points, and Buffalo and Wyandotte, Mich., with eight points each are tied for the next position.

Leanders moved into the top bracket by winning the last event of yesterday's nine. It was a battle for points in every race with narrow victories being scored.

The three-day classic will end today with the running of 15 events, featured by the championship singles in mid-afternoon. Pitted in the feature are Ken Thorburn of Toronto Argos, who yesterday scored wins in the 145-pound singles and the open quarter-mile dash; Harvey Hutcheon, St. Catharines boy now racing for the Ottawa R.C., and Churck Saunders, Hamilton star.

Saunders' victory yesterday won the Association singles by edging out H. Kromei of Ecorse and Ted Chilcott, Argos' hope. Altogether the Hamilton club garnered three wins and one second-place yesterday while Argos had two wins, a second and two thirds. The Pennsylvania Athletic Club chalked up only one point, and St. Catharines went pointless.

Gabriel Beaudry of Ottawa, scored a surprise victory in the no-point High school singles when he dashed home six lengths in front of his nearest competitor, Bob McIntyre of Philadelphia. Bob Couch of Buffalo's West Side Club, was third.

Lock Girls Win By 10 to 6 From Quakers

Scoring seven times in the first inning, and never allowing the opposers to approach their score, Peterborough Lock packaged-up a Ladies' Softball League game Friday evening, with a 10-6 victory over the Quaker Oats girls.

Weak hitting by the Quakers, who garnered only seven blows, and several errors in the field aided the Lock Company to stage the defeat. Beryl Lee, pitching for the Lock team, fanned no less than six, but issued walks to eight. Carlotta Laing who occupied the mound for the Quakers, was replaced by Gertie Masters in the second. She continued the game to the finish, striking out three and walking four.

In the first Vera Carr hit over third base, Beryl Lee doubled into centre field. Audrey Stinson walked. Myrtle Falls also walked, forcing home Miss Carr. Audrey Patton hit to left field, but a fumble allowed her to reach second base, and at the same time scoring Miss Stinson and Miss Falls. Jane Succee shot one near second base, reaching second on a pass. Audrey Patton stole home. Betty McMahon walked, stole second. Isobel Mathews and Olive Varcoe were out at first base, and Miss Succee came home on a high throw to the plate. Miss McMahon scored on a hit into right by Vera Carr.

Quakers scored one run in the first, when Marie Williams scored, stealing home immediately after Carlotta Laing walked, and the ball was momentarily out of control for the Lock team.

The Lock Company went down in order in the second frame, but the Quakers ran in three runs. Helen White walked, stealing second. June McGregor also walked. Betty Arnold and Margaret Duvall struck out, and Marie Williams walked, with Helen White dashing home on a pass. Velma Crane singled into left, scoring June McGregor, and Carlotta Laing rolled an easy one past pitcher, and the ball was thrown to first allowing Marie Williams to score.

In the fourth Peterborough Lock turned in one run, with Beryl Lee being forced in when Jane Succee was walked with the bases loaded.

The sixth inning netted the Lock Company another run, when Jane Succee smacked a sizzling ball into deep centre that was juggled by the centre fielder, allowing the runner to make a homer.

Al Zarilla Is Chief Factor In Brown's Lead

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Al Zarilla's amazing hitting spree for a .654 average in his last seven game was accepted today in baseball circles as one of the chief factors keeping the St. Louis Browns in front in the American league flag chase despite the rush of Boston and Cleveland.

Last night's three hits as the Browns thumped Philadelphia, 8-5, upped Zarilla's total to 17 in his last 26 times at bat and boosted his all-season mark to .301.

The Browns now have won seven of 12 starts against eastern clubs on the current home stand and boast a 3½ game lead on New York and Boston, virtually tied for second.

Boston clubbed Detroit's Paul (Dizzy) Trout for a 15-5 pasting yesterday as Emmett O'Neil chalked up his third win.

Chicago got a neat 8-hit job by Rookie Ed Lopat to trim Washington, 8-2. Johnny Dickshot's bases-loaded triple off Lefty Lefebvre sparked a five-run Chicago third inning. It was the Senators 11th lost in 12 games.

Bill Voiselle of the New York Giants blanked Pittsburgh, 4-0, for his 13th victory and first shutout to takeover the strikeout lead of the majors at 101.

Bob Chipman defeated his old Brooklyn mates for the second time as he hurled Chicago to a 4-1 edge with the help of some heavy clouting by Stan Hack and Ival Goodman.

"Plastic Age" Not In Sight For Many Years

Plastics are assured of a brilliant future, but the so-called "Plastic Age" is still a long ways off, it was stated by Julius Samann of Dominion Essential Oils at Lakefield, speaking Friday before a meeting of the Kiwanis Club.

Mr. Samann, a European by birth and education, who arrived in Canada on his way to Australia at the beginning of the war and liked this country so much he decided to settle here, discussed in a brief address the advantages, shortcomings and probable future uses which plastics will be put to after the war.

Introduced by Marvin White, the speaker alluded to the genesis of plastics and took care to point out that the availability of the new materials was nothing like what popular opinion had supposed it. "It is not easy to produce plastics," Mr. Samaan said, "and the chemical road to success can be long and arduous and often very costly."

He said that at the present time plastics were mainly appreciated in their use as substitutes for materials now in short supply because of the war; but that afterwards they would be valued for their native superiority in many lines of manufacture. However, it was certain that they would never be able to supplant steel in heavy machinery; and it was of utmost importance that the proper kind of plastic be carefully chosen for each particular purpose. "Industrially speaking," Mr. Samann added, "plastics cannot be regarded as a panacea."

He spoke of some of the uses, some of them unique, to which plastic derivatives are already being put; their accomplishments in the electronic heating field; plexiglass for piping light even around corners as water is piped; and their wonderful humanitarian use in war for overcoming the facial disfigurations of casualties.

Mr. Samann stated that plastics had proved a real boon to the wood industry, and that through experiments in combining the two, methods had been discovered for strengthening wood and making it impervious. "Soft pine can now be made as hard as maple, and maple as hard as mahogany or teak," he said.

The vote of thanks was moved by Kiwanian T. T. Rodger.

NEW R.R. STATION OF THE FUTURE — The Canadian National railway station of the future. Designed by Chief Architect John Schofield, it symbolizes in field stone and glass the streamline trend of the modern age. The first of this advanced type of station design will be erected at Midland, Ont., to replace the old, wooden structure which was destroyed by fire. The drawing of the front elevation shows the wide use of glass to assure light and airy public rooms and the decorative veneer of field stone and fireproofed cedar boards over the concrete structure.

Stone From Old Fort Ste. Marie To Be Used In Streamlined Station

TORONTO, July 29 — Canada's first "streamline station of the future" has come fresh from the drafting board of the Canadian National Railways and J. F. Pringle, vice-president and general manager of the Central Region, announced that application has been made to the Board of Transport Commissioners for the immediate construction of this new type of station at Midland, to replace the former wooden structure which was destroyed by fire. The plans and drawings were submitted to a joint meeting of the Midland Town Council and Chamber of Commerce and their members were greatly impressed by the new, advanced, modern design for Canadian National station buildings.

Distinctively Canadian in character, so skilfully has the streamed effect of the lines been achieved that this new "station of the future" is suggestive of the trend of the latest design for trains, airplanes and motor cars. The use of field stone in a decorative scheme provides a direct link with the founding of the nation and is reminiscent of the architectural use of field stone in the early French regime and the days of the United Empire Loyalists, when such stone, owing to its availability, was largely used in the construction of public buildings and private homes.

It was a strange coincidence that the first of these "streamline stations of the future" should be erected at Midland; for the use of field stone in a decorative way provides a direct connection with the earliest and most tragic days of the Georgian Bay District, when old Fort Ste. Marie, the residence of the Jesuit martyr of Huronia, stood on the bank of the Wye River, less than three miles from the Canadian National Station. It was burned by the missionaries, about 300 years ago, when the Iroquois obliterated the Indian Empire of the Hurons. The first white habitation in what is now Ontario, field stone was the basis of the construction of Fort Ste. Marie's bastions, protective walls and the foundation of the residence, and Mayor Oliver H. Smith, of Midland, officially asked that a stone from old Fort Ste. Marie be incorporated, in a prominent position, in the new station. V. G. Edwards, president of the Huronia Historic Sites Association, will arrange to have the stone suitably inscribed. In such a manner, history bridges the gap of three centuries and Ontario's first building, with all its heroic traditions, will be directly linked with the latest in railway station design in the present streamline age.

Apart from its historic motif the new Midland station is as modern in its appointments and conveniences as the newest streamline locomotives. The blending of the past with the present has been done with such skill that a distinctive type of design has been developed, Canadian in conception as the grain elevator, yet a strcture of real beauty, which readily lends itslf as a setting for landscape development.

Cornwall Case Being Investigated

TORONTO, July 29 — (CP) — The Attorney-General's office here announced Friday an investigation will be held into the Cornwall case of June 14 in which a Jehovah's Witness minister, James Lillico, was fined $25 or one month in jail on a charge of not being gainfully employed and failing to register with National Selective Service.

Yesterday, Mr. Justice J. Keiller saying that he was of the opinion that Lillico had been denied natural justice.

Lillico appeared before Magistrate P. C. Bergeron in Cornwall and a week later was fined. He claimed he had not been asked to plead and had been denied the opportunity to make full answer. Also, he had been given no opportunity to produce evidence and had not been made aware he was on trial. He had not been given opportunity to obtain counsel.

"I read the document in this case with considerable care and surprise to say nothing of being shocked," Mr. Justice Mackay said. "It is bad enough to have a Gestapo in Germany without its invading the courts of this country."

Deputy Attorney-General Snyder in announcing there would be an investigation of the case, said that Magistrate Bergeron was held in the greatest respect by the Attorney-General's Department, but a full report would be asked of the proceedings.

A statement from Magistrate Bergeron said Lillico was questioned in an "ancillary courtroom" and that he pleaded guilty. On being sentenced he had asked for an adjournment.

Polish Patriots Slay German Officials

Canada Pays Million Daily To Servicemen's Dependents

By HELEN BANNERMAN—Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, July 29—(CP).—The four-storey brick records building set in the quiet, rural atmosphere of the Dominion Experimental Farm here is the centre of one of Canada's biggest wartime headaches—paying more than $1,000,000 daily to the dependents of servicemen. Wrap up a financial expert, a mathematician and a statistician and toss in the equivalent of Dorothy Dix for good measure and you have the Dependents' Allowance Board, whose eight members review cases and grant allowances, and the Treasury section sends out some 60,000 cheques monthly.

To these two departments comes the problems of financial and domestic entanglements caused when the bread-winner is thousands of miles away or when he is still in Canada and his family moves constantly to be with him.

They really run against some tough ones, but there are few cases the 1,375-strong staff of the D.A. and A.P. branch hasn't solved.

Mrs. Rose Odowichuk of Insinger, Sask., for instance, moved to Buchanan, Sask., at the same time another Mrs. Rose Odowichuk moved from Buchanan to Insinger. Each was supported by a son in the services, but in advising the Treasury branch of their change of address each forgot to mention the son's regimental number.

"We solved that one," recalled T. R. C. Anderson of Ottawa, chief treasury officer. "We wrote to each of them at the new address and eventually found where each cheque was supposed to go."

Mr. Anderson and his staff received an average of 27,000 notices of change in address monthly with a sharp increase in May and October. May 1, moving day, brought 58,000 notices.

American Visitors Catch 30-lb. Lunge

Visitors to the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dunkerley, on Casemen Island, Stoney Lake, have been doing very well in the way of fish during the past week, ranging for a 30-pound lunge to an 8-pound lunge.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Ratchford of Trenton, Ohio, hooked a thirty-pound lunge during their stay at the cottage, and Dr. and Mrs. Lerch of Cleveland caught a 12-pound muskie. Mrs. V. E. Saunders of Cleveland, brought in an 8-pound lunge during her stay there, too.

REAR VIEW OF STATION OF FUTURE — Architect's drawing of the rear elevation of the new Canadian National station of the future. It features the historic motif of the design, bringing into artistic display the field stone and wood which characterized pioneer construction of the French regime and United Empire settlers. The Midland station will carry this symbolism back to the first days of the white man in what is now Ontario when a field stone from the foundations of the 300-year-old Fort Ste. Marie, the residence of the Jesuit martyrs of Huronia, suitably inscribed, will be set in the wall beneath the raised, block letters, "Canadian National."

IT JUST DEPENDS

Reads a local cinema poster, "The next attraction will be 'Rationing'" It depends on which way you read it, doesn't it?

FIRE REPORT

A false alarm and a chimney fire comprise the report of the fire department in the past 24 hours. The false alarm occurred at 2:10 this morning at Box 58 at the Westclox; and the chimney fire, at 10:19 p.m. Friday night, was at 327 Amour Road, residence of E. Stevenson.

GOING, GOING, GONE

Raspberries were moving at the Farmer's Market today, with the fruit, most of it ripe, large and good, selling generally at 40 cents a quart. Buyers might have thought the price a little high but it was noticed they bought the berries anyway.

HAD ENOUGH RAIN

Local farmers, especially those in the North Monaghan area, have had enough rain for a spell. While it hasn't completely ruined the crops, many farmers at the Market this morning, said a little more rain might damage the wheat crop considerably, and that the heavy downpours in the past few days have flattened some of the crops. One farmer's wife took an optimistic view of the weather situation, and declared the rain had done wonders for her raspberries. Little damage by the electrical storms have been reported, but farmers generally, have "had enopgh wet weather."

HIGHLANDER WOUNDED.

Word has been received by Mrs. F. Dunford, that her husband, L/Sgt. Frank Dunford has been reported injured in action in France, while fighting with the S.D. and G. Highlanders. He was injured July 19, but no additional details were revealed. Mrs. Dunford, the former Hazel Bradley, of Peterborough, and their daughter, two-year-old Judith, whom L/Sgt. Dunford has never seen, are holidaying in Fort William, where the information reached them. The soldier is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Dunford, Mount Julian. He enlisterd in July 1940, and went overseas in July 1941.

GATES TO GO.

Substitution of flasher lights for the gates at the C.P.R. on George Street is proposed by the company, and the Council on Friday night authorized City Engineer Parsons to sign an agreement with the C.P.R. for the change.

NO ROTARY LUNCHEON

Because of the Empress Hotel dining-room being closed, there will be no luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club on Monday. There will, of course, be no meeting on the following Monday, either, as that day is Civic Holiday.

INTRUDER SURPRISED.

When Arthur Peeling, Jr., Gilmour street, returned from a trip to Rice Lake Friday night, he surprised an intruder who was on the roof of the back porch. The prowler made good his escape and a police search failed to locate him.

CARS DAMAGED.

As Robert Flynn, 576 Water street, was driving his car south of George street Friday night, another automobile driven by Lottie Ball, R.R. 3, Peterborough, pulled out from the west curb near McDonnel street and there was a collision in which both cars were damaged to the extent of $40. No one was hurt in the accident.

LINDSAY CASUALTIES

Two former Lindsay men have been reported casualties from the Normandy battlefront. G. O. Jackson, who enlisted four years ago in Campbellford is reported to have been killed July 22. His wife is formerly Alice Corrie: John Cole, R.C.N., a former student at the Lindsay Collegiate, is reported to have died of wounds. His father is G. W. Cole of Toronto, formerly of Lindsay.

Butter Beans Sold On Market

Cucumbers ranging in all sizes and shapes were much in evidence at the Farmers' Market today, and sold generally at 3 for 10 cents. Few tomatoes were to be seen, but what there was on hand went like wildfire at 30 cents a box. Lettuce moved at 5 cents a head, butter, fresh from the farm, was had for 40 cents a pound, and beets sold for 5 cents a bunch.

Blueberries, raspberries and black raspberries vanished at 40 cents a quart, and butter beans made an initial appearance, selling at 15 cents a quart. Chickens and hens ranged from 28 cents to 35 cents a pound, and baked, brown and tender roasted fowls disappeared from the stalls at 50 cents a pound.

Cabbages went for 5 and 10 cents a head, potatoes were in quantity selling generally at 40 cents a peck, large onions at 2 bunches for 15, peas at 40 cents a six-quart basket, and carrots at 5 cents a bunch; also were sold over the counters freely.

A plentiful supply of wild raspberries could be bought at 35 cents a quart, and yellow beans sold for 22 cents a six-quart basket.

Cpl. Robert Harvey Severely Wounded

Severely wounded in action, while serving with the Stormon, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, is Cpl. Robert Burton Harvey, whose wife lives at 182 Dufferin street. The date he was wounded, and additional information was not revealed.

He came to Canada from England when he was 17 years old, and worked on the Board of Transit in Peterborough before enlisting. He received his education in England. Cpl. Harvey enlisted in the S. D. and G. Highlanders in November 1940, and after a training period in Ottawa, went overseas in July 1941. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Harvey, Isle of Wight, England, and has a sister serving in the air force in Britain.

Chairman of Building Committee

DIRECTING CAMPAIGN FOR MEMORIAL CENTRE — These are the men who are organizing and directing the canvass and plan to erect in Peterborough a Memorial Community Centre for Health, Culture and Recreation. Committees have been organized and plans are now under way to commence in September a canvass to raise funds to erect this memorial centre. John R. Marshall had accepted the chairmanship of the finance committee, but on account of his health he has had to relinquish the post.

According to Crown witnesses a quantity of wool tops allegedly purchased from Fred Smith, an employee of G. Whitaker and Sons here, for $240 after changing hands three times was eventually sold to two Toronto firms for a total of $1,591.31.

Smith, foreman at the Auburn storehouse for the Whitaker firm, was charged with stealing burlap and wool tops, and at Friday's session of police court his counsel, John A. Bradshaw, stated that the accused wished a jury trial.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., prosecuted the case which was eventually enlarged for two weeks at the request of defence counsel after the evidence for the Crown in the preliminary inquiry had been completed.

Gordon Monkman, manager of G. Whitaker and Sons, first witness for the Crown, stated that in connection with the wool at the Auburn storehouse, his firm acted as storage agents for Melbourne Merchandising Limited, a Crown company. The wool belonged to Melbourne Merchandising and G. Whitaker and Sons' firm received, stored and shipped it for the government. Smith, the witness said, was foreman at the storehouse.

No Right To Sell.

"Did he have any right to sell anything at the storehouse," asked Mr. McElderry. "No," replied the witness.

Mr. Monkman stated that orders would be telephoned to Smith from the office of the firm when goods were to be shipped out.

There had been a fire in the storehouse, he said, and as a result a quantity of wool had been damaged, mostly by water.

Mr. Monkman said that he had examined a quanttiy of wool tops in the police garage and that some of the wool had been water damaged. It was possible to identify wool tops by the combing tickets, witness stated.

Albert H. Radford of the Whitaker staff said that shipments of wool from the Auburn warehouse might run all the way from 300 pounds to 50,000 pounds. He himself issued the orders for shipments out and there had been no orders given Smith to sell anything, witness stated.

Frank Petersiel, Peterborough scrap iron and waste dealer, swore that in answer to a phone call on May 26 asking him to call at the Auburn warehouse he had done so. He said he had to wait until a C.P.R. truck pulled out, and then had asked for the boss. Fred Smith, identified in the court by the witness, had replied, according to Petersiel, that he was the boss and said that he had some burlap bagging to sell. Petersiel swore that he bought the bagging, ½ ton of it, at 2 cents a pound and then had bought 200 pounds of waste at 10 cents a pound. Smith wanted to be paid in cash, witness said, and he was paid in that way. Petersiel said that the waste was grayish and mildewed.

Made Four Visits.

Witness swore that on June 2 he received a similar telephone call from the Auburn storehouse and had gone there and bought 600 pounds of waste from Smith, paying $60 in cash. On June 17, he said, there was another call and he had bought 800 pounds from Smith, paying $80 in cash, and again on June 24, in response to a telephone message he had gone to the storehouse and bought 800 pounds more for $80 in cash from Smith.

All this waste he had sold to Max Wiskler, Toronto, witness stated.

When asked to the nature of the waste Petersiel said that it was all waste to him, whether wool or other material.

Roddy Tippitt, Canadian Pacific truck driver, recalled seeing Petersiel at the Auburn warehouse and also to seeing Smith there on the same occasion.

Sam Goldbach, of Goldbach and Albert, local scrap iron and waste dealers, swore that on June 2 he had bought burlap bagging at the Auburn storehouse from Smith and that he had paid the accused $17 in cash, at the rate of two cents a pound for 850 pounds. Goldbach stated that he had sold the burlap to Petersiel at 2½ cents a pound.

To Mr. Bradshaw Goldbach said that when he had visited the Auburn plant with Detective Meagher he had hesitated at first about identifying Smith. "I was 90 per cent. sure," he said, "but not completely so until I heard him speak and caught his Cockney accent."

John E. Keyes Heads Finance Committee

John E. Keyes, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, was appointed Friday afternoon to fill the post of chairman of the finance committee for the Peterborough Memorial Community Centre for Health, Culture and Recreation, whose drive for funds to make a long-talked-about dream a reality in the city's life will begin on Sept. 18. He succeeds to the position left vacant by John R. Marshall, who has been forced to resign for reasons of health.

"I am enthusiastic about the scheme and certainly it is a thing the people should support," Mr. Keyes said. "In its broader scope of stressing facilities for young people, it would fill a real need, a need that is greater in Peterborough at the present time than it is in many places. It is a marvellous thing."

Mr. Marshall had been finance chairman since the foundation committee was organized several weeks ago to prosecute the plan and consider details of publicizing, financing and building the health centre. He stated that he was "indeed sorry I cannot continue in the job, but the doctor has forbidden me to participate actively in the work any longer. Nevertheless, I wish the campaign every success and I will render any aid that I can."

Two Children Raise $17 For War Victims

Commencing at a very tender age to do good for others, hardly ever fails to give a real desire to continue in such as the years advance, an example of which is to be found in the deeds of a young brother and sister, Hugh and Elva McIntyre of Crescent street whose most recent achievement on behalf of the sufferers from enemy bombing attacks over Britain, through the local and district fund operating for that purpose, forms the nucleus of today's story on behalf of this very worthy cause.

These two youngsters for the past successive four summers counting the present one, have made very good use of the leisure that holidays from school duties affords, by staging at least one effort to give a helping hand to others in distress, working together in an admirable manner with the one purpose in view, which could well serve as an example of unity worth mentioning.

Last Saturday July 22, they held a bingo at the family residence, prizes for which were donated by a few merchants, and to assist the proceeds, they had previous to this sold tickets for a draw on a basket of groceries, the two jointly raising the nice sum of $17.20 which is credited in their name to-day.

This boy and girl who at the moment are only 9 and 11 years of age respectively, were only 6 and 8 years of age when they first attempted to play a part in this same good work, and it is worthy of note that they have continued it by raising money every summer recess since that time, besides accomplishing a similar feat every Christmas for the past three years as well.

In a chat that the writer was privileged to have with both of the parents when collecting the money, it was very easy to sense how parental inspiration had played its part which from the happiness that the children displayed in having accomplished something worthwhile, would undoubtedly find expression in many an act of kindness for others in later life, long after this particular period has passed into history.

The draw for the basket of groceries was made by little 4-year-old Marjorie Drummond, and resulted in the prize going to Mrs. Brady of 538 Rogers Street revealing that the two youngsters had travelled quite far afield in their zeal to sell tickets and thus swell the proceeds.

Bridge Game Brings $4

After darkness sets in, in many of the summer colony's in the district, there are perhaps many inter-cottage visits and games of bridge would probably from one of the major forms of entertainment.

To-day a gift of $4.00 is listed under the acknowledgement of "Bridge Game", and while there was nothing to indicate that it came as a result of such an instance as mentioned above, the idea as presented is so worthy of consideration in such a time of need as some sufferers in Britain are now at this moment experiencing, that it was felt quite worth presenting in connection with this particular gift.

Over two-thirds of the next donation of five hundred pounds is now on hand in the bank, the necessary $2,240 to cable another gift of £500, lacking but $704.00 to make it an accomplished fact, so a bit of increased interest would seem to be well worth giving in order to speedily complete this latest objective, and speed it over to where it is badly needed at this moment.

Hugh and Elva McIntyre, proceeds of bingo games and draw	17.20
Bridge Game	4.00
Total to-date	$78,544.21

MANY WILD BERRIES

The women living in the Ennismore district don't care how their tame raspberry crop acts. Wild berries in that district have been and still are so plentiful, the farmer's wives are giving up their tame crop, and devoting their time to picking the wild fruit, some of which is reported to be better than tame berries. One woman who apparently made the most of the supply, has preserved more than 25 quarts of wild raspberries, and is contemplating putting away even more.

AIRMAN MISSING — Flying Officer Stafford J. Sullivan, whose wife lives at 325 Burnham street, has been officially reported missing after air operations. He was formerly employed at the Western Clock Company.

FO. S. Sullivan Reported Missing

Flying Officer Stafford Sullivan of the Royal Canadian Air Force is reported missing overseas in official information received by his wife at her home, 325 Burnham street. He went overseas as a bombardier last October.

Flying Officer Sullivan is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Sullivan, 241 Stewart street, and was employed at the Westclox prior to his enlistment in June, 1942. He completed his training at St. John's, Quebec.

Council Reviews City Ice Service

"Let us show the people exactly what the ice service costs," Mayor Hamilton remarked Friday night in a passing reference to the emergency supply that was put in stock by the city last winter.

Alderman Glover suggested that some items were properly chargeable to the Board of Works, especially in details of overhead, departmental use of property. The property committee should also be charged with some rental item, Alderman Glover said.

"Alderman Curtis is threatening to charge the whole works to the parks committee because the property was bought for parks purposes," Alderman Swanston said, sounding a note of humor.

General Office

Probably the mainspring to the purchase of the property was the information reaching the council last winter that the Allin Ice Company was not going to try to carry on their business this year. So, as a result of the purchase the property is being variously used by the council's ice committee, property committee, Board of Works and so on.

Alderman Glover's idea seemed to be that these other committees should be charged with their use of the premises, and it was on that point that Mayor Hamilton remarked that the temporary ice business should be reviewed in full to the public, especially in fairness to private dealers after the present labor stringency lifts.

Alderman Glover said that the city's ice business was not getting all the distribution it could handle if additional trucks were available, and for that reason present ice business costs would not reflect the potential of retailing of ice if the city had the means of delivering all the orders it received. The committee simply had to get along as well as it could with the two trucks.

Alderman Wants Insurance Passed Around

That municipal insurance should be passed around among the companies and their agents from year to year, was a change from the present static placements as proposed by Alderman William Ovens at the council meeting Friday night.

Rates were much the same and companies were of the tariff classification, Alderman Ovens said, and there was not much difference between them. That being so, he said he would like to see the council go on record as favoring the circulation of insurance on all city properties.

"These agents all pay taxes and I think they should participate in the city's insurance business," Alderman Ovens said.

Alderman Sullivan asked that the council be provided with a statement of all insurance in effect, and the date of maturity of policies to be presented at the council's next meeting. His motion was seconded by Alderman Glover.

Application of Colonial Coach Lines for a franchise between Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto by way of Peterborough has been suspended until after the war, according to the company's report to the council of a recent hearing by the Ontario Municipal Board.

R. G. Perry, general traffic manager, Montreal, informed the council that "at the hearing in Toronto the Board stated they would only hear from those applicants who believed that their applications were of a nature that would justify the operation of motor coach services at the present time but that the Board was not desirous of taking evidence on any application having to do with the operation of new services early in the post-war period.

"In view of the fact our application was to operate services after the present emergency ceases, we were desirous of co-operating with the Board's statement of policy, and decided to allow our application to stand until the Board should advise us of a more opportune time for the hearing of our application.

"We do wish to assure you that just as soon as the Board is ready to hear our application we will be pleased to acquiesce in their request."

witness, who said he accompanied Goldbach to the Auburn, corroborated his evidence as to the deal with Smith.

John Lynch, C.N.R. truck foreman, said that he had seen Goldbach and Albert's truck at the Auburn storehouse on one occasion when he made a call there.

Sold In Toronto.

Max Winkler, who described himself as a Toronto junk dealer, said that he had been buying from Petersiel for years and that recently he had bought three shipments of wool from him, totalling around 2,000 pounds. Winkler said that he had sold the wool to Irvine Koben, Toronto.

Koben, wholesale jobber, testified that he had bought three lots of wool from Winkler, paying a total of $1,172.25 for 2,399 pounds.

"Then I started out to create a market for it," he said. Eventually, he said, he sold shipments of 767 and 750 pounds respectively to York Knitting Mills, Toronto, for $575.25 and $562.50, and 782 pounds to B. and M. Woolstock, Toronto, for $453.56, a total of $1,591.31.

Koben declared that the wool he had seen in the police garage downstairs was similar to that he had sold York Mills.

"Did Winkler know the profit you made?" asked Mr. Bradshaw.

"No, I usually try to keep my selling price a secret," replied Koben.

John Lewis, manager of the spinning department of the York Knitting Mills, Toronto, swore that he had been approached by Koben, who said that he had some wool tops to sell. At first the decision was that the wool was not what they wanted but eventually two shipments were purchased. Koben had told them that he could furnish regular shipments, witness said.

Lewis said that the wool in the police garage was the same wool his company had bought from Koben. It had been stored at the company's plant in Toronto and turned over to a Peterborough detective and shipped to the police department here.

William MacCally, employee of York Knitting Mills, also identified the wool as having been received by the company some weeks ago.

C. M. Kent, Oakville, a member of the staff of Melbourne Limited, stated that that firm was a Crown company which issued wool for the government to manufacturers for military purposes.

Wool From Bradford.

Witness produced some wool which he said he obtained from one of the bales in the police garage downstairs and declared that the combing ticket which he took from the top of the wool showed that it was part of a shipment of 160 bales bought by Melbourne Merchandising from the firm of A. Y. Bradbury, Bradford, Eng., and shipped to G. Whitaker and Sons here for storage. Mr. Kent said that when he visited the Auburn storehouse here to inspect wool after the fire of June 2 he had seen similar combing tickets on wool tops.

Detective George Heron of the Toronto police department said that when the question of wool at the York Knitting Mills being stolen from Peterborough had arisen, the company had been ordered to hold the wool and presumably witness said it had been shipped to the Peterborough police.

At the conclusion of the Crown case Defence Counsel Bradshaw said that he had no time to study the case and he asked that there should be an adjournment. Accordingly the hearing was enlarged by Magistrate R. B. Baxter until August 11.

Shipyards Strike Enters Third Day

HALIFAX, July 29—(CP)—A general strike at the Halifax shipyards, Limited, and its marine slip and windmill pier across the harbor entered its third day today with 3,000 workers still holding out for maintenance of membership and a check-off.

The strike was called for Thursday morning when the action committee of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers (C.C.L.) decided further negotiations would not bring the company to agree to include the check-off and membership clauses in the next contract, due in November.

Allow No Holidays

Stockholm, July 29 (AP)

THE first "total war" orders for Germany by Reichminister Goebbels are two forbidding all vacations for women and directing that front line troops do the manual work of building bridges and repairing roads formerly done by the Todt Speer labor organization.

Expect Credit To Aid Trade

OTTAWA, July 29 — (CP). — Trade Minister MacKinnon, speaking on a resolution providing for an export credit insurance measure, said in the Commons yesterday it was essential Canadian exporters be given all possible support in the post-war period.

The measure would accomplish this through the establishment of an export credit insurance corporation and by authority to give direct assistance to Governments of other countries of their agencies.

It was the Government's intention that the export credit insurance corporation should operate on a self-sustaining basis but be non-profit making.

The insurance scheme will assist trade with countries where the importers already have funds to finance purchases in Canada, but in many countries both the importers and the Governments themselves will lack financial resources.

The granting of direct credit assistance may be made by the Governor-in-Council on the recommendation of the Finance Minister with the concurrence of the Trade Minister and is restricted to a three-year period when it is anticipated the need will be most acute.

a home run, but the batter missed touching third and had to go back to that base....Which will remind some folk of the day that Jack Hardill in a junior baseball game hit a ball so far into right field that he went around the bases and sat down on the bench, only to be told that he had missed first base. And so he still had time to rush out and reach the initial sack before the ball was back. His omission turned a home run into a single. Incidentally that must have been the longest single ever hit at Riverside Park....The O.A.S.A. announces that Belleville, Kingston, Oshawa and Trenton are grouped with Peterborough in the intermediate A zone, B group....Switchgear were shy Tompkins and McNabb last night and had Padgett and Playford on the injured list, although the last two got into the game.

Minister Of Highways Praises Cooperation

The friendly relations between the Suburban Area Commission and the county and city councils were gratefully mentioned by Hon. G. H. Douncett, Minister of Highways, in conversation Friday morning with the roads committee of the county council.

The unbroken harmony in which the interests of three local bodies had been considered and advanced from the inception of the Suburban Area Commission was a credit to the city and county, Hon. Mr. Doucett said, and a material help to the Department.

The Minister was here on a trip of observation and went on to Lindsay for lunch. He told the committee that expenditure on provincial highways this year was reduced to the minimum of necessary maintenance, and he was hoping that local municipalities would find themselves in a position to do some extra work on the secondary roads leading to the county roads and provincial highways.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

TWO STRINGS TO A BOW

OTHER THINGS being equal, it is always better to have two strings to your bow. If one of them fails you, the other is ready for use. If the first one works, you don't have to worry about the second. In planning the way to make a contract, every declarer should study his assets and liabilities to see if there is not some way to utilize this principle. With two different moves available, one may be of such a nature that if it fails the other can still be tried, whereas if the order is reversed, you stake all on one possibility.

3 ♥	Pass	3 ♠	Pass

Correct play makes five-odd at either hearts or spades on that deal, but South found a way to get set after West led the club K. He won it with the A, scored the spade K, A and Q, led to the heart K and finessed the diamond Q. If that had worked, he reckoned, he would have to lose only one trick in hearts, one in diamonds and one in clubs. But it lost to the K. West used his club J and led the diamond 4, the J forcing the A. South a bit later had to lose a trick apiece in diamonds and hearts, being down one.

After winning the club lead and taking three trumps, South should have put forth a small heart, letting the defenders have it. They could have scored a club also, but no more. South would have won any return, and his heart suit would have given him discards of his diamond Q and 2. If the hearts had been divided badly, four and one, he still might have tried the diamond finesse. Trying the finesse before the heart suit, however, made it impossible to set up the hearts for discards.

Hitler's Escape Tended To Lengthen War

LONDON, July 29—(AP)—British military experts still studying the cloudy picture of internal Germany voiced the belief today that Adolf Hitler's escape in last week's bomb plot probably will lengthen the war, but will make the Allied victory more decisive when it comes.

This view is based on the conviction that the armies Hitler now refuses to withdraw can be smashed.

Behind the flood of words from Hitler, Propaganda Minister Goebbels, Labor Leader Ley and other Nazi functionaries lies a story not yet clearly detailed, but these probabilities emerge:

1. That there will be no change in Germany.

2. If Hitler had been killed there would have been a quick withdrawal from the Baltic States, from Northern Italy and from Southern Poland.

3. Probably there would have been a quick peace, because the German generals want to retire within Germany with the nucleus of an army to be built up for another war.

Actually there has been only one change in the German High Command: Col.-Gen. Heinz Guderian as Chief of the General Staff, for Col.-Gen. Kurt Zeitzler, with the injured Gen. Alfred Jodl apparently his deputy chief of staff. Gen. Zeitzler was declared to be ill and there has been nothing to indicate he was lined up with the generals in the plot.

Hitler still is in complete command of the army and Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler has even greater control than before over all the forces stationed inside Germany.

There is nothing yet but conjecture on how significant it is that only a handful of fighting generals have pledged loyalty to Hitler following the assassination attempt.

The name of Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring, the Nazi commander in Italy, is one missing from the list. A British general, commenting on a report that Kesselring was injured on the Italian front, remarked that perhaps he was injured in the hand that writes telegrams congratulating Hitler.

Hunt for Manpower

The Junkers as a class have a sentimental conception of East Prussia and its relation to the military caste system in Germany, but the approach of the Russian armies to its borders is regarded as no more than a subsidiary fact.

Goebbels, in his new role as Reich plenipotentiary for total war, today instituted a great manhunt for soldiers and workers, threatening slackers with "ruthless measures." Military moves indicated that the Nazis were prepared to gamble on total destruction of the German Army and make "holy German soil" a battlefield.

A Goebbels decree commanded all Germans not employed in vital war work to register with draft offices for war jobs by Aug. 15 or "be regarded as outside the German fighting community and face ruthless methods."

Nazi Mass Killings

BERN, Switzerland, July 29 — (AP). — The Nazis are engaged in mass killings of "enemies" among the 12,000,000 foreign workers in Germany and occupied countries, and a Bâsle newspaper declared hundreds of thousands already had been slain.

HAVELOCK, July 29 — (ENS)—Prior to taking up residence in Toronto in the near future, R. A. Miller, who was recently superannuated after a railroad career of 49 years, was the guest of honor at a farewell gathering held in the C.P.R. Recreation Club Rooms here. Mr. Miller was the recipient of a cathedral chime clock and a pen and pencil set from the local shop staff, station staff, enginemen, trainmen and employees of the Bridge and Building Department.

Fred Bennett, night foreman, was chairman, H. W. Roche, agent, read the presentation address, and William McLaughlin, retired carman, of Trent River, presented the gifts and played several violin selections. An address was given by James White, conductor, of Smiths Falls.

Mr. Miller has served for 12 years here as C..P.R locomotive foreman. Arthur Buckland of Toronto takes his place here in that capacity.

Householders Warned To Order Coal Now

OTTAWA, July 29—(CP)—Munitions Minister Howe warned in a statement Friday that unless householders co-operate by placing orders immediately they run a "serious risk" of being without fuel when cold weather begins, and said "substantially less" United States and Welsh anthracite has been received in Canada since the beginning of April as compared with the corresponding period of last year.

The Minister said it will be necessary for householders to burn substitute fuels, and that to make up the shortage of anthracite at least in part the Government had arranged to provide additional supplies of coke for Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces.

American Drive At Gateway To Brittany

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON

The American ground-air attack in Normandy has reached out to do more than snap shut the Coutances pocket on remnants of a German Army corps trapped against the sea. It is within sight of cracking open the Avranches gateway to Brittany, a logical next step in Gen. Eisenhower's developing invasion offensive.

The fall of Coutances, already the scene of street fighting with Nazi rearguards seeking to hold open the six-mile-wide escape corridor down the coast west of the town, was assured. Air observers reported confusion and chaos incident to German flight from the deadly noose so quickly and skilfully fashioned about them.

Might Become Rout

Other American armor well to the south and east of Coutances, poised to drive against Vire and Avranches, could turn the German left flank retreat in France into a rout and sweep the whole Orne-Gulf of St. Malo sector clear of the foe.

That may prove to be what the Allied field commander, Gen. Montgomery, is waiting for on the Caen-Orne end of the line. Caught between two fires, the Nazi commander would have small choice but to run for it, leaving the road to Paris or to the Siene delta open whenever Gen. Montgomery signals his left flank on again to match the break-through advance of his right.

Need New Harbor

It remains to be seen, however, whether Montbgomery's immediate purpose is to reach and force the gateway to Brittany or whether expansion of his front on the left below Caen will be his next move. His prime objective whichever way he turns, is to get new harbor and supply line facilities to serve his expanding army group.

Gen. Montgomery himself has described the Normandy position as it stood until the developing American breakthrough as merely an Allied "lodgment area". The chance to expand it into a large enough zone for offensive operations vastly greater in scope than any yet possible may now be at hand.

A.R.P. Equipment Is Purchased By City Council

From the War Assets Corporation Limited, Montreal, an agency of the Dominion Government, the city council bought Friday night a bill of A. R. P. (Air Raid Precautions) goods at bargain prices to the municipality and obviously a financial loss to the nation.

These articles were allotted to Peterborough from the stock that was ordered by the Government and distributed among towns and cities adopting A.R.P. programs of preparedness in anticipation of enemy action against this country when Hitler was a fearsome colossus threatening the whole world.

Alderman Sullivan, chairman of the fire and light committee, read the list of goods which are to be retained here for the Fire Department, Welfare Department, Board of Works and Utilities Commission.

It was as follows:

One 420 gallons per minute Bickle Seagrave trailler fire pump $750.

Two 150 g.p.m. Bickle Seagrave trailer fire pumps, $425 each, one for the Board of Works and one for the Utilities Commission.

31 first aid haversacks 90c each.

25 steel stretchers $2.13 each.

Total investment $2,136.74.

Questions Pumper Item

Alderman Bradburn pointed a finger at the pumper items and said the city already had two motor pumpers. "When we buy these it seems to me we will be overloaded with pumpers. There is other equipment I think we need more than these machines."

Mayor Hamilton said he agreed with Alderman Bradburn that there was no immediate necessity for these pieces of equipment, but they were obtainable at a bargain, and the big pumper for the fire department could be used for small fires, and any calls to the country.

"We're not supposed to be buying equipment to fight fires outside the city," Alderman Bradburn said. "Let us put this money aside and buy equipment we really need."

"We are getting that pumper at half the cost," Alderman Glover commented.

Alderman Sullivan said he mentioned one of the smaller pumpers to R. L. Dobbin, manager of the Utilities Commission, but Mr. Dobbin at first replied that the Commission would not be interested. Alderman Sullivan then suggested to Mr. Dobbin that he examine the small pumpers before dismissing the idea. Mr. Dobbin did so, and was so impressed by the machine and it price that he asked that one be held for the Commission.

"We have a chassis at the Fire Department on which we can put this pumper, and Chief Gimblett believes that it will be decidedly useful to the Department," Alderman Sullivan explained. "He went over the entire list, and I am presenting the articles for the Department which he recommended for purchase. The blankets are for the Welfare Department, and the second small pumper can be used by the Board of Works."

Alderman Dutton said he had seen the equipment and was impressed by its usefulness at very reasonable figures.

Alderman Bradburn enquired of Alderman Sullivan whether he had money in the fire and light account for the fire department goods.

"With the four extra men we have to engage this year, I'd not like to commit myself on that point," Alderman Sullivan replied. "I believe the fire and light committee would be charged with $1,000 of the total and the rest would be against the Board of Works and Utilities."

Alderman Bradburn: "I think you should strike the 750-gallon pumper off the list. What we do need is better ladder equipment, and we need it badly."

Alderman Sullivan: "The small pumper will save the Department from taking out the larger pumpers, and will be suitable for smaller fires. I understand many municipalities are taking advantage of this opportunity to buy these pumpers. We have been talking about a substation for the Department, and equipment of this kind would be needed and could be used there. I consulted Chief Gimblett on these articles and am acting on his advice."

"The lone wolf," Alderman Bradburn laughingly remarked as the vote for the purchase was taken and he withheld his approval.

Original Price

Negotiations in the margin of the list of articles presumably indicated their original prices, including: firemen's coats $11 each; ¾ length boots $6 a pair; ½ length firemen's boots $3 a pair; tarpaulins $2.50 each; arm splints $7.50 a pair; leg splints $7 a pair; gray blankets $2 each.

A national committee for civilian defense was organized in Canada when the Hun war machine was rolling smoothly over Europe, and cities and towns generally formed A.R.P. committees. Peterborough had some 1,500 volunteers, with courses of instruction and practice copied from Great Britain's experience in standing up to the German air raids. Several blackouts were held in this city, and the A.R.P. system was demonstrated in some similitude of reality.

As everybody happily knows the whole elaborate organization and equipment was never needed.

The Council is informing the War Assets Corporation of its selection and asking for instructions as to when the other articles should be returned.

RECORD MONTH BEHIND RUSSIAN DRIVE — As the Red Army approaches the very gate of Warsaw in one of history's most spectacular surges, something of the accomplishment of a single month can be gathered by noting the darkened area on the map. On June 23, the Russians opened their summer campaign and exactly one month later operating under seven front commands, had pressed 317 miles toward Warsaw from a point east of Mogilev to the further point of penetration north of Brest Litovsk, which has been captured. Since July 23, Lublin has fallen, advances have been made all long the line, but the most sensational gains have been toward Warsaw, as indicated by arrow.

Urge Wider Use For Military Harvest Leave

Kingston, July 29. — The board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday sent a telegram to Minister of National Defence Ralston asking that more military personnel be granted harvest leave to permit them to work on the farms in the Kingston district.

"The directors of the Chamber have been advised that under present military regulations no further Army men are available for farm work, and that men being trained for active service cannot be withdrawn from the period of training to permit them to work on farms during the harvest season," the telegram said. "If crops rot in the fields unharvested it is futile to attempt to stimulate rural efforts for production.

"On behalf of the farmer, who has wrought diligently, city residents who cheerfully have co-operated in rationing, our fighting men who must be fed, and the civil population of our Allies, the Chamber of Commerce urges that if the Gordian knot or routine regulations cannot be untied, it should be cut, and an amending regulation passed authorizing from whatever military sources, even from the training in authority in Military District stream, men be permitted to become available and be impressed by those in authority in Military District No. 3 that they forthwith should go to the aid of those who have labored long and hard to fulfill the Government's requirement for food production. Fifty men, probably fewer, for a week would save the situation. The need is great, and time is flying."

AMERICANS BREAK OUT OF PENINSULA

British Gain Ground At Furious Pace

American Troops Destroy 6 Nazi Divisions

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, July 31—(CP)—British forces swept ahead at what field reports called a furious pace today in a new offensive south of Caumont and to the west a strong American armored force drove deeply into Avrnaches in a dash of 18 miles from last reported positions.

The Americans, after virtually destroying six German divisions and mauling two others, threatened to break into the interior France.

British troops, meanwhile, had scored an eight-mile advance on a seven-mile front south of Caumont.

This British smash had taken Hill 309, the highest point of land yet seized in the invasion—a 900-foot height just east of St. Martin-des-Bresaces, the hamlet of Galet at the point of the salient an a dozen other villages.

Already termed a success by British spokesmen, this offensive was rolling ahead with the support of a sky full of aircraft.

60 Miles Inland

The burst to Avranches, at the angle formed by the Normandy and Brest spurs, closed a new trap on Germans fighting to the north around Granville and along the line of Gavray to Tessy-Sur-Vire threatening to add to the 10,000 prisoners taken since the start of the American offensive last Tuesday.

(The German agency, D.N.B., said the Americans had captured Granville, 16 miles southwest of Coutances and 13 miles northwest of Avranches. Late Allied reports placed the Americans "near" Granville.)

Seizure of pivotal Avranches would

Huns Retreat In Disorder At Avranches

U.S. Units Gain 16 Miles In 24-Hour Battle

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press War Correspondent

WITH THE U.S. ARMY IN FRANCE, July 31 — (AP).— Combined American armored and infantry columns, racing 16 miles in 24 hours through a broken German army, have carried the battle into the streets of Avranches and in effect have broken out of the Cherbourg Peninsula into France.

In seven days Lt.-Gen. Omer Bradley has swung the army down the west coast of the peninsula nearly 40 miles as the plane flies and reached the seaport town which looks across the Bay of St. Malo in Brittany.

Hitler's defeat in the advance of 40 miles from Lessay may have turned into a debacle.

The columns racing southward to Avranches encountered only isolated pockets of resistance, and there was not yet the slightest sign of any German defence capable of checking the offensive, let alone stopping it.

Airforce pilots reported 70 German tanks burning as result of attacks sout hand east of Avranches.

Prisoners have mounted to more than 10,500, with thousands more waiting transportation back to First Army cages.

On the Eastern flank footslogging infantrymen fought eight miles south east of St. Lo., engulfed Torigni-Sur-Vire and pushed on South.

Between these points various smaller gains were made, while on the coast, approximately half way between Countances and Avranches, the town of Granville fell.

But even 1st Army headquarters in the field admitted it was behind time with the situation at the front. Advancing columns pushed south so rapidly they were temporarily out stripping their communications.

The only heavy resistance encountered—along the Vire—was crushed by infantry in a few hours.

What resistance there was at most places was by local commanders who set up two or three 88 mm. guns in attempts to block a road or bridge for a few hours.

Everywhere the 1st Army was on the move with scores of roads clogged with Doughboys. Tank columns were driving ahead with armored infantry attached. Then came the infantry units, rolling forward under clouds of dust. These dealt with pockets by-passed by the spearheads.

For the first time the Germans were being driven from France with the speed they entered it in 1940.

Captured prisoners reported the onslaught reduced companies from 150 to 25 men, and that those remaining lacked the will to fight.

Reds 6 Miles From Warsaw Drive Deep Into East Prussia

LONDON, July 31 — (CP) — The Germans indicated today the Russians may have reached Warsaw proper and their communique acknowledged the fall of the former Lithuanian capital of Kaunas after a fateful Sunday in which other Soviet forces stormed seven miles inside the Suwalki triangle of East Prussia. "At Warsaw, German troops prevented strong Soviet forces from breaking through toward the town," the official Nazi Agency D.-N. B. said.

A Berlin radio commentator said soon afterwards that the Russians were drawn up in an arc six miles from the Polish capital, within sight and easy artillery range of its old spires. A report placed the Red Army 20 miles southeast, but Berlin told of fresh retreats south of the Polish capital.

Kaunas, second city of Lithuania with 152,365 population, lies 35 miles east of the pre-war eastern Prussian frontier, on the Niemen River. Moscow reported Red troops well west of Kaunas and said the Germans were throwing in many fresh men and reserves to halt a Russian push into East Prussia itself.

The German Transocean agency said Friday that Kaunas was evacuated but official announcements did not confirm the move until the announement today in the German high command's communique.

The plunge into the Suwalki triangle, which East Prussia annexed in 1939 after the fall of Poland, carried within 21 miles of the prewar boundary of that German province of the Junkers military caste. Giby, seven miles inside the triangle, was taken by the troops of Gen. Ivan D. Cherniakovsky, 37, a Jewish general.

German reports said Cherniakovsky also was attacking at Augustow, eight miles from East Prussia proper. Moscow said his Third White Russian Army group was plunging forard on a 68-mile front.

Berlin, 335 miles, approximately the same distance that separates Toronto and Montreal by rail.

German Silesia, 125 miles.

The Gulf of Riga, 25 miles.

Krakow, fifth city of Poland, 83 miles.

Radom, 25 miles.

Miriampole, in Southern Lituuania, in the approaches to the Masurian Lake region of East Prussia, 11 miles'

Prices Board Hits Used Cars

OTTAWA, July 31—(CP).—New regulations applying to the sale of used cars were announced today by the Prices Board in a move to check sales at illegal prices. Effective tomorrow, all cars held by dealers must carry a price tag and reports of sales must be made by dealers and private individuals. In addition, individuals advertising a used car for sale must give full particulars, including name and address, full description of the car and the proposed selling price.

Private individuals selling a car cannot insist on a trade-in and dealers cannot require a trade-in as part payment when the prospective purchaser is eligible for a permit for new or used tires. Trade-ins may be required by dealers on sales to other classes of buyers but a reasonable valuation must be given on the car turned in.

Only one car may be purchased in any calendar year by an individual, but a person having five or more cars registered in his name during 1943 is permitted to buy one used car in each calendar year for each five owned by him in 1943.

"We are out to get equitable distribution of used cars at a fair price in order to maintain essential transportation in wartime," J. H. Berry, motor vehicles administrator, said in the board's announcement.

Ceiling prices for used cars remain the same as under the old order, but a reduction from the maximum prices must be made on the basis of the car's condition at the time of the sale.

Purchasers eligible for new or used tires under the rubber control regulations may present a signed certificate to dealers and are then entitled to purchase a used car if the purchaser is prepared to pay cash and the dealer has a car to suit his requirements.

Reinforcements Reach Italy Triquet Returns to Unit

By BILL BOSS—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, July 31 — (CP Cable).—Maj. Paul Triquet, V.C., is back in Italy as reinforcement officer for his old unit, the Royal 22nd Regiment of Quebec. He arrived with a considerable number of other reinforcements for combatant and administrative units in this theatre.

Maj. Triquet, who spent three months in Canada but had only a five-day leave with his family in Cabano, Que., said "It's good to be able to come back and resume the job."

Others returning to Italy for the second time included Lieut. J. H. McDonald of Prescott, Ont., recovered from wounds received in the battle of San Leonardo last December.

Among the boys arriving soon to go into battle for the first time were 19-year-old twins, Ptes. Morley and Meredith Boyd of Wabaushene, Ont., who intend to serve together in the New Westminster Regiment. Two other brothers who hope to stick together are Ptes. William J. and Wilfred A. Tyo, from Applehille, Ont., who reached Italy nine months, almost to the day, after their enlistment.

The boys said the trip was smooth over seas like a billiard table. However, it was hot and those on the decks of the troopships sweltered nightly in temperatures varying from 90 to 100 degrees.

Miss M. F. Dale of St. Catharines, Ont., voluntary Red Cross worker, has arrived here, and medical reinforcements include Capt. Nani Guadagni, Montreal.

"The Bandoliers," a Canadian concert party under Lieut. Hedley Porter of Almonte, Ont., with Sgt. Ronnie White, Grand Falls, N.B., in charge of production, also arrived.

Germans Predict Turk-Nazi Break

LONDON, July 31 —(CP) — German reports indicating to-day the Reich has given up all hope of holding any strings on Turkey. They predicted the Turkish Government would announce Wednesday plans for breaking off economic and diplomatic relations with the Reich.

There were indications, too, that the Germans were losing their grip on Bulgaria.

The Nazi News Agency Transocean said in a Berlin broadcast that German newspapers were carrying full reports from Ankara and Sofia, and had mentioned the possibility of the Allies getting air and naval bases in Turkey. This was an apparent effort to ease the shock at home in the event Turkey takes steps that may lead to her becoming an active belligerent on the Allies' side.

Secret Weapon Takes High Toll

"One of the most fearful instruments of death from America's arsenal of secret weapons" aided the Tinian invaders, War Correspondent Clinton Green reported as Admiral Nimitz announced that Guam's main harbor and airstrip already were in Amercian use.

Security prohibits even a hint as to the nature of the weapon, Green said, but its effectiveness has been proved.

"It is truly fearful and it is extremely doubtful whether any human being within 100 feet of its action would be able to survive," he wrote. "It is easy to foresee the devastation and death which would result from its use on such targets as the crowded cities of the Japanese homeland."

Meanwhile the Far Eastern air force struck significant blows 1,300 miles to the southwest that hit Japanese bases in northwest New Guinea and Hamimahera island, stepping stone to the Philippines.

American warships triumphantly re-entered Guam's Port Apra, former U.S. naval base and the best harbor in the Marianas, after soldiers and Marines cleaned the Japanese out of the harbor's south arm, the Orote Peninsula, and took the 4,700-foot airstrip.

Flying Bombs Come In Batches

LONDON, July 31 —(CP)—Flying bombs hurtled down on the southern counties and the London area during the night, despite night fighter patrols and alert anti-aircraft batteries which knocked down some of the robots in full flight.

The night assaults, which caused a number of casualties, came after a day of sporadic flying-bomb salvoes as the Germans continued their new plan of sending the robots over in batches with lulls between each burst.

London's population was heavily depleted during the week-end by the August Bank Holiday rush to the countryside, and casualties in the metropolitan district apparently were not heavy yesterday.

Fewer U.S. Subs To Be Built

WASHINGTON, July 31 —(AP)— The United States Navy announced a cutback in the submarine building program today and attributed the step to two factors—the loss of fewer submarines than was expected and the need for at least eight other types of ships or weapons.

The announcement gave no figures either on the cutback or the existing fleet of underwater craft. On the basis of submarines known to be building or in commission, however, the American undersea fleet is in excess of 200.

"The reduction will be accomplished by not starting a number of submarines which were scheduled

Labor Unions Oppose Socialism

LONDON, Ont., July 31 (CP)—J. M. MacDonnell of Toronto, former president of the National Trust Company, said in an address prepared for delivery today at a service club (Rotary) meeting here that "organized labor doesn't want socialism" but has an important stake in maintaining freedom of economic action.

"Labor unions are as much a part of the capitalistist system as the principle of limited liability, he said, and labor and agriculture have more to lose than the business man, manufacturer, importer, exporter or salesman or professional man.

Mr. MacDonnell said that the present capitalist system, the main economic characteristic of which is responsible individual enterprise, has great flexibility, but that "we now have a threat to this flexible, tolerant system in the shape of a political body aiming at the controls and rigidity of socialism."

Two kinds of people want socialism, he said, "a few who have debts and are discontinued....and a group of social theorists whose human sympathies are in most cases admirable but who entirely lack political or administrative experience."

"In a word, the C.C.F. is without experience to heavy responsibility or business administration."

Soldiers Want No Armistice

Paper Demands Unconditional Surrender

ROME, July 31 —(CP-Rueter). — The Canadian army newspaper Maple Leaf to-day criticized what it termed agitation on the part of some British newspapers and members of parliment for relaxation of the policy of "unconditional surrender" in order to hasten the end of the war. It said servicemen want nothing but the total defeat of Germany.

"The attempted German uprising was caused by the desire of military leaders to save German lives so that, in a few years, they will have another chance to conquer the world," an editorial said.

"The soldiers in the field want peace just as much and probably a great deal more than the anti-unditional surrender civilians. But the soldiers want complete defeat of the Germans— not just of the Nazis — so that the Boche will never again be able to set the world aflame."

The paper added that if the Germans or any ruling part of them are sincerely anxious for peace, they will accept unconditional surrender.

"There must be no dealings with humbugging Germans this time. It must be everything or nothing," said the Maple Leaf.

3,000 Planes Batter Europe In Widespread Day Swoops

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 31 — (AP). — More than 3,000 American planes, 1,700 of them heavy bombers, attacked the Munich area, central Germany, French airfields and Romanian oil works at Bucharest and Ploesti today after widespread R.A.F. night activity from British bases. While 1,200 heavy bombers and 1,000 fighters from Britain were casting new destruction upon Germany and France today, another force of more than 500 heavy bombers of the U.S. 15th Air Force in Italy struck the Romanian objectives within 180 miles of the Russian front lines.

Other hundreds of planes operated tactically before the advancing Britons and Americans in Normandy. Formations totalling 220 American medium and light bombers attacked a wide area behind the battle zone in spotty weather, striking rail yards and bridges from Domfront to Evreux and as far south as Tpurs.

Munich was the main objective of the British-based armada.

The new raids came after R. A. F. medium and fighter bombers ranged over a wide area in France last night, blasting enemy communications in one of their busiest nights since D Day.

Some of to-day's raiders dropped their loads visually but others encountered thick clouds, forcing them to use overcast bombing technique. The Air Force announcement identified the German targets only as military objectives.

The German raidio Augsburg also an aircraft centre, was bombed.

U. S. fighter bombers in Normandy maintained pressure on German transport in the battle area. The U. S. Ninth Air Force announc-

Chinese Enter Tengchung City

CHUNGKING, July 31—(AP)—Chinese troops have penetrated the city limits of Tengchung, main enemy base in Yuannan province, and are battering at the inner city's ancient walls, behind which 2,000 battle-weary Japanese face extermination, an official American review of operations said last night.

The Japanese made four desperate attempts to break the Chinese ring around the city, a Chinese communique said, but all were repulsed. Fall the inner city, believed imminent, would constitute the greatest victory of the Salween River offensive.

The Chinese high command disclosed that Chinese forces were employing flame-throwers to reduce Japanese strongpoints and the results were excellent.

Tengchung is less than 60 miles southeast of the besieged Japanese stronghold of Myitkyina in Northern Burma, and the Salween troops share with the common goal of reopening an overland route to China.

Nazi Counters Stall 8th Army

By NOLAND NORGAARD

ROME, July 31—(AP)—Counterattacking at every opportunity Nazi infantry and tanks held the British 8th Army in the hills five to seven miles southwest of Florence today at a cost hardly likely to prove worthwhile to the enemy's depleted armies, Allied Headquarters said.

Artillery laid down thundering curtains of fire on German units which lashed out in an effort to knock the 8th Army columns back from Florence's last defences.

Tower of Pisa Destroyed

Huns Use Building For Observation

NEW YORK, July 31—(AP)—BBC said today the Berlin radio had reported the leaning tower of Pisa destroyed by Allied artillery fire. There was no Allied confirmation.

The German broadcast heard by CBS said the tower, "which in medieval times was considered one of the world's seven miracles, has been destroyed by Allied artillery fire." Berlin contended there were no military installations in the tower or near it. Allied dispatches last week said the Germans were using the tower for observation.

Italian editions of the United States Army newspaper Stars and Stripes said last week that "the Krauts have no scruples in using historical monuments to save their skins—first Cassino and now the Leaning Tower of Pisa."

Commenting on this, the Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano asserted Saturday it had never found that Monte Cassino Abbey was used for military purposes, "and the contrary never has been demonstrated to us up to now." (Allied dispatches in May told of piles of hundreds of mortar shells in neat stacks only a few feet from the Abbey's chapel, and of machine gun cartridges scattered on the floors.)

Farm Bill Gets Second Reading

OTTAWA, July 31. — (CP). — Doubt that $200,000,000 would be anywhere near sufficient to keep a floor under all farm products was expressed by John Blackmore, Social Credit House leader, in discussing in the Commons Saturday a bill designed to assure farmers of stabilized prices for their products during the post-war period.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner said that under the bill a fund of $200,000,000 would be placed at the disposal of a three-man board charged with supervising the prices of farm products. The board would prescribe a price at which it would buy the products if the price of any dropped below what was considered a fair return to the farmer.

At its first Saturday night sitting of the present session, the Commons gave the measure second reading and passed through committee all but three of its clauses.

The bill was supported by all parties in the House, but Mr. Blackmore said that while he supported it in principle, he felt money for the fund should not come out of taxation.

"The taxation structure upon the Canadian people is altogether too destructive right now and it must be relaxed," he said. "Otherwise, such a thing as freedom will leave the shores of this country if it has not already done so. To contemplate seriously adding more taxation to the people under a condition like that is simply to contemplate something which borders on lunacy."

Blocks Losses

Earlier, Mr. Gardiner said he considered the bill a means of guaranteeing farmers against losses on their products during the years immediately after the war or in years following the transition from war to peace.

Farmers were unable to obtain high returns for their produce during the war years, and it would be unfair, immediately the war was over, to order them to reduce production to the level at which it was certain the commodities could be sold at a given price.

The Minister said farmers should not be asked to sell at cost of production without consideration of any losses they suffered because of the war or any returns they were denied through wartime controls. Further, it would be unfair to hold that because farmers have an exceptionally good crop during the transition period they should be prepared to accept a low return per unit.

Though giving the measure his support, John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) said that if it was to be "anything more than the promise of a hope there must be something in it to show that the prices farmers are going to receive are going to assure them of at least cost, plus a fair return."

P. E. Wright (CCF—Melfort) said he believed that if speculative markets in Canada were allowed to continue the floor prices board would be unable to operate successfully.

Mr. Gardiner said all opposition parties had claimed they were the first tourge that a floor be placed under farm products, but he did not recall "a single piece of social legislation that ever got into this House through any other medium but the medium of the Liberal party.

Hon. R. B. Hanson (PC — York Sunbury) said the Liberal party had no monopoly on social reforms, and J. W. Burton (CCF—Humboldt) said that if the Opposition gave unqualified support to the legislation it would be failing in its duty.

place the Americans on a springboard for an eastward drive for Paris, 160 miles away, outflanking the remaining German forces to the north, or a southward plunge to lop off the Brest peninsula.

Meanwhile other columns pressed an encircling drive around the obstacle city of Torigni-sur-Vire, 27 miles inland, capturing the hamlets of La Reaviere and La Frectiere to the southeast.

The 5th Parachute and the 77th, 91st, 243rd, 352nd and 353rd German Infantry Divisions were said to have been virtually knocked out of existence by Gen. Bradley's smashing offensive.

In addition, the crack 2nd Elite Guard and Lehr Armored Divisions were believed to have been badly smashed but with enough of their original equipment and personnel to retain their identities.

Aim At Interior.

Thus the remnants of at least eight divisions were being rapidly ground up in the American machine, which appeared to be rapidly completing a 105-mile Allied arc across the base of the Normandy peninsula whence to break into central France.

Back of the most advanced Avranches spearhead, more American armor was splitting a corridor between the Vire and the sea, driving to within two miles of Velledieu, 12 miles northeast of Avranches.

The reach to Avranches was described by a qualfied observer as creating "immense possibilities."

Headquarters discloced yesterday that it was the American 19th Corps, and possibly other units, which broke the back of German defences in the current offensive.

This Corps is the third American one disclosed to be in France. The others are the 5th and 7th.

Besides the 2nd and 3rd U. S. armored Divisions, it was announced that the 1st, 4th, 9th and 30th infantry divisions also are taking part in the push.

There was no indication from field reports that Canadian units—other than supporting aircraft of the R.C.A.F.—were active in the thrust south of Caen.

Last report of positions of Canadian units at the front located them along a three-mile line from St. Andre Sur Orne, on the east bank of the river, to the area of Tilly la Campagne, farther to the east.

Prisoners were reported pouring in by the thousands as the American drive swept forward. Already more than 10,000 Germans have been rounded up since the American offensive started last Tuesday, and understrength remnants of at least eight Nazi divisions are being chewed up rapidly.

Lose 400 Tanks

Avranches is in the right-angle corner formed by the junction of the bases of the Cotentin and Brest peninsulas. If the Americans break through there, they could push straight ahead, cutting off the Brest peninsula, or swing eastward, which would start them into central France, and with the Allied opposite anchor at Caen start to close the pincers on the Germans in a great 70-mile bulge in between.

A pocket of Germans trapped in the Soulles area east of Coutances was being cleaned up quickly. Three times the Germans tried to break out yesterday, losing heavily in men and armored.

The swift advance of the Allied troops was costing the Germans heavily in manpower and material. The Americans alone bagged more than 2,000 prisoners Sunday, raising to more than 10,000 the total taken since the U.S. offensive began last Tuesday. In one sector on the American front 30 enemy tanks were knocked out yesterday. The Germans have lost more than 400 tanks since Tuesday.

The American drive rolled past Brehal, Gavray and Percy yesterday for advances up to seven miles, and the battle-tested tankmen pushed steadily southward toward Avranches, outflanking German defences along the entire Normandy front.

The offensive on the British-Canadian front in the centre of the Allied line, which jumped off at 6:30 a.m., yesterday, was moving forward against tough German resistance and unfavorable terrain south of Caumont.

The 2nd Army's advance carried past St. Jean-Brecu des Essartiers, 4½ miles southwest of Caumont, while a parallel force just to the west captured Les Loges and was moving forward.

Allied planes supported group operations on both sectors of the front Sunday and a terrific aerial barrage by more than 1,000 R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. heavy bombers preceded the British drive.

American infantrymen, teamed with a company of 105-MM. Howitzers, broke the crack SS. Das Reich combat unit's back in a furious battle at St. Denis le Gast yesterday. This climaxed the complete collapse of the German will to fight in a pocket from Brehal to Tessy Sur Vire, 30 miles inland.

The Das Reich troops attempting to break out of the American armored pocket were trapped and slaughtered as the Americans poured murderous fire into them at point-blank range.

A captured order by Field Marshal Keitel revealed the German army was extremlye short of motor transport, largely through losses inflicted by the Allied air forces.

As the American drive continued southward French civilians lined the roads and gave the Doughboys a hysterical welcome. American and French flags appeared as the Germans retreated, and many an American armored vehicle was decorated with flowers. Knife-brandishing French youths helped round up pocketed and isolated Nazi soldiers.

First Army headquarters revealed yesterday that the 2nd armored "hell on wheels" division, once commanded by Lt.-Gen. Patton, and the "3rd armored division were taking part in the sweeping American drive. It was the first time the 3rd division has been in combat. The second led the invasion of French Morocco in November, 1942, and last year took part in the Sicilian campaign.

Huns Withdraw Seven Divisions From Yugoslav Battle Zone

BY JOSEPH MORTON

BARI, July 31 — (AP) — Germany has withdrawn nearly all first-line troops from Yugoslavia and is reshuffling the remainder to mask new northward movements, a reliable report here said today.

Seventeen German divisions were in the country July 1, but only 10 remain now— all but one of them second-rate units—and the force now opposing Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Partisans by the most liberal estimate is less than 350,000 men, the report said.

Besides the 10 German units this force includes an Albanian and three Bulgarian divisions, and scattered Quisling units under such leadership as that the Croatian Dr Ante Pavelic and Field Marshal Milan Nedic.

Field Marshall Gen. Baron Maximilian von Weichs, Nazi commander of operations in Yugoslavia, Albania and Greece, is said to have moved his headquarters northward from Belgrade to Zagreb, and Lt.-Gen. Hans von Kuebler, commander in Yugoslavia, likewise is reported to have switched to the Croatian capital.

The German air force, which has 75 to 100 fighter planes scattered over a half-dozen fields within the country, is said to have established new headquarters at Borovo on the Danube, 35 miles south of the Hungarian frontier. In addition, commanders of the Dalmatian coast garrisons between Fiume and the southern port of Kot.. have received instructions to cancel all contracts for use of buildings and warehourses and to operate henceforth on a day-to-day basis.

On the east coast Polish troops last were reported fighting in the streets of Senigallia, about 40 miles south of Rimini and 90 airline miles from the mouth of the Po River.

Veteran pilots of the desert air force joined the artillery in raining explosives on the attacking Nazi forces south of Florence. Official reports said the enemy suffered heavy losses.

The Germans obviously have succeeded in temporarily warding off the Anzac thrust, which two days ago threatened to crack through the mountain positions and drive into the great Tuscan art centre.

The exact position of the New Zealand spearhead, which at the week-end had penetrated within five miles of Florence's outskirts from the southwest before encountering stiff counter-attacks which forced some withdrawals, was not specified officially.

An Allied spokesman said German Tiger tanks and motorized infantry made a "strong sally" Saturday night into San Michele, seven miles southwest of Florence, but withdrew later to high ground north of the town.

Expensive counter-attacks appeared to be only a "last gasp" delaying action on the part of Florence's defenders. The hopelessness of their position became apparent when an Indian division of the 8th Army cleared an area south of Arno between the Pesa and Elsa rivers, except for a few small pockets of the enemy.

for completion toward the end of the building program," the announcement said.

"The reduction in the number of submarines in the building program does not mean that the over-all navy production program is declining. The total navy program will continue to increase in size at least until the first quarter of 1945. There are eight classes of weapons and supplies which the navy urgently needs at the present time."

The navy said these munitions are: Aircraft carriers and cruisers; new types of assault ships (fast, armed cargo carriers and transports); tankers, bombardment ammunition; rockets for firing from both planes and ships; 40 kilometer guns; machinery for advanced bases, and high octane gas.

"Past and prospective advances in the Pacific limit the area in which Japanese shipping can operate and correspondingly limit the future hunting grounds for our submarines," the navy said. "Therefore the number of submarines which we can profitably employ will be correspondingly reduced."

Alleged Thieves Held By Police

MONTREAL, July 31 —(CP) — Police said to-day they were detaining a Toronto man and a girl, identifield as Harold White, 26, and Jean White, 17, as suspects in a $1,000 purse-snatching at Cobourg, Ont., and an auto-theft at Toronto.

Police said the couple was arrested Saturday at the end of a furious five-mile chase in which five police pistol shotos were fired. A search of the girl by police matron allegedly netted close to $1,000.

Police Chief Willilaim J. Carey of Cobourg who arrived here over the week-end to bring back the suspects said pair were wanted for snatching the purse of Mrs. Adelaide Skinner in Cobourg last Thursday and for theft of a nautomobile at Toronto two days previous.

ed 74 more tanks and 395 other vehicles were destroyed yesterday. Field dispatches said that in some places roads were so cluttered with wrecked German vehicles that American troops were slowed in their southward advance.

Targets of the British medium bombers in northern France last night included Seine River crossings and their approaches, railway installations and river barges.

They operated as far south of the battle area as Tour and Angers, while Mosquitos swung north of Paris almost to the Belgian border, bombing and strafing road movement between Arras, Doullens Amiens and Rouen.

One medium and one Mosquito were listed as missing from the overnight operations. The Mosquitos were credited with downing four German planes during the night, including three JU 88's over the Normandy beachhead.

Weather Thick

Weather over the front remained thick, as was the case yesterday, when clouds forced some of the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. heavy bombers supporting the British drive south of Caumont to return to base with their bombs.

The Allies nevertheless were able to put some British and Canadian heavies, 450 American medium and light bombers, and 250 escorting fighters into the air yesterday to batter the German line between Villers Bocage and Caumont as a preliminary to the new British ground offensive.

Other tactical air units bombed fuel dumps near Argentan and Chateaudun, attacked road transport behind the battle zone and blasted rail targets in the Blois and Orleans regions, bringing the total number of sorties for the day to 2,500.

The 1,000-plane operation in the Caumont area cost one heavy bomber and one medium. Six other Allied planes were lost during daylight operations and six German planes were destroyed in combat over the battle area.

Seven other German planes were shot down in a fierce battle within sight of the Norwegian coast yesterday by six Polish pilots of an R. A. F. Mustang squadron who were outnumbered three to one.

ABOARD ASSAULT TRANSPORT AT SAIPAN, July 31 (CP)—Brought aboard for medical attention during the initial stages of the assault on Saipan, a native-born 20-year-old girl and her 10-day-old son won the hearts of everyone aboard. Both had brawny sailors stumbling over one another to wait on them.

Doctors were in a dilemma as how to feed the baby. A barrel-chested, tattooed cook suggested a can of milk from his galley. A pharmacist's mate tried his hand at fashioning diapers. Coast Guardsmen stalked along on tiptoe in their clumsy work shoes and a Marine guard was posted outside the stateroom to keep away the curious including the ship's mascot, a small black dog named Skipper.

There was an air raid alert shortly after the guests came aboard. The dog barked and the baby cried. The mother "shushed" hers. Amidst the din of the clanging battle alarm, a lanky bo'un's mate turned to a companion and wistfully remarked: "Just like home, ain't it?"

(Wounded)

The young soldier lived in Alnwick Township, about 1¼ miles south-west of Roseneath, and enlisted in the Spring of 1940. After going overseas in June 1943, he transferred to a Highland regiment. He has a wife and son living in Edmonton, and before enlisting, worked on a farm at Bonarlaw.

PTE. ARTHUR W. BEAVER.
(Wounded).

Mrs. Minnie Beaver, Alderville, has received information that her son, Pte. Arthur William Beaver was wounded in action in France, while serving with Queen's Own Rifles. He was wounded July 24, but no additional inormation concerning his wounds were made avalable.

The 27-year-old soldier enlisted in the early part of the war, and went overseas in July 1941. He was educated at Alderville Public School and Campbellford Collegiote, and prior to his enlistment, was employed at Clarkson. Two brothers are serving in the armed forces, Ivan, with the R. C. A. S. C. in Italy, and Elmer, in the corps at Newmarket.

PTE. ROYAL HARVEY
(Wounded)

Mrs. Fanny Blodgett, a telephone operator at Roseneath, has been informed her brother, Pte. Royal Harvery, formerly of Roseneath, has been wounded July 8 in France, but no details were given about his wounds.

He enlisted in the autumn of 1940, in Peterborough in the S. D. and G. Highlanders, and went overseas in 1941. His brother Captain Hampton Harvey, a veteran of the Great War, is a member of the Veteran Guards, and is stationed in Washington.

King Narrowly Misses Death As Mines Explode in Italy

By JOHN F. CHESTER—Fifth Army Advance Headquarters

FIFTH ARMY ADVANCE HEADQUARTERS IN ITALY, July 31—(AP).—Two German mines, stepped on by an American soldier, exploded with a terrific roar Saturday within 300 yards of a table where King George VI of Britain, Lt.-Gen. Mark W. Clark, 5th Army commander; Archbishop Francis J. Spellman of New York, and Gen. Alexander, supreme commander in Italy, were at lunch. Although the concussion was felt clearly at the luncheon table, none of the guests were hurt. The American soldier who inadvertently exploded the mines was killed.

The King had just completed an inspection of an impressive display of 5th Army strength when the explosion occurred.

A 5th Army spokesman asserted the soldier had walked into an area marked "mines," west of Clark's headquarters. He stepped on an anti-personnel mine which was attached to an anti-tank mine.

Striking Display.

He was driven from the airport to 5th Army headquarters, through the ranks of R.A.F. men lining both sides of the road. Then the close-knit roadside screen was taken over by American combat troops.

Then, on a near-by airfield, the King was driven to the far end of a line of American troops, nurses and WACS and all types of equipment, including long 155-mm. rifles pointed skyward, tanks, carriers and armored cars.

The King walked inspection from one end of a ruler-straight line to the other, ausing frequently to talk to the men and women.

Field Investiture.

In simple ceremonies he presented Gen. Clark with the insignia of a Knight of the British Empire. Honorary C.B.S. went to Major-Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, chief of staff, and Major-Gen. Geoffrey Keyes, commander of the 2nd Corps.

Clark, as host, served as elaborate a luncheon as army rations and the countryside could produce. In an open-air setting, the guests had cold roast beef, fresh ham, potatoes, salmon and tuna fish salads, rolls, cheese, intricately built jellyroll cake, watermelon and American bottled beer.

The conversation was animated among the King, Gen. Clark, Archbishop Spellman, Gen. Alexander, Gen. Gruenther and Gen. Keyes and the other guests.

As a gesture to mark his first visit to American troops in Italy, the King abandoned his usual plane and flew over in Gen. Alexander's comfortably converted C-47 transport, which had been flown by an American crew for more than nine months.

British Expect Terror Weapons

LONDON, July 31—(CP)—When Prime Minister Churchill appears before the House of Commons Wednesday he is expected to give Britons a sober and frank warning that the Germans may be ready to launch new terror weapons upon them.

Nazi threats of other "secret weapons" to augment the rockets—including larger flying bombs—are not taken lightly by the government. The Prime Minister is expected to make this clear and possibly give indications of the steps planned to meet them.

At the same time he probably will give the first full official Allied report on what is known of happenings inside Germany and the possible effects.

With Allied armies on the road to victory everywhere and with unrest and uncertainty mounting in the Axis nations, Mr. Churchill's war review probably will be the most comprehensive he has ever given.

Possibility was seen of a debate over demands of some members of parliament, representing all parties, that the enemy be given a clearer indication of the terms to be imposed under the "unconditional surrender" pledge the government has insisted the terms must depend on circumstances of the surrender.

Some discussion may develop over the advisability of reprisals against Germany for flying bomb attacks.

out attack on the Japanese fortress at Mangshih, south of the Burma Road town of Lungling. One Chinese unit has occupied an important hill east of Mangshih, after a 20-hour attack, and "our troops are in control of all the high ground between Hsingta and Mangshih," affording "excellent position and obseration for attacks," the Chinese bulletin said.

Meanwhile American airmen, already credited with an important part in arresting the Japanese drive in Hunan province, scored fresh triumphs in a new series of blows from Hainan Island to Hankow.

In the third attack in a week on Pailuchi airdrome at the northeast corner of Tungting Lake, a Chinese American composite wing destroyed 18 aircraft on the ground, probably destroyed 15 and damaged one. This brought the total losses suffered by the Japanese at this airdrome in the three attacks to 82 planes destroyed, 22 probably destroyed and 13 damaged.

Other planes blasted rail yards at Yochow, Japanese base in Northern Hunan, and attacked airdromes at Hankow and Canton, key Japanese field cities in central and south China.

Senator Bouchard Faces Lawsuit Over Statement

ST. HYANCINTHE, Que., July 31 — (CP) — Maurice Duplessis, Union Nationale Leader, told an election campaign meeting here Saturday that "Senator T. D. Bouchard has given the shameful spectacle of a bird dirtying its nest" when the latter in the Senate warned against the subversive activities of the Order of Jacques Cartier.

Mr. Duplessis was addressing a meeting held in favor of Ernest Chartier, Union Nationale candidate for St. Hyacinthe County, in the Aug. 8 Quebec general elections.

Mr. Chartier said he has taken a court action for $10,000 against Senator Bouchard, who in the latest issue of his weekly paper, Le Clarion published here, said that Mr. Chartier was one of the member-founders of the secret Order of Jacques Cartier.

Advertising Space

Mr. Chartier said he had bought advertising space in the order's organ, L'Emerillon, but that he never was a member of the order, and that his action for damages was taken on those grounds.

The leader of the Union Nationale Party said Premier Adelard Godbout, who dismissed Senator Bouthe Quebec Hydro following the the Juebec Hydro following the latter's speech in the Senate, had not said a word about him when he held a meeting here this week, because "Bouchard and Godbout are still working hand in hand."

Mr. Duplessis said that a vote given in favor of R. O. Picard, the Liberal candidate in St. Hyacinthe, and to whom he referred as "Bouchard's instrument," would be a vote "against the clergy, whom Bouchard has so shamefully insulted."

Wants Provincial Radio

JOLLETTE, Que., July 31.—(CP).—Maurice Duplessis, Union Nationale leader, said in a political address here Sunday that "the Union Nationale party when returned to power Aug. 8" in the Quebec general elections "will establish a provincial radio broadcasting system."

Mr. Duplessis was premier from 1936 to 1939 before the Union Nationale administration was defeated and a Liberal Government returned.

Mr. Duplessis added that "we will also put an end to the trust of newspapers in this province."

His references to a provincial radio system came after an attack on the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, over whose networks Mr. Duplessis claimed he had been prevented from speaking in the general provincial elections of 1939.

"I was the premier of this province and I was refused the right to use the facilities of the CBC because I was told I would have to submit a text of my address for approval," he said. "These people knew very well that I never speak with a text, and I should have been obliged to furnish in advance a text containing my charges against the same people."

The leader did not elaborate on the reference to the "trust of newspapers," but went on to attack wartime censorship, which he said was the "worst ever known in any country."

He said the Union Nationale would "re-establish in the province of Quebec the true freedom of speech and thought" which it had lost through the administration of Premier Adelard Godbout.

Carey was notified on Saturday that a man and woman, with a blue coupe, answering to the description of the pair wanted in connection with a purse snatching incident which occurred here last week, had been picked up in Montreal. The chief went down early Sunday morning to see if they were the wanted two. Last week Mrs. Adeline Skinner of Port Hope was robbed by a purse snatcher shortly after she had left the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. Ling on Ball street. The thief was dressed in a soldiers uniform and when last seen had entered a blue coupe about two blocks from the scene and had driven away. With him in the car was a dark-haired woman.

Canucks In Action

WITH THE CANADIAN BOMBER GROUP IN ENGLAND, July 31 — (CP Cable)—Scores of R.C.A.F. bombers flew in the air armada that blasted the German lines with high explosives before opening the British 2nd Army's new offensive in Normandy yesterday. Election Dirty Godbout Says

THREE RIVERS, Que., July 31.—(CP). — A great and prosperous Canada can be built on "good understanding" between French and English-speaking Canadians, but inter-racial hatred "can sterilize our future," Premier Godbout said here Sunday in an election campaign address.

Speaking in the home constituency of Union Nationale Leader Maurice Duplessis, Mr. Godbout said that the "coming men" of the Dominion are "not those who hate others, but those who want to live in peace and harmony with their neighbors."

"It is my desire that democracy continue to be loved and respected in this country," the Premier said. "That is why we preach against intolerance and hatred, and why we preach in their place charity and cooperation. Authority within the family, unity within the family, will make up the strength of the Canadian nation."

The Premier said his political opponents were still "sowing hatred and division" and he said some of them had "sworn to destroy me personally." He termed the current campaign the "dirtest campaign ever waged against a party or a man."

"But I never saw any one who gained a good reputation by trying to demolish the reputations of others," he said.

Mr. Godbout said he had been warned that if he came to Three Rivers he would not be permitted to speak.

"Well, I'm here and I'm speaking," he said amid laughter. "This seems to prove I'm not nervous. We intend to speak to the people of Quebec everywhere. But I trust that you don't expect us to use against our opponents the tactics they use against us. A political campaign is not a boxing match."

He Still Serves

SARNIA, July 31—(CP).—A Sarnia airman, almost broken-hearted when he was grounded because of impaired eyesight after service with the ferry command, is said to have turned his misfortune into an advantage and invented a device that is still on the secret list. Distilleries Start On 24-Hour Basis

WASHINGTON, July 31—(AP).—In the 31 days beginning tomorrow, United States distillers expect to produce about as much whisky and gin as are ordinarily made in a full year.

This is possible, liquor sources said today, because distilleries will be on a 24-hour basis and their facilities have been vastly expanded by their war production of alcohol. In normal times they operated only a few months of the year.

About 40,000,000 gallons of high-proof alcohol are expected from the one month holiday granted the distilleries by the War Production Board. Most of this will be blended with stocks now aging.

Bring Back The Pillory?

Our attention was caught recently by this letter, which appeared in the Birmingham Mail over the initials J.J.:

"Sir,—Often in these days we talk of a new world, but to obtain a better state we must first institute, or re-institute, a few means of public chastisement.

"Many of us, all young, agree that the present quickly-hushed-up, niggling and often misguided court sentences should be brought to an end. We feel that a public shaming would do much more good as punishment for many, many evil-influencing weaklings and blackguards—such as those guilty of sottish drunkenness, public lechery and immodesty, slander, blackmarketing, etc. (need I prolong this indelicate list?), and the main instrument of this public justice should be the pillory. This, I know, will arouse some criticisms—suggestions of mediaeval barbarism, puritanical oppression, and so on. But I would like those critics to weigh against this the terrible moral abandonment of the day, the hypocrisy, and the general acceptance of unashamed, unconcealed evil".

J.J., whose style suggests that the writer may be a woman, belongs to that large class which believe in extreme severity of punishment as a deterrent from ill-doing, and who are very likely to make themselves heard in wartime, agitating for the return of the lash, or the pillory, or some other spectacular and cruel instrument of public vengeance. Such people get a hearing because in wartime the cream of the country is busy in the services, or preoccupied with war work in some civilian occupation; consequently the second-raters and the cranks are not so vigorously attacked as they would be in times of peace.

No nation ever takes a single step backward; when it retreats it goes a long way. Bring back the pillory, and there is no logical reason why we should not return to the old punishment of cutting the ears off anyone whose political opinions are not those of the majority. Put women in the pillory for immodesty, and we shall soon return to the old sumptuary laws which would tell us all what we might wear. Resort to public ridicule as a punishment, and we cannot tell what direction that ridicule will take.

When we think of the pillory, we always see it occupied by a slight and desperate figure who, in his day, dared to disagree with public opinion and popular patriotism; he was Daniel Defoe, best known as the author of Robinson Crusoe, but a great journalist in his generation. The pillory was for thieves, cheats, bawds, drunks—and people who did not agree with majority opinion. Bring back the pillory, and it will be used for exactly the same purposes. Do we want to take that backward step?

In the day of the pillory there was another instrument of public humiliation which was very popular—the ducking-stool. Women who talked too much or abused their neighbours were tied to it and ducked in a pond. Would J.J. like to see the ducking-stool in use again?

No; we must take the hard way of education and advance, if we want to make the world better. Nothing is gained and the work of centuries is lost if we walk backward.

Landlords And Children

Every once in a while the matter of landlords and children makes its appearance in the press and a few editors have their say, some championing the landlord—the Ottawa Journal is a staunch friend of landlords — and the greater number striking a blow for the children. A popular contention is that landlords who will not rent to families with small children are heartless brutes, and that legal steps should be taken to make them do so. Children, it is pointed out, must have homes, and the man who denies a child a roof over its head is an inhuman monster—and much more to the same effect.

But landlords are also the children of God—a fact which is too often forgotten, even by landlords themselves—and their rights of property must be respected. No one who has brought up a family, or who is bringing one up now, will deny that children are very hard on a house, even when they are not actively destructive. They mar the wallpaper and the paintwork, they jar the plaster loose—a 40-pound child treads more heavily than an elephant—they weaken the door hinges, they poke holes in the fly-screens—they do a thousand things which are destructive and it is quite impossible to prevent them from doing so. What is a landlord to do? Raise the rent? That is most undesirable, and at present it is impossible.

But we think that the problem could be solved. Why not establish a recognized and uniform rental form which would be filled up by a J.P. or some other suitable authority in every case of rental; the form could stipulate that a sum for dilapidations, based upon the rent, should be paid when the tenant decided to move. This would remove the landlord's grievance in most cases, and it would make tenants more careful of rented property, for if the landlord did not think that his dilapidations claim was enough he could always refuse to accept it and make a claim in court for more money; there are people who are very careless of rented property.

The objection to this plan is that it adds yet another form to a world which already has too many forms, cards and certificates. But it might do a great deal to remove the prejudice against renting to families with children by cutting out an injustice to the landlord.

His Majesty Travels

"A king's a king, do fortune what she can", wrote Michael Drayton. Our present King, by his courage during the air attacks on Britain, his devotion to duty, and his present anxiety to go wherever the men of the Empire are fighting, shows clearly that if he were not a King he would certainly be one of the King's most devoted, brave and meritorious servants. Last week he made an extensive tour of the part of Italy which is in the hands of the United Nations, seeing everything, making awards, cheering the troops and in every way doing a magnificent job. Not only is George VI a king; he is also kingly.

During recent months we have seen very few newsreels which did not contain a few pictures of the King and Queen Elizabeth discharging some of the many duties of their great position. But not all of these duties are obligatory. It is not necessary, it is not expected, that the King should make frequent visits to the hospitals where the victims of rocket bombs lie, but he does it all the same. The strain involved in such visiting is very heavy. Something must be said to cheer the poor souls who have suffered so heavily through enemy action; bereaved people must somehow be comforted; people who have lost the accumulated comforts of a lifetime must be faced and encouraged. Most of us shirk these duties on the comparatively few occasions when we are called upon to perform them; the King and the Queen do them every day, for long hours, and they do them with unfailing sympathy and graciousness.

It was during the First Great War that King George V and Queen Mary made a sure place for themselves in the hearts of their people by their great humanity; their successors are worthy continuers of a great tradition.

Churchillian Invective

Speaking to an audience of servicemen in Normandy Mr. Churchill called Hitler a name which several million other English-speaking people have called him ever since the war began; he was reported as having called him "the old bounder", which Canadian Press calls "a rough approximation of the word he used"; only very delicately nurtured people will have difficulty in guessing what the word was. Once again Mr. Churchill proved himself a master of the perfectly descriptive epithet.

He could not have used such language on the CBC, of course; the motto of that organization seems to be "All the bad grammar you please, but no bad words". He could not have used it before a mixed audience. But he was entirely right to use it in speaking to an audience of fighting men, for it showed them that their Prime Minister shared their feelings and spoke their language.

What we like about Mr. Churchill, among other things, is his sturdy streak of vulgarity; there is nothing of the Nice Nelly about him. He called Mussolini "Hitler's meanest utensil"—as delightful a locution as we have ever heard, and he called Hitler a name which, in a family paper, we can only shroud in the decent disguise of 'bounder'.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A report from the U.S. Senate says 'Mrs. Caraway To Lose Desk'. The reporter was too delicate to write, 'Mrs. Caraway To Lose Seat'.

Farming News and Views

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

WE have all heard of "The wind that shakes the barley," but we have surely experienced for some days the wind that dries the fall wheat and oat stooks or the late hay, and it has certainly done a good job. July is more than half over and we have had few "muggy days." Close, hot weather has been largely absent. A vigorous electric storm blew up on the evening of July 19, and brought a downpour of rain. This storm produced hail around Orillia; the area was limited, but a thorough job was done where it hit. A market-garden district was almost completely destroyed and damages are estimated as high as $100,000. This is what the vagaries of the weather occasionally do to farming. A heavy downpour of rain, with some light hail, visited the Ottawa district on the 20th.

There is a fine second crop of alfalfa in Ontario and farmers, who are in the pig business, should save some of this for their young pigs in winter and also for brood sows. It will be excellent for calves and lambs and will offer a protein supplement which will be all too scarce this coming winter. Lucerne, as it is called in England, has never caught on very extensively in that country. The scarcity of feeds rich in protein has, however, given this fodder plant a great impetus across the ocean during the last two years. Three cuts could easily be obtained in England, as clover hay mixture is frequently cut three or four times, particularly when used for ensilage. J. H. Robinson, of Rodmell, Lewes, Sussex, England, always figures on getting four or five cuts from his fields of grass and clover each year—getting the first about May 25. This makes a very substantial yield of high-class feed.

I NOTICE from the comments made by British farm journals on recent agreements made by Britain for the importation of foods that there is general approval of that with Canada for cheese and bacon. These are two things of which Britain is unable to supply her home demand and both Canadian cheese and bacon have satisfied the British purchasers to a high degree. Trade can only succeed when you please the purchaser, and all the comments I have seen would indicate that we now have a sound basis to be going on with. As to what measures of greater freedom of trade we may expect it is too early to calculate, but foodstuffs, such as these that the British nation will need to continue importing are practically certain to continue free, and no other country, except Denmark, is likely to be an important competitor with Canada.

AS one would expect, the heavy cattle being fed during the past year or two in England are losing popularity as home-killed beef with both butchers and consumers. These cattle have been graded, for some years, upon their killing-out percentage. The result has been over-fattening, and heavy carcasses full of tallow have been marketed. The Lancashire butchers have protested against "cattle as big as elephants and sheep as big as donkeys." The demand is made for a grading on a similar system as that used for pigs, where quality counts, and pigs when they go over 200 lbs. are placed in a lower scale.

It was pointed out that recently store cattle sold as high as £38, about $167.20 each, and that these cattle must be ready for slaughter; but more feed was given them which meant a waste of fodder, and a waste of fat when the meat arrived at the butcher shop. Such carcasses could not be cut up economically either to the satisfaction of the purveyor or the purchaser. People had become accustomed to smaller joints and were going to demand a return to that custom.

THE more or less general adoption of artificial insemination in the breeding of cattle is bringing about the use of better bulls, in many cases, and so improving the cattle wherever the system is used. Any centre established for this purpose must have the best of bulls to secure any considerable patronage. Cattle breeders will only spend money for this breeding practice if they can introduce the blood of greatly improved bulls into their herds. The work done in this line at the Ontario Agricultural College has been productive of very good results. This practice was started with Millhills Ransom and has spread to other breeds, and should be further used as a means of improvement in breeding cattle.

WATERCRESS beds in streams in England have found themselves subject to taxation. It was urged that this plant was not a product of the land, but it was shown that some watercress beds rented for £35 per annum yielded a profit of £826, and there would not be much cultivation for such a crop.

THE British Government has made a four-year guarantee of prices for the whole output of milk and meat at not less than those existing at the present time. This seems to include only fat cattle, calves and sheep in its meat category—no mention being made of pigs.

Actual prices, which may exceed the present amounts, shall be settled year by year in the light of all relevant circumstances, after consultation with representatives of the appropriate farmers' organizations. Wool is not included in this arangement and sheep breeders are protesting on this account, as are pig producers, because bacon is not in the list. Further changes will likely be made.

SOME revision has been made in list of grades and weights of pigs in Canada. The weights are of dresed hogs and a Grade A or select carcass must be between 140 and 170 lbs. and must be up to quality. Grade B1 must be between 135 and 175 lbs.—that is a five-pound larger margin is allowed for both light and heavier hogs, and the quality must be nearly approaching that of Grade A. Grade B2 varies in weight from 125 to 134 lbs. and will be more properly classed as a butcher's pig. Grade B3 are from 175 to 185 lbs. and are distinctly good heavies. Grades C and D are from 120 to 185 lbs. and will be off-bacon type. There are three other grades—lights from 119 lbs. down, haevies from 186 to 195 lbs., and extra heavies 196 lbs. and over.

The Dominion Government is now paying a bonus of $3 per hog on Grade A, or selects; and a bonus of $2 per pig on B1 hogs. This is done in an effort to improve the grade by paying extra for it, and there is no better plan. With this substantial bonus, which on a select pig, with 150-lb. carcass, amounts to two cents per pound, it is highly important that the grading should be carefully and accurately done, as it means money to the grower and finisher of good bacon hogs. I have no fault to find, personally, with the graders now employed. I do not happen to know a single one of them, but those who know the packing business understand how impossible it is to have the grading done accurately in the time now taken for it. In the Denmark curing establishments, before the war, the graders always measured the back fat, because Denmark wanted an accurate grading. These men who are to do the work in Canada must be given the time to do it carefully, and until they are, the production of bacon in Canada must suffer. Of course, the pig raisers in Denmark owned all the curing plants except two or three, and there were a great many of them; consequently, they had perfected their plans for grading, and Denmark led the world in this business.

WHEN THIEVES FALL OUT —By Goldberg

The Decline Of Mustard

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

THE statesmen, politicians and economists all seem to have overlooked one of the major problems of the war. Even the public, I regret to report, is singularly indifferent to it. I mean, of course, the decline of mustard.

Before the war mustard was a simple article of commerce. It had no complicated traditions and it involved no controversies. You did not argue about it, as of the virtues of old wine or tobacco. You just bought mustard. Then the chemists, pursuing their ruthless campaign to reorganize the world in their test tubes, finally discovered mustard. That was the end of it. Having exhausted every other field of human development, having made automobiles out of soya beans and sausage casings out of pine trees, the chemists had nothing else to do. So they applied their devilish ingenuity to mustard.

The results were first detected by an investigator whom modesty forbids me to name. Suffice it to say that this investigator suddenly found, about two years ago, that mustard no longer retained its fine old virgin flavour but had been polluted by the addition of some harmless drug which the chemists had added to improve its taste. I cannot describe this ingredient except to say that it tastes like the smell of expensive perfume. Now perfume is all right in its place, on a beautiful lady, but not in a mustard pot. Glamour should not be added to roast beef. Sex appeal should be forgotten when you sit down to enjoy a baked ham. Women should be kept out of it altogether, except in the cooking.

NO lover of mustard will eat the modern improvement. The real palates of the nation have given up eating mustard altogether. As mustard is essential to the consumption of many meats, these men of taste have practically stopped eating and are slowly starving to death for their principles. But nobody gives them any credit, for it suddenly apears, on serious study, that the nation at large has no palate at all and actually likes the glamorous new mustard. The manufacturers of mustard, therefore, need have no fear of losing business. The public has accepted glamour with its dinner.

This is a discovery shocking to sensitive men, but its truth is proved by all the public opinion polls. This investigator personally has studied the people's reaction from coast to coast. He has followed the scent of mustard across the entire continent, sniffing it like a hound dog. And in countless restaurants, hotels and dining-cars he has sought out the opinion of the Canadian people by skilful and insinuating questions.

Without prejudicing the public by expressing an opinion himself, with the deceptive innocence which all poll-takers must cultivate, he has asked casually what the man across the table thinks about the mustard. It turns out that he has never thought about it at all and is surprised to be asked. This in itself is a serious sign of decadence for, as Dr. Johnson said, or should have said, a man who does not think of mustard seldom thinks at all; and while Charles Lamb confessed that he had no ear, he proved the virtues of his palate in his immortal struggle with roast pork. Classical study will reveal that the history of our British race is largely built around mustard, but the Canadian citizen has stopped thinking about it.

And when he does think about ti, when he is plied with questions, when he is told frankly that the chemists have spoiled the mustard, a still more disquieting fact is disclosed. For the man across the table, sampling the mustard on his tongue says, if he is honest, that he cannot see anything wrong with it.

HENCE the deep despair of the world's future among the Canadians who know mustard when they taste it. There are not many of them, about half a dozen, according to my latest reckoning. We have rushed together in brotherhood and formed a secret lodge, and when any man is discovered who will admit that mustard is not what it used to be he is embraced and enters the inner circle. It is our intention ultimately to bootleg the true elixir, if we can get it, to smuggle it secretly across international boundaries, to dispense it under cover of night in dark basements, to build up a mustard elite and then to move in and take over the government.

We do not go in for complicated national plans as the C.C.F. does. We do not intend to Make This Your Canada. We just intend to make the people eat mustard again. It is not a crusade to save the nation, but only to save the national palate. I confess that the national palate shows no special desire to be saved.

At It Again

WHAT started out as a polite squabble between the Toronto Telegram, and the Globe and Mail over who was or was not pushing Mr. Bracken around seems to be developing into quite a brawl.

The rift between the Tory organs started when the Telegram picked up an Ottawa story to the effect that the Tory party was seething with indignation over the efforts of Premier Drew and Mr. McCullagh, publisher of the Globe and Mail, to control Mr. Bracken.

The Globe and Mail, which had remained stiffly silent over the Ottawa publication of the story, let out a bleat when the Telegram picked it up. Mr. Drew refused to see a Telegram reporter seeking comment, but gave a statement to the Globe and Mail. This irked the Telegram.

Mr. Bracken came up with a statement that all this was a deliberately inspired campaign to create an impression of disunity in the party. He indicated he may make a further statement. This pleased the Telegram, which pointed out that Mr. McCullagh was reputed to sit on the Tory finance committee. How, it wondered, did he get there? And do Progressive Conservative party committees meet in the Globe and Mail office?

Mr. McCullagh as yet has not replied to this question, but the Toronto Star has entered the spat to scatter some burning oil on the water. It has dredged up a couple of comments of other papers on Mr. Bracken. It quoted the Conservative Stratford Beacon-Herald as saying a Bracken speech was a disappointment and left a negative impression of his calibre as a public man. Then it quoted the Midland Free Press-Herald as saying Mr. Bracken lacks color and on the platform he does not click.

Neither the Globe and Mail nor the Telegram has replied to the Star's heckling, but if they do, a first-class brawl seems likely to develop in Mr. Bracken's backyard. And just when it was so quiet and peaceful there, too.—Winnipeg Free Press.

Unconsidered Trifles

As the inquisitive man sat on the seat in the park he watched a shabby individual coming along picking up cigaret-ends.

Then the tramp sat down on the seat and began sorting his spoil. Presently he threw quite a long one away. This was too much for the curious looker-on.

"Excuse me," he said. "That looked a good one. Why did you throw it away?"

The tramp drew himself up proudly and replied:

A young and nervous clergyman was about to preach his first sermon. He stood in the vestry fingering his collar and wondering if his hair was tidy. He noticed there was no mirror on the wall.

"Could you get me a glass?" he whispered to the verger.

"I'll do my best," said the man.

The young clergyman waited patiently. Presently the verger returned with something under his coat. "I managed to get a whole bottle," said the verger, "by using your name."

MILLIONS OF MEALS

To provide materials for the millions of meals served on Canadian National Railways dining cars calls for gigantic shopping operations on the part of the commissary department. For instance, last year Canadian butchers were called upon to supply 1,947,006 pounds of meat; more than half a million pounds of fowl were bought and almost the same quantity of fish. Milk purchases ran to 157,763 gallons; butter to 183,556 pounds; 41,257 pounds of cheese were needed and 290,914 dozen eggs. More than half a million loaves of bread were baked for C.N.R. dining cars. Coffee purchases totalled 99,763 pounds and tea 16,135 pounds. Nearly 300,000 pounds of sugar were used.—C.N.R. Bulletin.

IN A BIG JOB

Helping Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory, our Air C.-in-C. for the invasion, there is a woman—a woman with the energy, the quick wits and the resourcefulness of a first-rate organizer.

Her name is Lady Elizabeth Freeman. She is Leigh-Mallory's secretary, and none of our air invasion secrets are secrets to her.

She lives, as Leigh-Mallory does himself, at the Invasion Air H.Q., somewhere in this country. Her home is her office. When she has time to sleep it is there that she sleeps.

On D-Night, neither she nor Leigh-Mallory had a moment's sleep. They were up all night long; most of the time was spent in the invasion Operations Room.—London Evening News.

A Bible Message

For I reckon that the sufferings of the present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us. For the earnest expectation of the creature waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God....

And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose.....

Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword?.... Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us.

For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord. (Rom. 8: 18, 19, 28, 35, 37-39.)

Yeah, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me....

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever. (Ps. 23: 4, 6.)

Letter To The Editor

THE BULLDOG BREED

Sir,—I have noticed your item re the Lord Mayor of London, who kept to himself the news that his son had been killed in action, as the father attended an Official Reception in Oxford. The Lord Mayor did not desire to cause people any distress. As an Englishman permit me to thank you for alluding to the incident as an example of the actions of the English as "The Bulldog Breed."

May I remind you that the fellow countrymen of Lady Peel (Miss Beatrice Lilly), can refer to her as mother of the Bulldog breed although she is a Canadian. It was just before her appearance at one of the London Music Halls that she received the official notice from the British War Office that her only son and a pilot in the R.A.F., had been killed in action. She did not sidestep her engagement, but went straight on to the stage and went through with her "Turn." Such people are beyond praise. We shall remember them long long after the saboteurs and sneak-thieves who are trying to disrupt our Empire have all been forgotten.

Yours truly,
PHILIP BELLOWS.

C. J. Brady Weds Former Teacher

MARMORA, July 31 —(ENS) — A wedding of local interest was solemnized in the Holy Name of Mary Church, Marysville on Saturday morning when Charles James Brady, son of Mrs. Brady and the late James Brady of Marmora was united in marriage to Mary Helen Josephine McHenry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. McHenry of Lonsdale. The bride is a former member of the Marmora High School staff. Rev. C. F. O'Gorman officiated and the wedding music was played by William Power. Mrs. F. Franklin of St. George, Ontario, was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a madonna blue crepe frock with collar and reveres in navy. Her navy half hat was trimmed with blue flowers and veiling and her corsage was of white roses. She carried an ivory prayer book and rosary.

Miss Norah McHenry attended her sister as bridesmaid in a navy crepe ensemble with a matching half, hat misted in veiling and a corsage of cerise roses. Frederick Johnston of Marmora attended the groom.

Following the ceremony, the ceremony, the bride's mother received at her home in a powder blue crepe two-piece dress while the groom's mother had chosen for the occasion, navy flowered silk with accents of white. For the wedding trip the bride donned a navy shantung suit, trimmed in red and white with navy accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradley will reside in Marmora.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

At this time of the year when we have so many different kinds of fresch vegetables, the family get rather tired of having them served just in the ordinary way with meat. It is nice to serve vegetable pie, and I assure you it will take so well with the family that you will be asked for a repeat order, a few days after you have served it the first time. Just vegetables cooked in the usual way, no meat served with them does not take so well with a family, especially if there are younger ones at the table, but I am to-day going to give you a vegetable recipe that both old and young will enjoy. It's a vegetable pie. Try it soon and see if I am not right when I say the family will ask you to have it again soon.

Vegetable Pie.

Cook two or three kinds of vegetables and put them in a baking dish. Give them a meat flavor by pouring over them some meat broth that you have had left over from the day before. Thicken the broth with a little flour mixed with cold water and top the vegetables with either a thick layer of mashed potatoes or biscuit dough, dropped in round balls on top of the vegetables. Put in the oven and bake until the dough is a golden brown. This tempting and tasty vegetable pie will be a very filling one-dish meal and you will get the meat flavor as well.

One Dish Dinner.

Wash and drain 1¼ cups dried beans. Soak 6 hours or over night in four cups water. Add ¼ cup of finely cut onion, ½ teaspoon salt. Cover and boil slowly for 2 hours or until beans are tender. Stir in mixture, 2½ tablespoons flour, 3 tablespoons water, then add 1½ cups meat put through the food chopper (left over meat). Boil two minutes or until it thickens. Add ½ cup of milk. Heat thoroughly, but do not boil. Serve at once.

Fluffy Meat Loaf.

1½ lbs. gronud beef, 2 cups of bread crumbs, 1 egg (beaten), 1½ cups of milk, 4 tablespoons chopped onion, one tablespoon horseradish, one tablespoon catsup, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Pack into greased bread loaf pan and bake 1½ hours in moderate over (350 degrees). Scalloped potatoes are delightful served with this beef loaf.

Shepherd's Pie.

Three cups leftover beef cut in cubes, 2 cups leftover vegetables (onions, celery, carrots, peas), 2 cups thin white sauce, 2 cups of mashed potatoes, 1 tablespoon of butter, seasoning. Mix meat and vegetables with white sauce. Pour into greased baking dish, cover with mashed potatoes. Bake in a moderate oven for 12 minutes. Serve at once.

Mona Gibson Wed At Murray St.

A pretty wedding took place in Muray Street Baptist Church, Saturday, when Mona Lermont Gibson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Gibson, Simcoe street, became the bride of Raymond C. Jackman, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Jackman of Lakefield. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe officiated, in a church decorated with summer flowers and ferns. Stanley Northrop was at the organ, and accompanied Mrs. D. Jackman when she sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was becomingly gowned in Chantilly lace over Duchess satin, made on princess lines, with Sweetheart neckline, long sleeves, and finished from neck to waist with tiny self-covered buttons. She wore a veil of white net, and carried a shower bouquet of Bettertime roses.

At the reception held at Hooper's Palm Rooms, the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a mauve figured sheer gown, a white straw hat trimmed with velvet, and a corsage of yellow roses. Also receiving was the groom's mother, in navy blue crepe, with white accessories.

For a trip to the Haliburton Highlands, the bride chose a white and green linen suit with white and tan accessories. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Jackman will make their home in Lakefield.

Friends Honor Bride-To-Be

Mrs. Clarence Hughey, 483 Albert street, was hostess for a miscellaneous shower recently, in honor of her sister, Miss Fern Lewis, whose marriage takes place early in August. During a social evening, the bride-elect received many lovely and useful gifts from her friends, and refreshments were served.

Those present included: Mesdames A. Covert, M. St.Thomas, Gibson, M. Godfrey, I. Mumford, M. Covert, E. Thomas, S. Sarginson, E. Morrison, F. Covert, M. Vogel song, M. Ross, and Misses Muriel Tripp, Sylvia Gibson, Rhea Lewis, Anne Watson, Jean Bowne, Evelyn St.Thomas and Audrey Killingbeck.

Bride Is Wed In White Sheer

Standards of gladioli, dahlias and snapdragons formed the setting in St. James' United Church on Saturday for the wedding of Beatrice Alice Doleman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Doleman, 338 McGill street, and Willard Everett Westman, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Westman, R. R. 3, Peterborough. Rev. F. W. Craik officiated, and the wedding music was played by C. E. Lapp.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attractively gowned in street-length white sheer, a white net veil caught to her head with orange blossoms, and carrying an arm bouquet of Bettertime roses. Miss Irene Coleman was her sister's bridesmaid in a pink sheer dress and a rose flower cap. She carried a nosegay of mixed summer flowers. Little Carole Anne Doleman, niece of the bride, was a dainty flower girl frocked in pale yellow, with a halo of yellow flowers in her hair and carrying a nosegay of mixed summer flowers. Earl Westman, brother of the groom, was best man.

JUMPER NEWS—Girlish and charming, the jumper has become part of the wardrobe of the younger woman. Nice on its own as a sun frock, it takes just as kindly to a blouse. Eleanor Parker models this neat little jumper dress with a square neck fore and aft. It is of fine flannel in lime yellow and here it is worn with a simple, soft batiste blouse.

For Tuesday, August 1

A DAY OF extremes, conflicts and probably depressions, and sense of limitation is read from the ruling planetary symbols, although the culmination of the frustrating and disturbing circumstances may be one of high fulfillment and gratifications. The very attempt to vanquish obstacles, by shrewdness, determination, fortitude and perseverance may prove the power to turn obstacles into achievement and impediment into worthwhile objectives. The energy and good sense liberated may attract the support and generosity of those in high places, who encourage the quest for cherished goals. Enhanced prestige and popularity both professional and personal, should climax sturdy efforts, but be keen to snares.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are encouraged to concentrate the energies, resources and talents on the achievement of cherished ambitions and desires although such happy climax must be wrested from tenacious obstacles, static and "frozen" conditions and either limitations or depressions. This may be accomplished by determined will power, tenacity of purpose, sound judgment and shrewd measures. These attracting from influential sources the aid, recognition and good will needful in the attainment of meritorious goals and objectives. Much personal prestige and happiness are at hand but in all activities respect the heauth and beware intrigues or treachery.

A child born on this day should have much solid ability and high ambitions, which must be concentrated upon vanquishing obstacles and limitations, perhaps of depressed or morbid states of mind and nerves. Social and affectional happiness as well as ultimate good fortune are its reward.

Ham for the Week-end

Whether you are going to the cottage or staying at home a baked Premium Ham is a wonderful stand-by

Served hot for a gala meal and then kept in the ice box for snacks, sandwiches, lunches or picnics, a whole or half Swift's Premium Ham is a time and labour-saving buy in the long run.

Take your choice between the regular Swift's Premium in the blue wrapper, which you bake yourself, or the 'Quick Serve' in the red wrapper, which is ready to eat cold or just needs heating through and glazing if you want to serve it hot.

Remember no Premium Ham needs parboiling. Bake in covered roaster, in a 325 degree oven—15 minutes per pound for large hams, slightly longer per pound, for smaller hams, 22 minutes per pound for half hams. Skin and glaze (see panel).

TO GLAZE A PREMIUM HAM
When rind is removed, score surface with a sharp knife, stick with cloves and spread with mustard. Then cover with a thick paste of brown sugar and corn syrup. Decorate with fruit if you wish. Brown in hot (400 degree) oven with top burner turned off to avoid scorching. Serve.

Argo Oarsmen Chalk Up Double Victory

PORT DALHOUSIE, Ont., July 31—(CP).—Toronto Argo oarsmen and scullers were back on home water today with their third straight Royal Canadian Henley regatta aggregate championship tucked away and singing the praises of veteran Ken Thorburn who led the double blue club to victory with triumphs in four of the meet's singles events.

In the 62nd annual Henley which concluded a three-day meet here on Saturday, Argos won the aggregate with 49 points to 44 for Hamilton Leanders. The others trailed far behind, the third place Buffalo West side crewmen scoring only 25 points. Ecorse, Mich., boating club, runner-up last year to Argos, were in fourth place this year with 24 points.

Thorburn, who is 32, scored 32 of Argos' total of 49. Saturday he won the 145-pound singles in a row over when his opponent scratched and he took the senior singles with a one-length decision over Harv Hutcheon, of Ottawa Rowing Club. Hutcheon, former St. Catharines sculling star now in the R.C.A.F. at the capital, battled all the way with Thorburn but couldn't get up in the last 100 yards when Thorburn finally drove ahead. Claude Saunders of Leanders was third. six open lengths back of Hutcheon.

These victories came on top of wins Friday for Thorburn in the 145-pound and open quarter-mile dashes.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

It's early Monday morning and we are checking over the entries that have come to us over the week-end for our big open doubles tournament next Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. So far we have close to 32 official pairs entered and we believe that before starting time we will have over 40 entries. They are coming from all parts of the district: Newmarket, Cannington, Cobourg, Lindsay, Campbellford, Port Hope, Oshawa, and Whitby. And there will be a large number from our own club. Although we have only 11 officially entered, yet we expect this to be doubled by Tuesday night or Wednesday morning. There is no limit to the entry list and the committee is prepared for any emergency.

Just to ease the minds of our bowlers we have put in an order for fine weather.

The games are scheduled to commence at 1:30 sharp. Please be on time. It looks as if the committee will have their hands full with the big entry.

Later in the week we will make an announcement regarding the tournament for Civic Holiday, on Monday, August 7.

The provincial play-off games that were held here last Friday were conducted by R. F. Downey, chairman of District 14, ably assisted by F. H. Dearborn.

George Sorenson, Group 3, of the local schedule, is the only undefeated rink in our club up to Friday night. He not only heads his group by 6 points, but he has the record of nine straight wins.

Below is the group standing up to and including Friday night:

Group No. 3 — G. Sorenson 18 points, P. Moore 12 points, Harry Northrop 12 points, C. Williamson 12 points.

Group No. 4 — C. M. Lawrence 18 points, W. Ashby 13 points.

Ladies' Section.

Group No. 2—Mrs. W. Hepburn 19 points, Mrs. C. Renaud 18 points.

Despite the shower that came during the playing of the third game on Saturday night, the boys and girls stayed right with it and finished out the string. The winning rinks were skipped by C. Renaud, R. F. Downey, and George Soulby.

Connie Smythe Suffers Wound

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, July 31.—(CP Cable). — Maj. Connie Smythe, commanding officer of the 30th Light Anti-Aircraft Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery, has been seriously wounded at the front and has been taken to a Canadian army hospital in England.

(Canadian military headquarters in England announced Saturday that Maj. Smythe, manager of the National Hockey League Toronto Maple Leafs, was wounded July 24. The extent of his wounds was not disclosed.)

The battery was located near the Orne River when German planes raided the area. Flares dropped and one landed on an ammunition truck which was filled with shells. Maj. Smythe ran to the truck to put out the fire and a piece of shrapnel hit him in the back. He was evacuated to a hospital in the beachhead and then was taken to England.

Battery Capt. Jim Boeckh of Toronto has taken over temporary command of this "Sportsman's Battery." Maj. Smythe has been with the battery since he formed it in 1941, took it through all of its training in Canada and England, and was with it when it manned gunsites on the English south coast and then brought it to France.

Promises Trouble For The Whipper

According to Bunny Dunlop, Whipper Billy Watson will have trouble enough trying to take care of him at the Brock Street Arena Tuesday night without worrying about Gentleman Jack Washburn. Watson is matched with the rowdy pair and has to throw both of them within the hour limit or lose the match. "Put me on first," brags Dunlop, "and Jack can sit that one out. I'll handle Watson myself." All of which only brings a confident grin from the Whip. Also on the card are Toar Morgan and Earl McCready in the semi-final and Joe Christie and Dr. Len Hall in the opener. It adds up to the best card of the year.

By FRED D. CRAIG

There will be no action in the Girls' Softball League tonight but the league schedule will re-open tomorrow night when Westclox Seconds and Quakers tangle in what should be a hard-fought exhibition. The teams on their record this season seem to be very evenly matched and they should stage a good battle. These younger aggregations are showing the results of the season's experience and are playing much better ball than they did at the opening of the campaign. They are developing material for future senior girls' clubs and should be encouraged by the fans. To show how players are being brought along Manager Ab Delahaye used one of the Westclox Seconds, Rita O'Heron in part of Saturday night's game with the Mountain View Bomberettes and on her first appearance at the plate she came through with a ringing double. Alice McIvor will likely pitch tomorrow night's game for Westclox Seconds with Gertie Masters probably getting the assignment for the Quakers. The teams should draw a big crowd particularly as the girls will have the softball stage to themselves this week. The men's loop will have a complete blank until a week from tomorrow night.

* * * * * *

While the opposition proved disappointingly weak, especially at the bat, the Westclox girls are to be congratulated upon the showing they made in Saturday's games with the Mountain View Bomberettes, defeating the visitors 7 to 0 and 17 to 2. It was the clean cut manner in which the Big Bens performed the feat that impressed the fans. They got great pitching in both contests, and supported it by playing two errorless games, a record that none of the teams in the men's loop has been able to equal. On top of that the Westclockers had a lot of power at the plate, with some of their younger players coming through in great style. Nona Whetung, sure-handed first base player of the Big Bens had six hits in the two battles, including a pair of triples, one of them coming with the bases loaded. Norma Strickland of Aircraft was a big help, too, doing some smart fielding and timely hitting, her string in the night game consisting of a double, triple and homer, the four-master being hammered out with two runners on the bases. The R.C.A.F. girls came here with a good reputation. They had won games in Ottawa and elsewhere but against the effective pitching, clean fielding and hard hitting of the Peterborough squad they were helpless.

A Blank Week

Many of the players in the City Softball League will be scattered all over the map this week with the C.G.E.-Genelco holiday shutdown and for that reason there will be no games in the two playoff series until next week. This arrangement was made at the beginning of the season when it was realized that all the teams in the loop except the Military Training Centre outfit would be hard hit by this holiday week. It is unfortunate that the two playoff rounds should have to be suspended just at a moment when the interest was red hot but there was nothing much that could be done about it. The series will not resume until a week from tomorrow night as next Monday will be Civic Holiday and there was no use billing a game for that night. The schedule for next week calls for Plazas and Soldiers to clash on Tuesday and Thursday nights. Their series is all tied up with each team having won one game. Switchgear and U.E.W., the other two semi-finalists will resume their battle a week from Wednesday and will clash in the third game of the round on the Friday. U.E.W. have an edge in this bracket by reason of their 19 to 8 victory over Switchgear in the opening game of the series and for the first time this season Manager Murph Chambers' team is running behind.

Twenty years ago at this time Peterborough fans were wildly excited about the battle being made by the Petes to win the second half of the Central Ontario League race and qualify for the finals against the Kingston Ponies who had grabbed the first half honors. It depended largely on the result of a battle between the two rivals at Riverside Park and the announcement that Knotty Lee had been engaged to coach the Ponies for the crucial battle did not allay local worries. However the Petes came through like champions, defeating the Kingston team here before a huge crowd by 4 to 1. Al Heckman held the Ponies to five scattered singles and Ted Gallagher, smart Kingston left-hander allowed only four blows but the Petes managed to bunch them. Hap Harrison tripled to score Red Legon in the first inning and Jimmy Hall singled in two runs and scored himself on a double steal with Tommy Holyman to make it three in the second. That was all the Peterborough scoring but it was more than enough. The Petes' lineup that day consisted of Tommy Holyman ss, Red Legon lf, Max Swanston c, Hap Harrison 1b, Al Heckman p, the late Shiner Johnston 2b, the late Frankie Collins 3b, Jimmy Hall cf and Jack Turner rf. Only Swanston, Heckman, Hall and Turner are left in town of this strong club which won a notable victory on that occasion.

Ponies Record A Win

The veteran Joe Daley, pilot of the Kingston Ponies in the old days when battles between the Petes and the Ponies were red hot affairs has been dug up to take over the 1944 team and started off with a win. Mike Rodden tells about it thusly: "Presenting a lineup that sizzled with class and was powerful on defence and attack, the revived Kingston Ponies, composed of star players selected from the teams operating in the Kingston Baseball Association series, last night turned back the Mountain View R.C.A.F. aggregation by 16 to 4 and qualified to participate in the National Baseball Congress tournament in Toronto—and perhaps, who knows?—later on in Wichita. Ponies, under the guidance of Joe Daley, exhibited too much power for the plucky invaders and were never in any danger of being headed after they scored three runs in each of the first two innings and tacked on four more in the third frame. They outhit Mountain View by 17 to 7 and with the exception of the second and third innings, when Arnie Jarrell allowed four hits and as many markers, they outclassed their visitors. Ponies lived up to their trust and toyed not lightly with that famous name. Jarrell coasted along for five innings, being always in command, and then gave way to "Lefty" Braun, the Navy speedballer, who proceeded to make the Airmen look very foolish, indeed."

* * * * * *

The St. Louis Browns who have plenty of nothing established themselves a little firmer on the top of the American League ladder yesterday by winning both ends of a double-header from the Washington Senators while their nearest opposition were breaking even in twin bills. Cleveland Indians stopped the winning streak of the Boston Red Sox by taking the second game yesterday 3 to 2 after the Sox had the opener 5 to 3 with a three run rally in the ninth. New York and Detroit had a double-header in which defence was tossed to the winds. The Yanks took the first 10 to 2 and Detroit grabbed off the second 13 to 7. In the National loop the Cards' current winning streak of nine victories was stopped by the Brooklyn Dodgers in the first half of a double-header but the champs picked up their winning ways again in the second game and are now 15½ games in the van. They give every sign of finishing up with the biggest margin in history for they have been riding roughshod over all opposition and there is apparently nothing in the National to challege their leadership. With superfine pitching and with Stan Musial and Johnny Hopp first and second in the loop batting averages and Ray Sanders leading the parade with runs batted in the Cards seem to be in a class by themselves.

Bob Abbott Wins Low Gross By Close Margin

Despite the threatening weather about 40 members of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club toured the course on Saturday afternoon. Every nook and cranny of the course must have been investigated during the day. At about 5 o'clock the area about the 17th fairway was as crowded as the village pool room on Saturday night and the 16th green looked as if someone were trying to make the eight ball in the corner pocket. Golf is a wonderful game for executives. All week long they carry the burden of responsibility in whatever their industry might be, smiling when things go wrong here, passing along a word of encouragement there, above all being a good fellow in the face of adversity—but comes Saturday afternoon and golf, what a beating the little white ball takes. It takes the blames for everything on earth which might be wrong with the boss and bears the brunt of his pent-up wrather which during the week he could not afford to unleash at either stenographer or foreman. It's great for what ails you because as well as providing the much needed exercise it serves as a remarkable escape valve for high pressure nerves.

Most players turned in their usual scores for the weekly sweepstake, Bob Abbott taking the prize for low gross with a neat 78 to beat out Stan Payne with a 79. In the second flight Claude Elliott took 90 blows to cover the course and take home the low gross prize. W. M. Hap Wilgar visiting from the Kawartha Club showed the locals how it is done with a very nice 85 handicap 16 for the low net in the first flight while J. E. McKercher despite a revised handicap of 24 did the same for the second-formers with a gross 93 net 69 hitting par right on the nose.

Russell Kitchen got away to a brilliant start on the second nine with two birdies in a row but the high wind which played havoc with many games finally caught up with the long hitter and a gross 80 less 10 net 70 was the best he could do for second low net in the first division. Stan longhurst and Ross Dobbin will have to be content with splitting their prizes both scoring identical 95's with 22 handicaps for net 73's. Other scores turned in are as follows:

	Gross	Han.	Net
J. M. Watson	89	12	77
G. Whatman	96	14	82
G. Braund	87	13	74
A. Rutter	93	14	79
S. Payne	79	8	71
O. M. Steer	91	18	73
G. J. Wharry	89	17	72
Max Lauder	100	22	78
M. G. Hardill	93	16	77

Beating Allen Drumheller's Georgia Drum by a neck, War Knight, owned by Miss Ethel Hill, Hollywood scenario writer, registered an upset in the Arlington Handicap at Chicago Saturday to collect $37,850 his share of the rich purse. This was three times as much as the four-year-old previously had won in his whole track career.

The women's world record of 11:16.1 for the 800-yard free-style swim, held by R. Hveger of Denmark, was smashed yesterday by Ann Curtis, 18-year-old girl, at the Pacific A. A. U. championships in her home town of San Francisco when she covered the distance in 11:08.6.

Post a six-under-par on the Plum Hollow Golf course, Detroit, yesterday, Sam Byrd defeated Craig Wood, Duration Golf Champion, by eight strokes in their 36-hole challenge match for $2,500 in war bonds, winner take all.

Hollywood Belwin, owned by L. H. Montgomery of Port Dover and driven by Art Stroud, accounted for all three heats in the free for all feature on the harness card at Kincardine, Ont., Saturday. Stewart Grattan, driven for Hugh Stewart of Peterborough by 77-year-old George McNall, took two of the three heats of the 2:20 class.

Newmarket soldiers captured the team title while Pte. Bill Stewman, formerly of Toronto and now stationed at Simcoe, won the individual championship at the fourth annual track and field meet of Military District No. 2 at Hamilton Saturday. Milt Wallace of Toronto broke his own records in winning both the mile and three mile event.

Pitcher Tommy White Saturday established a league record when he fanned 17 players in a senior Inter County Baseball fixture at London with the home team trouncing Galt 10-0.

A Vain Plea

NEW YORK, July 31—(AP)—An appeal to the German people and their government "not to engage in the wanton cruelty of robot bombing or other methods of civilian massacre" has been made by 28 clergymen and writers who last March signed a similar protest against the "obliteration bombing" policy of the British and American governments. Signers included Dr. Richard Roberts of Toronto, of the United Church of Canada, and numerous prominent American churchmen.

With him is L.-Bdr. Doug. Gillespie, of Orangeville, Ont., a driver in Major Smythe's battery and a former star of the Marlboroughs senior hockey team and the Etobicoke lacrosse team. KINCARDINE, July 31—Revival of racing in Kincardine Saturday attracted almost 2,000 enthusiasts, who braved a downpour of rain for the event. Closing events in the meet were slowed up by the heavy track, and some of the entries were scratched in these events. Holywood Belwin, owned by L. P. Montgomery of Port Dover and driven by Art Stroud, was the only three-heat winner of the day, sweeping the free-for-all class. George McNall, 77-year-old Blyth driver for Hugh Stewart, Peterborough, piloted Stewart Grattan to two firsts. Kincardine Kinsmen Club sponsored the meet, for which there were 24 entries. J. M. Climie, Tillsonburg, was started, and Stanley Burns, Palmerston, presiding judge.

NEW YORK, July 31 — (CP) — Pigskin paragraphs:

Camp LeJeune, the big marine base at New River, N.C., where Notre Dame's mighty Angelo Bertelli was transferred not so long ago, has notified opponents it will not have a football team this fall thus leaving open dates for Bainbridge, M.D., Parris Island, Jax Air Base, Chapel Hill, and others...Michigan's Fritz Crisler didn't want to play Marquette at night in Milwaukee September 23, but finally went for a 7 p.m. starting time so they'll start in the dusk and finish under the Arcs.

We're asking You!

No. 1—What major league team suffered the greatest number of shutouts one season, and the least the following year?

No. 2—Who was the only major league pitcher with a second division club to lead the loop in winning percentage?

Today's Jest Star

C. M. Gibbs, Baltimore Sun: Up Brooklyn way they're searching records to see if there ever was a worse Dodger outfit than the 1944 bums. That's something you never hear about in Philadelphia. No one wonders whether this year's athletics are worse than all the others. For one thing, you'd have too many years to go back through.

Back in 1905, when they were known as the Superbas, the Brooklyns won 48 and lost 104—their worst season. To beat that record of futility the Dodgers must lose 51 of their remaining 62 games, but if anyone in the League can do it, the Bums can.

Answers to questions: No. 1—Pittsburgh, 14 in 1921, two in 1922. No. 2—Bill Bernhard, Cleveland, 1902, won 18 lost 5, team finished fifth.

OLBA Sending Team For Ontario Playoffs

CAMPBELLFORD, July 31 (ENS)—District 15 of the O.L.B.A. will be represented in Hamilton on Labor Day in the Province of Ontario playoffs by E. A. Sloggett, Campbellford for the singles: Earl Fox and Bob Patterson, Stirling, for the doubles, and Bert Taylor's rink of Campbellford as the result of the bowling meet in Belleville recently.

Competing for the singles were Ray Zufelt, Belleville; Dr. Carleton, Stirling and E. A. Sloggett of Campbellford who drew a bye. Dr. Carleton defeated R. Zufelt 21-10 and E. A. Sloggett defeated Dr. Carleton 23-15.

In the doubles there were four entries skipped by E. Fox, Stirling; C. Argue, Belleville; Mac McConnell, Brighton and Walter Wiggins, Campbellford. In 21 ends Fox defeated Wiggins 25-20 and McConnell won from Argue 27-15. In a thrilling game that was tied up going into the last end, Fox defeated McConnell by a single shot.

In a game that took nearly four hours, the rink composed of A. Wonnacot, A. McLean, Col. Bonistel, W. Price for Belleville was defeated by Bert Taylor, A. J. Meyers, W. Brady and A. D. Bennett of Campbellford, the Belleville rink held the lead throughout the game until the 18th end when the Campbellford rink tied the score only to have Wonnacot kill the end in the first extra while Taylor won by drawing the winning shot in the second. Campbellford rinks have won the District O.L.B.A. competition for four consecutive years.

Orioles Score 12th Win; Wings Win Two

(By The Associated Press)

Sparked by superlative pitching and fence-busting hitting, the Baltimore Orioles appear to be on their way to their first International League pennant in 20 years.

The Birds double win yesterday marked their 11th and 12th straight victories, the leagues' longest streak this year. It was also their eighth in a row over the Montreal Royals, from whom they have swept four consecutive doubleheaders. The Orioles now lead by 7½ games.

Largely responsible for the Birds' upward surge are pitchers Red Embree, Bobo Palica, Stan West, and Outfielders Stan Benjamin and Howie Moss, Second Baseman Blas Monaco, and Catcher Sherman Lollar.

In other league action, Rochester swept two from Jersey City, 10-9 and 1-0. The Wings had a 10-run, 10-hit opener at the expense of three Giant pitchers, while Kemp Wicker turned in a four-hit shutout in the second game.

The Newark Bears, who have climbed to second place, won two from Toronto, 9-3 and 4-0. Frank Hiller and Johnny Maldovan turned in complete games for the Bears, who only two weeks ago were in the league cellar.

PLAYS NO FAVORITES—Stan Partenheimer, southpaw pitcher for Columbus in the American Association, plays no favorites. He has beaten every team in the league—including Columbus. This unusual situation came about because Partenheimer opened the season with Louisville, transferred to the Boston Red Sox and then was sent to Columbus. Partenheimer has won 11 and lost three.

TORONTO, July 31 — (CP). — B-r-r-r—shut off those fans. You will probably be interested to know that hockey enthusiasts in Northern Ontario, although many miles removed from the Arctic Circle, are hot after hockey talent for the coming winter. Carson Cooper, Detroit Red Wings' main scout, and Fred Cox of Galt Kist Juniors both are reported prowling the Northland for reinforcements for the coming season.

Cox is looking for talent for his junior squad, while Cooper, though professing disinterest, is after some ivory for Wings. No age is barred, and the way things are going in hockey now, you may see some Northern High School youngsters getting their chance in the front row next winter.

Kins anniversarying:

Elmer Ferguson, who created the nom-de-plume of Slitkin and Slotkin for the Montreal sporting firm of Messieurs Rogers and Wyman, is helping them celebrate their aniversary. Slitkin and Slotkin, now legendary figures in the Eastern Canada sport world, still are plugging away at their accustomed trade of keeping the fight game going in Montreal, and generally enlivening the sport scene.

Incidentally:

After years of developing weeds, the race track at Buchtouche, N. B., once one of the important centres of equestrian goings-on in the Maritimes, is being scuffed off and put back to use. Buctouche at one time used to draw crowds like a minor World's Series, but that's all in the past.....Scotty Rankin, one-time Canadian flash at the Olympic and British Empire Games stil has plenty of the old zip left in his feet. Scotty broke another record the other day—this time an Army mark. Now a corporal in the R.C.A.F., Scotty trucked over a tough obstacle course at Toronto's Manning Depot in just three minutes and 53 seconds. Second in the grind was Cpl. D. E. Stewart, former Canadian cycling champ—and he did the course without benefit of his wheel. Flight Sgt. J. H. Diamond, a champion lightheavyweight boxer, came third.

Walters Slowed In Drive To Win 30 Games

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sport Writer

Two weeks ago, after blanking the St. Louis Cardinals for his 15th victory of the Cincinnati Reds' first 77 games, it was an even bet Bucky Walters would win 30 games this year. But now it appears he will have a difficult time winning 20.

The Redlegs' ace right-hander failed yesterday in his fourth attempt to notch his 16th win as New York Giants bumped him for 10 hits for his fifth defeat, 8-0, in the first game of a doubleheader.

The Reds rebounded after garnering only five hits off Rube Fischer in the opener to take the nightcap 9-3 and gain an even split. Frank McMormick hit a pair of homers, driving in five Redleg runs.

The St. Louis Browns increased their first-place lead over the second-place Boston Red Sox to 4½ games, their biggest lead since the first weeks of the season, by sweeping a twin-bill from the Washington Senators, 2-1 in 10 innings and 7-3.

Don Gutteridge was the hero in both games, his 10th-inning double scoring the two winning runs in the opener, and his three hits playing a big part in winning the second game.

Dodgers Split

After rookie Tommy Warren snapped the St. Louis Cardinals nine-game winning streak by pitching the Brooklyn Dodgers to a 10-4 first-game victory, the Cards came back to win the nightcap 9-7 in 11 innings. Ray Sanders paced the Cards with a three-run homer.

The New York Yankees and the Detroit Tigers divided a doubleheader before the day's largest crowd, 47,936 paid admissions, the Yankees winning the opener 10-2 and the Tigers annexing the nightcap, 13-7. Hank Borowy won his 13th game, ending the Yankees' five-game Briggs Stadium losing streak. Hal Newhouser gained his 16th triumph in the finale.

The Chicago Cubs made it six straight by taking both ends of a twin-bill from the Philadelphia Phillies, 4-2 and 11-2 to climb to within half a game of the first division.

The Red Sox lost a full game to the Browns by splitting a twin-bill with the Cleveland Indians, the Red Sox coming from behind to win the opener 5-3 and the Tribe grabbing the finale 3-2, when Manager Lou Boudreau doubled in the winning run in the ninth inning.

With Alva Javery snapping a six-game losing streak by burling a two-hitter, the Boston Braves swept a double bill from the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-4 and 2-0.

Bill Dietrich turned in his 12th victory as the Chicago White Sox and the Philadelphia Athletics halved their two games, the Sox winning the first 6-4 and the Mackmen taking the second, 3-0.

Westclox Girls Defeat Visitors Twice

Mountain View Bomberettes raided Peterborough on Saturday but met with such a stout Westclox defence that they were unable to press their attack home in two attempts and were driven off with heavy losses.

In other words the R. C. A. F. girls were badly beaten in both games at Riverside Park Saturday, losing the exhibition tilts staged in aid of the Westclox cigarette fund by 7 to 0 and 17 to 2.

The Big Bens played errorless ball for eighteen innings behind very effective pitching by Joyce Withers, Isobel Bullock and Norma Strickland and the invaders never had a chance.

Joyce Withers shut them out in the afternoon with a three-hit effort and two of the three blows were scratchy. Only one other Bomberette reached first base and that was on a pass. But one of the four got as far as second and not a visitor reached trird base. The fourteen-year-old Westclox pitcher only had to face 31 batters and was master of the situation at all times, fanning six of the visitors. Westclox gave her flawless support and the Bomberettes were retired in order in six of the nine frames.

Vic Hillier who pitched for the Mountain View team had a nice turn of speed and held Westclox to 10 hits but they manged to bunch their blows with Bomberette errors to score seven runs. Norma Strickland of Aircraft who played with Westclockers in both games. Viola McLean and Verna Patterson led in the Big Bens with two hits each. Dot Strachan, Bomberette shortstop got two of her teams 'three safe blows and both were border-line hits at that.

Score in First.

Westclox scored a run in the first when after Norma Strickland had doubled and eventually been retired at the plate on Isobel Bullock's roller, the latter scored on Elsie Grant's muff of Marg. Hawthorne's fly to right.

In the second with one out, Verna Patterson singled to left, Marg. Watson was safe on Yvonne Mills' error, J. Withers single to fill the bases and after Norma Strickland had popped to third Viola McLean singled to right, sending in two runs.

That was all until the seventh when on the strength of a missed third strike and three other errors in a row, followed by a single by Verna Patterson, the Big Bens registered three more runs, the last scoring of the game.

Bomberettes did not get a runner on the bases until Dot Strachan singled with one out in the fifth. Nothing happened then for the next two were easy.

Then in the seventh, Joyce Woodhouse drew the only walk handed out by Joyce Withers. She was forced at second by Jessie Rogers and Yvonne Mills popped to Marg. Hawthorne. Dot Strachan singled to left and the visitors had a runner on second for the only time during the game. Joyce Withers then fanned Eddie Edwards to retire the side.

Millie Foster became the fourth visitor to reach first when she singled with two out in the eighth, only to be forced at second by the next batter, Gladys Webster.

The teams:

Westclox—Norma Strickland 2b, Viola McLean ss, Isobel Bullock c, Marg. Hawthorne 3b, Nona Whetung 1b, Barbara Rome cf, Verna Patterson lf, Marg. Watson rf, Joyce Withers p.

A One-Sided Battle.

Bomberettes did manage to get a couple of runs in the evening game, despite the fact that they only made two hits from the pitching of Isobel Bullock and Norma Strickland, but on the other hand the Big Bens staged a 19-hit attack that with the assistance of eight Mountain View errors in easy fashion.

Isobel Bullock pitched the first six innings and did not yield a hit until the sixth when a pass to Jessie Rogers, a stolen base and Yvonne mills' double to left gave the Bomberettes their first run after 14 scoreless innings. The Westclox pitcher allowed only that one hit but she walked seven batters, one less than her strikeouts in the six frames. Norma Strickland finished the game, fanning six and allowing only one scratch hit. It came in the ninth when Millie Foster got a single when Marg. Hawthorne slipped in fielding a slow roller. A pass to R. Haines followed and then a wild pitch gave the visitors their second run of the day.

The Big Bens took kindly to the offerings of Millie Foster who pitched the first seven frames for the Bomberettes. They cut loose with a 19-hit barrage led by Nona Whetung who had a triple and four singles in six trips to the plate, Noma Strickland who slammed out a double, triple and homer, Aggie Anderson, with a homer and two singles, Isobel Bullock with a double and a pair of singles and Viola McLean with three singles.

In the fifth they added five more with a triple by Nona Whetung with the bases full, the big blow of that up-rising. Three more were pushed over in the sixth on an error and singles by Viola McLean and Nona Whetung and Isobel Bullock's double to left.

The seventh was in the final block-buster, the Big Bens coming through with eight runs on the strength of seven hits and a couple of errors. Norma Strickland homered with two on a few moments later Aggie Anderson also drove a circuit clout to deep left with two on the bases. Vic Hillier finally had to come in and get the side out and get the side out and she held the Big Bens off the score sheet for the rest of the game.

A catch by Aggie Anderson of Vic Hiller's line drive to short centre field was the fielding feature. The line ups:

Godbout Says Quebec's War Effort Is Equal To Other Provinces

MONTREAL, July 31 — (CP) — Quebec's war effort is as good as generous and as spontaneous as that of any other Canadian province, Premier Godbout said Friday night at Thetford Mines at an election campaign rally in support of Alphonse Olivier, Liberal candidate in Megantic constituency for the August 8 Quebec general elections.

"I have made it my task to make Quebec's great war effort known across Canada," he added.

French-Canadians must do their duty in wartime like all the other people of the Dominion," he added, and "in truth," Quebecers were playing their rightful part in the "Canadian family."

"There is not a French-Canadian —man or woman — with a heart, who wouldn't give his utmost to defend his country," he said.

Earlier in the day, Mr. Godbout spoke at Lake Megantic, in support of H. L. Gagnon, Liberal candidate in Frontenac where he said that encouragement of the Bloc Populaire might result in civil war. He said the Bloc was attempting to "build up discontent, division and hatred," and only good sense, prudence and charity in Quebec's dealings with others would assure this province's future greatness.

Important Vote.

The Premier added that the Union Nationale Party had been "chased forever from power" in the 1939 general elections.

Maurice Duplessis, Union Nationale Leader, spoke at an election campaign meeting at St. Jerome in favor of J. L. Blanchard, Union Nationale candidate in Terrebonne. He said the vote August 8 would be the most important ever recorded in the history of the province "because on its results depend the life and death of the French-Canadian race."

He said: "The race and the province now are going through crucial moments. The life and survival of the province and French-Canadians depend on the election of the Union Nationale Party— the only party which can give you back the precious rights abandoned to Ottawa by the present regime of traitors and renegades."

183 Candidates In Alberta Field

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

CALGARY, July 31 — (CP) — Shirt-sleeved politicians, plodding around Alberta in mid-summer, hope they will be elected to seats in the Provincial Legislature on Aug. 8 but they keep looking over their shoulders at Ottawa.

A survey by The Canadian Press Friday night showed 188 candidates unofficially nominated to contest the 57 seats in the Legislature. Nominations close at 2 p.m. M.D.T. (4 p.m. E.D.T.).

That Social Credit, Independent and C. C. F. candidates give thought to the forthcoming Federal general elections shows in every speech they make The party ambitions will not be satisfied with a place in the Alberta sun; all have hopes of contributing to a Federal victory.

"FIGHTING GASOLINE"

THERE are three basic reasons why a real and critical shortage of gasoline exists in Canada today:

(1) The insatiable demands of modern war.

(2) The inadequacy of existing supply for both military and civilian needs and the difficulty of discovering and developing new sources of supply —in time.

(3) The grave shortage of oil transportation facilities.

Petroleum needs of the forces in this war are 80 times greater than in the last war. It is four or five times as difficult and costly to find new oil reserves today as it was in the pre-war period. And supplies have to be shipped vast distances, in ocean tankers compelled to travel slowly in convoy and by circuitous routes.

Look at this map. It shows how the oil resources of this hemisphere must be poured out across dangerous seas, to battle areas 4,000, 5,000, 6,000, 7,000 miles away. It shows how oil fields as far away as Colombia, Ecuador, and Peru are being pressed into service to satisfy demand. As much as 67 per cent. of the total tonnage of overseas shipping for war consists of petroleum products—more than twice the tonnage of all the men, food, planes, guns, tanks, ammunition and all such material combined!

Canada's gasoline needs add but an extra burden. We, in this country, produce only 15 per cent. of our own petroleum supplies. The rest must be shipped here from abroad. It must be taken from the common pool of the United Nations. More than 60 per cent. of it must be delivered by ocean-going tankers. Ships and men—needed to serve the fighting areas—must be risked to provide our home front gasoline.

Your ration of gasoline is an "issue" of ammunition—entrusted to you to help keep vital civilian transportation rolling. To squander it thoughtlessly, needlessly, frivolously, is to rob our fighting men.

LESS CIVILIAN GAS MEANS MORE "FIGHTING GAS" FOR THE FORCES

NO. 2 OF A SERIES OF ANNOUNCEMENTS ISSUED BY THE DEPARTMENT OF MUNITIONS AND SUPPLY, HONOURABLE C. D. HOWE, MINISTER

Answering YOUR QUESTIONS about the GASOLINE SHORTAGE

How many miles a year are travelled by tankers bringing petroleum to Canada? . . . Over 2,000,000 miles. How much longer does it take a tanker to make each trip under today's war conditions? . . . Double the time—because of submarines and more circuitous routes. Why do we speak of vast distances? . . . Because a delivery of gasoline or fuel oil to the Pacific war zone 7,000 miles away requires a return trip of 7,000 miles for the next load. How long does it take to build a new tanker? . . . Up to eight months, depending on size.

HOME AGAIN.

Healthy and tanned after a nine-day vacation at Camp Katchacoma, near Buckhorn, more than 30 members of the 9th Parkhill Community Scout and Cub organization returned home over the week-end. Reg. Perks, Scoutmaster, described the 1944 camp as "the best ever held."

SHORTAGE.

There's no relief in sight for Peterborough's ice-cream lovers, according to the city's dealers in the popular summer food. While the ice-cream fans will not be any worse off than they have been during the first part of the summer, there are no grounds for optimism as far as ice-cream is concerned, and retailers are of the opinion they will never be able to fill the demand, unless a miracle happens.

MONTHLY SALVAGE DRIVE.

For four days, starting Tuesday, Peterborough citizens will once again be called on to search their homes and places of business for any available paper salvage they can contribute to the city collection undertaken by the Peterborough Women's War Services Committee. As before, the collection on the first day will be made in the centre of town, followed by the north side, south side and East City areas in that order on succeeding days. Requirements for old paper and rags in the nation's industrial plants are as great as ever, and the quoto set by the Government for Peterborough is 30 pounds of salvage from every home.

SERVING OVERSEAS

Pte. Frank Buller is serving overseas, according to word received this morning by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Buller, 272 Simcoe street. The youngest son, Pte. He was formerly employed at Adamson & Dobbin.

HONEY BURNS UP.

A tin of honey left on a stove where the gas was turned on burned to a crisp and filled the house of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Stinson, 508 Stewart Street, with smoke late on Saturday night. The householders awoke to find all the rooms of the house clouded with dense smoke, but fortunately there was no fire. The department received the alarm—the only one to occur over the week-end—at a few minutes past midnight.

A NICE MUSKIE.

Constable Gordon Trennum and Mrs. Trennum don't have to travel far to catch a muskie. Last week, Mrs. Trennum trolling with a June bug, baited with worms, snagged a nine pounder in the channel a few hundred yards south of the train bridge at Nassau in the canal. The muskie produced a great exhibition of acrobatics as he neared the boat, and the only club the constable had was a pair of pliers, and he used those to good advantage, stunning the muskie with a couple of sharp blows.

Factory Whistle Waits In Vain Flowers Lonely For Workers

"Hey, up there, something's gone wrong around here," called the C.G.E.-Genelco whistle to the top of the tall chimney at 6.50 o'clock this morning.

The chimney rubbed its eyes slowly and drawled down to its fussy companion: "I have a notion to poke you one for waking me up at this hour, and on this morning. What ails you anyway?"

"Ain't this Monday?" the whistle enquired with a note of doubt and misgiving.

"Sure," the chimney glared.

"And isn't it ten to seven; certainly feels like it?"

"So what!" said the chimney in a cavernous voice.

"Well it's Monday and it ain't Christmas, or the first of July and it isn't Labor Day, but there doesn't seem to be anybody around to help me call the gang; and it'll soon be seven, and I'll get fired if everyboy's going to be late."

Missed The News

"Maybe you didn't hear about it?" said the chimney.

"About what?" asked the whistle, sharply and petulant as if it had been overlooked.

"I heard George Alexander saying below the other day that they were all knocking off for a week, and there wouldn't be any steam up, not much any way, and we could lay off for the week and go fishing or something. It just shows you ain't important around here if they did not tell you about it."

The whistle didn't know what to say to all of that. It seemed to be true, too. Past five to seven, and no one coming down the centre main street; no one coming in the back gate.

"They coulda told me about it," the whistle fumed. "May be I could have rolled over and slept some more. It never happened around here before that I know of... The boss and everybody, going to be away for a whole week! What do you know about that! They must be all going crazy... Nobody on the job and ready to go to work, but me."

"Work, did you say?" the chimney growled, bending menacingly over the whistle. "What work did you ever do around here? A couple of toots that make a heluva lot of noise and then you go back and sit down for hours. You got the biggest cinch around this place, and everybody knows it; and I'll tell you another thing, if you didn't know it before, you haven't got one friend— Not even the boss... There's lots of days, I'll bet, when he would like to take a cuff at you... Don't bother me again."

Something Wrong

And out on the Park street lawn a red lily called to a pink petunia at 6.45: "Hey shrimp something's queer That fellow Doe hasn't showed up, and you can always bank on him to the minute—One of those early birds,—hates to be late, and runnin' to beat the wristle—. There's nobody around, and this is Monday."

"Search me," the petunia answered. "I'm not runnin' this place. They got enough without me."

Nothing sounded at seven, and there was great commotion among the coleus and the petunias and the stately red lillies. Then they heard one of the guards say to another: "Doesn't seem natural around here this morning. Feels like Sunday, a whole week of Sundays."

"Say shrimp," said the tallest lily to its petunia pal along towards 8, "I was just thinking we won't see the girls from the office for the whole darn week; especially that dark one, you know, that slows down and looks at me every time she comes in, and even when she's going out, sometimes, anyway. That's a bum break if you ask me."

"It's me she looks at," the petunia replied. "She says I'm the sweetest petunia she ever saw—. You're just kiddin' yourself—. And what about that bunch that lie out here in shade every noon hour sun-tanning ...We're certainly going to miss them, Red... A whole week? You'd think we lived forever, another month or so, and we'll be packing up."

She's Gorgeous

"Right you are shrimp. Sometimes you do get an idea. We can't afford a whole week. We might as well be stuck in a bed down at the cemetery ...I know I'm going to miss that dark one from the office going by every day. She's the friendliest kid I ever saw..."

But, the petunia wasn't listening; just nodding and thinking with a far away look out toward the street ...Red was right; a week seemed short when you look back on it; but it could feel awful long, when it was just starting, and none of the gang was going to be around.

"Oh, oh," was all the petunia said smiling broadly.

Young Children Aid Victims Of Robot Bombs

Holidays first of all are for the purpose of giving all and sundry who are thus privileged, an opportunity to get away from the common round of daily tasks, without which they become humdrum and monotonous, the change itself accompanied by the leisure it affords, also giving an opportunity to store up energy to fulfill the tasks that lie ahead.

School children have a long holiday period of nine or more weeks, and after the first excitement has subsided, in many instances they begin to find time dragging heavily on their hands, and the old adage that "Satan can find some mischief for idle hands to do" finds a proof through lack of guidance by those best able to give it, which on the other hand might with a little inspiration and encouragment, find an outlet in doing so many things that are of use both to themselves and others as well.

With so many opportunities at hand in this day it stands to the credit of some children, that they have utilized their leisure from school duties, to raise money on behalf of the sufferers from enemy bombing attacks over Britain, through the local and district fund operating for that purpose, another instance of which is recorded today, following hard on the heels of a similar one recorded in this column on Saturday.

Four young girls, Margaret and Mary LaBlanc of Montreal, Eleanor McBrien and Norma Harrison held a bazaar at the family residence of the latter at 506 McDonnel street on Tuesday, July 25, donations of home cooking forming a large proportion of their offerings, and for which they expressly asked that their sincere thanks should be acknowledged to all who had assisted in this way.

Previous to this time they had sold tickets on a box of chocolates and two war savings stamps, which in itself raised the sum of $4.40, and added to $5.20 realized at the bazaar itself, totalled $9.60. The chocolates were won by Marion Butcher, and the war saving stamps by Mrs. Walstenholme, and the four young girls who sponsored the affair itself, won a lasting satisfaction at having accomplished something worth while to aid others in need.

Bridgenorth Primary Class.

These young folk have made a notable contribution to this fund for over three years now, saving and bringing their pennies so that collectively a contribution has appeared on a comparatively large number of occasions, a further one amounting to $4 appearing to their credit to-day.

Seven-year-old Sammy Kingdon too hase given in various ways on a number of occasions, the latest of which to-day amounting to $1.11 came as a result of his emptying his penny bank box, mostly accrued in doing little errands and odd jobs, so one could say he really had earned it.

The penny box at Payne's Drug Store keeps up the good work it has been doing for a long time, an amount of $3 standing to its credit to-day, having been made up to that amount by the proprietor himself.

Woman Tackles Intruder In Her Home

Mrs. Archie Brault, Jr., 647 Donegal street, grappled with an intruder who invaded her home in the Park Hill Road division of War Time Housing early Sunday morning.

Mrs. Brault was awakened by a noise in another room around 5 o'clock. On investigating she found a strange man in the living room and he seized her. Mrs. Brault struck the intruder three or four times and at the same time called for her husband.

The latter arrived on the scene to find that the mysterious visitor had made his escape through a ground floor window. He had entered in the same way and left the window up high so that he had an easy avenue of escape.

Toronto Police Raid Cottage

Inspector T. E. Doyle, head of the provincial police anti-gambling squad and three of his officers raided a cottage near Nassau early Saturday morning and as a result of their swoop, Andrew Christos, Peterborough, was arrested on a charge of keeping a common gaming house.

Christos was released on cash bail of $250 to appear on Wednesday.

The police state that a sum of money and some gambling equipment was seized.

Six men are to be charged with being found in and one of them will also probably face a liquor charge as well.

CAR DAMAGED

A car owned by Percy Edwards, 294 Burnham street, was damaged to the extent of $35 in a collision with another car driven by Arthur Foottit, Millbrook. The accident happened on Charlotte street, Saturday.

City Hall Site Action Seems Remote

"Received—not adopted" was the immediate disposal of the report of the City Planning Committee by the Council Friday night, on Alderman Dutton's motion, seconded by Alderman Swanston.

The text of the resolution from the special committee engaged in a planning program was: "That it be recommended to the City Council that the new city hall building be located on the south side of Charlotte street, immediately west of the proposed new Dominion Government building, and that the co-operation of the Dominion Government be sought in order that arrangements be made to prepare the plans of the two buildings so that their setting, architectiure and arrangements may be in harmony."

The recommendation consists of two ideas, one the approach to the Department of Public Works.

On that point, Alderman Dutton asked: "Is it too early to enquire of the Department whether they will co-operate with us."

"I suggested to Alderman Glover that he should go down to Ottawa and consult them about it," Mayor Hamilton said.

Different Story.

Ratepayers interested in these propects that are not yet simmering and a long way from the "jell" stage, may recall that much was said recently about 'getting busy' on plans and preparations for post-war work. In fact, the Council devoted an entire evening to the report of the City Planning Committee.

And after that quickening and 'pep talk,' some of the members have actually conjured the prospect of contingency in that next federal elections as a delaying and inidefinite factor in the progress of City Hall project. At the session a week ago, it was said, that if the Government of Ottawa was defeated, their successors might or were likely to abandon the Charlotte street site. And in support of that notion it was recalled that thirty years ago the Government as represented by the late J. H. Burnham bought the lot at the north east corner of George and Sherbrooke streets for a customs-postal building, and it has been discarded by the planning committee for a larger buildng on the Charlotte street property, which has been bought and paid for.

(Somebody might have commented that Peterborough must be a complaisant community to have let all those years go by without pressing the Government for the fulfillment of its ancient promise.)

Probably in the impression of the preceding meeting Mayor Hamilton commented: "Well probably have to wait till after the elections."

More Urgent Needs.

Aldermon Dutton replied that communities had been urged by Federal authorities to begin post-war planning now, and get certain works charted and drafted and ready for the letting of contracts.

Alderman Sands interjected the observatiion that the city had more serious needs than the municipal headquarters building. The staff he said was adequately quartered in office accommodation that enable them to do the city's work; and the money for a new city hall was assured; but the sewage disposal problem was something which everybody realized should be undertaken as soon as possible, because it was related to public health in the city and district.

Alderman Bradburn urged that a post-war program should be lined up and made ready for an early beginning after the war.

Mayor Hamilton said it unlikely that work would be begun on the city hall for two years, but "if we decide where we are going, notices could be given tenants and leaseholders that they would have to vacate their stores and buildings by a certain time."

The discussion trailed off on the suggestion that some action should be taken in two directions, one, to obtain Government and departmental cooperation in the joint plan proposed by Walter Blackwell, architect and further, to begin enquiry into the cost of the Charlotte-Aylmer site.

Sgt. Walter Metheral Killed In Normandy

Word has been received of the death in action in Normandy of another Peterborough member of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, Sgt. Walter Metheral, who enlisted here with the unit in 1940.

Sgt. Metheral was an original member of the Bren gun carrier section of the S. D. and G.'s and had served with that section continuously.

Born in England, he had lived for some time in Nova Scotia before coming to Peterborough a year before he enlisted with the Glengarrians. He had only recently been promoted to the rank of sergeant.

Drunk Driving Charge Is Dismissed

"I am faced with the judgment of Judge Smoke in the Armstrong case and I feel bound to recognize it and follow it," said Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning in dismissing a charge against Lloyd Lloyd of having been drunk in charge of a car.

Declaring that at first he had been inclined to convict on the evidence, Magistrate Gee issued a warning to the accused.

"You are just lucky," he said, "and you must have had a rabbit's foot in your pocket. A civilian who saw you driving was not available and so you are getting the benefit of the doubt. But it should be a warning to you. Any time you feel like drinking you had better toss your car keys away."

Lloyd had been arrested at Simcoe and George streets on a Sunday morning and the evidence of the police had been that the man had been helplessly drunk and that they had great difficulty in reviving him.

In his argument W. J. Arthur Fair who defended Lloyd held that the evidence given had brought the case into the scope of the judgment of Judge Smoke in the Armstrong case which had been to the effect that the accused had been so drunk that he was incapable of driving or having control of a motor vehicle.

A charge against Rollie Saltern, Dummer township, of drunken driving was adjourned for a month when it was stated that the accused's mother who is a material witness had met with an accident and had to go to hospital with an injured leg.

George Connelly who entered a written plea of guilty to a drunk charge was fined $10 and $5 costs by Magistrate Gee.

Flier Out Of Hospital Now Flies Spitfires

Many local friends of a former Peterborough boy, Flying Officer Ken Fox, of the Royal Air Force, will be interested in learning that he is now back in action as a fighter pilot, after a year in hospital, following a crash in a bomber.

Flying Officer Fox is a son of Reg. Fox, for many years local representative of a financial institution. He was brought up and educated in Peterborough, although the family has been living in Toronto for some time.

He went to England just before the war and enlisted with the R. A. F. and had many operational raids over Germany to his credit as a bomber officer. Returning from an attack on Rostok, his plane crashed in England and he was so badly hurt that he spent a year in hospital.

However, he made a complete recovery, with the exception of a slightly twisted arm, and on his return to active service became a fighter pilot and is now flying Spitfires.

Boy 17 Fined For Having Bottle Of Wine

Melville Lester, 17, Park Hill Road, was convicted in police court this morning on a charge of illegal consumption of liquor at Chemong Park on the night of July 22 and was fined $10 and $6 by Magistrate E. A. Gee.

Constable Carman English, on duty at Chemong, swore that he heard a noise in the park and on investigating heard some loud talk and a remark: "Give me the bottle and I'll drink it all."

"I turned on my flashlight and saw Lester with a bottle up to his lips," said the officer. "He threw it away and I recovered it".

Provincial Constable Price Morris said that the bottle had been sent to Toronto for analysis of the contents and a certificate was produced showing that the alcoholic content of the wine was 15.64 per cent.

Lester and two companions who had been with him, Ken Fleetwood and Lorne Cromie all testified that they did not have the bottle that had been produced in court. They said they had been swimming and had just started to get dressed when the officer appeared at the top of the bank and turned his flashlight on them. They said the bottle had been picked up two or three feet away from where they had been.

"Do they place bottles along the bank for the benefit of bathers at Chemong?" Magistrated Gee asked. "How did that bottle get there?" The boys replied that they did not know.

"I am accepting the evidence of the officer that you had liquor there that night", said the Magistrate in convicting Lester. Similar charges against the other two boys were withdrawn by the crown.

To Hold Inquest In Mahood Death

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., announced this morning that an inquest would be held on Friday evening into the circumstances surrounding the death in St. Joseph's Hospital early Saturday morning of Robert Mahood, 36-year-old De Laval employee.

Mahood was brought into the hospital after having been driven around for hours in an automobile and died shortly after being admitted.

An autopsy held on Saturday revealed that the man had a fractured skull. Police investigating the case discovered that on the previous day Mahood and another man had been out in Smith Township and that there was some evidence of drinking. At all events, early Friday evening the car containing the two men stopped on the Lakefield road a short distance north of the city and Mahood got out, after suggesting that his companion take over the driving.

Mahood fell on the road after getting out and was in an unconscious condition. According to the police, the man's companion placed Mahood in the back of the car and drove off.

Apparently he was allowed to remain in the automobile most of the night, and it was not until early Saturday that a dotor was called and he gave instructions over the telephone to take Mahood to the hospital.

The man's death occurred a short time after he had been admitted into the institution.

HIGHLANDER KILLED—CSM. Frederic John Linsey, with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders in France, was killed in action July 18, according to information received by his wife, Mrs. Linsey, who lives on the Port Hope Highway. He was formerly employed at the Brinton Carpet Company.

Resolution Made To Transfer Part Of Funds

Transfer from the funds of the City Trust Commission of an amount equivalent to one mill in the tax rate, while continuing the present cancelling of levies on the council for sinking fund purposes, is the purpose of a motion by Alderman Ovens and Bradburn as adopted by the council Friday night.

Some years ago the Commission made a requisition on the council, to be raised in the annual tax rate, for sinking funds needs. The resolution proposes that this practice be continued and that a further relief to ratepayers be provided by drawing on the funds of the Commission for an amount equal to one mill in the taxes. Alderman Ovens pointed out that this suggestion follows the recommendation of Edward Humpage, ciyt auditor.

"That this council make application to the Ontario Municipal Board for a hearing to secure the necessary approval of the Board to bring into operation the City Auditor's recommendation that the surplus funds in the hands of the Peterborough City Trust Commission be reduced to a reasonable sum by continuing the cancelling of sinking fund levies as at present; and, in addition, by paying annually to the City Council from these surplus funds a sum equal to one mill on the assessment for general purposes; and that the City Auditor be requested to prepare the necessary written brief giving the facts upon which his recommendation is based, in order that his brief may be presented to the Ontario Municipal Board in support of the council's application."

DOROTHY DIX • • •

MAN KISSES WIFE TOO OFTEN

Women Bemoaning Inattention of Husbands May Be Consoled by This Complaint.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX — I am 24 years old. Have been married five years and have two darling little boys. But I am so sick of married life and of my husband that I could die. He is so possessive that I have no life of my own at all. When he is at home I can't even do my housework for he follows me around and wants to hug and kiss me. When we go anywhere his one subject of conversation is how beautiful and wonderful I am, which embarrasses me, for it isn't true.

I cannot stand his love any longer. He has turned me against love so much that I hate it. If I don't stop about fifty times when he is in the room with me to make a fuss over him, he thinks I don't love him any more, which is true. Yet I can't leave him because of my little boys who adore their daddy. What shall I do?

UNHAPPY WIFE.

Woman's Complaint Strange

ANSWER—Considering that the great majority of wives spend most of their time wailing and weeping because their husbands dropped all love-making at the altar and have never since given them a kiss that wasn't a peck on the cheek that was more of an insult than a caress, it is a strange thing to hear a woman complaining of being surfeited with conjugal affection.

Yet it is easily understood. Too much is too much of even a good thing. No one can eat thirty quails in thirty days, and clerks in candy stores are allergic to bon-bons. And this is true of love as well as food. Even Solomon, the most married man of whom we have any record, cried out: "Stay with flagons, comfort me with apples, for I am sick of love."

So there we are, up against that curious streak of human contrariness that makes us want what we haven't got and sick and tired of what we possess, and we are powerless to deal with it, for we don't know how to heat up love that is getting luke-warm, nor how to cool off the affection for which we no longer have a relish.

But it should console the ladies who bemoan the fact that their husbands are not great lovers to know that they can get fed up on too much love-making as easily as they can on too many chocolate creams, and that the rarer a kiss is the more flavor it has.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a young girl in my last year of high-school and after that I am going in training to be a nurse. My mother is dead and I live with my sister and her husband who are very good to me. But my trouble is that my brother-in-law has fallen in love with me. He is 28 and very fascinating and while I am not in love with him, I am afraid I might be if I stay near him all the time, and I wouldn't hurt my sister for the world. I have another sister I could go to. What do you advise?

ANNA.

ANSWER—Flee from temptation as you would from a house afire. Don't spend another day under the roof of the cad who is planning to take advantage of your youth and inexperience to do you the greatest harm that a man can commit against a woman. Any man who would violate his own hearthstone with his amours by being unfaithful to his wife and trying to win her little sister has neither pity, nor shame, nor any decent emotion in him.

But you are too young and unworldly-wise to know how to defend yourself against him. Your only safety is in flight. GO. And at once.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Do you think a man who is married for the second time should keep the diary he made when he was with his first wife and the letter she wrote him before she died? If I say anything about these souvenirs, he gets nasty.

ROBERTA.

ANSWER—A second marriage is a new deal and all the mementoes concerning the first marriage should be packed away out of sight. Also, the conversation concerning Number One. It does not make for happiness for the Number Two husband or wife to be continually reminded that he or she is sitting at the second table and eating the scraps of affection that were left over from the first serving.

184 Candidates To Contest Alberta Seats

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

EDMONTON, July 31.—(CP). — High finance and the post-war are caught in the tangled skein of the Alberta provincial election campaign which ends with voting on Aug. 8.

At the close of nominations Saturday, 184 candidates had been nominated to contest the 57 seats. Social Credit and C.C.F. parties each had a candidate entered for every seat, and the Independent Citizens' Association of Alberta nominated 36, six more than the Labor Progressives. Four others of field. Varied political affiliation are in the Premier E. C. Manning was named to contest the five-member Edmonton constituency where Elmer Roper, C.C.F. provincial deader, and James A. MacPherson, Labor-Progressive leader, also were nominated. Five members are also elected in Calgary constituency, while the other 47 are single-member ridings.

James H. Walker, Independent leader, was nominated in Warner constituency where his opponents will be Hon. Solon Low, National leader of the Social Credit Association of Canada; R. Esham of the C.C.F. and W. Martin, Single Tax candidate.

Eleven women were nominated—three Social Credit, two C.C.F., one Independent and five Labor-Progressives.

In Edmonton, W. S. Williams is seeking election as a veteran's candidate and in Pincher Creek-Crowsnest E. Williams is running as a Labor-Unity candidate. J. V. Johanson is Farmer-Labor nominee in Rocky Mountain House riding.

Godbout Gets Rough Passage

ST. EUSTACHE, Que., July 31.—(CP).—A plea for the re-election in Two Mountains County of Maj. Jean Paul Sauve, now with the Fusiliers Mont Royal Regiment in Normandy and a former speaker in the Quebec Legislature under the Union Nationale Government, was made here last night by his wife, who scored "those who take advantage of Paul's absence to satisfy their own personal ambitions."

Mrs. Sauve appealed to the voters of Two Mountains County to re-elect her husband at the Aug. 8 Quebec general elections at a rally which was addressed later by Maurice Duplessis, Union Nationale leader.

Mrs. Sauve said that her husband overseas "is serving you his electors and the French-Canadian race in the most complete fashion." Mr. Duplessis said that Maj. Sauve had received Premier Adelard Godbout's "solemn word of honor" that the Liberal party would have no official candidate in Two Mountains and that as far as the Liberal party he (Maj. Sauve) would be elected by acclamation.

Now, Mr. Godbout had violated "in the most shameful way" his engagement and had approved the candidacy of Jean Rochon.

Mr. Godbout has exhibited the white flag of truce to Paul Sauve who, confident that the Premier would be true to his word, has gone overseas," said Mr. Duplessis. "No sooner has Paul Sauve turned his back than he was cowardly shot him in the back."

"We now find that Adolf Hitler—whose downfall we all hope and pray for—has found an imitator in the province of Quebec as far as the game of tearing up sacred engagements and backing up on sacred promises" Mr. Duplessis said.

"I would ask my friend in the audience to respect those to which he compared Mr. Godbout," came the reply from Mr. Duplessis.

Mr. Duplessis drew cries of "shame," "shame," from the crowd when he said that "the Liberals did not even have the decency to allow Paul Sauve to attend the funeral of his beloved father when Senator Arthur Sauve died recently, although they sent for Ernest Lapointe's son (Maj. Hughes Lapointe, member of Parliament for Lotbiniere) when the late Minister of Justice died."

Family Letters Boost Morale For Soldiers

By HELEN BANNERMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, July 31 — (CP). — Take it from Wing Cmdr. H. T. E. Lee, M.C., who has just returned from a visit to R.C.A.F. stations in Britain, the fat letters with return address of mother or wife or sweetheart are still the top "morale boosters" for Canadian fighting men overseas.

"I saw the boys in the briefing rooms of the bomber and fighter stations, waiting for their cue to go over Fortress Europe again, and I saw how good those letters made them feel,' the Toronto man said.

One of the two R.C.A.F. members of the Dependents Allowance Board, Wing Cmdr. Lee has visited Air Force stations from the Aleutians to Ceylon. And as sergeant and later lieutenant of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in the First Great War, he knows his soldier at first hand.

"I don't think some of the people here at home even yet realize the importance of the right sort of letter going overseas."

The "right sort of letter" is a happy blend of assurance to the fighting man that he still has first place in the hearts of those he left behind, and family and neighborhood news—so long as it is not a list of minor disasters.

"In the work of the board we see so many cases where the right letter ould turn the trick—in cases of estrangement or pending divorce where there may be an English girl in the picture and nagging letters from the wife make matters worse."

The serviceman, from private to general, is lonely for the people and places he has left behind. Even the most charming bit of England is not the wheatfields of Saskatchewan nor the pines of Muskoka which he keeps in his mind's eye.

Tell him about his favorite piece of scenery, how the fish have multiplied since he left, and tell him how proud you are of him—that is Wing Cmdr. Lee's advice.

Quebec Tory Leader Resigns

QUEBEC, July 31—(CP).—Bona Arsenault, who resigned Saturday as president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Quebec province, said in a statement last night that "it is my duty to disassociate myself from a political movement which for several weeks past has been under the evil influence of a reactionary and noisy clique."

Mr. Arsenault resigned a week after he had received a telegram from Progressive Conservative Leader John Bracken in which the national leader disassociated himself from an attack on Senator T. D. Bouchard in L'Opinion Publique, French counterpart of the official Progressive Conservative organ.

In his statement, Mr. Arsenault said the "Progressive Conservative party is trying to win votes in the other provinces by attacking Quebec." He announced Saturday that L'Opinion Publique, of which he has been editor for several months, would no longer be published here.

Mr. Arsenault's statement read:

As a Canadian and above all as a French-speaking Canadian my duty is to disassociate myself from a political movement which for several weeks past has been under the evil influence of a reactionary and noisy clique, whose manifest purpose is to try to win the confidence of the electorate in some corners of the country where racial prejudices and fanaticism, if not hated against Quebec, are thoroughly exploited.

The Progressive Conservative party is trying to win votes in other provinces by attacking Quebec. Consequently I cannot continue to be and I am no more a Progressive Conservative.

518 Internees

The group completes a contingent of 800 being exchanged for an equal number of German internees. Some 400 already are in Lisbon awaiting departure of the diplomatic ship Drottingholm.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

MAKE THAT CONTRACT

SOUND RUBBER bridge compels a game declarer to concentrate every resource upon increase of the probability that he will make his contract. To try a finesse which will produce one more trick if it works, or perhaps even more extras, but beat your contract if it doesn't, is the height of folly.

North: ♠ 7 3 ♥ Q 8 ♦ A J 10 8 6 4 ♣ A 10 7

West: ♠ 9 6 2 ♥ 7 6 3 2 ♦ 7 5 2 ♣ 5 4 3

East: ♠ K Q J 10 5 ♥ K J 4 ♦ K ♣ J 9 6 2

South: ♠ A 8 4 ♥ A 10 9 5 ♦ Q 9 3 ♣ K Q 8

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1♥	Pass	2♦	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT

South, a very able rubber bridger, got accused by East of being crazy with luck when he dropped the singleton king of diamonds in the course of his play. East covered West's spade 9 lead with the 10, won the second trick with the K and then led the J to South's A.

Having held up until the third round for exactly one purpose—to make it more likely that he could keep East out of the lead, and thus prevent scoring of the spade remainders against him, South had his mind all made up about how he would play the diamond suit.

Realizing that the diamond finesse was the best chance to shut out the king, but also that failure of the finesse would beat his contract, he had determined to go up with the A on the first round. When he did this, the K dropped, and he proceeded then to run the rest of the tricks, giving him a total of 11, for his contract plus two extras.

South knew he could afford to let the diamond K win if West had it, so his play was sound, no matter who had that honor. Using the A at the start increased the chance of making his contract by a very slight percentage, by the bare chance that the K might be a singleton in the East. Observation of such simple principles marks the chief difference between the winning planner and the losing one in rubber bridge.

What principle of preparation should South follow in order to make 6-No Trumps on this deal by a throw-in play, after West leads the diamond J?

"Although enemy troopers occupied the buildings since 1941, the Marines paused as they passed through the wreckage, glancing for some familiar residue of prewar days."

Henry quoted officers as saying the first phase of the Guam operation is completed, the invasion has kept on schedule and the forces now are about in position for "a further telling blow."

Remizoff, a Saskatchewan Doukhobor, told the court he knew Mrs. Rusan 22 years ago before her marriage and that he met her again in Saskatchewan a year ago when she was staying at a hotel where he was employed.

OTTAWA, July 31. — (CP).—Increased prices for clover seed purchased by the Special Products Board for export were announced Saturday night.

For Alsike clover seeds in excess of domestic requirements offered the board for export on the basis of 98 per cent. purity, 90 per cent. germination and not more than ½ per cent. weeds, freight paid to Halifax, the board will pay $24.50 per 100 pounds, an increase of 50 cents from last year's price.

On the same basis the medium red clover price this year will be $29.50, an increase of $2.50, and the late red clover, single cut, price will be $30.50, an increase of $3.50. For alsike-white clover mixture containing 5 per cent. white clover, the board will pay $24.50 plus certain premiums for higher percentages of white clover. Last year the board paid $17 for a mixture with 15 per cent. white clover.

Seeds of lower quality than those specified in the basic prices will be accepted subject to proportionate discounts if an export market can be found for them. The board has not yet set the price for alfalfa purchases.

Canada Pays 120 Millions

By FRANK FLAHERTY—Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Aug. 1—(CP).—Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced today Canada has arranged to assume the full cost of air line installations in Northern Canada to the tune of $120,000,000 Canadian funds and at the same time disclosed the ramifications of the hitherto secret Northeast staging route to Europe. When the Commons met today Mr. King tabled an exchange of notes with the United States under which the Canadian Government will reimburse the United States to the extent of $76,811,551 United States funds for outlays on installations in Canada, assume costs to the extent of $29,600,643 Canadian funds for work done on Canadian account under an agreement that the United States was to repay Canada; and pay an additional $5,161,000 for projected improvements in the Northwest staging route.

The Northeast staging route, disclosed for the first time after being wrapped in wartime secrecy, provides the means for moving both long and short range aircraft to Europe.

The compensation to the United States covers both this route which has three legs, one by way of Presqu' Isle and Mingan, Que., to Goose Bay one by way of western Ontario to Fort Chimo, Que., and one over

Russians Get 5,000 Planes Flown Via Edmonton Route

By JACK SULLIVAN—Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON, Aug. 1—(CP).—One of the war's best-kept secrets today in history—and with it is written one of the proudest chapters in Canada's aviation log-book. It was learned from United States military sources here last night that approximately 5,000 fighters and bombers on lend-lease from the U.S. have soared through Canadian skies en route to Russia where they have helped wreak havoc on the once-powerful Nazi air force.

During the first four months of this year, 2,000 aircraft, flown by U.S. ferry pilots, winged their way from Great Falls, Mont., through Edmonton to Fairbanks, Alaska. Soviet fliers relayed the planes 540 miles to Nome on the west coast of central Alaska, a 50-mile over water hop into Siberia, Russia's "back door," and then over a route blanketed in official secrecy.

The North American flight from Great Falls via Edmonton to the Alaska town, only 116 miles south of the Arctic Circle, is nearly 1,000 miles and is the main aerial path from the Western Hemisphere to the Far East.

It was September 14, 1942, that shark-nosed fighters and heavy bombers, en route to the Soviet, glided into the Edmonton municipal airport. They took off after an overnight stop. And it's been a steady procession since.

Daring Canadian airmen and engineers may claim licence to the aerial short cut to Russia. They were the men who, before the war, pioneered a route through Canada's Northwest wilderness, paving the

Germans Using Silent Robots

LONDON, August 1 —(C P) — The Germans have taken the wraps off another new weapon —a rocket-propelled fighter —and all Allied fliers who have encountered the planes agreed to-day they are capable of terrific speed.

Little is known so far of the effectiveness of the craft. Only seven have been met and they did not stand to fight, but the speed at which they ran away underscores the importance they might assume if the Germans manage to produce them on a mass scale.

The Allies nave recognized for sometime that Nazi jet and rocket propelled planes if allowed to appear in big numbers ,could challenge Allied air superiority, and it is understood here that is one of the reasons more than 27,000 heavy bombers sorties were sent against German industry and oil supplies in July.

But the Alliies might have the answer to this new German weapon in a new fighter of equal or superior capabilties. A joint Anglo-American announcement some months ago said the Allies were experimenting with a successful jet-propelled craft in that the oxygen which helps drive them is carried aboard in combination with other elements instead of being taken from the air through which the plane passes.

The speed German rocket planes have been designated as ME-163's.

Col. Alvin P. Tacon of Mobile, Ala., said his Mustang formation encountered five of the planes.

Manuel Quezon Dies In U.S.A.

SARANAC LAKE, N.Y., Aug. 1—(AP).—Manuel Quezon, 65, exiled President of the Philippine Government, which he had headed since 1935, died today at a summer home here from tuberculosis.

The magnetic Quezon, who fled from his native Luzon in a submarine February 20, 1942, after the Philippines fell to the Japanese, died at 10.05 a.m. E.D.T.

His widow, and two daughters, Maria Aurora and Maria Zenaida, and one son, Manuel, Jr., were at the bedside.

Long a disciple of Philippine independence, Quezon cast his lot with the Americans when the Japanese invaded his homeland. Previously, he had opposed occupation both by Spain and the United States.

Since his arrival in the United States he used his waning energy to bring about defeat and ouster of the Japanese.

Coupons Start Buying Spree

Get First New Dresses In 6 Months

By MARGARET BUTLER
(Reuter Staff Writer).

LONDON, August 1 — (CP-Reuter). — Thousands of British women will wear a new frock this week.

It is a red-leter day for them to-day — first on which they can use their new clothes rations. Many are buying their first new frock for nearly six months, and they will have to wait another six before they can buy another.

In her pocket every woman has 24 new coupons. Her husband has another 24 for himself, her children have 26 each, and in special cases, to allow for growth, they may have an extra 10. These coupons are all they will have until next February. It takes 18 for a woman's overcoat, 11 for a wool frock, seven for a silk one, five for a blouse, two for a pair of stockings, and one for four handkerchiefs. Men's clothes need more.

Careful planning goes into each wardrobe. It has also taught the women of Britain to buy wisely — quality, not quantity, is the motto.

There are no coupons to spare for evening wear. Most girls in their 'teens have never worn an evening frock. Many have never had a pair of silk stockings.

Hun Retreat Continues In Normandy

Prisoners Taken In Droves As Allies Drive On

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 1 — (CP)—American forces carried the invasion of France into Brittany today, while east of the Vire River a speeding British-American spearhead approached the key city of Vire and south of Caen Canadians dominating Tilly La Campagne battled fiercely against heavy German counter-attacks.

British and Canadian forces burst forth with new fighting on the Paris-pointed east flank of the advance line, and tonight the Americans were driving back the Germans without pause in the coastal corridor of the western offensive.

The biggest offensive of the invasion hurtled into its second week with augmented power. The Germans' trans-Normandy line was smashed in a dozen places. Disorganized Nazis yielded themselves as prisoners in droves.

To the east of the line British tanks and infantry drove forward 11 miles south of Caumont in 24 hours. East of the Vire River, in the central sector, they joined up with the American drive southeast of captured Rorigny and heeded over tough, wooded ridges across the Souleuvre River only five miles from the key communications town of Vire.

Take Stronghold

On the way the British column captured Le Beny-Bocage, German hill stronghold eight miles north of Vire.

The British 11-mile advance south of their jump-off area around Caumont brought them some 22 miles inland from the English Channel and was the deepest British penetration of the invasion.

Canadian troops after a deadlock of nearly a week captured Tilly La Campagne, but later, front dispatches said, the Germans had driven them out again in a fierce counter-attack. Simultaneously other Canadian troops moved in from the north to hold a ridge commanding the town from the north and the west.

Western Canada infantry were engaged in bitter fighting around the town, Louis V. Hunter, Canadian Press war correspondent, reported from the front.

The British troops enlarged their bridgehead over the Souleuvre River to a width of half a mile and all the Eveque forest and the village of La Ferriere were in Allied hands. In the British sector east of Caumont further gains were made in the area of St. Germaine Dectot.

Fighter-escorted American columns pushed south of Avranches across the Selune River, the Normandy-Brittany boundary line, four and a half miles to Pontaubault and beyond ,and ran through Ducey, on the river six miles below Avranches.

Behind the drive from Avranches in the corridor between the Vire River and the sea another American column swept south thorugh German resistance at Villdieu and other forces drove the enemy back in the streets of Percy, to which the Germans had been clinging desperately for two days.

FLIER BACK HOME—Wing Commander Arthur (Bunt) Waddell, D.F.C., well-known Peterborough officer in the R.C.A.F. who is home on leave for the first time in 4½ years. Former O.C. of the "City of Toronto" squadron, he took part in the Dieppe raid and recently has been active in air operations over the Normandy beachhead.

"Bunt" Waddell Warns Luftwaffe Tough

Arriving in Canada on Sunday and in Peterborough last night, Wing Commander Robert Charles Arthur (Bunt) Waddell, D.F.C., one of the city's best-known flyers, is home for the first time since he embarked for England four and a half years ago, a flying officer in the "City of Toronto" Squadron, first R.C.A.F. unit to reach England after the outbreak of war. He is back on a 30-day leave and then will return once more to his post overseas.

Winner of the D.F.C. one year ago and a participant in the Dieppe raid, Wing Commander Waddell is serving with the Tactical Air Force of which he has been a member since June, 1943, when he transferred from his original squadron after rising to be its commanding officer. In recent months he has taken an active part in invasion operations.

Unable for security reasons to speak in specific terms of the nature of his work or that of his flying group, Wing Commander Waddell feels that people are inclined to think that the invasion is a lot easier than it actually is. In regard to his own branch of the service, he notes that the weather has been consistently bad right from D-Day.

The Luftwaffe is far from being counted out of the fight yet, says Wing Commander Waddell. "They have plenty of airplanes, their pilots are very good. If the Hun decides to defend a given area, he can still make a good job of it."

The robot-bomb menace is gradually being brought under control now, the Peterborough air officer said today, and the Air Force is getting lots of them, over the Channel and in the Southern Counties, before they have a chance to do their evil work. However, he indicated, Hitler's secret weapon is no joke, and "a few days spent in London can make you feel closer to the war than at an airfield in Normandy."

Wing Commander Waddell was operating from bases on the French coast since the early days of the invasion, and among the men in his wing was Flt. Lieut. A. S. Collins of Otonabee.

British Launch Burma Attack

KANDY, Ceylon, Aug. 1 —(CP) — British Imperial Forces have struck far in the rear of the Japanese retreating down the Tiddim road from their fruitless invasion of northeast India and the enemy's main escape route now is threatened, a communique announced to-day.

This assault was made by troops operating against the Japanese supply line and "in the first clashes the Japanese lost a transport and more than 120 dead," said the bulletin from Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters.

It disclosed that Churachandpur, on the Tiddim road 40 miles from Imphal, fell to Indian troops "without a fight," although it had once been strongly occupied.

Air Chief Marshal Sir Richard Peirse, Chief of the R. A. F. in India, declared the defeat on the Assam front probably was the costliest reverse the Japanese army yet has suffered.

Figures now avavilable show that in three months the Allies largely destroyed five Japanese divisions in Burma, or more than half Japan's garrison there.

A total of 50,840 have been killed and wounded, not including losses by bombing, shell fire, fever and starvation.

Germans Hurry From Turkey

ANKARA, Aug. 1 (AP)—The overnight express train from Istanbul arrived here this morning packed with Germans and their families.

25,000 German Civilians Flee As Reds Besiege Ancient City

LONDON, August 1 — (CP) — Warsaw was reported in flames tonight as Russian masses pressed upon its northeast suburbs behind a deluge of shells and bombs. Farther north, other Red Army forces forced the Nazi defenders of East Prussia back along a 143-mile front to within 11.8 miles of the pre-war frontier of that cradle of German militarism. Billows of black smoke were reported rolling from the ancient Polish capital, indicating the Germans were putting it to the torch in preparation for evacuation. Moscow said Warsaw was under siege; that three columns were assaulting Praga, the eastern industrial suburb across the broad and swift Vistula River.

Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky's First White Russian Army group was reported firing heavy guns over open sights at the besieged German Warsaw garrison. The German high command said the Vistula had been bridged by the Russians in the bend southeast of the city.

Polish underground reports said 25,000 German civilians already had evacuated Warsaw, leaving only the army and Gestapo.

Tanks and tommy-gunners supported by mobile artillery drove along a road to Riga, the Latvian seaport capital of 393,211, from a position 21 miles away. The drive threatened to split up to 35 German divisions (perhaps 350,000 men) into north and south Baltic zones, and trap perhaps tens of thousands behind Russian lines.

The German communique, meanwhile, said that Russian troops had "forced one breach across the Vistula River" in the great bend some 60 miles southeast of Warsaw and that Nazi troops had been forced back on the northern slopes of the Carpathians toward Bedskiden Pass.

The assault of Warsaw was virtually matched in importance by a three-pronged Red Army drive against East Prussia in a sector now 143 miles wide. Gen Ivan (Cherniakhovasky's command advanced 31 miles and approached within 11.8 miles of East Prussia proper.

In either direction—beyond Warsaw or toward East Prussia— can the German Army give further ground without imperiling the whole structure of Germany's Eastern defence, but on both of these fronts, the numerically superior Red Army is forcing Hitler to scrape up all reserves.

A New Record.

The latest communique announced the Russians overran 2,144 localities yesterday, a record for the Soviet summer offensive.

Cherniakhovay, the young Jewish general assigned the task of battering into East Prussia, has methodically prepared for conquest of the lake-dotted Northern reaches of that Province by clearing three big road networks leading across the frontier.

From Kopiec, 11.8 miles from the pre-war Prussian border directly West of Grodno, one of Cherniakhovsy's three arms pointed at Lyck, 20 miles away.

Another force was mapping up the Suwalki triangle, claimed as German land since 1939.

From Pilviskiai, farther north, the third arm thrust westward along the railway leading to Koenigsberg, East Prussia's capital of 368,433.

Streams of German fugitives were reported pouring back into Riga, largest port of the Baltic Republics, after Gen. Ivan C. Bagramian's army, sweeping through Latvia toward the sea, captured Jelgava, 21 miles southwest.

The fall of Jelgava, described by Premier Stalin as "the main junction of communications linking the Baltic region with East Prussia," left Germans in Estonia and Eastern Latvia with little chance of escape except by sea.

French Underground Reports Rommel Dead Claim Stuelpnagel Also Died In France

ALGIERS, Aug. 1 —(AP)—The French underground has reported that Marshal Erwin Rommel and Gen. Otto Von Stuelpnagel both died in France, the Committee of National Liberation said today.

Rommel, German ground commander in Normandy, was said to have been fatally wounded in the head during an air attack on the Normandy front. (The German radio denied yesterday that Rommel either was dead or seriously wounded.)

Stuelpnagel, military administrator of Occupied France, was reported to have committed suicide following failure of the generals' plot on Hitler's life. The underground report said Stuelpnagel on July 21 ordered the arrest of Gen. Oberg, chief of the Gestapo on the Paris area, but ordered his release and return to Berlin the following day. The underground said Stuelpnagel then drove to Verdun and shot himself.

5 Hun Divisions Battling To Halt Drive on Florence

By EDWARD KENNEDY—Associated Press Correspondent

ROME, Aug. 1—(AP).—British 8th Army troops are making slow, methodical progress in their advance on Florence against five German divisions fighting a last-stand battle before the Tuscan capital, Allied headquarters announced today. South of the city the Germans lunged out with fierce counter-attacks along a wide semi-circular front which now forms their defence line.

"It is clear the enemy is determined to make a real stand as long as he is able, but the 8th Army's advance is relentlesly forcing him from successive strongpoints," headquarters said.

The Germans are using three of the best divisions at their disposal in Italy for guarding the approaches to Florence. These units are the 4th Parachute Division, the 29th Panzer Grenadiers and the 3rd Panzer Grenadiers. They have the support of Tiger tanks and are using a new type of booby trap—grenades set off by wires stratched across roads at a height to catch the aerials of radio-equipped vehicles. The grenades themselves are tied to trees and explode over the vehicles.

West of Highway 2, 8th Army troops still hold San Michele despite a counter-attack in which five German tanks entered the town. The 8th also occupied La Romola, two miles east of San Michele, and the village of San Andrea after repulsing a counter-attack there.

East of Highway 2 South Africans patrolling to the Greve River found the crossings strongly defended. Farther east British troops repulsed five counter - attacks against their positions on Mount Scalari and their forward patrols reached San Martino.

North of Arezzo the enemy was pushed farther up the precipitous Arezzo Bibena valley to the Orno gorge, three miles from Subbiano.

1,700 Planes Batter France

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 1 —(AP)—Up to 1,700 American planes, 700 of them heavy bombers, attacked German airfields south of Paris today.

Other installations near the French capital and in central France were bombed and strafed along with three airfields in attacks which followed R.A.F. night raids on French targets.

R.A.F. Typhoons deluged quarters suspected of housing German headquarters in Le Beny Bocages and Aunay with some 30 tons of bombs yesterday. It was in attacks such

Hitler Holds Firm Control

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1—(AP)—First reports reaching official Washington from inside Germany disclosed today the Nazis appear to have crushed the factions involved in the bomb plot against Hitler, and indicate that for the moment at least, Hitler has firm control.

The best description of the popular German reaction to the bombing attempt was apathy, the information says. So far as is known here, there was no rioting in Germany following announcement of the attack on Hitler, nor were there any demonstrations of rejoicing at his escape.

It is confirmed that the Nazis took speedy and far-reaching control measures immediately after the bomb attempt, especially in Berlin.

Further, there appears every reason to believe that the attempt on Hitler's life was in earnest, and not a put-up job as some observers originally speculated.

EXTRA!

LONDON—President Risto Ryti of Finland was reported in a Reuter dispatch from Stockholm today to have resigned.

LONDON—War Secretary Sir James Grigg announced in the House of Commons today that the British, Indian and West African forces in the Burma campaign lost 5,915 killed, 19,716 wounded and 2,384 missing between Jan. 1 and June 30 this year.

19 Divisions Hit Short Front

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 1—(AP)—Nineteen Russian divisions supported by "enormous tank forces" smashed at German positions along a 20-mile Estonian front from Lake Peipus to the Gulf of Finland, the German controlled Scandinavian Telegraph Bureau reported today from Berlin.

A Helsinki dispatch said the thunder of guns could be heard across the gulf, which is 40 to 80 miles wide.

Another Finish dispatch through Helsinki censorship said the Red Army was carrying out a "great expansion" of its Finnish front in northeast Karelia. The report, printed in Aftonbladet, said the Russians crossed the border established in the 1940 peace terms and headed directly fr othe key rail city of Joensuu, 230 miles northeast of Helsinki.

Vodka Used As D-Day Drink

Reds, Yankees Celebrate in Far North

By JACK SULLIVAN,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

NOME, Alaska, August 1 —(CP)—D-Day was V (for Vodka)—day for Russian and American fliers at this base of the air transport command, United States Army Air Forces, on the short of the Bering Sea.

Elated at the news the Allies had invaded France, they turned this otherwise-quiet base, 1,967 air miles northwest of Edmonton, into a bedlam of song and good fellowship.

Churchill was toasted—Stalin was toasted—Roosevelt was toasted. Britons, Russians and Americans were toasted. It was a "Victory" party in huge letters.

Many stories are told of the D-Day party, but the most popular going the rounds centres around an American officer who "bottomed up" a large-size drink of Vodka with a Russian friend.

The American downed the drink and then went down himself—face first. The party, minus the American, continued on its merry way. Then everybody went to bed and, no doubt, dreamed of the celebration when V-Day rolls around.

Bruce Declares Allowances Just A Bribe

By FRANK FLAHERTY,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, Aug. 1 —(CP)— One little word created an unusual scene in the House of Commons last night. The word was "bribe." Because it was said more than 100 members took an hour of their time arguing and voting about it.

They are already sitting two hours overtime every day in an attempt to finish the sessional business but for one hour yesterday white-haired, dignifiid Dr. Herbert Bruce (Pc-Toronto-Parkdale) held the centre of the stage.

In the end he was ordered to withdraw from the chamber and the House voted to suspend him for the balance of the day's sitting.

Dr. Bruce said the Govevrnment's family allowance Bill was a bribe "of the most brazen character." That, so Deputy Speaker J. A. Bradette decided and so the House voted to the count of 81 to 22, was not parliamentary.

But Dr. Bruce still refused to withdraw and his punishment followed before that was decided, however, his Progressive Conservative colleagues backed him up with their votes for the second time by staging another full-dress division, but losing to the count of 84 to 20.

While it was Dr. Bruce who used the word last night the incident did not start with him. Its beginnings some weeks ago when John Bracken, Progressive Conservative National leader, issued a statement on the Family Allowance Bill and called it bribery.

When Prime Minister Mackenzie King got around in the House to answering Mr. Bracken he declared if the Progressive Conservative leaded had made the statement in the House he would have been compelled to withdraw.

Sharply Critical.

Dr. Bruce was away when the House unanimously passed the Bill on second reading but before going he made a speech which was sharply critical. Last night he said he had to go to his farm because he had not enough help, due to the Government's manpower policy to get the harvest off, but had he been here would have voted against the bill.

He recalled Mr. Bracken's statement and declared he would not be intimidated by the Prime Minister. Then, he said:

"I now declare this measure is a bride of the most brazen character made chiefly to one Province and paid for the taxes of the rest."

Mr. King raised the point of order and cited rules to the effect that no member can reflect on any vote of the House except to move that it be rescinded. Dr. Bruce's remarks constituted an "indignity," and "insult" to every member, including his own leader, Gordon Graydon, who had voted for the bill.

The House was in committee of the whole on the family allowances bill and eventually approved the first two sections. When Dr. Bruce declined to withdraw and appealed from the deputy speaker's ruling that he must withdraw the next step was a report to the speaker who put the chairman's ruling to a vote of the House.

One Independent member, A. W. Neill, Comox-Alberni, voted with the Progressive Conservatives in support of Dr. Bruce on both divisions, but C.C.F., Social Credit and other Independent members voted with the Liberals.

Heated Remarks

Mr. Graydon remarked the short suspension of about two and a half hours, proposed by Mr. King, showed the ridiculousness of the position taken by the Prime Minister.

Heated remarks flew across the floor during the incident, and later with Percy Black (P.C.-Cumberland) remarked the bill was more for political effect than to benefit poor families.

Mr. King again objected, but did not press his objection when M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, urged the House to get on with its business, and Hon. R. B. Hanson (P.C.-York-Sunbury) said he was sure Mr. Black had not meant his words in the way the Prime Minister took them up.

When Mr. Coldwell advised getting down to business Pensions Minister MacKenzie said: "The Tories have changed their minds. That's all."

"Will you just keep quiet," said Mr. Hanson getting up to join the plea for tolerance.

Most of the day's argument was on the constitutionality of the bill. Progressive Conservatives argued it could not be constitutional and should be submitted to the courts before being made law. Justice Minister St. Laurent and Mr. King contended there was no doubt of its constitutionality, that a refrence to the courts would take two years and be of no value.

Children born overseas to Canadian soldiers will get the allowance as soon as they arrive in Canada, an amendment made in committee stage provided.

Howard Green (P.C.—Vancouver South) argued they should get the allowance before they come to Canada.

Mr. St. Laurent said there were administrative difficulties but if any injustice occurred the overseas families could have their position adjusted through the dependents' allowances paid to all soldiers children.

Mr. Green asked if this was a promise that dependents' allowances to overseas families would be increased by the amount of the family allowance.

"I cannot say whether I will be in the next parliament or not," said Mr. King, "and I am therefore not in a position to give any undertaking as to how this measure will be carried out. If I am here to carry it out I will certainly see that justice is done to the men of the armed forces."

(The allowances scheme does not come into effect until July 1 next and Mr. King had indicated there will be an election before that date.)

HOW B-29'S HIT MANCHURIA—This map shows probable route of the B-29 Superfortresses that blasted the Mukden area of Manchuria in daylight, principal target of the super bombers was Ashan, 75 miles south of Mukden and second largest producer of pig iron in the Japanese empire. Intricate installations were hit and badly damaged, it was said. Simultaneously other squadrons of the big planes struck at Chenghsien railway yard, a bottleneck on the Peiping-Hankow line, giving the Japs something else to untangle. This is the first B-29 assault on Manchuria.

Poles Trying To Settle Issue

MOSCOW, Aug. 1—(AP)—Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk and Foreign Minister Tadeusz Romer of the Polish Government in London, who have arrived in Moscow for talks with Soviet officials, may find some place in a new Polish set-up, it was believed today.

Observers saw in their trip from London encouraging signs concerning the entire Russian-Polish question. Upon their arrival yesterday the Poles conferred with British Ambassador Sir Archibald Clark Kerr and United States Ambassador W. Averell Harriman.

Romer was the last Polish ambassador to the Soviet Union and when relations were suspended it was known the Russians had nothing against him personally. The Russians never had expressed themselves on Mikolajczyk.

Greenland and Iceland and the third by way of the Prairies, the Pas and Churchill, Man., Southampton Island and Frobisher Bay.

Many Air Bases.

Included in the United States finance projects for which Canada will now pay are large air bases at the Pas, Churchill, Southampton Island, Frobisher Bay, Fort Chimo and Mingan. The installation at Goose Bay was largely made by Canada, but there was some American expenditure which now will be taken over. Canada has a 99-year lease from the Government of Newfoundland on Goose Bay and it is agreed that the United States and Britain shall have the use of the base for the duration of the war.

The actual reimbursemnt to the United States in American funds will total $76,811,551. In addition to this Canada has assumed substantial expenditures for construction of wartime facilities which were originally made on the understanding that Canada would be reimbursed by the United States. These expenditures in Canadian funds will total $34,761,643. The two items add up to $119,253,000 in Canadian funds.

The northwest staging route, for which arrangements regarding Canada assuming the cost were announced earlier was designed to provide a route to Alaska for defence against Japan.

The northeast route was designed for both defensive and offensive preparations, to close the northeast back door of America to attack threatened when the Germans were establishing weather stations in Greenland and sending out the battleship Bismarck, and on the offensive to permit the transport of short range bombers and fighter planes to Europe.

Fortunately, it was not required as the submarine menace was brought under control, the occupation of North Africa opened the southern route to Europe and other conditions made it unnecessary to send as many planes as was anticipated. The facilities on the western leg or the route, via the Pas, and Churchill have not been largely employed and the plans for it were not fully implemented.

Not Fully Used

The chain of airports and facilities disclose today may have some peacetime importance, but in the main its value lies in its usefulness for war and future defence.

Apart from Goose Bay, which is expected to be an important base for peacetime North Atlantic air transport, experts do not anticipate any immediate important use of the facilities in postwar aviation.

The northwest staging route, on the contrary is expected to be for some time to come the main avenue of flying from North America to the Orient although it may eventually be supplemented or replaced by a more northerly route along the MacKenzie River.

The reasons given for Canada assuming this expenditure were understood to be these:—

1. It is felt that as a contribution to the war Canada should bear the full cost of all wartime installations on Canadian territory.

2. It is not considered desirable that another country should have a financial interest in permanent installations on Canadian territory.

New Landing Made In Pacific

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Aug. 1—(AP)—An unopposed leapfrog landing which placed Allied forces within easy bomber range of the Philippines and completed the strategic reconquest of New Guinea was announced today.

United States units Sunday captured the tiny village of Sansapor at the northwestern tip of New Guinea in a 200-mile amphibious move westward from American-occupied Noemfoor Island. They established a firm hold on the beaches of the Vogelkop Peninsula and occupied two adjacent coral islets—Amsterdam and Middleburg—while scarcely firing a shot.

Sansapor is little more than 600 miles southeast of Mindanao—main island in the southern Philippines—and less than 200 miles from the Japanese strongpoint at Halmahera. It is approximately 60 miles east by north from Sorong, the heavily-battered enemy base at the extreme end of New Guinea.

The surprise landing trapped an additional 15,000 Japanese troops, concentrated around Manokwari, some 150 miles eastward. Noemfoor island is about 50 miles east of Manowkwari.

"This is the latest operation of the New Guinea campaign," a headquarters spokesman said. "We control the entire north coast. It isn't necessary to go ahead and take Sorong. We have no need of it."

Sansapor's terrain is suitable for air bases. The area is covered by jungle, but there are no large trees.

Meanwhile, in the Marianas, American soldiers and marines, sweeping swiftly across southern Guam and through the capital town of Agana, today squeezed the Japanese tighter in the island's northern half.

In Tinian, 130 miles north of Guam, the battered remnants of the enemy force huddled in a small pocket near the island's southern end with no hope of escape.

Senator Wants Vacancies Filled

OTTAWA, Aug. 1.—(CP).—When the Senate resumed sittings last night following its adjournment last Thursday, Senator Arthur Hardy (L.-Ontario) called the attention of Dr. J. H. King, Government leader in the Upper Chamber, to there being 13 vacancies in the Senate, "some of which extend over three or four years," and asked that the Government take steps to rectify the situation.

Dr. King said he would bring the matter to the attention of the Government.

Senator C. C. Ballantyne, Progressive Conservative leader, was back in his place after several weeks' absence on account of illness. Senator King was heartily applauded when he welcomed Senator Ballantyne's return.

The Senate will meet again today.

Use Women Fliers.

The Dominion Government built a chain of strategically-situated airports from Edmonton to Whitehorse, Y.T., and today is known as the Northwest staging route.

Today, the Northwest staging route permits the passage of the fastest fighters and the heaviest bombers, with landing fields, radio facilities and servicing depots comparable to those on a main airline route in the United States.

The Dominion Government looks on the Edmonton-Whitehorse route as one of the vital links in the world-wide chain of air routes to be developed by commercial services after the war.

Russian women pilots have played a prominent role in the United Nations lend-lease scheme by piloting planes from Alaska to the Russian front. None of the women fliers has been seen in this city although Russian men pilots are seen frequently. They have been applauded on all occasions when they appeared in public.

Double Prong Attack Cuts Barrier

Americans Capture 2 Large Towns Along South Coast

By HAL BOYLE.
Associated Press War Correspondent

WITH THE AMERICAN FIRST ARMY IN NORMANDY, August 1 (AP). — American armored forces sweep beyond captured Avranches have enveloped Pontaubault, four miles due south, and Ducey, five miles to the south-east, in double-pronged attack carrying them across the Selune River at two points.

Lt.-Gen. Bradley's forces thus had spanned the last great natural barrier against a break-through to the south and also were emerging from the hedgerow country which has proved the biggest single factor in slowing their progress.

Other elements of Bradley's expanding armies meanwhile pushed past Villedieu, 11 miles north-east of Avranches, and contained a German counter-attack in the Percy area at the centre of the American line.

Resistance Grows.

Although American tank columns smashing south along the coast had failed to meet enemy entrenchments in any great strength, German resistance had definitely hardened in the central sector, where fierce counter-attacks were launched by the Germans in an effort to relieve presure on their western flank.

The plunge beyond Avranches resulted in the biggest bag of prisoners during the week-long attack, an estimated 6,300 being rounded up, including a number from several foreign regiments. Two prisoners wore Alpine hats.

Enemy artillery shelled Granvile lightly during the evening, but al fire against this supply port for the Nazi-held Islands of Guernsey and Jersey ceased after pockets of resistance were cleaned up in the area.

Infantry sweeping through fields and along secondary roads found numerous groups of starving Germans hiding in barns and abondoned outdwellings. Few chose to fight it out.

Many complained their officers had deserted them and said that as a result of the collapse of German communications and transport they were cut off without warning.

Except for a strong counter-attack in the Percy area the major impetus of the American battlefront was southward. A slight advance was made eastward at St. Lo, here the Germans are still extremely sensitive to any pressure.

The Germans may expect the Istanbul sector to become a war zone and wish to avoid being held there. Friendly diplomatic establishments in Ankara perhaps would provide a haven for some.)

Istanbul newspapers announced that blackouts would begin along Turkey's Black Sea and Mediterranean coasts Thursday.

It was learned today that every member of the German colony here has been ordered by the German minister to pack two suitcases and to send an inventory of his possessions to the German embassy.

German business men representing export firms have cabled back to Germany to suspend all shipments to Turkey.

Aim At Brittany

Lt.-Gen. Bradley's tank advance beyond Avranches puts the Americans in position to strike 100 miles across the Brittany peninsula base or to turn east toward the interior of France and Paris, 160 miles away.

Sartilly, six miles northwest of Avranches, was consolidated in a rapid mop up of by-passed areas.

German prisoners poured in faster than a definite count could be made. The total for the week's campaign seemed nearer 15,000 than yesterday's original 10,000.

An earlier dispatch from Greene said British infantry, braving fierce fire from enemy machine-guns, cleared minefields northwest of Caumont yesterday, and by last night had a strong line on the westward tributary of the river Seulles between Sermontot and St. Germain d'Ectot.

By early evening patrols were crossing the stream. In the same area British infantry captured the village of Orbois and cleared the surrounding woods.

Tram Workers Vote To Strike

MONTREAL, August 1 —(C P) — Operating employees of Montreal Tramway Company to-day voted to strike to back up their demands for a union shop.

President A. R. Mosher of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees (C. C. L.) announced the result of the strike vote which has been going on by secret ballot since 6.30 last night. He said that of 3,500 votes cast, only 70 opposed the strike decision.

Union officials made no immediate announcement as to when the strike would start, but they had previously stated that residents of Montreal would be given 24 hours notice before the city's 1,100 trams and buses left the streets for the third time within 16 months.

It was thought likely that announcement of the time the strike would start would be made tonight. There was no immediate comment from company officials with whom union representatives have been conferring in an effort to find a solution to the deadlock presented by the Union demands for a union shop. The demands have twice been rejected by a Federal Conciliation Board.

Legal Action.

It was just 16 months ago to-day that the first strike of tramway employees ended, after a 2½ day walk-out had brought union recognition for the C. B. R. E., which claims to represent 98 per cent of the tramways' 4,000 operating personnel.

A second strike last February brought appointment of a conciliation Board which ironed out all points of dispute except that of the union shop clause.

If the present strike develops, it is considered legal by the union unled federal legislation. The federal law provides that a strike must not be called until after 14 days have elapsed since the presentation of the report of the conciliation Board. In the present dispute, the board brought down its decision July 6.

Robot Boomerangs Returns To France

Social Credit Followers Are Optimistic

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

EDMONTON, August 1 — (CP) — Two Provincial Premiers, two national party leaders will travel Alberta highways and byways this week in the final drive for votes before election day August 8.

Both Alberta and visiting party spokesmen have been cautious in predictions of the election outcome.

Social-Crediters said reports from most parts of the Province indicate they will "do better than in 1940," when they captured 35 of the 57 Legislature seats. C. C. F. spokesmen said their prestige is higher than in 1940 because of their success in the neighboring Province and their display of strength in the Ontario Provincial election last year. In their campaign speeches, they invite Alberta to fall in line with Saskatchewan and with the Government they say they will send to Ottawa.

Premier E. C. Manning, Social Credit leader, said several times in addresses last week that the Independents, who formed the second largest group in the last legislature, are 'all washed up". But James H. Walker, Independent leader, has enough candidates in the contest to form a government if the tide is overwhelmingly in their favor. Mr. Walker was condemned both the Social Credit Program and C.C.F. Socialism but in the last Legislature found it possible to support several pieces of S. C. legislature.

Labor-Progressives, with 30 candidates entered, said they have hopes of capturing "several seats."

Four Regiments Are Identified

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE Aug. 1.—(CP Cable). — Four famous Canadian regiments which were engaged in recent fighting in Normandy were the Black Watch of Montreal, the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, the Calgary Highlanders and the Royal Regiment of Canada, a Toronto unit, it was permitted to disclose today.

The R.H.L.I. and the Royals were the fifth and sixth Canadian regiments to be identified in Normandy which took part in the combined operations raid on Dieppe nearly two years ago.

Previously named in Normandy were the Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders of Winnipeg, the South Saskatchewan Regiment of Weyburn, Sask., Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal, a French-speaking unit from Montreal, and the Essex Scottish Regiment of Windsor Ont.

At the Dieppe raid the Essex Scottish were brigaded with the R. H. L. I. and the Royals, the other three regiments formed the other Canadian brigade which saw action that day. Both brigades were drawn from the Canadian 2nd Infantry Division.

The four regiments whose names were disclosed to-day arrived in Normandy only a few weeks ago and have performed creditably in actions which gave them their battle inoculation.

The fighting in which some of these regiments participated has been about the fiercest the Canadians have seen since D-Day.

Tough Battles.

It was the Royals— the Royal Regiment of Canada—veterans of Dieppe, who advanced from Le Mesnil, south of Caen, to capture Louvigny in a 12-hour fight that saw them push the Germans from that strongly-held small valley town and orchard. The Germans had good defensive positions behind the high stone walls of the orchard and in a 17th century chateau they had once used as a hospital.

Verrières, southernmost point to which the Canadians have advanced along the Caen-Falaise road, was taken by the Royal Hamilton Light Infanrt,y after French-speaking troops from Quebec had secured two hillside towns immediately north of Verrières.

The Black Watch and Calgary Highlanders fought their opening battles in France one week ago today around St. Andre-Sur-Orne and St. Martin De Fontenay. The battles were as tough as any Canadian troops have seen in Normandy and included bitter street fighting affrays.

Other Canadian units previously identified as being in Normandy are:

1st Hussars, London, Ont.

The Sherbrooke Fusilier Regiment, Sherbrooke, Que.

Royal Winnipeg Rifles, Winnipeg.

Regina Rifles Regiment, Regina.

Canadian Scottish Regiment, Victoria.

Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, Toronto.

Le Regiment De La Chaudiere, Lake Megantic, Que.

Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, Cornwall, Ont.

North Nova Scotia Highlanders, Amherst, N. S.

Highland Light Infantry of Canada, Galt, Ont.

Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa, Ottawa.

Fort Garry Horse, Winnipeg.

Hit Robot Bases

R.A.F. heavy bombers, stepping up the campaign to wipe out the German flying bomb menace, struck last evening and again at night at two widely separated robot supply depots and a number of launching sites in northern France.

Before dark Lancasters and Halifaxes attacked one depot a few miles southwest of Reims and another in the Pas de Calais area while continuing to bombard platforms from which the Germans fire robot raiders. Flying bombs fell intermittently in Southern England last night and today.

The day and night punches at the robot launching ramps and supply depots, together with mine-laying cost the R.A.F. four planes.

In other operations late yesterday, R.A.F. heavy bombers pounded German naval vessels at Le Havre and the railway centre of La Roche, 65 miles southeast of Paris.

Both the Le Havre and La Roche assaults were carried out before dark under a fighter escort as tactical air units continued bombardment of enemy transport behind the Normandy battle zone, rounding out a day in which some 4,500 sorties were flown by Allied aircraft based in Britain and France.

Judge Postpones Eviction Of Soldier's Wife

COBOURG, August 1 (ENS) — Thirty-day stay in the execution of an eviction order was granted Monday by Judge J. C. M. German to Mrs. Percy Clapperton, former Toronto woman, whose husband has been overseas for four years. She and her three children reside at 419 William street in a house rented from Simon Jaynes, R.R. No. 2, Cobourg.

Mr. Jaynes applied for an order for possession July 7, the application being granted by Judge German, but operation of the order was suspended until July 31 in order that Mrs. Clapperton could secure other accomodation.

In granting a further 30-day stay Monday Judge German pointed out that it was granted without prejudice to the original order.

Alderman Charles Sims of Toronto, who has been interested in the case because of his work in Toronto for soldiers' families, was present for the hearing.

A. R. Willmott, counsel for Mrs. Clapperton, pointed out that he had been asked by David Carr, secretary of the Legion to act on her behalf. As he understood if the order had been made because of non-payment of rent but since then the money has been paid. The rent had been withheld because of a dispute between the landlord and the tenant concerning the fact that one of the electric lights would not work, Mr. Willmott related. The woman had made an honest effort to get other accommodation without success. As the pending change in rental orders, as announced over the weekend by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, now covered those who shared accommodation, Mr. Millott suggested that some stay in action should be granted.

Husband Overseas

Continuing, Mr. Willmott said that Mrs. Clapperton's husband had been overseas for four years and she had three children to look after. It was possible that there had been some trouble with the other tenants in the same house. The rent was now paid and perhaps it would be possible to get at the root of the trouble he declared.

Judge German reviewing the matter, said that the application had been made on July 7 on the grounds that the rent had not been paid and because of the allegation that she was an undesirable tenant who was causing trouble with other people in the neighborhood. The order was granted but its execution was stayed for three weeks in order to give her a chance to secure other accomodation.

"What have you done to get another place?" asked Judge German

Mr. Clapperon said that she had looked around and asked about getting other accomodation but was not successful. She had seen one lady on Division street about getting a house but was not successful there either.

"Did you see a real estate agent?" asked Judge German. Mrs. Clapperton said she had not.

Not Much Effort

"That is hardly being fair to me, the Legion or the landlord. You really made no effort at all. You ask Mr. Sims to help you and he comes all the way down from Toronto today. I can't see where you have tried very hard to get another place," commented Judge German.

Alderman Sims informed the enquiry that Mrs. Clapperton really wanted to get back to Toronto, at which point Mrs. Clapperton burst into tears. It was because of housing difficulties in Toronto that the welfare authorities there sent her to Bowmanville, after which she came to Cobourg.

"I am going to see that the civic administration in Toronto does something for this woman," Alderman Sims promised.

"Well you can see that she has not done anything to get another place here," observed the judge.

"My complaint is with the city of Toronto. She should never have been sent out of Toronto. As far as Cobourg is concerned I will see every real estate broker in town to see what we can do for her in the meantime. However Toronto has some responsibility in this woman," said Mr. Sims.

Toronto Responsibility

"I guess Toronto has more responsibility than Cobourg," replied the judge. Alderman Sims then asked for two months extension so that efforts could be made to get her one of the 61 houses that are being built to relieve the problem for servicemen's families. He said that there was a fair chance that she would get one of the houses but he couldn't say for certain. She was certainly not happy in Cobourg, although it was no fault of the town. The Welfare Dept of the City of Toronto should bring her back.

"An order has been made and the circumstances justified it. Any extension of time must clearly be understood as being without prejudice to the case," said Judge German.

F. C. Richardson, who is acting for the landlord, pointed out that Donald Gordon had taken the attitude that tenants rentals should not be frozen for the reason that if they were, landlords would be reluctant to rent their houses to permanent tenants.

Judge German said that in any event he was not disposed to be bound by an order-in-council when the present case was one which arose before the date of the change in rental regulations. He was not in favor of a two months' extension but would grant a 30-day stay, with the consent of the landlord, and if Mrs. Clapperton were still in the house by the expiration of that period she would have to appear again and establish whether she had made every effort to get other accomodation. Mr. Jaynes assented to the 30-day extension.

Dave Wellman Writes From Jap Camp

BONARLAW Aug. 1.—(ENS). — Rfmn. Dave Wellman of the Royal Rifles of Canada, taken prisoner at Hong Kong in the first month of the war in the Pacific, has written home from a Japanese internment camp and expressed the hope that "by this time next year I will be with you again." The soldier's letter was addressed to his mother, Mrs. Jennie Wellman, of this place, and to his father, whose death occurred after Rfmn. Wellman went overseas.

It was nearly a year after the fall of Hong Kong before Mrs. Wellman was informed of the fate of her son and the word that reached her in November, 1942, of his being held as a prisoner of war was the only news to come into the hands of the family since the Japanese engulfed the Far East in the flames of war.

Rfmn. Wellman, 36, is the oldest of four brothers. The others, Clare, Charlie and Ralph, live in Rawden Township. The soldier was a truck driver before his enlistment.

He writes: "It's a long time since I have been able to write you, it seems to be years. Needless to say, I am sure grateful to the Japanese for this opportunity. I am well, as usual, and hope these few lines find you the same. I suppose you feel lonesome at times, but just think of the good times we can all have when I get back. I think of you often and hope by this time next year I will be home again. Remember me to my friends. I hope to get an answer before too long."

American Units May Isolate Brest Harbor

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 1—(AP)—The American 1st Army's present rapid advance—which in seven days has moved 40 miles in Avranches and turned the battle of the Normandy beachhead into a fight for all France—coming in conjunction with a steady British 2nd Army gain south of Caumont — has placed Lt.-Gen. Bradley's armor in a position to cut off the Brest peninsula by driving a futher wedge about 40 miles deeper into present German lines.

Whether or not this course is any more likely a part of Allied strategy than any other, it represents one more threat to Field Marshal Von Kluge's defences and spreads them that much thinner along an arc where the Allies now may pick their spot and punch at will.

3 Key Points

Except for road and secondary rail lines into the Brest peninsula along the south coast the whole communications network into Brittany from interior France funnels through Laval, Vitre and Rennes.

Vitre is 40 miles due south of Avranches and Rennes is slightly more than 50 miles south and slightly west. The country between Avranches and these two cities is more favorable for mechanized attack than most of the battlefields the Allies have had in Normandy.

With the main line at Rennes cut, the Germans would have to supply their fight for Brittany either from the South of France or along the circuitous supply chain composed of the trunk line through Orleans and Tours to Nantes and thence into the peninsula along the southern coast by secondary roads and spur lines.

Field Marshal Rommel already has weakened the Germans' Brittany defences in the last desperate two weeks of his fight for Normandy Brittany offers two prizes.

The first is great deep water harbor of Brest itself, the second Port of France with many times the cargo capacity of Cherbourg.

The second would be a broadened base for an inland assault. It would give the Allies an operating base up to 200 miles wide with room in which to mount and deliver the knockout blow.

Rangers Busy at Connaught Men Well Fed, Enjoy Work

Army Public Relations M.D. 3

The Rangers are one of the eleven Reserve Army units of Military District No. 3 here for their yearly two weeks of camp training under Col. L. W. W. Slack, M. C., V.D., camp commandant.

Major V. M. Eastwood, M.C., acting officer commanding, reports that all personnel are taking their training extremely well under competent instructors, and that Capt. R. F. Nott, unit medical officer, has treated such minor training casualties as sunburn and blisters.

Last week a Universal carrier section under Lieut. Graham H. Eastwood gave a demonstration before all units of the 33rd (R) Brigade Group which were drawn up on the sprawling green acres of the ranges here. Lieut. Eastwood who also acts as messing officer of the battalion, gave a running commentary over a loudspeaker system as the section put on a realistic display.

Receive Promotions

Two officers and three other ranks have received promotions since the unit entered this training camp. Second Lieutenants W. S. Cowell and J. A. Nornabell have been promoted to full lieutenants, while Pte M. Levine and Lance Corporals J. D. Miller and C. D. Wason have been promoted to corporals.

Among those who have attended the officers' regfresher course are Capt. J. D. Crawford, Capt. J. H. Turner, Capt. W. R. C. Perry, Lieut. W. G. Langhorne, and Lieut. N. E. Elliott.

Several non-commissioned officers have attended courses and include Sgt. G. G. Miller, carrier; Sgt I. Black and Pte. V. J. LaPointe, "B" vehicles, and Sgt. C. Porter, 3-inch mortar course.

Sergeants T. A. Chapman and C. H. Crouter and Cpl. W. G. Downer and Pte. V. C. Grady are doing a splendid job in providing well-balanced meals to the unit personnel, and most of the battalion members, who are tanned and fit after a week in training here, have gained one or two pounds.

Special Visit

During his visit to camp on Friday, Major General F. R. Phelan Director General of the Reserve Army, spoke to Sgt. T. Griffin, men's canteen sergeant, one of the oldest members of the battalion.

Today the unit took part in a church parade, along with the Reserve Army units which comprise the 33rd (R) Brigade Group. Following the service, Col. Slack presented Canadian Efficiency Medals and clasps to seven Reserve Army personnel in training rere, and later took the salute during a marchpast.

The Prince of Wales Rangers and the Princess of Wales Own Regiment (MG) of Kingston are both placing high in the tabloid sports competition for which the camp commandant, Col Slack, has donated a trophy, and a keen competitive spirit has arisen between the two battalions. The P.W.R.'s are putting forth every effort to win the trophy, which is for the reserve unit making the highest aggregate score throughout the entire camp period in sports and training games.

Graydon Resents Remarks Of Premier King

OTTAWA, August 1 — (CP). — Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, said yesterday in the Commons that Prime Minister Mackenzie King last Friday cast a "direct reflection on the patriotism of C. P. McTague, national chairman of the Progressive Conservative Party."

(Mr. King said Friday he was amazed that "some men of high position in this country who were brought into the Government service to help carry on the war, knowing what they do about the seriousness of the situation, and how necessary it is that every man of ability who can serve should remain in service to help to win the war, should have left the Government in order, in the crisis of war, to help organize a political party against the Government.")

Mr. Graydon said the remarks were aimed at Mr. McTague who resigned as chairman of the National War Labor Board and later accepted the post in the Progressive Conservative Party. He asked the Prime Minister to withdraw the remarks.

Mr. King replied that the remarks were not meant to apply to any one person in particular. He was speaking in general terms.

When resigning as chairman of the Labor Board Mr. McTague said he was giving up the post to return to the bench because there was a shortage of Judges, Mr. King said. Instead of returning to the Bench Mr. McTague had accepted the post in the Progressive Conservative Party.

Mr. King said he felt that as Prime Minister of the country he had a right to know why a man was leaving the Government service.

Mr. Graydon said Mr. King had not shown that Mr. McTague at the time of his resignation intended to accept the Conservative Party post. He had not shown that Mr. McTague resigned for that reason.

No Meat Rationing During Year?

OTTAWA, Aug. 1.—(CP). — The Prices Board said in a statement today that unless "some radical and unexpected change" in either the supply or demand situation occurs, there was no likelihood of meat rationing being resumed in Canada "during the remainder of this calendar year."

The statement said most of the conditions which brought about the suspension of meat rationing March 1 still existed.

"Meat rationing was introduced in May, 1943, for two reasons—to make available as large a meat supply as possible for shipment overseas and to ensure equitable distribution of the remaining supplies in Canada," said K. W. Taylor, food administrator for the Prices Board.

"Both these objectives now are being achieved without rationing. We are sending overseas all the meat that our rail and shipping facilities can handle, and an enforced reduction of meat consumption in Canada would probably recreate all the acute storage and other difficulties which confronted us last winter.

"Moreover, the Meat Board, in collaboration with the Prices Board and the packing industry, is able to get all its export requirements without seriously complicating the problems of equitable distribution between regions and localities in Canada."

Good Distribution

Mr. Taylor said there was "hardly any trouble" in Canada from maldistribution of supplies, and no evidence of any locality having been short of meat since the suspension of rationing.

"Canada's increasing meat production since the outbreak of war has been an important part of our war effort," he added. "Our average total meat exports in the three pre-war years amounted to about 200,000,000 pounds a year.

"In 1941 our exports to the United Kingdom were 460,000,000 pounds; in 1942 530,000,000 pounds and in 1943 486,000,000 pounds. In the first six months of 1944 we have shipped more than 425,000,000 pounds of pork products and more than 50,000,000 pounds of beef.

"If present trends of livestock marketings continue we will supply for export to the United Kingdom about 50 per cent. more wheat than in 1943 and nearly double the minimum requirement for which the United Kingdom is looking to us. So long as such results can be achieved without rationing there is clearly no justification for re-imposing the burdens and expense of the use of meat coupons."

Family Allowances

Ever since the discussion of family allowances began in Parliament there has been a vast amount of passionate, but not always well-informed, talk about it all over the country. The plan for family allowances is not perfect, and we could write at length in criticism of it, but upon the whole the Examiner supports it because it believes that the family allowance system, with all its faults, will be of benefit to the most important section of the population of this country—its children. It is being said that it will benefit more children in Quebec than anywhere else, and this is true. But the children of Quebec are Canadians as much as the children of any other province, and it appears that they need help more. We should like to point out that the children of Quebec wil' not grow up to be better Canadians than their parents if they are kept in th: under-nourished and ignorant condition which is inseparable from poverty. People who take the short view see family allowances as a boon to Quebec; people who take the long view see them as a boon to Canada. It must be pointed out that Quebec contains approximately one-third of the population of Canada; if the other two-thirds cannot keep up with it in natural increase there is something wrong with them, and they had better find out what it is.

• • •

One thing that is wrong in Canada is perfectly clear: the people of Quebec, for reasons of their own, produce children whether they are able to keep them decently or not, and thousands of couples in the rest of Canada avoid parenthood because they feel that they cannot afford to bring up children to be healthy and strong. There is no point in discussing these two points of view; they exist, and they wil' not be changed quickly. But family allowances should make it possible for young couples everywhere in Canada to begin raising families earlier than before. No doubt for this reason the factions which have been screeching about the iniquities of Quebec would like to see this benefit given to every province but Quebec, but a democracy cannot resort to such shifts.

• • •

Canada needs population, and the best way to get it is by natural increase. Immigration is a secc'd-best, for we cannot be too particular about the people we let into our country, and those who choose to emigrate may be seeking greater opportunities in a new country, or they may merely be people who have failed in their homeland through faults of character, and who think that faraway hills look green. We shipped many hundreds of them home—to the British Isles as well as to European lands—during the depression. It lies in our power to see that children born in this country grow up to be the sort of Canadians we want and need, and family allowances are one way of gaining that end.

• • •

Family allowances are going to cost the country a lot of money, but if the money is well-spent we need not grudge it. Family allowances are an experiment, and an experiment may fail. But the experiment is clearly intended to benefit Canada in a direction in which she badly needs benefit. We can, of course, behave in typical Canadian fashion and wait till some other country has made the trial, and then copy them fifty years later. But we have done a number of untypical things lately: we have instituted a wartime price control which is the envy of the U.S.A., and we have made it work. Canada can be adventurous when she tries. Family allowances will only be costly if the experiment fails; if it succeeds, they will be cheap at the price. In our short history we have poured millions of dollars down the drain without getting anything in return but trouble and some doubtful experience. Family allowances look like a better bet than a score of other projects which have aroused no great discussion in the country.... In our third column we are now publishing a series of articles on social security in Canada, by Mr. Grant Dexter, and we think that they give an excellent background for the discussion of family allowances. We suggest that our subscribers will like to read them before making up their minds finally on this very important subject.

Roy Mitchell Is Dead

At the time when the Little Theatre Movement was at its height in Canada it derived a great deal from the fine artistic sense and the excellent common sense of Roy Mitchell, who was director of Hart House Theatre in Toronto. Although he was not a Canadian, Mitchell spent much of his life in this country, and wherever he went he added a richness to our national life which we badly need. From 1930 until his death last week he was on the faculty of New York University.

Writing of Mitchell's death the editor of the Kingston Whig-Standard has an amusing reminiscence:

"Professor Mitchell's death takes us back to the old days of the Canadian Press Association when newspaper editors and publishers used to gather once a year, largely for social purposes. (This was before the newspaper business had become highly commercialized, and the publication of daily newspapers a very difficult and expensive job.) Roy Mitchell helped to entertain the newspaper men of Canada one one occasion when they had a smoking concert in the old ballroom of the King Edward Hotel. We recollect that we sat in groups around small tables upon which were set out cigars, cigarets and colourful liquids in glasses, which all helped to make a convival evening. The hit of the program was a dramatic recital by Roy Mitchell of Rosa H. Thorpe's poem, 'Curfew Must Not Ring To-night'. He was accompanied on a large grand piano by Professor Michael Hambourg — the father of Boris, Mark and John—who was then a resident of Toronto".

It should be added that neither Mitchell nor Michael Hambourg offered this collaboration as something to be taken seriously. Mitchell had an active sense of humour, and burlesquing recitations and ham acting in general was one of his favourite parlour tricks.

While Mitchell directed it, Hart House was one of the important Little Theatres on this continent. Perhaps after the war someone could be found who would restore it to that position.

The Great Bathtub Hoax

A story has appeared recently in a few Ontario papers about the history of the bathtub, explaining that at one time a city ordinance in Boston decreed that a bathtub might only be used on medical advice, that the city of Virginia imposed a tax of $30 on each tub installed, and that in Philadelphia an ordinance prohibiting bathing between December and May was defeated in council by only two votes. These remarkable pieces of information first appeared on December 28, 1917, in the New York Evening Mail from the pen of the irrepressible H. L. Mencken; in 1926 Mencken confessed that he had simply made up the bathtub story as a hoax.

But it has lived as truth, and still enjoys wide credence. Indeed, Mencken's confession appeared in the Boston Herald, and three weeks later the Herald printed the facts of the hoax in deadly earnest!

Hoaxes have a way of getting out of control. During the last war the great British journalist Arthur Machen wrote an imaginative story about a legion of angels which had appeared to Allied troops at Mons. There are still people who accept the story of the angels of Mons as fact, and several soldiers have insisted that they themselves saw the phenomenon! There is no reason to believe that they are lying; the story appealed to them so strongly that they decided to believe it, and belief outran fact. Hoaxers, and innocent authors who have no wish to deceive, sometimes find that human credulity is stronger than the critical faculty.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The Germans are using the Leaning Tower of Pisa as an observation post. Of course, it will give them a biased view.

Germany hasn't had a general strike yet, but she has seen several strikes of generals.

His Majesty has made a visit to Italy, thereby giving the Italians a chance to see what a real King looks like.

The average time a train takes to pass a crossing is seven seconds. So you don't gain much even if you make it.

G. B. Shaw suggests that Hitler will probably end his days in the Vice-Regal Lodge in Dublin. Stranger things have happened. It was impossible to get the Kaiser out of Doorn without violating Dutch neutrality, and there has been no more bellicosely neutral country in the world since this war started than Eire.

On Economic Grounds

By GRANT DEXTER

OTTAWA: Here are the main arguments which led to the adoption of the family allowance policy:

A greater measure of social security not only is desired by the public but is essential to the success of the post-war international policies. The prosperity of Canada, and of the world in general, depends on trade. Plans for a post-war trading world are well advanced but these plans will be unable to operate unless countries do their utmost to maintain reasonably full employment within their boundaries. Full employment, at least in early post-war years, will require measures of social security.

If there is a recurrence of bad times in the early post-war years, the probable result will be a resort to nationalistic policies—protection, devaluation of currency and the like—which will curtail, not encourage trade.

The best way of maintaining full employment is to increase the incomes of those who earn least. If this can be done, purchasing power and, therefore, employment will be sustained.

Several possible policies were examined.

Since the purpose is to prevent unemployment, there was no point, in this particular project, in considering what might be done for people out of work.

Needy persons—heads of families in particular—could be assisted by public funds. But this would take much time because the need of each individual would have to be ascertained and individual subsidies would have to be continually supervised. A staff capable of administering such a policy does not now exist in this country and probably could not be built up for several years. Moreover, a policy of this kind would be very costly. The administrative charges would be out of all proportion to the payments made.

Alternatively, prices of farm products could be increased by subsidy to the point where the income of the needier farmers was raised to the desired level. And blanket increases in wages could be allowed to the point where the incomes of the needier urban workers were increased.

Or, again, the Dominion government could undertake public expenditures on a scale which would achieve the desired result—full employment.

ALL three policies, however, were rejected for these reasons:

Increased farm prices and wages brought about by government action and without reference to the market, would benefit equally those who required higher incomes and those who did not. Likewise, wage differentials cannot be discarded. If you raise the pay of the low-paid workers, the pay of all must go up proportionately. Therefore, wage increases would not discriminate between those who needed the money and those who did not. And public works, also, would involve stimulating, by public expenditure, the whole range of economic activity for the sake of the relatively few who needed assistance.

Moreover, with respect to farm prices and wages, the result would be to raise the cost of production all along the line, to make it more difficult to export and to create antagonism to imports. The certain result would be to cause unemployment and loss of export markets and to create an ever-increasing appetite for greater government assistance.

With respect to public works, the result would be to make government spending the decisive factor in the economic life of the country. Private enterprise would tend to become dependent upon the state, directly or indirectly. Self-reliance and individual initiative would be weakened.

ALL this, of course, does not mean that there should be no public works or that as a temporary war measure farm prices should not be increased or wage increases entirely ruled out. What is meant is that these policies, separately or in combination, were not regarded as able to meet the need of the country in the post-war years.

What the experts and the government were searching for was a policy which would increase the incomes of the needier people and do so with the least injury to free enterprise and the market system and, thus, to the trading position of this country in future years. Nothing should be done which would hinder this country from participating to the full in international trade.

At about this time, the National War Labour Board, which for six months had been inquiring into labour relations and wage conditions, made its report. The majority finding, by Hon. C. P. McTague—now national chairman of the Conservative party—presented the government with two choices. Either the wage ceiling must be removed with a view to increases in the lower brackets or family allowances must be adopted.

The minority report by J. L. Cohen, labour representative on the board, disagreed with this finding. Mr. Cohen was "utterly opposed" to family allowances as a substitute for a floor under wages, though he believed family allowances could probably form a part of a social security program. As a substitute for a raise in low wages, he said, family allowances would force low-wage workers to become "permanent wards of the state" and would create a group of free workers, adequately paid, and a group of economic slaves.

THESE reports were made in August, 1943. The government, on the advice of its economic advisers, decided for family allowances and the policy was announced in the speech from the throne in January last.

Essentially the choice was between high wages for all and, although not so clearly posted at the present time, high farm prices for all—between these and family allowances. The government chose family allowances not because of any lack of sympathy with the worker or the farmer but because the first essential is to maintain the economy of the country on a sound basis. Only in this way, it was argued, can we play our full part in the building of sound international post-war policies. Nothing in the policy adopted will hinder increases both in prices and wages where these are brought about by greater efficiency or productivity or by the expansion of markets for the products.

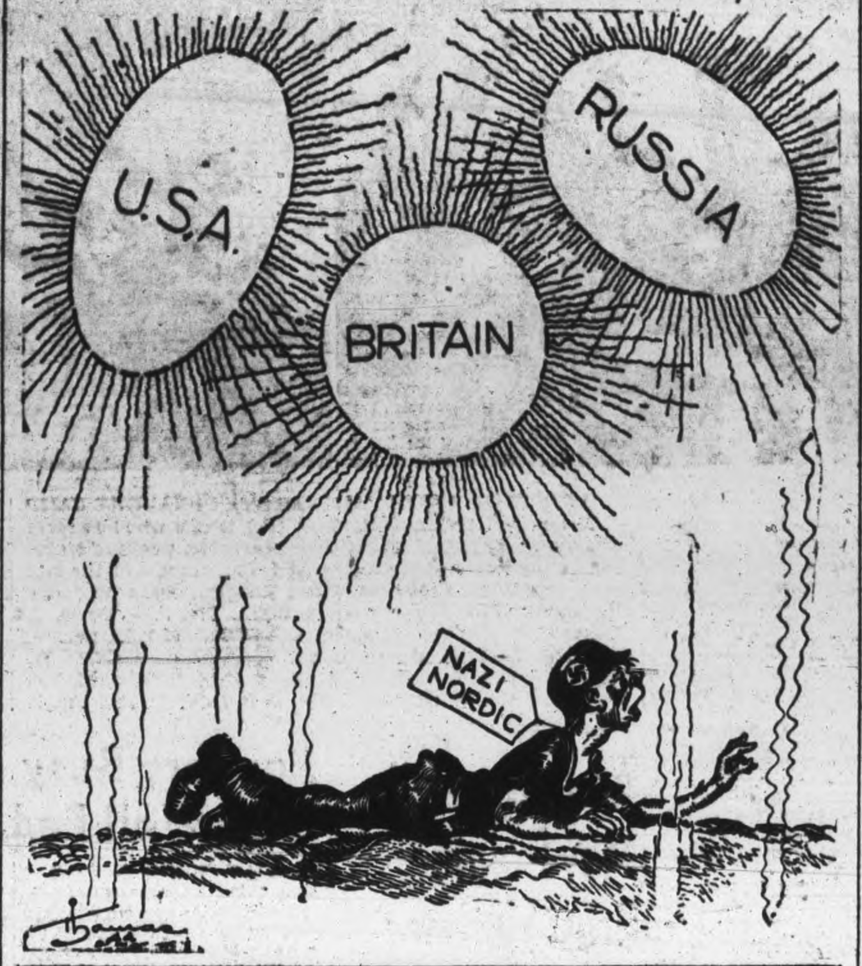
HE DEMANDED A PLACE IN THE SUN —By Thomas



The Canadian Indian

(LONDON ECONOMIST)

TO a greater extent than for many years, an awakening interest in the native Indian population of Canada is manifest. Examination of post-war problems over the whole field of rehabilitation has led to the discovery that a neglected problem of this kind had existed inside Canada long before the war. The handling of native peoples throughout the world will be one of the foremost problems of the post-war settlement, and it is a matter of surprise to Canadians to find that their policies with respect to the aboriginal native peoples of Canada, numbering 120,000 persons, scarcely bear comparison with progressive policies developed in other countries in recent years. In particular, the new Indian policies of the United States Government, and the modern treatment of the Maoris by the New Zealand Government, offer a striking example to Canadians.

In Canada, the Red Indian, the noble red man of the romantic novel of Canadian history and the Hollywood screen, has been segregated on reservations, bound by a policy of perpetual wardship and denied the status of citizenship and the ordinary opportunity of economic advancement. "In one law", said an Indian chief recently, "we are classed with the Eskimos and the insane. In another they tell us we are not a 'person', a term describing an individual other than an Indian. In one law, compulsory service regulations apply, as we are held to be British subjects. In another, the electoral act, we are not British subjects, and cannot vote, hold office, drink in a tavern, and have intoxicants on the reserve". Some 3,000 Canadian Indians are serving in the armed forces, a fact which has injected the problem of Indian policy directly into the field of post-war plans.

WITHIN the terms of traditional policy toward the Indian, the Canadians Government has fulfilled its obligations. Many tribes have had ancient treaties with the British Crown, dating from the conclusion of the Indian wars. The Government has spent several millions of dollars each year in Indian administration. But the result has been that the Indian has been walled in by a policy of paternalism. The Indian school system, operated largely on denominational lines, has been out-moded. The Indian has not risen, except in a few special cases, beyond a position of inferiority. He has been unable to secure a voice in parliament or in public life with which to press his just claims. This is the policy that has recently begun to come under scrutiny in Canada.

The war nas brought, for the first time, a temporary measure of economic opportunity to the Indian. The Indian Affairs Branch recently reported:

"There has been a steady decline during the year in the production of basketry, hand-loom weaving, wood carving, and other types of handicraft work. This decline took place despite the increased demand for handicraft products, particularly basketry. The decline was due wholly to the number of Indians, particularly Indian girls, who had become employed in essential war industries".

At best, the basket and beadwork type of employment has produced only a very low standard of living for Indians. On the other hand, recent developments in northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan—regions of muskrat conservation projects—have elevated and stabilized the economic situation for several hundred Indian families. Since most of the Indian men in Canada are trappers, the conservation of wild life represents a direct approach to the Indian problem.

But on the whole, conditions on Indian reservations and in villages in the northern wilderness have remained, as some members of the Parliament Committee on Reconstruction recently observed, in the category of slums. The reservations do not, indeed, support the Indian population. Medical and other services, even the provision of food in some cases are provided by Government. Reservation areas are generally poor land, without mineral or other resources. It is not surprising that many Indians, especially the older population, cling to the reservations which are the only prospect of security open to them. For the younger people, the failure to open up the pathway of improvement and assimilation into the economic life of Canada represents a tragedy to them and a national loss to Canada.

THE root of the trouble lies in the Indian educational system. It has been called a national disgrace by students of Indian affairs. Official records showed that in 1943 there were 352 schools to which Indian children went, and enrolment was only 16,800. Fewer than a hundred of these pupils had advanced beyond elementary school stage. Higher education for talented children has not been available, judging from the records. About half of those attending school go to residential or church-mission schools. This system, followed in Canada, is being abandoned in the United States because of the inevitable reversion of Indian children back to the barren, initiative-killing life on the reservatons.

To modernize Canada's Indian policy, a thorough transformation of public attitude will be required. The argument that the Indian should be treated as a free and equal citizen immediately arouses antipathy and scorn, so long has the public neglected the Indian, and so fixed has become the idea that he is an inferior person. But up to now Canadian Indian policy has done little beyond save the Indian from extinction. It has done little to open the way for his assimilation into Canadian society. The young and intelligent Indian objects that he is being forced to remain within an old and obsolete mode of living. In the wake of this war, however, the first evidences of change in Canadian attitude have appeared.

Teaching Prisoners

Illiteracy among the 80,000 Italian prisoners of war in this country when they arrived was as high as 25 per cent. Today, according to the Y.M.C.A., which has organized many reading and writing classes, it has been reduced to five per cent. Thus about 18,000 Italians have learned the three R's in this country and will go home no longer dependent on the local village scribe when they want to write a letter.

In all we hold over 350,000 Italian prisoners of war in the Commonwealth and North Africa. If the percentage of illiterate ones is as high as among those in England, some 90,000 Italians must have been illiterate.

Much less fortunate in this respect is the lot of those Italian prisoners of war who now wear the chocolate-coloured uniform of the Italian Pioneer Companies recruited from former prisoners of war. Many of these men have only just arrived in England. Their new status removes them from the special amenities offered to prisoners of war. Thus, according to a British officer attached to one of these pioneer companies, he cannot get the books or the musical instruments which he used to procure easily in the real prisoner camps.—Manchester Guardian.

"Mom, Mom"

Then there is the signalman who delights in the story of an av-ator, shot down before H hour and bobbing around in a rubber raft as the first waves of landing craft went in.

The airman, none too well versed in "blinker," was sending a frantic message with a flashlight.

Mothers-in-Law

A glad cry will go up from quite a number of taxpayers on reading one change in tax exemptions contained in Mr. Ilsley's new budget. From now on if a citizen's mother-in-law moves in with him and looks to him for support and comfort, he may put her down on his T-1 Special as a dependent. Heretofore a taxpayer might be sole support of in-laws and receive no consolation on that score from the Government—not a red cent in tax exemption. The only choice he had was to get rid of his wife and engage his mother-in-law as housekeeper—a hard choice. Certainly the change was in order.—Winnipeg Tribune.

Shakespeare Again

After 24 hours without sleep on D-Day, Paul K. Lee, of the New York Foreign Desk, tarried on his way home to check up in the reference library a Shakespeare quotation which he recalled as appropr ate for the occasion. His memory was correct.

The Allies landed in almost the same place in France as the British Army of King Henry V in 1415, and Shakespeare, in his Henry V, addressed his audience:

"And thence to France
Shall we convey you safe
And bring you back,
Charming the narrow seas
To give you gentle pass."

ENGLISH FUN

It happened in Matabeleland (so a correspondent boldly declares, and one can only hope it has not happened before in print). A lion and lioness in quest of supper discovered a group of half a dozen gnus. Leaping into their midst, the lion with six blows of his powerful claws laid them all dead on the veld.

"That," he said, turning to his wife, "is the end of the gnus. The time is exactly 18½ minutes past nine."—Manchester Guardian.

ROYAL CANADIAN NAVY BAND

The first Royal Canadian Navy Band ever to visit the United Kingdom played during the Empire Day ceremony in St. Paul's Cathedral recently. It is known as the H.M.C.S. "Niobe" Band, Niobe being the name of the R.C.N. base in Scotland where it is stationed.

The band will make six broadcasts over the BBC in the near future, and these will be transmitted to the forces as well as the public.

THE BADGER

(F. Outhet in Letter to Yorkshire Post)

Sir:—I have read with interest and pleasure Miss Kelway's article on the badger. I share Miss Kelway's views, and as a farmer hope that badgers will always find a place in our countryside. I do not think they are in much danger at present. After the war, when cartridges are more plentiful, young men will go out with a gun and will be apt to shoot at anything that pops up.

I started to carry a gun on my uncle's farm when very young. I was not long in getting into trouble on arriving home one night with a barn owl I had shot. I was told in no uncertain manner what to shoot and what not to shoot.

Owls, badgers and weasels must on no account be shot. After harvest, when all the stacks were thatched, my uncle would set a pole up at each end of the stack and on a moonlight night it was amusing to see a number of owls doing sentry in the stackyard. Any movement by a mouse or rat was fatal.

A Bible Message

God is a Spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth. (John 4: 24.)

◆ ◆ ◆

O Lord, thou hast searched me, and known me. ....Whither shall I go from thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from thy presence? If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there: if I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there.

If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea; even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me.

If I say, Surely the darkness shall cover me; even the night shall be light about me. Yea, the darkness hideth not from thee; but the night shineth as the day: the darkness and the light are both alike to thee. (Ps. 139: 1, 7-12.)

The tall, long-haired youth entered the music publisher's office carrying under his arm a small roll of paper.

"Goodafternoon!" said the publisher. "What can I do for you?"

The youth looked nervous.

"Well—er—I have a song here," he began, "and I was wondering if you would publish it. Er—shall I sing it?"

"Oh yes, let's hear it!" said the publisher; and the youth stood up and burst forth.

When the song was finished the publisher sat very still and said nothing.

"Well," asked the young man, "what do I get for it?"

"Oh," replied the publisher, with an air of resignation, "I'm a publisher, not a magistrate!"

NEW, BEAUTIFUL MINK—Just mink that's new because no other woman ever had it on her back is news enough for most mink, but the news about the beautiful blonde, wild mink skins which make this coat is considerably more novel. Chiffon mink, its introducer calls it . . . the woman fur designer who created this model. And the name is apt, for just hefting the coat takes a weight off your hands compared to other mink coats. Female skins, caught at a certain time of the season, accounts for the airy weight. Skins are no less hardy, many times more beautiful than usual mink skins.—By Prunella Wood.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

We are going to give you today a few recipes for war time pies and we hope all our readers will try them out. They are both tasty and inexpensive to make and will be appreciated by all who partake of them.

Open Apple Pie.

Line a deep pie plate with pie paste. Then peel, core and quarter good cooking apples and arrange one layer closely without overlapping in pie plate. Sprinkle with a few bread crumbs. Cover with ¾ cup granulated sugar, then pour over half cup coffee cream, either sweet or cour, and last of all ¼ cup brown sugar. Sprinkle with cinnamon. Bake in oven until apples are soft.

One Crust Raisin Pie.

1 cup raisins, 1 cup boiling water, 2 tablespoons flour, juice of 1 lemon, 1 cup white sugar, yolks of 2 eggs, ¼ teaspoon solt. Cook raisins in water until tender. Mix flour with half the sugar and stir into raisins, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Add beaten egg yolks, remainder of sugar, salt and lemon juice, and when thick pour into baked pie shell. Add meringue made by beating egg whites, until stiff, adding a little sugar. Brown in a slow oven 300 degrees.

Raspberry Pie.

3 cups raspberries, ¾ cup white sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 tablespoons dry bread or cracker crumbs. Line large pie plate with pastry and sprinkle over it half the bread crumbs. Dot with part of the butter and half the sugar sprinkled over it. Fill plate with berries and spread over them remaining ingredients. Put on top crust and bake in hot oven 425 degrees for 10 minutes. Then reduce the temperature to 350 degrees and bake half an hour longer.

Pineapple Sponge Pie.

1½ cups canned shredded pineapple, ¾ cup white sugar, grating of lemon rind (optional), one tablespoon melted butter, 2 eggs. Beat egg yolks and add sugar, pineapple, butter, and lemon rind (if used). Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into pie plate lined with pastdy and bake in hot oven 450 degrees until sponge is set. Then reduce temperature to 350 until baked.

Pie Pastry.

11 tablespoons flour 5 tablespoons shortening, 3 tablespoons water. Mix with as little handling as possible. This will make enough for one large pie and one small one.

SECRETS OF MARRIAGE SUCCESS

Seven Wives Tell How to Please Husbands, Live Happily to End of Chapter

What would you do if you could live your married life over again? This was the interesting subject that a group of wives were discussing the other day, and one of them said:

"If I had to live my married life over again, I would be a clinging vine and let George do all of the dirty work, while I reclined in a becoming pink negligee on a couch and told him what a great big, wonderful, strong man he was. For I have observed that the petted, spoiled wives are those who are handier with the salve-spreader than they are with the kitchen stove. Most husbands come to regard helpmeet wives, who toil and scrimp to help make their fortunes, just as business partner, but Baby Face keeps on being a Lady Love to the end of the chapter."

Laissez-Faire Saves Tears

"If I had to live my married life over again," said the second woman, "I wouldn't make so much fuss over trifles as I did when I was a bride. I would let a lot of things slide over which I used to make scenes. I wouldn't go into hysterics and reproach my husband with having ceased to love me because he forgot to kiss me good-bye or failed to notice that I had a new hair-do. Thereby I would save myself barrels of tears."

"I would scrap the anniversary fetish," said the third woman, "and, if my husband forgot to give me a present on our wedding day or my birthday, I wo buy myself something I wanted and tell him it was a gift from him. Then we would both laugh over it. I wouldn't raise ructions every time he wanted to go on a fishing trip or stay downtown to play poker with the boys, and I wouldn't get green-eyed over every pretty girl he looked at."

"I'd make myself easy to live with," said the fourth woman, "for I would know that men get all the fighting they want downtown in their battle with the world and they desire to come home at night to a wife who is suave, cheerful, pleasant and as soothing as a mush poultice."

Would Be Attractive to Husband

"If I had to live my married life over again," said the fifth woman, "I wouldn't throw away the bait with which I hooked my fish, as I did. I would count my calories and keep myself dolled up so that I wouldn't present such an invidious comparison to his spick and span and permanently waved secretary."

"I'd make a life and death fight to keep on being a companion to my husband, instead of sinking into being merely the children's mother," said the sixth woman. "I wouldn't send him away from home to find a woman to talk to who didn't confine her conversation to baby formulas. And the first time he called me 'Ma' I would throw the coffee pot at his head."

"Marriage," said the seventh woman, "is the most difficult and complicated and highly technical career that any woman can take up. And when I think of what little nitwits we were when we entered it, I'm surprised that any of us still has a husband."

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, August 2

Quickened energies and initiative, with highly stimulated mental and creative skills, impelling urges, bold strokes and aggressive measures are likely to push with dynamic force to the goals of major achievements or objectives, in a fresh, original or unusual field of operation. There may be change, travel, new plans or theories to further such efforts, with want of cooperation from elders or others. Concentrated personal effort and ingenuity may be the telling factors for dramatic success.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are assured of an exceptional opportunity to put over major operations and attain ambitious objectives, in a new field of conquest or achievement. New projects or propositions sustained by fresh ideas, original skills, bold strokes and personal marshalling of forces, may carry into strange and untried fields, to surprising or dynamic culminations of fruition. And this with little support from outsiders, relatives or elders. A policy of "go it alone" promises most success and satisfaction, even including celebrations and festivities as reward for initiative and creative competency.

A child born on this day should be endowed with much energy, enterprise, creative and intellectual ability, attaining success and happiness for its determination and initiative.

Millbrook Girl Becomes Bride

MILLBROOK, Aug. 1 — (ENS) — The home of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Sanderson, Tupper street, was the scene of a pretty mid-summer wedding Saturday afternoon, when their elder daughter, Mary Francis Bernice, became the bride of Edward Campbell McDowell, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Melbourne McDowell, Millbrook. Rev. A. L. Sisco performing the ceremony in the presence of more than thirty guests.

The bridal party stood under an archway centred with a cluster of silver bells, from which fluted streamers of pink and white were carried to wall pockets of summer blossoms on either side; tall standards of ferns ,based with baskets of lovely gladioli, filled the space either side of the archway, and these flowers were also used for decorative purposes throughout the home. Mrs. Eric McKinstry of Peterborough, sister of the groom, played the wedding music, and during the signing of the register, another sister, Mrs. Reginald Edmunds sang, "All That I Ask of You Is Love."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a dress of orchid marquisette over taffeta, with sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice with lowered waistline, and full gathered skirt. In her hair she wore a matching, braided halo with yellow roses, and under the chin veil. Her bouquet was of yellow roses, orchid crepe; she wore the groom's gift, an amethyst pendant on a fine gold chain.

The bridesmaid was Miss Gertrude Forsyth, of Peterborough, was dressed in misty green triple sheer crepe, over matching slip, made with sweetheart neckline, pointed peplum trimmed with lace and gathered skirt. Her halo was similar to that of the bride only of pale green, with pink roses and under the chin veil, and her vouquet was also of pink roses with white sweet peas. Black suede shoes completed her costume, and as her only jewelry, she wore the bride's gift, a pair of pastel, flowered ear-rings. Mr. Thomas Hawke, of Millbrook, was the groomsman.

For the reception, the bride's mother wore a pastel, flowered silk jersey dress, with corsage of yellow gladioli, and the groom's mother, Mrs. McDowell, had a two-piece dress, with floral pattern on pale green ground, accessories in white, and corsage of pink gladioli.

The bride's table, lace covered, was centred with three-tiered wedding cake, flanked on either side with tall pink tapers in silver holders, and with narrow fluted pink streamers carried from the central light overhead to the four corners.

Mrs. A. L. Sisco poured tea and friends of the bride who served the guests included Joan Martin, Mary Blair, and Betty Moncrief. Mr. and Mrs. MacDowell left by motor on their honeymoon to be spent in Haliburton County, the bride travelling in a maroon colored suit, with beige blouse, and matchng hat and accessores, and corsage of yellow roses. Upon their return, they will reside at Millbrook. The groom's gift to the groomsman was gold monagrammed tie and collar set, and the bride's gift to her husband was a gold knife, with chain, monogrammed.

Among the guests from outside points were: Mr. and Mrs. Eric McKinstry, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. K. Lowther, of Peterborough; Miss Stella Sanderson, of Timmins Mr. and Mrs. J. Manley, of Keene, parents of the bride's mother; and Mr. and Mrs. P. Manley, of Ennismore.

This Week's Best Wartime Recipe

Contributed By Mary Moore Readers

Dear Mary Moore: We're Southerners and think our way of cooking is pretty good. At this time of the summer we often serve succotash which, as you know, is beans and corn mixed. In winter it would be limas with canned kernal corn. But in summer it is often green or yellow fresh beans with corn fresh from the cob. I want to give you the two succotash recipes I use the most.

Succotash.

Cook 3 cups sliced yellow or green snap beans (or use shelled out green beans) in 1 cup boiling water and 1 teaspoon salt until tender. Watch so that it does not boil dry. Cook 6 ears corn in boiling water 10 minutes. Cut corn from cob and combine with beans when cooked. Heat together with ¼ cup cream or rich top milk, and add salt and pepper to taste. If possible keep 1 cup of this for Succotash Fritters.

Beat 2 egg white stiff, and add 2 yolks and beat again. Add 1 cup (or 2 cups) succotash drained (or ½ cup each cooked corn from the cob and chopped cooked snap beans), and 2-3 cup sifted flour with which is mixed 1 teaspoon each baking powder and salt, and ¼ cup teaspoon paprika. Mix well. Drop from tablespoons into ½ inch hot cooking oil and cook until brown on one side, then turn over to brown other side. Drain on soft paper. These are grand with roast beef and brown gray, but are often served with maple syrup or just butter. Mimi Gallatier.

Since the big Allied push in Italy, Vatician City has been heavily taxed to handle the crowds of Allied servicemen who throng to see the awe inspiring majesty of St. Peter's and to have an audience with the Pope. This is a noticeable contrast to conditions when the Germans occupied the capital. At that time only a few of the Hitlerite troops thought it worth their while to visit the Holy Centre, writes Cpl. Max Glover, whose wife lives at 292 Simcoe street.

"The audience accorded by the Pope was one of the highlights for us. We went to an entrance off the side of St. Peter's over which a member of the Swiss Guards stood watch. They are colorful in their bright blue suits, jackets and shorts, and white collars and cuffs. We climbed three flights of marble stairs and as we entered the audience chamber we were each given a medal with the Pope's figure on one side and a casting of the Holy family on the other. He used to present beads as a remembrance to visitors, but so many of the Allies have been going that he has to give medals instead.

"The audience room was jammed, but we managed to squeeze into the centre. It was a tremendous size and must have had two or three thousand soldiers in it. At 12.30 the Pope appeared, being first announced by an attendant. He was dressed all in white, it looked like velvet. Even his skull cap was white. He spoke a few words welcoming all to the Vatican and hoping we would soon be back with our families. Following this he gave his blessing, and blessed any religious articles we had. It was awe inspiring and you could have heard a pin drop."

Cpl. Glover paid high tribute to the efficiency and accuracy of the American airmen who bombed Rome. He wrote that a few of the city's outlying buildings had been bombed, but tht was all. There was not a building in the heart of the city that was touched. They hit their targets and nothing else.

"I could see the moment we entered Rome that it was like no other Italian city I'd been in before. It was almost spotless, people were well dressed and noticeable by their absence were the street urchins and beggars which turned me so much against Nar'-s."

City Of The Future

Rome is one of the few Italian cities which gives some credence to Il Duce's dreams of a second Roman Empire, writes this soldier. If he had kept himself busy bringing Italy up to the standards set in Rome, and not gone off the deep end in his greed for power, Italy would probably have been the most modern country in the world, Cpl. Glover asserted.

"Wonderful modern apartment buildings are all along the Tiber. They are of all colors, stand seven or eight stories high and have balconies at the corner of each building all the way up to the top. Opposite these in the Tiber there are house boats, looking like miniature penthouses afloat. Going into the business section, the houses are more ancient and streets are almost closed in by trees growing on either side of the roadways. Huge banners were strung across the streets "Welcome to the Liberators."

"On entering Vatican City, you go through a gate with a sign 'You are now entering neutral territory,' into a huge open square, in the centre of which stands an Egyptian obelisk. There are 44 of these in Rome, brought over by the ancient Romans, intact from Egypt. St. Peter's Cathedral stands directly back of the obelisks. We had wonderful luck in getting a guide who spoke excellent English. He knew Rome and its history thoroughly. In peace time he had belonged to Cooke's Tourist Agency and had conducted English speaking parties all over Europe.

No Original Paintings

"The church is too beautiful to describe, and huge. You don't notice the hugeness so much because everything is in proportion. The vestibule, if you could call it that, before entering the body of the church would almost take St. Peter's Church in Peterborough. On first looking into the main body of the church, we just gasped. We could hardly see the altar if was so far away. There are no pews in the church and the floor is of beautifully matched marble. A picture in the wall is a copy of some famous picture by Raphael Angelo. There are no original paintings of these masters because a painting would fade in time. Instead the copies are of mosaic (small different colored pieces of stone or glass). All the way up the floor are markings which show the sizes of other large churches of the world and where they would end if placed in St. Peter's.

"The dome of St. Peter's is immense. There are 400 steps leading to the top. The canopy under the dome is of pure bronze and beneath this, deep down, is the tomb of St. Peter. All around this opening at the base of the canopy is a railing and inside are the most beautiful gold lamps. One of the most striking things about the altar was a hugs window behind. It is amber in color and in the centre is a figure of a dove. The glass appears to radiate in all directions from the dove. The guide said it was wonderful in the late afternoon when the sun shone through it. From the back of the church the window has the appearance of a host."

A view from the centre of Rome reminded him of that from Mount Royal in Montreal. The guide pointed out the different things of interest, even to the jail where the former Rome police chief of a month ago sits and waits his doom.

On Grand Scale

Two of the Mussolini projects particularly impressed him. The Vittoria Emmanuelle monument which contains the tomb of the Unknown Soldier was wonderful, he wrote. The size has to be seen to be believed. The second was a school of sports and athletics. It had huge swimming pools, tennis courts, a sunken arena for football and track meets. Around the top of the stadium were huge marble figures depicting the different sports.

"I saw the old Roman Baths which took up an area larger than any building of today. Grand Central Station in New York would sit in it with room to spare. We saw where Julius Caesar was murdered, where he made his speeches and where Mark Antony held the body of Caesar after Brutus had stabbed him. The ruins of the Coliseum, where the Romans held their sports was amazing. It could hold 45,000 spectators. There were 80 arcades and the spectators were given tickets to their seats which they could find easily.

Importance of Parcels

The pupils of Miss Olga Wilson at SS No. 11 Smith thought they would like to remember a young woman from their district serving overseas, Lieut. Sadie Trotter, R.C.A.M.C. Each one brought a gift for the box and wrote individual letters to her. Lieut. Trotter has written back, thanking the donors individually and giving them the following message:

"Miss Wilson and all you boys and girls are being very patriotic in your war efforts, as I hear you are always buying war stamps, bombers and doing kind deeds for others. We over here are proud of you, our young brothers and sisters—proud of your war effort and your cheerful letters, and proud to know that you are growing up to be such fine Canadian citizens.

"You may well be proud of the job your brothers and friends in the air force are doing. All day long—they fly over us—and when their day is done, they roar triumphantly home. Not all come back and those who come back with battle scars, we do everything possible to mend and put back on the road to health.

"Your boys in all branches of the Army—the gunners, the boys on the tanks, the antiaircraft, signals, dispatch riders and others—are doing their jobs well. They come in with many broken bones to mend—and are always so cheerful. It's only the ones with the broken hearts that we can't mend. Broken hearts, because someone they love very much at home had forgotten them—had forgotten to send a parcel—or even to write a letter. After five years of war over here, those things are bitter medicine to take.

"And the boys in the Navy. We will always be grateful to them because they brought us safely across and are the ones who got this parcel of yours safely through. I am going to pass on a few of the chocolate bars to some English children here who will enjoy them very much too."

Importance of Plasma

"You blood donors at home would have a thrill if you could see the blood bank paying dividends in life saving blood on the battle fronts," writes Pte. David E. Stubbs of the R.C.A.M.C. in Italy, to a friend, Mrs. B. O. Johnson, 574 Division street.

"We are still quite busy, but the first rush has tapered off from the crashing of the Hitler Line. The surgeons were operating day and night. They would take the serious cases from the ambulance to the X-ray and from there to the operating theatre. The two sections of my

Aussie Reporter Prefers Canadian Girls

BY J. E. HOLDSWORTH
Canadian Press Correspondent

SYRNEY, Australia, August 1—(CP Cable) — Australians are passing through "the winter of discontent," but there's no reason in the climate for discontent— winter only lasts four months and brings losts of sunshine but cold nights and mornings.

All the same, winter can be unpleasant here for the reason, strangely enough, that so little preparation is made for it.

The Canadian parliamentary delegation on tour here must have suffered much discomfort in many of the small-town hotels where they stayed. Few hotels except the largest in the capital cities have the comfort of central heating enjoyed by Canadians at home.

The Australian newspaper delegates are back from their Canadian tour. Their articles are appearing in scores of papers across the Commonwealth, in the big dailies of Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide and Brisbane and in many smaller provincial journals. And many more stories of their impressions of Canada are still to be released.

In Canoerra Prime Minister Curtin had an informal reception for the delegation leader, Fred Smith, and thanked him and the other journalists for the excellent job they had done

Don Whitington, of the Sydney Daily Telegram, caused a little eyebrow raising with one of his articles Writing in the women's section of that paper, he said: "I think Canadian girls are prettier than our own. They have better figures, creamier complexions and beautiful teeth. A Canadian with artificial teeth is rare indeed. One theory is that their bread is especially good and this helps them preserve their teeth. The bread is certainly more palatable than ours."

Whittington was less keen about the girls he saw in New York, San Fransisco and Washington. Americon women were the best-dressed he had ever seen he said, but "they think of little else but clothes... Their make-up is perfect, but just a bit too perfect. They are afraid to smile in case their facials should crack."

Arrangements for the big field day and sports program which the auxiliaries to the Navy, Army and Air Force are to stage at Riverside Park on Labor Day were discussed at a meeting of the sports committee held at the Y.M.C.A. Monday night under the chairmanship of L. A. McClure. One of the big items on the program, it is hoped, will be a softball game between Toronto Tip Tops and a local All-Star team and another will be a battle between one of the crack Toronto girls' teams against a local nine. In addition there will be races for boys and girls, a swimming exhibition by girls of the Y.W.C.A. and many other attractions including an aerial display. Games and booths will be operated by the auxiliaries and by the city's service clubs and the committee is planning an afternoon and evening's program that will provide a wealth of entertainment and refute the old complaint that there is never anything doing in Peterbgorough on a holiday. The proceeds will be divided among the three service auxiliaries to help them in their work of sending Christmas doxes and ditty bags to Peterborough boys in the Navy, Army and Air Force. It is a splendid cause and the Labor Day affair should prove one of the biggest events of its kind staged here.

Connie Mack, who will celebrate the 50th year of his first appointment as a big league manager this Friday was asked to name an all-time, all-star team of living baseball players. The vetern Athletic pilot has complied with the request and what a team he has named. For pitchers he chose Walter Johnson, great speedball pitcher of the Washington Senators, and Lefty Grove, famous left-hander of the A's and later the Boston Red Sox, and for catchers Bill Dickey of the Yankees and Mickey Cochrane of the Athletics and Detroit. George Sisler, formerly of the St. Louis Browns has been named as Connie's first baseman, Eddie Collins who played for Mack in Philadelphia gets the call for second, the great Honus Wagner of Pittsburg is picked for shortstop and Frank (Home Run) Baker of the Athletics is selected for third. The outfield named by the veteran leader is made up of Babe Ruth, Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb and what a trio that would be. If there is any objection to the Mack list it might be found in the fact that the Athletic pilot has only picked one National Leaguer, Honus Wagner and that he has included four of his former players. But Connie has chosen a team that would be the acme of power, playing behind two of the greatest pitchers and driven by two of the finest catchers in the history of baseball.

Girls Play Tonight

Westclox seconds and Quakers will supply this evening's softball entertainment when they clash at the Ashburnham Bowl in a league game at 7 o'clock. There is no action on the City Softball League this week so the girls hold the centre of the stage all week and should enjoy plenty of patronage. Tonight's game should be entitled to that on its own account for the teams are very evenly matched and will both go all out for a win. Quakers and the Baby Bens, two of the three new teams to come into the loop this season, have both shown great improvement in recent games and it is apparent that like the Johnson Motors last season they are getting the benefit of steady playing in organized ball, after all the only way in which young players can really learn to play the game. It is essential that if girls' softball is to continue to flourish younger players must be encouraged and given the opportunity to train and this is just what they are getting in the Girls' League. That organization is to be congratulated upon the fact that it has been able to include three new teams in its membership this season and thus provide an opportunity for some 30 more girls to play the game under favorable conditions.

Evidently Stratford is experiencing the same annoying circumstances that have been in evidence at local softball games this season, that is the presence of a large number of youngsters who seem to regard the men's and girls' softball games as an excuse for making nuisances of themselves. This column would not want to keep any young lads away from the ball park if they were really interested in the game but as Chick Appel points out in his Stratford sport column in regard to a similar condition in the Classic City, "these lads apparently have no desire to witness the games and evidently care little whether others want to or not." At Riverside Park this season there has been an overdose of "kids" whose chief mission doesn't seem to be to follow the progress of the game but to get in the road as often as possible. They crowd out almost on the diamond, intrude on the players' benches, pick up the equipment, get in everybody's way and are a constant nuisance. Chick Appel suggests in the case of similar trouble at Stratford that the young offenders should be unceremoniously ushered out of the park and warned not to return until they are prepared to behave themselves. Similar action may have to be taken here. Boys who are interested in the game and want to watch the players perform are always welcome but the other kind are a pest—and there seems to be a lot of them this season.

Although Oshawa Colts are playing sen r ball this season the winners of the Peterborough City League n look for plenty of opposition from Oshawa for the other teams in the loop are playing intermediate A and they are giving the Colts a merry old run for top spot. Here is what George Campbell says about one close call the intermediate champs had lately: "For that matter, speaking of softball entertainment, we don't know what any sport fan would want more exciting and thrilling than that 11-inning 3-2 affair at Alexandra Park last night. O.K. Billiards clashed with the Colts in their last scheduled meeting of the season before playoff time and it proved a hum-dinger. Pete Opychany and Dean McLaughlin hooked up in the pitcher's duel and they made the boys hum for runs. Backed up by brilliant defensive plays, especially in the outfield, both teams put on a grand fight for the verdict. Colts led 1-0 from the 1st inning until the 8th and then in the 11th they scored two runs, aided by a costly error, and O.K. Billiards got one of these back in the last half of the 11th and had the tying run on bases when the game ended. It was a sweet softball scrap. Colts got the "breaks" in the closing stages—they had to have them to win—for O.K. Billiards put on their best game of the season by far. It was softball of the highest calibre, with plenty of good solid hitting, even though most of the "safeties" were left stranded on the bases. Any softball fan that doesn't attend and support these "Big Four" softball games shouldn't call himself a "softball fan." Such games warrant an attendance of a couple of thousand any night."

* * * * * *

And showing what a tight race is going on in the Oshawa League Bre'er Campbell has the following comment in his Oshawa Gazette sport column: "There's just one more week to go in the "Big Four" softball schedule and then if they can get all their postponed games cleaned up, the teams will be ready to open the playoffs on August 8th, as planned. Right now it's a toss-up which teams are going to finish in the playoffs. O.K. Billiards are in second place with three wins, but their margin over the other two clubs is only very small. Main Office and Robson Leather "Tannery" are tied for 3rd place right now with two wins apiece. By Monday night, it's likely that which team is due for the elimination bucket will be known. Main Office and "Tannery" clash tonight in a postponed game, at Alexandra Park and then they meet on Monday night in a scheduled fixture. If one team can manage to win both of these games it will just about mean "end of the line" for the losers. On Tuesday night, if the diamond is available, Main Office will play O.K. Billiards and on Wednesday night Colts and Tannery hook up in the last official schedule game. O.K. Billiards will still have two postponed games after that, one each with Tannery and Main Office. These are booked for Friday and Saturday respectively."

46 Pairs Enter Men's Doubles Play

By HERB. MARTIN.

We are going to make this prediction; That if Wednesday is a fine day we will come near to an all-time record entry for the men's doubles tournament. Up until 10:30 o'clock last night we had 46 pairs officially entered and we have good reason to hope for more before 10:30 o'clock this evening.

Our own club has gone all-out and has got behind the committee to help put this outstanding event over—no less than 26 pairs have entered. Some of the leading entries are: Newmarket 4, Campbellford 4, Cobourg 5, Port Hope 2, and maybe a few more. So adding them all together, it is going to be some crowd. There is one thing that we are asking of the players, and that is be out on time, co-operate with the committee, and everybody will be happy. The kick-off is set for 1:30 p.m.

Promoter Tunney Offers Biggest Card

Earl McCready

Anything can happen on tonight's wrestling bill at Brock Street Arena and probably will. Whipper Billy Watson, pitted against that doughty pair of back alley battlers, Al. Bunny Dunlop and Gentleman Jack Washburn in an iron man stunt in which the British Empire champ will take on both brawlers in turn and try to throw them both in an hour, promises to make a total loss of the two villains. Two of the cleverest, cleanest and most popular wrestlers on the circuit, Early McCready and Toar Morgan will clash in the semi-final and a new wrestling star, Dr. Len Hall, Texas, will battle Joe Christie in opener. Altogether seven wrestlers will be seen in action during the card, making it the biggest bill Promoter Tunney has offered Peterborough fans. There should be action plus and plenty of variety.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, August 1 — (CP).— Lacrosse is usualy referred to as Canada's typically-national game, even if it now has fallen to the rear of popular approval, but there are numerous enthusiasts throughout the land who would like to bring it back to its onetime peak of popularity.

Such one is Vince (Winnipeg Tribune) Leah, who would like to see Canadians get behind the game and boost it to the skies-through organized national promotion—as has been done for baseball in the United States.

Lacrosse, in his opinion, got its black eye through the failure of officials to keep it clean and aboveboard. As a result, the fans became a trifle leary of the way the game was run, and it lapsed into obscurity.

Give it some good legislation and get it organized on a community basis, with everyone playing from youngsters up, and it would go over in a big way, says Vince.

After all, now that the U.S., as well as Britain and other European countries have taken hockey to their bosoms, lacrosse is Canada's only hope for a truly national game at which her players can excel.

Difference of opinion:

There's a slight intra-mural dispute in the Montreal Star over the somewhat-distant question whether the Olympic Games should be resumed as soon as possible after the war. Bas O'Meara thinks it will take some years for the feeling of hatred in the world to die down so the events can be resumed in amity. But his companion columnist, ex-Olympic contestant Myrtle Cook, wants them resumed as soon as possible. The British sporting blood, she says, won't let them stay out of any world games, no matter how provoked they might be at their present enemies. Anyway, it's a question that isn't too urgent for a while.

Incidentally:

Winnipeg is supporting soccer in pre-war style these days. A crowd of 1,500 is not uncommon in the gallery when the fitba' boys do their stuff at the 'Peg.....Golf is getting more and more popular in the Maritimes. The New Brunswick Prince Edward tournament drew a record entry list this year.

Shepperton Set For Race On August 5

CAMDEN N.J., Aug. 1.—Shepperton, sensational invader from Canada, heads a capable group of handicap stars now training at Garden State Park for the third running of the $15,000 Quaker City Handicap, scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 5. The prepossessing chestnut 5-year-old proved his liking for a route when he gave Modest Lad, Reztips and Homeward Bound a thorough lacing at a mile in his second start over the Camden oval. Next Saturday's feature will be contested over the mile and one-sixteenth route.

Among the eligibles who may ship in from New York is Tex Martin, Walter S. Horne's Lancegaye-Justa Sunbeam 3-year-old. Boysy, winner of the Camden Handicap, the Valley Forge Handicap and the Quaker City all in 1942, may make another try for the latter event. Now stabled at New York, the Blue Larkspur-Bit o' Love 8-year-old from the barn of T. H. (Tommy) Heard Jr. would be a popular addition to the Camden classic.

There was a report today to the effect that Bobby Watson would ride Big Shep in this event.

Oana Wins 10th Game For Buffalo

By the Associated Press.

Hank Oana is back in action again, which is bad news for the entire International League except Buffalo.

The heavy-hitting Bison pitcher has been especially effective against Syracuse Chiefs this year, beating them four times, each by a shutout. Hank won again last night 3-0 in the first game of a doubleheader that the Herd split. They lost the second game, 8-5. It was Oana's 10th win against 7 losses.

Hank backs his pitching with real hitting. He is batting .304, only 16 places from the top.

Mike Roscoe ran into difficulty in the nightcap, as the Chiefs pushed over four runs in the sixth.

Newark Bears dropped into a tie with Buffalo for second place, as they bowed to Toronto 9-2. The Leafs clubbed three Bear pitchers for 18 hits. Leading the Leaf attack were Harry Davis and Tom Astbury with homers. Harry Jordan went the route for the Leafs, fanning five to win his fifth game.

Montreal snapped their nine-game losing streak as they defeated the Jersey City Giants 4-2. Frank Rosso appeared to have the Royals under his thumb with a two-hitter going into the seventh, but the Canadian team put three hits, two walks to work and produced their four runs right there. Tom Sunkel pitched all the way for his 11th victory against five defeats.

Baltimore saw their 13-game winning skein go down the drain 5-1 in the second game of a twin bill, the first half of which they won from Rochester 7-2.

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

OFF TO CAMP

Scouter Johnson of the Sacred Heart Troop and about 17 members of the Troop left the city at 9 a.m. this morning to enjoy a week of camping on the Scout grounds just north of Nassau.

Congratulations

Our sincere congratulations to the Park Hill Community Group on the splendid report of their first week at camp. We are looking forward to receiving a list of tests passed and some renewed vigor in Scouting and Cubbing.

Seen In Town

Rex Rose, former member of Scouting in Peterborough, now in the Navy, arrived home last week. He is at present stationed somewhere in British Columbia and is home on furlough. Robert Crocker, another old member is on the last lap of his furlough and will be returning to his post this week-end.

Summer Meetings

For the balance of the summer the St. John's Cub Pack will hold its meetings every Friday night at the Nicholls Oval starting at 7 p.m. Many good games were enjoyed last week with Akela and Baloo getting right into the centre of the fun. Bobby Burgess recently passed leap frog, cleanliness, somersault, time, and book balancing. Don Dawson passed book balancing.

From Over There

Word was received from Lieut. E. Peters, former scouter of All Saints Troop and members of the Central Rover crew, now serving in England. In his letter he said "I met Gerald Bousfield and also Martin McIlvena, Jimmy Wilshaw and Ted McMahon and several other Peterborough boys whose names I just cannot recall.

Do You Know

That, the Jamboree is to be held in September and that you should be getting your boys ready to take part in that annual event.

That another Scouters' Club and Association conference will be held in September and that we would like you to plan to be there.

That the average Cub and Scout does not want to give up Cubbing and Scouting during the summer but would rather carry on, that our fighting men do not quit fighting just to take their summer vacation, that it is our duty to see that the Cubs and Scouts carry on even though some leaders may be absent.

Red Sox, Browns Bolster For Stretch Drive

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer.

Washington's mid-winter pennant boom vanished in thin air to-day as the Nats hit the American League cellar while the St. Louis Browns and Boston Red Sox, once a couple of also-rans, loaded up for the stretch drive.

St. Louis acquired Catcher Tom Turner from the White Sox via the waiver route to bolster Frank Mancuso and Red Hayworth. Boston picked up Rex Cecil from San Diego. The Pacific Coast strikeout king will report before August 14 to give Tex Hughson a hand in the department that has been the club's glaring weakness.

The New York Yankees, currently in third place by 5½ games, seek a new catcher to replace Rollie Hemsley who will be inducted on Monday.

Washington dipped into the basement last night after bowing to St. Louis 3-2. Homers by Vern Stephens and George McQuinn helped Jack Kramer take the nod over Roger Wolff, making his first start in a month.

Boston kept pace with the Brownies by shading Cleveland 1-0 on an unearned run in the ninth.

Philadelphia pushed past Chicago in the 10th, 3-2, as Hal Epps' single followed Buddy Hall's triple to give Russ Christopher the win over Orval Grove.

Brooklyn's Hal Gregg ended a two-month victory famine by beating St. Louis 6-1, his first win since May 30.

Chicago took its seventh straight 5-1 on Hy Vandenberg's three-hitter as the Phillies bowed for the ninth in a row, but the Cubs failed to reach their first division goal as the New York Giants topped Cincinnati 9-7.

Fritz Ostermueller of Pittsburg stopped Boston 9-2 with two hits, trimming Nate Andrews and chiming in with three hits for the cause.

American Troops Bring Wealth To Northland

WINNIPEG, August 1 — (CP).— Military developments in Canada's North-eastern Arctic area, shrouded in secrecy for more than two years, soon may be disclosed to the public, it was learned here on Monday night.

The curtain of censorship may be lifted by the Canadian and United States Governments to permit telling of the dramatic construction of far-north airports— the North-east Staging Route—linking Western Canada with Europe. The airports provided aerial stepping-stones across the North Atlantic.

Security has prevented disclosure of important military work, including the airports, which brought to Northern Manitoba hundreds of troops, including engineers and signal corps men and fliers from the United States. Hundreds of United States troops passed through Winnipeg, their destinaton a secret to people outside Northern Manitoba. Others went into the Eastern Arctic from ports on Canada's east coast.

The Americans, along with Canadians, went to Baffin Land, Hudson Bay, Southampton Island and Churchill.

Churchill, Manitoba's only seaport 1,000 miles from Winnipeg, has been reported a centre for the Americans who brought prosperity to northern trading stores, Indian trappers and guides.

The United States forces were under direction of the United States Army, Central Canada Command, with headquarters at Winnipeg. Flight headquarters also were maintained here for personnel of the United States Army Air Forces.

R.C.A.F. and United States Army pilots co-operated in northern patrols and participated in mercy flights, bringing a stranded trader and members of his staff from a far-northern post.

HERE'S ANOTHER WAY TO HELP!
BUDGET YOUR SPENDING FOR VICTORY
The "Budget Calendar" will show you how—Send for free copy and join the Budgeteers!

THERE'S one simple thing you can do every pay day to strengthen the home front—and to bring Victory sooner. Plan just how you are going to spend each pay cheque before you spend it.

A big job for your dollars

Why is that so important in the war effort? The answer is simple. Your dollars—everyone's dollars—have a bigger job to do than ever before. They must help pay the enormous cost of the battle front—through war savings, taxes and contributions. But your dollars must also back up the battle front by helping to keep the home front strong. They have to buy the right kind of food, clothing, shelter and other home needs to keep your family healthy and productive. Production on the home front is what keeps the battle front going!

It's easier—far easier—to make your dollars to their wartime job if you plan your spending in advance. That's where The Budget Calendar can help you. This is a new kind of budget method that we developed as a service to Household Finance customers. So many other families are now finding the Budget Calendar helpful that we have decided to send a copy to everyone who requests it.

Here's a new way to budget

The Budget Calendar gives you a new way to go about budgeting—a way that makes your planning easy and simple. It doesn't ask you to fit your living into a fixed spending pattern—a pattern that may not suit you at all. Instead it shows you how to take the expenses you now have and how to plan to pay them with your wartime income. Family after family has told us that here, at last, is a budget plan that "really works." And it does away with tedious bookkeeping too!

Users of the Budget Calendar are invited to join the Budgeteers. Budgeteers receive a new booklet or letter from time to time to encourage them in their efforts. Their letters and questions are always welcome and receive personal answers. Special recognition is given to Budgeteers when they complete a full year of budgeting.

War Develops Northland Air Bases Built

BY R. K. CARNEGIE

OTTAWA, July 31 — (CP) — The United States has five large air bases in Canada's subartic stretches around Hudson Bay and on Baffin Island and it was learned here tonight Ottawa officials will shortly visit each of these to see to what extent they could be made to fit into postwar aviation.

The bases are at The Pas, Churchill, Southampton Island in Northern Hudson Bay, Frobisher Bay on the east coast of Baffin Island and Port Chimo on the south shore of Hudson Strait.

The American-developed flying fields connect with the Canadian base of Goose in Labrador and the American base at Mingan on the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Some of the American fields are extensive, it is reported, particularly the one at Churchill River where the great grain elevator and wharves were built more than a decade ago. The ground was levelled by bulldozers and an extensive landing field was built along with a number of buildings to house the considerable number of men stationed there.

Governments Agree

The Canadian Government is in agreement with United States authorities, it is understood, that if at all possible extensive use be made of these stations after the war.

The Canadian officials who will visit the bases will include representatives of the R.C.A.F., the Transport Department, under which is civil aviation, and Mines and Resources officials, who have jurisdiction over the Northwest Territories.

Some parts of these airfields are on muskeg and under that is perpetual ice and it will be for the transport officials to assess the cost of maintaining such fields. It is pointed out that considerable of the Hudson Bay Railway running into Churchill is over the same kind of muskeg and it seems to stand up all right.

Officials of the Resources Department will be those having to do with the car of the Eskimoes and it is possible some of the facilities could be converted into hospitals for the natives of the subarctic.

The feeling in Parliamentary circles here is that Canada should put forth more efforts in the future to develop its northern territories after the war, and in this development these airields might be of considerable assistance.

The uproar that developed over reports of the waste of equipment by United States officials along the Alaskan Highway doubtless has spurred officials of both Governments to attempt to salvage as much as possible of the equipment around Hudson Bay.

Allied Bubble Boats Give Japs No Rest

HEADQUARTERS, SUPREME ALLIED COMMAND, South-east Asia, Aug. 1 — (CP) — Jungle-wise "mudlarks" of the British Imperial Forces in Manipur are using an improvised rubber boat nawy in tri-phibious monsoon operations against the Japanese.

Watercraft transported by air are manned by infantry "to maintain positions and evacuate casualties" since the rains came to the Bishenpur area south of Imphal. Allied observers say the use of the bubble boats on inundated territory constitutes a tactical innovation unique in this war. Below Imphal, the British are utilizing two-man boats for transport and reconnaissance between high ground strongpoints that became island overnight.

The seasonal rains came suddenly and spared nobody. Privates in their blankets awoke swimming when a river overflowed. Army doctors at a field hospital moved patients to safe ground and made their calls between wards by rubber boat.

In previous years, campaigning in the Burma-India border, jungles automatically halted when the going became impassably "soupy." But the Japanese were on the run after their March incursion into Manipur and Assam when the monsoon came this year.

The SEAC determined that the enemy should have no chance to rest and regroup for another threat to the area.

The new tactic is paying off in continued pressure against the enemy. Strongpoints that would have been abandoned to the waters are being manned and supplied triphibiously.

77 Sailors Die In Indian Ocean

NEW YORK, August 1—(AP). — Roy Porter of NBC broadcast today from Chengtu, China, a story of the slaying of about three-quarters of the crew of a U.S. Liberty ship in the Indian Ocean in mid-June by seamen of a Japanese submarine.

Porter said the story was sustained by an American who recently arrived in China. Of about 100 crew members of the ship, only 23 were saved and hospitalized following their rescue by a U.S. scouting plane.

According to the story, Porter said, the American ship was first torpedoed, the crew taking to the lifeboats. Then the enemy sub surfaced and ordered all the mem- surfaced and ordered all the Americans to the foredeck, where they were beaten and tortured, their hands tied behind their backs. Many were killed and their bodies kicked overboard, Porter added. The orgy ended only when a scout plane approached and the Japanese vessel submerged, leaving the surviving seamen threshing in the water, their hands still tied.

Railway Men Given 6-Cent Raise

OTTAWA, Aug. 1.—(CP). — The National War Labor Board last night announced a decision awarding from 100,000 to 175,000 Canadian railway workers an increase of six cents an hour.

The board's decision was given in an application by railway unions for equalization of Canadian and United States rates paid railwaymen in running trades—equivalent to increases of approximately from 25 to 32 cents an hour—and a straight increase of 32 cents an hour to other railway workers.

The board turned down flatly the union's contention that railway workers in Canada should be paid the same rates as in the United States, but said an investigation showed employees in other industries in Canada had received ancreases in excess of those paid railway workers.

The board's award in the main case affecting the 18 unions is retroactive to Sept. 15. 1943.

Similar increases were given in two other decisions announced simultaneously. In an application by the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Workers (A.F.L.), the award is retroactive to March 3, 1943, and in an application by the Brotherhood of Railway Employees (C.C.L.) to May 25, 1943.

In each case the board's decision directs increases of six cents an hour to hourly rated employees, 48 cents a day to daily rated employees, $2.88 a week to those paid on a weekly basis and $12.48 to those on a monthly basis.

Council Plans Further Action

City Council is going "over the heads" of the sales department to the president of the British-American Oil Company with their request for fulfillment of a promise made by a representative of the company to discuss with Ashburnham residents the local of the company's oil tanks on their property on the south side of Hunter street east.

Replies in correspondence with the sales department were dismissed as merely evasive at the meeting Friday night.

"We can't let it rest there," Alderman Swanston said.

"The least they can do is to carry out the promise they gave to us to come down and meet the people over there," Alderman Glover suggested.

"And I'd tell them so," said Alderman Mark.

"What they say might satisfy everybody," Alderman Glover added.

"We feel that their promise to come down here and discuss the location of their tanks with the Ashburnham people should be kept," Alderman Dutton said.

"Surely their legal department doesn't run the British-American Oil Company," Alderman Bradburn remarked. "I think the clerk should send to the president of the company copies of the correspondence that has been going on."

"We've got to make some explanation to the people of Ashburnham," Alderman Glover said.

The conversation referred to a promise given by a representative of the B.-A. Company to come to Peterborough and discuss the question of the present location of their storage tanks with residents of Ashburnham living near the company's property.

Robot Victims Receive More Personal Help

Going back to the time of the very early crusades, history records how monk-soldiers established hospitals for the care of the sick and worn out pilgrim visiting the Holy Land, who perchance had fallen on evil times through the attacks made on them by the Saracen and Turk, demonstrating how those in distress had a special claim on the sympathy of other people who were in a position to help them.

And so it has been on down through the ages, all well minded people naturally feel a genuine sympathy for those whom sickness and accident has forced to take refuge in these institutions, which undoubtedly do much to restore people to a useful place in the affairs of this world, the writer recalling many years ago, how even special services in the various churches were held periodically on their behalf, and were usually termed hospital Sunday's.

Now added to the care and anxious time of all inmates of the hospitals in Britain, particularly in its southeastern portion including the area of greater London, has been added the danger and horror of attacks by robot bombs, better classed as instruments of the devil himself, which from blind direction, not only attacks innocent civilian life but has caused destruction to numerous of these places of mercy, no less than four hospitals having been hit within very recent days.

Thus an inhuman foe, devoid of even the semblance of chivalry of almost a thousand years ago, has pushed back the clock to the very dark ages, and keeps piling more misery on to an already stricken people, totally incapable of raising a hand in their own self defence.

Were such things to happen here, citizens would rise as one person and either by work or the giving of their means, do everything that lie personally in their power to alleviate the suffering and distress thus occasioned, so the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund management, acting on behalf of the residents of this city and district, giving of its time and means so that every cent may go to help where it is most needed, keeps on appealing for a more and more wider personal interest by the many whom it is felt can well afford to do so.

For the 5th time in exactly three weeks when the latest series of appeals for personal donations was made backed by his worship the Mayor, another list of personal gifts to aid the fund is recorded in this column on its behalf.

Included in this is a nice personal gift of $20 from Miss Grace Warner of Warkworth, and the lady who gives under the name of "In as much" is credited with her 42nd gift of $10, truly showing a wonderful thought and sacrifice in helping others, while Mrs. R. R. Hall also appears once again to give her personal help in the life and death struggle these people are facing at this moment.

For three consecutive times, Herb Doig has been noted in these lists of purely personal gifts, and another $5 is credited as coming from "M.A.H." while the Brown family holding a reunion at Colborne made it an occasion for also extending a ray of happiness to those in peril and distress beyond the seas, as fine a token of thankfulness as any could possibly wish for.

Under Quarantine

KINSTON, Aug. 1—(CP)—The Norman Rogers airdrome at nearby Collins Bay, was placed under quarantine during the week-end after a member of the personnel was stricken with infantile paralysis, it was learned here last night.

WITH INFANTRY OVERSEAS—Pte. Cecil Guerin, whose wife lives on Euclid avenue, is serving with an infantry unit overseas. Before enlisting a year ago, he was employed at the Quaker Oats. A brother, Spr. Martin Guerin, is stationed in Eastern Canada and they are the sons of Mrs. W. Guerin, 678 Armour road.

Mrs. G. Wedlock Hooks 21-lb. Fish

Chief Thompson's stretch of water, those three or four miles from Campbelltown to Rice Lake, used to be one of the best muskie haunts in the district, and many a big one has been pulled out of its depths.

Mrs. Grace Wedlock hooked a 21-pounder in that section of the Otonabee, around Campbelltown, during a vacation Wednesday of last week. It measured 46 inches from nose to tail. Mrs. Wedlock was casting with a Pikie minnow, and in the strike the muskie's gill caught the hooks, taking a lot of the fight out of it. At that it battled for ten minutes before it could be lifted into the boat.

Mrs. Wedlock hung on for a while, but finally had to pass the line over to her husband. Between the dog's barking and the tussle with the big lung,e the excitement in that reach of the Otonabee was high for a while. Mrs. Wedlock gave the fish to her father, Herb J. McCannan, who is going to have it mounted, and possibly the day may come when he will have convinced himself that he caught this prize, and that it was "some struggle."

122 Soldiers Help On Oxford Farms

Tourist are getting a generous share of spring chickens in the lake country of Victoria County according to the weekly report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Some cattle are being marketed off the ranches; corn and roots making strong growth and the labor shortage remains acute.

Some wheat, rye and early oats have been threshed in Hastings County, and corn and tomatoes are "making splendid growth." And in Northumberland some wonderful fields of tomatoes, potatoes and cabbage are to be seen. The apple crop is promising an increase of 25 per cent over last year.

Heavy yields of fall wheat are reported in Ontario County, and the large potato crop "is in excellent condition."

Sales of dairy cows seem to have slumped to the minimum at present, in Frontenac. Sme farmers in that county are behind the haying procession, like others elsewhere of whom it is often said that if they had another month to get things done they would still have loose ends lying about. Dairy cattle are being turned into some of the fields of uncut hay.

Milk Flow Lower.

Hot weather and flies are curtailing the flow of milk in Eastern Ontario. Early lambs are being marketed in Grenville, but Frontenac says their price is unsatisfactory. Harvesting of oats is well under way in Leeds, and corn and potatoes "look particularly promising."

In Lennox-Addington milk production is falling off although pasturage is good. "A number of carloads of cattle moved out of the county to Montreal at 11c a pound." Crops are above average in Renfrew. Pears have set well and are looking the best in ten or fifteen years.

Like Sudan Grass.

Stormont farmers are getting excellent results from Sudan grass and oats that were sown for pasture purposes. They prove their worth these days of dry fields. Wheat threshed in the fields of Halton is yielding 40 to 50 bushels to the acre. South Simcoe dealers are paying $1.09-$1.10 a bushel for No. 1 wheat.

In Oxford as many as 122 soldiers hae been working evenings in farm fields, and have been a big help.

More Pullets.

Lincoln report includes the following comment: "Many pullets are now coming into production rapidly, some flocks being up to 35 to 40 per cent production and many pullet eggs are being offered on the market at 30c a dozen. Grade A are selling at 40c-43c and specials 45c-48c. Many farmers are stock threshing as their barns are filled with hay. Gooseberries are being picked up at remunerative prices. Raspberries have not gone below 23c a pint on the retail market. Potatoes are $1.50 a bushel wholesale and 30c-35c the six-quart basket retail. A great many enquiries are now being received from fruit growers as to the possibilitiy of getting soldier help. Farmers with a lot of fall work to be done are wondering where they will be able to get permanent men by the month or year on dairy farms."

17 Mischievous Stoney Lake Campers Stage Commando Raid On Camp Inglestane

A commando raid staged by seventeen young people in the McCracken's Landing area of Stoney Lake upon Inglestane, the Y.W.C.A. summer camp for girls, at the southern tip of Eaglemount, last Thursday night, had a serious result that had not been anticipated.

The amphibious operation carried on by twelve boys and five girls, from 14 to 22 years of age, and hailing from several cities across the line and several more in Ontario, called for the use of seven canoes as landing barges.

After a diversionary skirmish at McCracken's Landing, the raiders took to the boats and moved across the channel to Inglestane where a landing was effected. However, the operation awakened Miss Roberta Keefer, Y.W.C.A. girls' work secretary, who was in charge of the camp, and she went outside to investigate the disturbance. She slipped on a rock and fell, sustaining a fractured leg, which required her removal to hospital in Peterborough.

Provincial Constable Archie Grayling, of Havelock, investigated the incident Monday, so successfully that he rounded up all seventeen members of the commandos. The Y.W.C.A. authorities did not desire to prosecute the invaders, but the provincial officer arranged to collect from the party enough money to pay the medical and hospital costs involved in the accident to the camp leader.

Business Shows Big Drop Over Week-End

Taking time out only to cancel milk, bread, and newspaper orders, and chucking all worldly cares to the four winds, nearly 5,000 Canadian General Electric and Genelco employees left on their holidays over the week-end....and business in Peterborough has been made aware of it, too. With bread and milk routes falling away below the pre-holiday level, the holidayers have left quite a slump in their wake, and employees in the Examiner circulation department told of requests for stopping the paper for a week pouring in on Saturday.

In the morning when buses formerly were jammed to the last creaking rafter, there is now only a sprinkling of passengers, and weary patriots who have willingly stood to let the war-workers sit, now are enjoying one of the benefits of the post-war era, and restfully sigh as the bus looms past a deserted C.G.E. plant.

Sunshine Dairy reports their milk subscribers' list has fallen at least a fifth of its pre-holiday size, but pointed out they could not prove all the milk-cancellers were C.G.E.-ers off to the woods and the lakes. It is quite probable most are C.G.E. employees though, it was pointed out, as the big let-up came on the heels of the release of hundreds of workers from their jobs.

DeNure Bus Lines, while noting last Saturday as one of its biggest and busiest days, admitted the exodus of C.G.E. workers might have something to do with it.

Bread Delivery Drops.

W. C. Peck, manager of Purity Bread Company in Peterborough, said the city field, in connection with delivering bread this week, is a joke. "This exodus is having quite an effect, and in truth, some of the routes could now be served with a basket carried by hand."

Mr. Peck pointed out the surplus of city bread will be put to good use, and will be distributed through the district lakes — McCracken's Landing, Crowe's Landing, and the various other resort districts, where Mr. Peck said, there has always been a shortage. "We are not down in output, though, and this out-of-town circulation will look after any surplus we man contract in Peterborough.

Canada Bread said more than 150 subscribers to their bread have left on holidays and cancelled their orders for the vacation period.

Sporadic reports from various parts of the city tell of "No one home" signs being hung up, doors barred, and indows fastened, as the workers prepared to skip gaily into the grassy woodlands, and do nothing but have fun and rest.

Pair On Bicycle Injured By Car

When the bicycle on which they were riding was struck by a motor car at Aylmer and McDonnel streets shortly after 6 o'clock Monday evening, two persons were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

The injured pair were Norman Stover, 36, of 364 Simcoe street, who is suffering from concussion, possible scull fracture and lacerations of the hip and leg, and his wife, 28, who sustained two broken ribs and a bruised right leg.

Stover was riding south on Aylmer street with his wife on the handlebar of his bicycle. As he rode out into the intersection of McDonnel street, Ernest Murphy, Crawford's Grove, drove his automobile west on McDonnel street, which is a through street.

Stover was tossed a considerable distance and fell heavily, striking his head on the paved road.

LOOKING AHEAD—While Peterborough soldiers are slogging away against the enemy in France, not all their thoughts are concentrated on the battles which they are waging there. A letter from Spr. Louie Vitarelli, well-known lacrosse and hockey player now in Normandy, contains the message that he hopes plans for the arena and parks go through, as he feels the city needs one badly. He stresses that this is one of the most important of post-war projects for the city.

Daring Rescue Saves Woman From Drowning

On a visit home from Louisville, Kentucky, Rev. Stanley Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Young, Ware street, played the leading role in a dramatic moonlight rescue Monday evening, as he plunged fully clothed into the Otonabee river at Inverlea, to save Mrs. Dorothy Thompson, 10 Inverlea street, from drowning, after the young woman had become exhausted from a swim across the river. After artificial respiration had been administered by James Cook, 812 Water street, the girl was taken home, and Dr. R. A. Kelly, M.O.H. who attended, said she would be fine in a short while.

Lifeguard Ruth Choate, feeling a premonition of danger due to the exceptionally strong current in the river last night, remained at her post until 9 o'clock, fully an hour after her regular finishing time, and it was about an hour later that the near-drowning occurred.

Mr. Thompson had swum the river, and was sitting on the beach of the other side, when she was called to return to the opposite shore. Although not quite rested, Mrs. Thompson began the long swim back, and it was about the middle of the river where she became exhausted, and got into difficulty. Few lights lit the scene, with the moon casting streaks of silver luminance over parts of the river, and it was difficult to determine whether the woman was really in trouble or not. Mrs. T. Clark, George street, who accompanied Mrs. Thompson to Inverlea, although tired, swam out to lend aid, and by the time she reached the spot, Mrs. Thompson was almost under water. Mrs. Clark grasped the drowning woman, and began to call for help.

Unaware of Danger

While there were few people at the beach, most of those present did not seem to realize immediately that the two swimmers were in great trouble, but upon giving the scene an instant's once-over, Rev. Stanley Young ripped off his shoes, and plunged into the darkened waters. Meanwhile, the current had dragged the women farther down the river, nearer the bridge. Mr. Young, in swift strokes, headed for the crying girl, still desperately holding Mrs. Thompson head above water. Just as he reached her, Mrs. Clark took a cramp, and her hold relaxed upon Mrs. Thompson.

"Where did she go", shouted Mr. Young.

Mrs. Clark pointed to a white bathing cap being wisped downstream, and Mr. Young sped to the woman, and managed to hold her head above water.

James Cook, a C.N.R. employee living on Water street, plunged into the water, to help Mr. Young, and together, they decided a boat was needed to bring the unconscious girl back to shore. Cook swam back, and tried to find the boat.

Hearing cries for help from her bedroom window, Miss Mary Murphy, 51 Park Hill Road., who has shared in many rescues quickly dressed, and dashed out into the back yard, where the boat was tied. Paddling to the rock-pile under the bridge, where Young and Cook now

Car Hurtles Through Fence At Lift Lock

While police were hunting for the driver of a hit-and-run car which was involved in an accident at the Lift Lock Monday night, Albert E. Stevens, 647 Yonge street, walked into the police station at 11 o'clock and reported that his automobile, bearing the number given to the police as that of the machine which was concerned in the crash, had been stolen from Water street earlier in the night.

Stevens told the police that he had parked his car near the post office and that when he returned after attending a bingo game he found that the automobile was gone.

Whoever was driving the car at the time of the acciden thad a narrow escape from a serious accident at a spot where a fatal crash occurred several years ago.

Narrow Escape.

According to employees of the Lift Lock staff, the automobile came down the hill toward the lock at a high rate of speed, dashed through the Lift Lock tunnel, over-ran the triangular lawn at the east side, smashed through the fence and knocked down two poles and then crashed through the fence and east side of the road, where a cable was snapped off.

Only that fence prevented the machine from plunging down a deep embankment. Hearing the crash, one of the Trent Canal employees put in a hurried call to the police and for an ambulance.

However, the car had not gone down the embankment and was seen a moment or two later travelling south along the road on the east side of the canal.

Constables Harold Mesley and Gordon Trennum searched the neighbourhood for traces of the hit-and-run machine but failed to locate it at that time. It was later found at Downer's Corners.

CASUALTY SECOND TIME — Lieut. Gordon Clarke of the S.D. and G. Highlanders was back in action two days after being discharged from the hospital when he was wounded a second time. He is the grandson of Mrs. J. E. Emmerson, 297 Park street North, and his wife lives in Vancouver. His first injury was a bomb splinter in the side.

TORONTO, August 1 — (CP) — Both mining grounds and the industrials advanced and the western oils were a bit heavy in the early Toronto session today. Trading was about normal in volume at 347,000 shares for the first hour.

Steep rock was the base metal feature and trading actively on an advance of 35 cents to $4.25. Labrador added 10 cents.

O'Brien was the heavy trader in the gold group and it held around $4 for a gain of 10 cents. Giant Yellowknife firmed 40 cents. Frobisher 5 cents, Bear 10, Conwest 10 and Negus 8. Central Patricia, East Malartic, Madsen, Malartic Gold Fields and Perron were gainers.

The paper and steel stocks improved. Abitibi PFD added a point Hiram Walker gained ½ and Hayes Steel ½.

Daring Rescue

had Mrs. Thompson, Miss Murphy helped to pull the woman into the boat, and rowed it back to shore.

There, artificial respiration was applied by Cook, aided by firemen, who responded to the call.

A modest, retiring man, Mr. Young said he had won no swimming championships yet, but admitted he probably made the long swim to the sinking girls in record time.

Became Exhausted

"At first, I didn't think the girl was really in trouble", Mr. Young told the Examiner after the breathtaking rescue. "But when I heard her shouting, 'Oh, won't you hurry', I thought something must be wrong, and lost no time in getting in. The girl was fighting to keep above water for so long, she became utterly exhausted and sank. I got to her, and struggled to hold her, and if she already wasn't unconscious when we got to her, she had completely collapsed by the time the boat arrived."

Mr. Young whose father works at the C.N.R. station has been visiting his parents, and happened to be near Inverlea Park Monday night, entirely by chance. He had not been in swimming.

Mrs. Choate, who came to the beach immediately her husband, Ken Choate, heard of the accident, and called her from a friend's house where she was visiting, did everything she could to help upon arriving at the scene.

"I thought I'd stay a little later last night," she said, "because the current was unusually strong, and it's quite usual for grown-ups to get into difficulty in the water. After about an hour, I decided everything was all right, and went home. As soon as I heard the fire reels, I knew instantly something had happened at the river, and I came over right away."

Mr. Cook, said he was sitting on a bench when the trouble began. He said the girls had been swimming and making some noise, so no one paid much attention when they shouting. After Mrs. Clark shouted, 'I'm almost letting go of her,' people were aroused to action, and it wasn't long before he and Mr. Young had plunged into the water, to effect the narrow escape.

Within a short time from the cries of help heard from Mrs. Clark, who deserves much credit for holding the drowning girls above water even when in danger and difficulty herself, a large crowd had gathered, and many present did all in their power to help. Several people began to help Mrs. Clark when she was brought out of the water, and someone phoned in a fire and police alarm, followed by others turning in the alarm.

A swiftly dangerous current in the Otonabee, makes swimming there at night a very dangerous and precarious sport without lifeguard protection, and with inadequate lighting, but thanks to Rev. Stanley Young, and others who participated in the rescue, a human life was saved Monday evening.

Fifteen candidates already have made their deposits in four constituencies which recorded nominations Saturday: Magdalen Islands, Abitibi East, Abitibi West, and Temiscamingue. Charlevoix-Saguenay, largest constituency in the province, will hold nominations August 10—two days after the general election—with its election date set later in the month.

The Liberal and Union Nationale parties will have 90 officially recorded candidates after nominations, which close at 2 p.m. today. The Bloc Populaire already has chosen 83 candidates while there are more than a dozen C.C.F. representatives, a few Social Crediters, and Labor-Progressives and Independents.

Premier Godbout was idle last night in his campaign tour of the province but tonight will be speaking at St. Jean Port Joli in his home constituency of L'Islet. Maurice Duplessis, Union Nationale leader, will be at Quebec City tonight after a speech at Asbestos, Que., where he spoke in favor of Albert Goudreau, Union Nationale candidate in Richmond constituency.

Mr. Duplessis predicted that the Liberals would not elect more than 12 candidates August 8 and said that in the 1936 election he had said the Liberals would not elect more than 15 and that only 14 had been elected.

Andre Laundrendeau, Provincial Bloc Populaire leader, at a meeing in Montreal termed the August 8 elections a "new plebiscite to crush Godbout and through him to crush King (Prime Minister Mackenzie King)."

Premier Denies Absence During 1914-18

OTTAWA, August 1 — (CP) — Prime Minister Mackenzie King repeated in the Commons last night that he did not leave Canada during the First Great War to take up residence in the United States.

Replying again to Lt.-Col. J. A. Ross (PC—Souris), Mr. King said that he had made it a rule to let people say what they wished, but the "erroneous" story that he left Canada between 1914 and 1918 to live in the United States had gone too far.

Col. Ross said he had confirmed what he said in the House about Mr. King being out of Canada during the war years. He said that between 1914 and 1917 Mr. King carried out research work for the Rockefeller foundation.

Mr. King said Col. Ross apparently was under the impression the Rockfeller foundation had research work carried out only in the United States. The research work he had done mainly in Ottawa, but it also took him at times to the United States.

Mr. King said that if anyone wished to visit the Ottawa city hall they would find that he had paid his taxes during the war years. If they wished to visit the Roxborough apartments in Ottawa they could find that he had paid his rent and had been in residence there during every month of the war years.

The Prime Minister said that during the first Great War he was on the executive of the Canadian Patriotic Fund and that records bore out the fact that he was present at more of its meetings than any other member. He said he had assisted in the work of the fund in every possible way.

DON'T BE PREMATURE

PRACTICALLY every lead-throwing end-play requires thorough preparation. If you put the opponent in the lead too soon, he will either have an additional winner which he can cash, or else will be in position to make a return to you which will not damage him. You must run enough tricks to get the hand stripped down to the point where your adversary has no option except to do something of benefit to you.

Upon seeing the diamond J lead and studying the dummy, South was able to count four tricks in spades, one in hearts, three in diamonds and three in clubs, a total of 11. One more was needed. The lead made it highly unlikely that the diamonds would break to build up a thirteener, so South decided his best chance for the additional trick was in hearts. Reckoning that West probably had the heart K, as a possible re-entry, from the fact that he apparently led his own best suit, he decided to throw West into the lead and make him return a heart into the tenace.

South therefore won the diamond lead with the A, scored four spades, the diamond K, the club A and Q and the diamond Q. From West's discards he knew that worthy had kept only one diamond, so he could be thrown in with the diamond 6 to the 10. West, however, had kept a club, and put the lead back into the dummy with a lead to the K. Now South had to try the finesse, and it lost to the heart K, setting him.

If the declarer had scored his third club trick with the K before leading the last diamond, West's cards at that stage would have been only the diamond 10 with which to take that trick and the heart K-J, from which he would have had to lead into the A-Q. Taking that third club trick before leading the last diamond would have caused his end-play to work and would have made his contract for him.

Government May Be Dissolved By Christmas

OTTAWA, Aug. 1—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King's emphatic statement last Friday that parliament will not be permitted to continue beyond its five-year term means that the Commons will automatically be dissolved next April, when the term is up, unless the government decides to dissolve it earlier.

Concluding debate on second reading of the family allowances bill, Mr. King said it was not his intention, if he could possibly prevent it, to deny the people "the right which they have of an election every five years," whether or not the war continues.

With dissolution in April, a general election might not come until midsummer but the impression here is that Mr. King will not wait that long. The end of November or early in December continues to be forecast as the likely date.

When the amendments to the Election Act was before the Commons committee Jules Castonguay, chief electoral officer, advised the members it would require about about four months, after officials were named to conduct the elections among the armed forces overseas, to build up the necessary machinery to take that vote. It is obvious the government would wish to have it taken the same day as the voting in Canada.

No Appointments

The government has not yet announced any appointments for taking the overseas vote, although the bill authorizing such appointments was given royal assent a week ago. This indicates that the government is in no great rush. The ministry also showed no haste in getting the bill through parliament.

If the officials are named within the next few days and fly to Britain, Normandy and Italy, the general election could be held in November. However, since the government is showing no hurry in the matter some observers are inclined to think the voting will not come until after the new year.

Zoot Suiters Battle Sailors

VANCOUVER, August 1 —(CP) — A mob numbering approximately 1,000 civilians and merchant seamen engaged in a brief rough-and-tumble fight in front of a downtown theatre there last night, but civilian and military police succeeded in quelling the disturbance before any serious injuries were suffered.

Five squad cars of civilian police and all available military and naval police were called out to quell the riot.

The melee followed less than 24 hours after a fight at a nearby intersection. Then civilians described by officers as "zoot-suiters" had battled merchant sailors in front of a cafe. More than 200 persons were reported to have participated in this outbreak.

No arrest were made in either incidents, but minor injuries were suffered in both fights from flying fists and feet.

Police said trouble had been brewing for a week since a merchant seaman had allegedly been knocked unconscious in a row with one of the zoot-suiters.

10 Bills Await Disposition

OTTAWA, Aug. 1 — (CP) — A War Service Gratuities Bill is about the only legislation the government still has to introduce to parliament, Prime Minister Mackenzie King said today in the Commons.

Replying to Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House leader, Mr. King said there might also be a bill arising out of rehabilitation of discharged members of the Forces.

The measures and those already on the order paper were all the legislation Parliament would have to deal with. About 10 Government bills, including the Family Allowances measure, still have to be disposed of.

Among the Bills are those aimed at stabilizing the prices for fish and farm products in the post-war period, a measure providing for renewal of the bank charters, and a national housing measure that would provide for the granting of loans to prospective home owners.

Cameraman Dies From Shrapnel

BY LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, Aug. 1 — (CP Cable) — Lt. Jimmy Campbell, 38-year-old cameraman of the Canadian Army Film and Photo Unit in France, and former resident of Vancouver, was killed on June 20 at Fleury-Sur-Orne on the Canadian front, it may now be reported.

Campbell was killed by fragments from a cluster of German mortar bombs which landed in the street near him as he was attempting to take a picture of a blazing Bren Gun carrier.

One bomb exploded between Campbell and Eddie Worth of London, Eng., Associated Press Photographer. Worth's helmet was blown off and he was knocked to the ground, but not injured. Campbell was killed.

Worth and Lieut. George Cooper of Ottawa, another Canadian Army photographer who had been taking pictures farther up the road, buried Campbell on the spot.

Campbell, one of the most popular men in the fim and photo unit, was a veteran of the Sicilian campaign and then worked in Italy until he was called back to make pictures of the Normandy invasion.

Before joining the Army he was camera man for Metro Goldwyn Mayer in Hollywood for 10 years. His widow lives in Los Angeles.

Daring Flier Repairs Plane In Flight

SARNIA, Aug. 1—(CP)—Flt. Sgt. James Mann, R.A.F., of Sarnia, has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Medal for having climbed out on the wing of a bullet-riddled Lancaster to make adjustments allowing the craft to gain height and return safely to its base, it was learned here today.

The incident occurred about nine months ago. The plane was badly damaged after action with several enemy fighters and the pilot had put it into a dive to shake off his pursuers and extinguish a fire in the motors.

When the pilot tried to level off, the craft would not gain altitude and Flt. Sgt. Mann climbed out to make repairs. The plane reached its base safely and it is reported that six other members of the crew also received decorations.

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN FRANCE, Aug. 1—(CP Cable) —The Canadian attack south of Caen early last week ran into stronger German defencese than had been expected. A British 2nd Army staff officer said Saturday night.

He said the enemy was ready for the attack and seemed to be expecting it although a certain amount of tactical surprise may have been achieved by the fact that the Canadians struck before dawn.

There was no weak point in the defence line through which the Canadians might have broken, he said.

While the attack did not achieve all that was expected of it and was unsuccessful as far as ground gain was concerned, heavier casualties were suffered by the Germans under heavy bombardment in their abortive counter-attacks which were drivven off by artillery fire and air attack, the officer continued.

The attack achieved the objective of tying down German forces, particularly armor, to the British and Canadian sector of the front while the United States forces broke through in the West.

Flying Clothes Styles Change Greatly

By JEAN THOMPSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Aug. 1—(CP)—Men's clothes change little year by year in civilian life, but five years of war have greatly modified both the materials and appearance of the flying togs of Canada's airmen. The R.C.A.F. has a special committee in aviation medical research that experiments constantly to improve the practicability of clothing.

Research work is concentrated in Toronto, Mnotreal and Ottawa due to the comparative smallness of personnel. Developments are tried out on operational stations throughout the Dominion, and after sufficient testing go into production.

Sqdn. Ldr. J. R. Thompson, Medical Intelligence Officer at Ottawa emphasized that the work of scientists and research workers, not only in clothing, but in many other particulars was of double-barrelled importance.

First the war has to be won, but in future all the inventions for the safety and comfort of fliers will have direct application to peacetime aviation for which Canada has thousands of trained airmen to draw upon and in which she occupies such a unique geographical position.

Variations in temperature and pressure between the earth's surface and an altitude of 25,00 feet complicate the functional requirements of clothing. Once an airman leaves the ground he is equipped for that particular flight no matter what he is going to do or where or how he is going to do it.

Thus the physiological and physical aspects of clothing are extremely important for a flier who may take off at a temperature of 90 degrees and experience 40 below zero before he lands.

Related To Thickness

Warmth is directly related to thickness and any part of a flier's togs subjected to pressure will tend to be less effective against cold. A navigator leaning over his charts will flatten the bulk of fabric under his forearm. Aviation clothing must have high resistance to compression.

Canadian aviation research found the answer by developing double pile wool fabric, that is pile on both sides of a single ply of material. Made of Canadian wool and used as an interlining in flying suits it resists and recovers well from compression.

For flights over the North Atlantic or the Indian Ocean, for low level strafing or high level bomber flights, aviation clothing must be tested for wind and water resistance, wearing and bursting strength, warmth and protection from flash burns.

Helmets not only protect the head but carry earphones, microphones and oxygen mask. When medical aviation research increased the efficiency of the mask a tighter fitting helmet was required. Exhaustive head measurements—18 on each of 1,000 air crew, were reduced to six standard sizes. Service tests resulted in the production of a tighter, more compact, and at the same time more efficient and comfortable helmet.

It is interesting to note that the loss of Malaya and its great rubber resources had repercussions on the ear "bun" of the R.C.A.F. helmet. Within the bun is the telephone of the inter-communication system. Insulated against noise with weighted rubber, a whole new series of experiments had to be undertaken to adapt rubber substitutes.

Five-Cent Coffee Returns To U.S.A.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1 — (CP) —The five-cent cup of coffee, an old institution which the war ended in some United States restaurants, was back nearly everywhere to-day.

As announced earlier by the Office of Price Administration, only eating places which charged more than five cents for a cup of coffee in October, 1942, may continue to do so. All later increases to six or seven cents or more are abolished.

The ruling is part of a regulation extending to the entire country the "freeze" of restaurant prices already in effect in most states.

British Guard Art Treasures From Florence

SOMEWHERE IN THE PESA VALLEY, Italy, Aug. 1—(CP-Reuter)—World-famous works by Tuscan painters, which art lovers have spent fortunes to see, are lying in a massive country house here.

I came across this staggering art treasure, valued at many thousands of dollars, during a routine round of the front before Florence.

The paintings, brought to safety from the art galleries of Florence, were put away in long, high rooms.

Italian refugees had spread their mattresses beside such masterpieces as Botticelli's "Primavera" and Giotto's "Madonna."

The treasures were removed from the Tuscan capital after the first bombing, a professor who said he wa sassociated with the art galleries in Florence told me.

As the battle drew near the Italians applied to the Germans for transport but the Germans did not answer.

The professor said that some more paintings, including those by Fra Angelico, were lying in safety in villas in the neighborhood. Immediately after the discovery of the treasures an Indian division of the British 8th Army placed the chateau walls under guard.

Nazi Robot Bombs Kill 4,735
Win Sooner Than Expected

14,000 Hurt Since Raids Began

183,000 Buildings Shattered Across England

LONDON, Aug. 2—(CP)—German robot bombs have killed 4,735 Britons, injured 14,000 and destroyed or damaged 817,000 houses in six weeks of bombardment of London and Southern England, Prime Minister Churchill grimly told the House of Commons today.

He warned that even more deadly weapons may be used in a German campaign of vengeance and slaughter.

A million persons have evacuated London and others not essential to the war were urged to leave. Of the houses, 17,000 were destroyed. Through July 31, the Germans had hurled 5,340 bombs toward England.

Mr. Churchill's speech suggested that the rate of bomb launchings from the French Channel coast had declined slightly and that appreciably fewer had reached this land through the maze of defense devices such as platform bombings, fighter planes, ground fire and barrage balloons. The rate of fatalities also dropped somewhat. The attacks started June 15.

It was Mr. Churchill's first review of the robot bomb bombardment since July 6. Then he disclosed that 2,750 bombs had killed 2,752 persons, and injured 8,000.

The Prime Minister said nearly 1,000,000 persons had been encouraged to evacuate London to escape the blind bombardment from the French Calaiscoast, a type of attack which he often has warned may be only the first phase of a desperate Nazi campaign of vengeance and slaughter.

On July 6, he disclosed that 2,752 persons had been killed and 8,000 injured by bombs launched in the first three weeks of the ordeal.

He said today that 5,340 bombs had been launched, compared with 2,750 during the first three weeks.

This indicated that the rate of launchings had dropped appreciably and that the percetnage of bombs destroyed before reaching populated areas has risen. So far as is known, the chief defence devices are bombings of the French launching sites, anti-aircraft and fighter plane fire and barrage balloons.

Fatalities Down.

Mr. Churchill's new figures showed that the rate of fatalities, compared to the number of bombs launched, had dropped somewhat.

"The only result of the use of this indiscriminate weapon so far as they (the Germans) are concerned will be that the punishment after their weapons have been struck from their hands by our fighting men will be appreciably harder," Churchill declared grimly.

Russians Reach Baltic Sea; Warsaw Totters

BY EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Aug. 2 — (AP) — Thousands of Germans trapped in Latvia and Estonia by a swift Russian plunge to the Baltic Sea 30 miles west of Riga thrashed at the Russian noose today while other Nazis fought violently on a 20-mile suburban arc in defence of beseiged Warsaw.

Northwest of the invested Polish capital, Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky reopened a huge drive toward East Prussia on a 200-mile front, striking within 10 miles of the pre-war frontier of the flank of the Junkers.

(The German communique suggested that Russian troops were pouring across the broad and swift Vistula River south of Warsaw, asserting that Nazi planes "sank on the Vistula 28 Soviet ferries crammed with troops." The communique said "heavy, fluctuating fighting" was continuing on the approaches of east Prussia between Augustow, eight miles from the frontier, and the Memel River. The Germans acknowledged loss of Kalvaria, Jelgava and Wilkowischken in Latvia and said they recaptured Birsen. Fighting still was reported against a Russian bridgehead over the Vistula below Warsaw. Continued Russian advances toward the Beskid Pass through the Carpathians to Czetcho-Slovakia were reported.)

Armies Split

The German 16th and 18th Armies have been operating in the Baltic States and these were split by th drive to the sea west of Riga. Once estimated at 30 Divisions of perhaps 300,000 men, there was no official estimate of the number trapped in an area about the size of South Carolina.

The Red Army had cut and was astride all railroads and highways leading from the Baltic States to East Prussia. From Tukums on the coastal railroad, Gen. Ivan Bagramian's Baltic Army group fanned off rapidly in three directions: 1. Dashing less than 20 miles from Riga itself; 2. Northward along the Gulf of Riga; and 3. Towards such escape ports at Leipaja, 85 miles east. Ventspils and Mazirbe.

Only the sea remained as an escape route for the trapped Germans, but the wide-sweeping Rus-

19 Canadians Murdered In Normandy

Invasion Troops Advised Of Latest Hun Atrocity

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, Aug. 2 —(CP Cable)— From the battleline to base areas Canadian troops in France were officially told today of the murder of 19 of their comrades by members of the German 12th S.S. Panzer Division.

A statement from Lieut. Gen. Crerar, Canadian Army Commander, giving the stark facts of this atrocity was read to the troops by officers and posted on every orderly room notice board.

The 300-word statement said a court of inquiry after an exhaustive probe had determined that the 19 Canadian soldiers taken prisoner were "deliberately murdered....in clear violation of the well-recognized laws and usages of war."

The general's statement said the troops should not allow their deep anger to take, under any circumstances, the form of retaliation in kind.

In silent anger the troops listened to this official confirmation of a story many of them had known for weeks—that Canadian prisoners had been shot in cold blood by their German captors. Even for front-line men, hardened to savage battle, for men who had death all around them, this was shocking, bitter news.

The murder of these 19 soldiers occurred near Pavie, two days after the landing. Pavie is a district of the Caen-Baleux highway, and towns in this district include Bretteville, Le Misnil, Patry, Norrey-en-Bessin, and Putot-en-Bessin, where Canadian troops fought.

Thirteen were shot in one group with Schmeizer machine-guns, and the remainder were shot in small groups. The bodies were left unburied by the Germans and later buried by Canadian troops when the area was occupied. One of the murdered Canadians was an officer.

This is the first confirmed case of enemy atrocities against Allied troops in Normandy. There were no such authenticated incidents in Africa, Sicily or Italy.

Informing Canadian war correspondents of the findings of the court of inquiry, a Canadian staff officer suggested the Canadian had been executed because a German commander was infuriated at their refusal to talk when interrogated. The German officer responsible for the slayings was said to be a unit major.

All Fit And Well.

Proof that the Canadians had been taken prisoner and that they were fit and well before they were shot was obtained from French civilian witnesses.

British Regain Lost Ground Near Florence

ROME, Aug. 2 — (AP) — The British 8th Army on Florence has regained ground lost to recent German counter-attacks and British troops were closing in slowly today on the city's outer fringes despite a fanatical enemy defence rivaling the Nazi stand at Cassino.

Gen. Alexander's headquarters announced that New Zealanders are now firmly established in the village of La Romola, 6½ miles southwest of Florence. Farther to the left an Indian Division occupied Castiglione, 10 miles from the city.

Meanwhile British guardsmen, probing forward in the hills east of Highway 2—the main road leading to Florence— reached two mountain positions without making contact with the enemy.

Other British forces moving up on the Arezzo-Florence Axis occupied Sezzate, eight miles south southeast of Florence against only mild opposition, but the Germans were in position on Monte Masso only three miles ahead.

British units moving up highway 69 in this same general locality were within three miles of Incisa and 13 miles from Florence.

Artillery fire and patrolling were reported on other sectors of the Italian front.

An official source said enemy activity behind a smokescreen east of Pisa was broken up by shellfire.

Canadian armor maintained static positions along an undisclosed front. Canadian Press War Correspondent Doug How reported last night.

Jap Defeat To Follow Very Shortly

Premier Optimistic In Address On War Progress

By LEWIS HAWKINS
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 2—(AP). — Prime Minister Churchill said today he felt that the final end of the war against the Axis would come sooner, perhaps much sooner, than he once expected.

"On every battle front all over the world," he told the House of Commons, "the armies of Germany and Japan are recoiling...I am increasingly led to feel that the interval between the defeat of Hitler and the defeat of Japan will be shorter—perhaps much shorter—than I had at one time supposed."

He mentioned no dates. But, confident and cheerful, he sketched bright pictures of a swiftly approaching victory. He spoke one hour and 45 minutes before the House, which had just voted itself a seven-week holiday.

Aside from the Japanese reference, the most definite statement he made on this score was:

"I fear greatly the raising of false hopes, but I no longer feel bound to deny that victory may come perhaps soon."

In the same vein he said that "one cannot take more than a sweeping glance of the world war as it approaches the end of its fifth year and as it approaches perhaps its closing stage."

The Prime Minister disclosed that the Normandy invasion and the coordinated Red Army offensive resulted from an agreement with Premier Stalin at Teheran.

Canadians Do Well.

Speaking of the Normandy fighting, he said the Canadians, with the British forces, had taken "our full share in fierce and prolonged conflicts."

"We have fulfilled the indispensable part which was assigned to us by the supreme commander and under him by Gen. Montgomery," he added. "Losses of the British and Canadian forces together were about equal to those of the larger United States forces in proportion to the relative strengths....It has been share and share alike in good fortune and bad all along the front."

The news from Normandy, he told a cheering House of Commons, is extremely good and "the first American Army advancing down the Atlantic coast might well be approaching the important railway centre of Rennes, about halfway across the base of the Brest peninsula."

Lauds Russians

Of Italy he said: "We may hope that operations of the umtost vigor will be continued by General Alexander (Allied commander in chief) and his army throughout the summer and autumn."

But he added that while things were going well there, "it is the Russian army who have done the most work tearing the guts out of the German army."

The prime minister brought the war sharply home to Britons with the disclosure that 4,735 persons have been killed by rocket bombs, with 14,000 injured and 17,000 homes destroyed since the attacks began June 15.

He said the invasion of Normandy June 6 fulfilled a promise made to Stalin at Teheran that such a plan would be put into operation at the end of May or the beginning of June.

The Soviet leader promised in re-

Major Defeat Looming At Beachhead

By GLADWIN HILL

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, August 2 — (AP). — The British 2nd Army has broken through the centre of the German line, threatening to crush Marshal Von Kluge's forces in the high ground south of Caen in a second great Normandy debacle, field dispatches announced to-day.

To the south, American spearheads knifed through German resistance soft as butter toward a "second Cherbourg"—isolation and capture of the Brittany Peninsula with its two big ports of Brest and St. Nazaire.

Fanning out through Pontorson, 13 miles south-west of Avranches, American armored and infantry columns were within 30 miles of Renes, in the centre of the Brittany Peninsula baseline and the provincial capital.

Although the Brittany Peninsula is 100 miles wide, 150 miles long, and roughly a dozen times as big as the Cherbourg Peninsula, its reduction was proceeding at a faster clip.

Lose 20,000 Men.

The break in the centre of the Germans line by Lt.-Gen. Sir Miles Dempsey's British threatened to engulf the remainder of the enemy defences which had suffered the loss of 20,000 prisoners in a week and the destruction or near destruction of a dozen divisions.

King Reviews Canadian Units

By BILL BOSS.
Canadian Press War Correspondent.

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, August 2 — (Delayed)— (CP Cable)— King George of Britan paid a four-hour visit to Canada's soldiers in Italy to-day.

During the visit he inspected units both afoot and from a perch atop the back seat of his open car moving slowly by rigid lines of troops.

He invested Major John Keefer Mahoney of New Westminster, B. C., with the ribbon and medal of the Victoria Cross in the presence of his unit, the Westminster Regiment, and of Major Paul Triquet of Gabano, Que., only other Canadian to win the V. C. in this theatre.

After lunch with Lt.-Gen. Burns of Westmount, Que., Canadian Corps Commander, His Majesty left the Canadians to visit Cassino with Gen. Alexander.

On arrival at the corps area the royal party drove to a parade ground where the vast ceremonial area was enclosed on one side by a line of tanks half a mile long, parallelled 300 yards away by a long line of encosure for divisional and corps troops and spectators. The ends were shut off by a battery of guns of a medium regiment and by batteries from a self-propelled field and a self-propelled anti-tank regiment.

Drawn up in the square were three regiments in line. The lines of men standing three deep stretched for more than half-mile. As seen by the King, they were the Royal 22nd Regiment, the Westminster Regiment and the Irish Regiment of Canada.

Turkey Severs Relations With Germany

LONDON, Aug. 2—(CP)—Turkey broke off diplomatic and economic relations with Germany today in an action which Berlin broadcasts declared "must be regarded as a prelude to war."

This setback for Hitler on the Balkan flank followed swiftly upon a governmental shift in Helsinki which was believed the first step toward taking Finland out of the war as a co-belligerent of Germany. This shift moved Marshal Baron Carl Gustaf Mannerheim to the presidency to succeed Risto Ryti, resigned.

Turkey's severance of ties with Germany was disclosed by the Turkish home radio and was confirmed almost immediately by Berlin broadcasts.

Premier Sukru Saracoglu announced the cabinet's decision to make the break, telling the National Assembly that it had been requested by Britain, with United States support. The Assembly promptly ratified the decision.

Meanwhile, rumors circulated here that Japan was about to break relations with Turkey.

Blackouts already have been ordered for Turkey's Black Sea and Mediterranean coasts, possibly either tonight or tomorrow night.

In the words of one person close to the Axis, Germans in Turkey are "packed and sitting on their baggage" and there was general belief German Ambassador Von Papen would be handed his passport immediately.

Whether a break in diplomatic relations would be followed by Turkish grants of air bases to the Allies is a subject upon which Turkish officials remained rigidly silent.

A BBC broadcast heard by NBC said the Turkish Government had ordered all Turkish ships in Bulgarian and Romanian ports to return to Turkey immediately.

Britain had promised Turkey "economic and financial help and

Tinian Island Taken By Yanks

PEARL HARBOR, Aug. 2 — (AP) —The nine-day conquest of Tinian in the Marianas, a campaign shortened by use of a death-dealing secret weapon on the 4,500 Japanese defenders, gave the United States a second "unsinkable aircraft carrier" to-day next to Saipon, won in 25 days.

On Guam, marines and soldiers who already have won its best harbor and airfield pushed north on the 14th day of invasion against 10,000 doomed Japanese being whittled down by bombs and rockets of carrier planes.

All organized resistance ended on Monday night on Tinian.

The total ground losses of the Japanese on Saipan, Tinian and Guam already exceeds 30,000.

A Reuters News Agency dispatch from Melbourne quoted the Tokyo radio to-day as saying that American troops had landed on Rota Island, between Tinian and Guam.

Oil Controller No Strike-Breaker

TORONTO, Aug. 2 —(CP)—Oil Controller G. R. Cottrell said last night gasoline rationing regulations would not be relaxed in Montreal in the event fo a tramways strike starting at midnight tonight.

"As far as I am concerned as oil controller we will take care of public utilities and essential services through war industry transit," he said. "But as far as taking the lid off for the general public—nothing doing.

"I am not going to be a strike-breaker. What the government may order is another matter."

Twelve Bridges Hit By Bombs

LONDON, Aug. 2 — (CP) — Almost all Allied aircraft based in both Britain and Italy remained grounded last night by unfavorable weather conditions over the French battle area promised to improve to day in time to enable Allied airmen to return to systematic attacks on the German forces being rolled back from Normandy.

Twelve bridges—most of them rail spans over the Seine, Loire, Marne and Eure Rivers,—were blasted yesterday as American heavy bombers joined the Tactical Air Force in cutting off routes of supplies and reinforcements for mauled German troops and at the same time reducing their avenues of escape.

The heavies also bombed five enemy fighter bases in a 125-mile-long area stretching below Paris from Melun to Tours, and an oil dump at Rouen. Medium and light bombers hit a fuel dump at St. Malo, just ahead of American forces on the Brest Peninsula and an ammunition dump ahead of the British-Canadian sector southeast of Caen.

In another daylight operation yesterday American heavies smashed at flyingbomb launching sites in the Pas De Calais area a few hours after a double-header blow at the same area by British heavies.

Finland Given Another Chance

STOCKHOLM, August 2 — (AP) —Marshal Baron Mannerheim, Finland's new President, was believed to-day to have received Russian assurances that Moscow is prepared to consider a new Finnish application for an armistice which would guarantee Finland's independence.

It was learned reliably that the assurances were given the Finnish Commander-in-Chief even before he assumed the Presidency from the resigned pro-German, Risto Ryti.

A source whose information on events in Finland usually has proved up to the minute expressed belief that contact was made with Moscow probably more than a week ago, through Swedish intermediaries.

"It is my impression that the Russians said they were willing to consider a new application for an armistice and still were prepared to respect Finland's independence," he said.

"I imagine Moscow set as a requirement that Finland declare her willingness to capitulate, after which the Russians would be willing to receive a delegation to discuss what this would mean in practice."

Some German troops were reported leaving Finland, and a usually reliable Stockholm informant commented that this development was "not unlikely."

Rommel Injury Now Confirmed

LONDON, August 2 — (CP). — A D.N.B. dispatch broadcast from Berlin to-day confirmed that Marshal Erwin Rommel was injured in an Allied air attack in France on July 17, but said he escaped with a brain concussion and his condition was satisfactory.

"His life is not endangered," the German broadcast declared.

Rommel was injured while driving in his car, the broadcast added.

This was the first German confirmation of reports received through front line dispatches in Normandy that Rommel had been injured. Some of the reports said he died later in a hospital.

Eden Opposes Peace Treaty

Labor Member Voices Stern Warning

LONDON, Aug. 2—(CP)—Foreign Secretary Eden assured the House of Commons today there would not be any peace made with Germany in the next seven weeks—although he held out the possibility that the enemy might surrender in that period.

Mr. Eden spoke after John Lawson, Labor, opposing a Government motion for a Commons recess until Sept. 26, said if the Allies were to beat Germany in that period the Government then would make peace —and he (Lawson) didn't like the sort of peace they would make.

Mr. Eden replied:

"You need not be anxious. There is not the least risk of anything like that happening. You are really confusing two different things—the surrender of the enemy with terms of the peace which are an altogether later stage than the surrender."

After two hours of debate, Commons agreed on the recess until Sept. 26.

Armed Negroes Start Rioting

PHILADELPHIA, August 2 — Gangs of armed negroes roamed a negro residential section in northwest Philadelphia to-day, smashed 500 windows and attacked and seriously injured eight white persons, police said, as race trouble flared in a tieup of Philadelphia's public transportation system.

The police arrested more than 300 on charges varying from malicious mischief to aggravated assault and battery and carrying concealed deadly eapons.

Three thousand city policemen and 7,000 auxiliary policemen were on duty.

Police said most of the gangs were made up of 'teen-age boys armed with bricks, bottles, stones, clubs, knives or guns.

Riots in Night.

Race disorders broke out last night after a work stoppage stranded many of the city's 1,500,000 daily riders of buses, trolleys and subway trains and cut heavily into the war production.

In some cases the gangs looted grocery stores, taprooms, and drug stores after smashing in the windows.

William Marquard, a newspaper reported, and Charles Higgins, a photographer, reported they were chased by a band of negroes, given refuge by a negro family in its home, and later escorted to safety by police.

Higgins' shirt was torn from his back.

The Philadelphia Transportation Company, operator of the city's entire network of trolley car, bus and subway lines, said that its operasubway lines, said that its 6,000 operators had walked out, without union authorization, in resentment at the hiring of eight negro trolley-car operators.

At least 10 persons were hurt, one critically.

335 Candidates in Quebec

Liberals To Contest Every Constituency

MONTREAL, August 2 — (CP). —A record number of candidates paid deposits to enter the Quebec general election on August 8 when 335 listed their names with returning officers yesterday—nomination day. The Union Nationale Party had candidates in every constituency but the Liberals still are missing a representative in Charlevoix-Saguenay riding where nominations will be accepted August 10.

The Bloc Populaire placed 81 candidates in the field while the C.C.F. with the next largest number has entered 34. Quebec's Social Credit has 11 and the Labor-Progressives, four. The other 34 candidates are made up of Independents and special clasifications, including Rene Chaloult, Nationalist candidate in Quebec (county).

Premier Godbout is the only party leader to have one opponent. In L'Islet County he is opposed by Joseph Bilodeau, Union Nationale. Maurice Duplessis in Three Rivers has Liberal and Bloc Populaire opponents while in Montreal Laurier Andre Laurendeau has four candidates opposing him. All Cabinet members in the present administration have plenty of opposition.

Social Credit Leaders Rap Allowances

EDMONTON, Aug. 2—(CP).—Two Social Credit speakers last night attacked Federal financial policies. Solon Low, National leader, attacked the family allowances program and Premier Manning, Alberta leader, declared Social Credit will fight against finance until the battle is won.

Mr. Low, speaking at Medicine Hat, Alta., termed the children's allowances as approved by the Federal Government "a half-hearted attempt at a national dividend" as has been suggested by the Social Credit.

"It will cost 10 times as much to pay and administer children's allowances as it would to follow the simple system of a national dividend as suggested by Social Credit."

Mr. Low contended the C.C.F. had "garnered the harvest of our work" in Ontario in the last Provincial election there.

"Social Credit organizers have been in that province recently and have found a ready response with people asking why they did not come earlier so they could have recorded their votes for Social Credit in the election."

Premier Manning told an audience at Peace River, Alta., a full measure of social and economic security for citizens could be accomplished if the Federal Government would create a debt-free money.

war equipment," the Turkish premier said, "to meet the difficulties which would arise" from the action.

The break is effective at midnight tonight.

Speaking before 413 delegates of the Assembly, Saracoglu said the step did not mean that Turkey would enter the war, but that such a possibility "would depend on the attitude of the other side."

This, apparently, indicated that Turkey, which has more than 1,000,000 well-trained soldiers, would enter the fight only if Germany started hostile action.

Mr. Saracoglu said that Britain, with United States support, had asked Turkey "within the limits of our agreement, (mutual assistance alliance) to break diplomatic relations and economic relations" with Germany.

The break—a major blow to German prestige—may have an important effect upon shaky Balkan satellites, particularly Bulgaria, which has shown increasing indications recently of desiring to leave the company of Germany and move closer to Russia.

Turkish trade with Germany is already drastically reduced. It cut off shipments of chrome several months ago. Such strategic materials as cotton, copper, fish, oil-seeds and mohair now will be barred.

The Axis had wind of the move before it was taken. Berlin broadcasters had warned the Turks that a break in diplomatic and economic relations would mean war.

The leadership of war-weary Finland changed overnight. The assumption of the presidency by Mannerheim, Finnish commander-in-chief, was regarded as the first step toward the formation of a peace government.

However, German propagandists professed to welcome the appointment of the old soldier to succeed Ryti.

"The brotherhood in arms will be still closer in the future," one Nazi radio commentator declared.

The young flier was previously reported missing after flying operations.

FO. A. Huycke Prisoner Of War

WARKWORTH, August 2 (ENS)—Enlisting in the R.C.A.F. as a mechanic in 1937, and later transferring to take a pilot's course, FO. Austin H. S. Huycke, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Huycke, Norham, has been reported a prisoner of war in Germany, according to word reaching his parents on Tuesday evening. Previously reported missing after air operations, the International Red Cross sent word to his parents he was a prisonetr of war.

After re-enlisting as a pilot in 1942, the young flier trained at Yorkton, Sask., Winnipeg, Camp Borden, Trenton, and Regina, and received his wings and commission at Dauphin, Manitoba, as a pilot officer. He went overseas in 1943, and was commissioned a flying officer six months later.

Born in Percy Township, he was educated at White School, Warkworth Continuation School, and at Campbellford High School.

The late Judge E. C. S. Huycke of Peterborough was an uncle of the flier, and he has many relatives in Peterborough.

pagne, south of Caen.

Another front dispatch said the German troops were stumbling back in retreat north of Villers-Bocage, the keystone of the enemy defence perimeter in the Caumont sector. Due south of Coumont British armored patrols were dashing beyond captured Le Beny Bocage in the area just north of the key communications city of Vire.

Must Make Stand.

A British staff officer on that front said:

"Rommel must stand and fight on high ground between Villers-Bocage and Caen, and I think we shall destroy him there." He expressed belief that Field-Marshal Rommel was facing disaster.

Driving east from Le Beny Bocage British tanks seized a "sausage feature" spur shown on the map at Hill 266. Simultaneously other British columns farther north had stormed and captured Hill 361 and gained all the high ground east of the Homme Woods, thereby completing a virtual strangle hold on a bitterly defended stretch of forest. Germans still fighting in the woods now have only a narrow escape corridor to the south.

2 Spearheads

Two American armored spearheads were fanning out south of Avranches.

The Americans slashing forward in Brittany had not yet encountered notable organized opposition. They swept through Pontorson, 13 miles southwest of Avranches.

Some 20 miles to the northeast, where the Germans have been trying vainly to establish an anchor for their battered 80-mile line, the hotly contested Norman cities of Percy and Tessy Sur Vire fell while Villedieu Les Poeles, which already has been by-passed, was being cleared.

The Canadians struck yesterday and held Tilly la Campagne for a period before being driven back. In this area the Germans have not one heavy crust of defence but two broad, massed belts of machine-guns and tanks and lines of mortar and artillery batteries. Between these two lines a third and intermediate line of similar strength is being fixed.

The battle of Normandy and Brittany has burgeoned suddenly into the battle of France as one of the American columns out of Avranches shoved rapidly eastward along the See River capturing dams, bridges and towns even before the disorganized, demoralized and fleeing Germans could damage them.

With the Caen anchor at the opposite end of the line firmly held, this movement eastward from Avranches started a great trans-Normandy pincers on the German defense forces in between.

British Forces Hit Albania

ROME, Aug. 2 (AP)—British land, naval and air forces co-operated in a successful raid last Saturday against the Albanian port of Himare and inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy, a special Allied communique announced today.

The bulletin said the raiding forces brought back 30 prisoners but gave no other details of the operation.

Himare is near the southwest corner of Albania, about 60 miles across the Adriatic from the heel of the Italian boot.

Canadians Face Tough Defences

BY WILLIAM SMITH WHITE
Associated Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN FRANCE, Aug. 2 — (AP) — Powerful elite German forces along this eastern hinge of the Allied line in France are offering the most desperate resistance of the whole campaign against Canadian troops trying to take Tilly La Campagne south of Caen.

The enemy command is holding this broad sector with not one "crust" but two—two broad belts of massed machine-guns, tanks, mortars and batteries of artillery.

Between these lines a third line of similar strength is being established.

In one of a series of attacks, Canadian infantry broke into Tilly by 10 a.m. yesterday, and had control of the town by early afternoon. During the night, the Germans came back with tanks and infantry and the Canadians were compelled to fall back.

Regular tanks were flung at the Allied troops, 12 at a time, and then Robot tanks. There also were 12 of these little counter parts of the German flying bomb. Six exploded as they were designed to do, at some point of contact, and the other six were recalled by remote control by Germans under Canadian fire.

Russians Reach

sian Air Force menaced this avenue. Front dispatches indicated it may be only a matter of days until the enemy is wiped out in Latvia and Estonia.

Four Russian armies now are closing in on the isolated Germans. The Soviet midnight communique, announcing the plunge to the coast, foretold a German catastrophe in a single sentence:

"Thus our troops have cut all roads leading from the Baltic to East Prussia."

No Definite Data.

(There is no definite word on how many Germans remain in the upper Baltic States, but it is known that both the 16th and 18th Armies, once totalling 350,000 men, were assigned to the isolated region.)

Closing of the Baltic trap paved the way for quick release of the Soviet northern divisions for direct invasion of Germany in concert with armies to the south.

While Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky battered against Warsaw's eastern door, Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky extended his triple-pronged attack on East Prussia after his conquest of Kaunas.

(A BBC broadcast heard today by CBS said that in Moscow "the announcement of a Russian march into east Prussia is awaited hourly" and that Russian artillery already "is shelling enemy positions in German land.")

Cherniakohovsky's cavalry and armored units swept within 10 miles of the East Prussian frontier fortress of Eydtkuhnen following seizure of Antigne. Additional 3rd White Russian Army forces occupied 300 populated places yesterday.

Spearheads of Gen. G. F. Kakharov's 2nd White Russian Army punched toward Lomza, communications hub in East Prussia, and the left wing swung due south to add to the pressure against Warsaw where Germans were reported applying the torch to the city.

Churchill Says

turn, Mr. Churchill said, "that the whole of the Russian armies would be thrown, as indeed they have been, into the general battle in the east."

Other highlights from the prime minister's war summary:

1—"I am increasingly led to feel that the interval between the defeat of Hitler and the defeat of Japan will be shorter — perhaps much shorter — than I had at one time supposed."

2—The United States navy alone is already double the size of Japan's and the British fleet in Asiatic waters will be greatly strengthened by the end of the year.

Equal Strength

3—American and British-Canadian forces were of about equal strength in the invasion of Normandy, but the United States forces now are larger. "We have inflicted losses on the enemy about double those which we have suffered ourselves."

4—To critics of British tanks, he said both the Cromwell and the American-made Sherman were excellent and "the notorious Churchill," the most thickly skinned 60-tonner, "is coming into its own."

5—The Germans were warned that the only result of their indiscriminate use of rocket bombs—which may become heavier and more destructive—"will be that their punishment after their weapons have been struck from their hands by our fighting men will be appreciably increased."

6—He confirmed Turkish severance of diplomatic and economic ties with Germany and said that if the Axis struck at Turkey "we shall make common cause with her and take the German menace as well as we can in our stride."

7—With negotiators of the Polish government in exile in Moscow, he said it would be a marvellous thing if a fusion of rival Polish forces could be proclaimed "when Warsaw is being liberated by the bravery of the Russian armies."

End Getting Near

8—"The whole of Europe is sliding irresistably into new and secure foundations."

The prime minister touched lightly upon internal difficulties of Germany, but said these "must shock to the foundations the confidence of the people and the loyalty of the armies."

He said that Ambassador Franz Von Papen, who failed in the assignment to keep Turkey neutral, might now be returned to Berlin "to take part in the blood bath that he so narrowly escaped at Hitler's hands in an earlier period."

Needed Equipment.

Mr. Churchill said he did not believe the invasion of France "could have been executed any earlier."

"We had not the tackle," he said.

Mr. Churchill asserted Gen. Eisenhower "is a genius for bringing all his allies together and proud to consider himself an Allied as well as a United States commander."

"In the air, on the sea and under the sea our well-established supremacy increases with steady strides," the confident Prime Minister told the House.

He declared the German U-boats had been so badly beaten that the Allies, despite vastly greater tonnage, "have sailed the seas from January to June with less than half the losses we have inflicted on the dwindling and largely immobile naval resources of the enemy, both in the East and West."

Paying tribute to "important and expanding successes" in the Pacific, Mr. Churchill declared:

"I am increasingly led to feel that the interval between the defeat of Hitler and the defeat of Japan will be shorter — perhaps much shorter — than had at one time been supposed."

He added that the American built highway in Burma now is carrying far more tonage than ever was delivered in similar time over the old Burma Road.

Indicating still more vigorous strokes by the Americans in the Pacific, the Prime Minister said that the British Fleet will be greatly strengthened in the East by the end of the year, but "it is probable however that the Japanese Fleet will have its time taken up with the Navy of the United States which is already double the size of that presumptuous Power."

He said the Normandy invasion and the new Russian offensive had been carried out on schedule, on coordinated plans agreed upon at Teheran. Despite the worst June gales in 40 years, he declared, "very large armies with about one vehicle to every four or five men were landed" across the beaches of France although the Germans had 100 submarines and other obstacles in their path.

Gen. Eisenhower and his ground Commander, Gen. Montgomery, now "stand at the head of an Army equipped as no Army has ever been equipped before."

All this was not accomplished without loss, he said adding:

"We have inflicted losses on the enemy about double those which we have suffered ourselves."

When the invasion started, the American and British-Canadian forces were about even in strength. United States forces now are larger he disclosed.

Losses the Same

The losses of the British and Canadians were proportionally about the same as those of the Americans and "it has been share and share alike all along the front."

Answering persistent parliamentary criticism of British tanks, the Prime Minister declared that both the Cromwell and Sherman were excellent and that hundreds of Shermans now are pouring into Normandy armed with 17-pounder guns.

He said Gen. Montgomery reported that both of Germany's vaunted tank models, the Tiger and Panther were "unreliable and vulnerable and that the 17-pounder could go right through them."

Continuing amid intermittent laughter, he said that the "notorious Churchill tank is the most thick-skinned in Europe, and has also won commendation. It is coming into its own."

"The Churchill can be either defensive or offensive," he concluded, to a fresh burst of mirth.

Of Italy, Mr. Churchill said:

"We may hope that operations of the utmost vigor will be continued by Gen. Alexander and his army throughout the summer and autumn."

Unparalleled Job

He added that while things were going very well there, "it is the Russian army who have done most of the work in tearing the guts out of the German army."

"There are no other forces in the world that could have been called into being except after several more years that would have been able to maul and break the German army," Mr. Churchill continued.

"I salute Marshal Stalin, the great champion of a great country, and I firmly believe that our 20-year treaty with Russia will prove to be one of the most durable factors in preserving peace and good order and the progress of Europe.

"It might well be that the Russian successes have been somewhat aided by the strategy of Corporal Hitler. Even military idiots find it dificult not to see some faults in some of his actions."

Mr. Churchill said there was great improvement in British relations with Gen. de Gaulle's French National Committee, "largely as the result of careful spadework of Mr. Eden and the great success attending Gen. de Gaulle's visit to President Roosevelt."

Continuing a discussion of political aspects of the war, he said:

"I look forward to the closest association of the British Empire, the United States, Russia and French representatives in the settlement of these European problems."

Hopeful For Poland.

"This is in my opinion a hopeful moment for Poland, for whose rights and independence we entered the war."

He said it seemed reasonable that Russia should expect that there should be a friendly Poland and that the Allies would welcome any fusion between Polish forces now working with the Western forces and those working with the Soviet Union.

"It would be a marvellous thing if that could be proclaimed...when Warsaw is being liberated by the bravery of Russian armies."

Conditions have improved considerably in Yugoslavia; the Greek Navy again is at sea and a Greek brigade soon will join the battle in Italy, he said.

Romania can look to Russia for any terms of peace. For Bulgaria, the "moment of repentance has not passed but it is passing swiftly," he added.

Huns Pillage Italy's Churches

LONDON, Aug. 2 —(CP) — Sir James Grigg, Secretary of State for War, detailed to the House of Commons Tuesday German Army acts of vandalism as the Nazis retreated in Italy, beginning with the burning of the University Library at Naples.

"From that point outward," he related, "the tale is one of sacrilege and theft on all sides."

Sir James' listing of looting and destruction included:

Naples —Destruction of art treasures and archives.

Monte Cassino— Statue from the altar of the abbey taken and sent to Hermann Goering.

Velletri—Pictures and contents of the treasury of Ste. Maria del Trivio looted and the brocaded furniture slashed.

Baranello and Isernia— Coin collections from museums stolen.

Sir James said that after the cathedral at Velletri had been partly pillaged the bishops protested and the German High Command put up out-of-bound notices, with the threat of the death penalty for plundering.

He noted that it was the only instance except for the Papal properties at Castel Gandolfo where a curb was put on the German armies.

He warned again that there was a strong possibility that the Nazis would use much heavier and more destructive rockets against Britain. He advised those without wartime duties to leave London.

He declared that the bombs were of no military importance.

Between June 15 and July 31, the Prime Minister said, the explosive weight of the missiles launched against England totalled only 4,500 tons, while in the same period Allied planes dropped 48,000 tons of high explosive bombs on Germany.

The Prime Minister's total of 800,000 homes damaged apparently included those with windows broken and those otherwise hit by the blasts which are felt over an extraordinarily wide area.

City Engineer Has Salary Cut

HAMILTON, August 2 —(CP) — Board of Control Tuesday announced that it will recommend to City Council that W. L. McPaul, city engineer and building commissioner, be removed from his office as building commissioner and his salary be reduced by $500 a year for three years

The announcement was made in a statment issued by the Board on its study of the report of Judge E. F. Lazier who investigated the adequacy of the city's fire regulations. The probe was ordered as a result of the Moose Temple fire early in July 1 in which 10 persons died.

The statement, which described Mr. McPaul as an engineer of recognized high standing in the profession in Canada said it felt he had been negligent in certain of his duties as building commissioner.

The Board also reprimanded Thomas Lewington, building inspector, and recommended he be retained on a temporary basis.

Canadian Navy May Fight In Jap Waters

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Aug. 2 (CP)—While no official comment in forthcoming, there are indications that Canada's role in the Pacific war may soon be more clearly outlined.

These facts are available:—

1. Confidential reports from the Canadian Army's 20 liaison officers with the Australain, New Zealand and American forces in the Southwest Pacific are being studied at defence headquarters here with a view to preparing a program for possible active participation by military formations.

2. Preliminary reports have been received from Air Vice-Marshal L. F. Stevenson and his R.C.A.F. mission to south east Asia and it is assumed they have something to do with a possible switch of Canadian air power to that area.

Study Diseases

3. Canadian naval doctors have started to study tropical diseases and ship air conditions on the assumption that the Canadian Navy will participate in force in the Pacific. This was disclosed July 25 by a reliable source who said the role of the navy in that theatre would not be decided until the Royal Navy makes its decision on participating when the European war reaches a final stage.

4. In Canberra July 16, Prime Minister Curtin said large and powerful forces would become available this year in the war against Japan and this recalled in Ottawa that the role of the three Canadian armed forces in the Pacific were said to have been discussed when Mr. Curtin conferred here recently with Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

A dispatch from London on Monday said there was significance in the appointment of Admiral Sir Bruce Fraser to succeed Admiral Sir James F. Somerville as commander-in-chief of the Royal Navy's eastern fleet.

The dispatch added that it was not announced whether any strength yet has been shifted eastward from British home waters, but if it hasn't it is a good guess there will be a shift in the near future.

A reliable source told The Canadian Press that no official decision had yet been taken on the disposition of Canadian forces in the Pacific but his own opinion was that the navy and air force would play the major role.

The Canadian navy, closely identified with Royal Navy and outfitted similarly, would probably accompany the senior fleet to the Pacific when it transfers its full might there.

Child Subsidy Legislation Bill Goes To The Senate

By FRANK FLAHERTY,
Canidain Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, Aug. 2 —(CP) —Hundreds of millions of dollars were involved in bills which advanced through the Commons yesterday.

Last night, after a series of sharp debates extending over several days the Family Allowances Bill received third reading and was sent on to the Senate. It is estimated the net cost of paying allowances on account of all children under 16 will be about $200,000,000 a year.

Then after a brief discussion the House gave second reading which means approval in principle to the export Credits Insurance Bill. That puts Government guarantees behind the post-war export trade of Canada to the extent of $330,000,000 in three different ways, but does not necessarily involve any cash outlay or loss to the Government.

There was no opposition to the Family Allowances Bill on third reading or to the Export Credit Insurance Bill on second reading. The latter measure will be discussed further in committee of the House today.

Without Loss.

It provides for the creation of a Government Corporation to insure exporters against failure to collect for goods shipped to other countries. The Corporation will have a capital of $5,000,000 in shares to be owned by the Government and may be loaned an additional $25,000,000. It is expected to operate on a cost basis without loss or profit.

To meet other export trade problems the bill authorizes the Governmento to guarantee the credit of Governments or Government agencies in other countries to Canadian exporters to the extent of $200,000,000 and to make loans to Government to guarantee the credit of the purchase of Canadian goods to the extent of $100,000,000.

Stanley Knowles CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) supported the measure, but thought it contemplated a greater return to pre-war methods of conducting international trade than would occur. The international trade situation, he said, called for adoption of the C.C.F. proposal of import and export boards and continuation of the methods of planning and control which had been adopted during the war.

Birth Certificates.

Last-minute discussion of family allowances brought from Brooke Claxton, Parliamentary Assistant to the Prime Minister, the information that eventually birth certificates will be required for every child receiving the allowances.

The production of certificates, however, will not likely be required in the first instance since it is doubtful if the Provincial Governments have facilities for turning out more than 3,000,000 birth certificates in short order.

He also said there will be a local office in each province for administration and that these offices will open early in 1945 in order to get organized for the issue of allowance cheques next July.

Before study of the Allowances Bill was resumed, Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced that Canada has arranged with the United States to assume ful cost of air line installations in Northern Canada. The Dominion will pay $120,000,000 in Canadian funds to the United States for outlays that country made on installations.

In making the announcement, Mr. King also disclosed the ramifications of the hitherto secret north-east staging route.

The House adopted on division a resolution to a Bill providing for the appointment of a full-time salaried chairman for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. Progressive Conservative and C.C.F. members expressed doubt that the apointment would help improve the radio service in Canada.

In regard to family allowances, Mr. Claxton said he believed the Government could carry out its family allowances plan and other social measures in the post-war and still reduce taxation "substantially."

No one could have any doubt that when war costs went down, Canada could reduce taxation and stil carry out its social security plans, he added.

He told John G. Diefenbaker, who questioned where the money was to come from, that he must "know that, if events move as we hope and expect they will, the Governments expenditures on war acount wil be reduced substantially, beginning, we hope, next year anl it will be possible to reduce income tax and other taxation and at the same time pay for social legislation of the Government without any difficulty."

Maj.-Gen. Worthington Wants Vets As Instructors

By FOSTER BARCLAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

CAMP BORDEN MILITARY CAMP, Ont., August 2 — (CP). — There's still a place in the Canadian Army for battle-tried veterans of this war—passing along their experiences and knowledge to recruits training in Canada to reinforce troops in France and Italy.

An appeal to veterans to come forward and help to prepare reinforcements for big battles ahead was made here by Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, General Officer in Command, Camp Borden, during an interview with The Canadian Press. The need for reinforcements with practical knowledge of field conditions now was greater than ever.

Gen. Worthington, commander of a Canadian armored division overseas until he took over his present command last May, stressed the importance of "battle experience" in present-day training.

"There's no need to send reinforcements into battle lacking the knowledge of front-line conditions" he said, tapping a yellow pencil on a desk to emphasize his words. "Thousands of soldiers from Italy have been discharged from the Army. Where are they? I don't know.

"But there's a big job of work for them at training centres. I can use any number of them, utilizing their front-line knowledge in the training of soldiers ticketed as reinforcements for France and Italy."

There was little glamor about a hum-drum job as instructor at a training centre.

"However, they should know better than anyone just how necessary it is for recruits to have a practical knowledge of the front-line conditions," he continued. "They were among those who have complained when soldiers were sent forward as replacements, untried, not knowing what they had to face or expect.

"It is up to them—their duty—to come back into the Army and pass along what they have learned in bitter combat. They know the conditions recruits will have to face."

Close Stores To Aid Harvest

REGINA, August 2 —(CP) —Saskatchewan merchants were asked on Tuesday to co-operate in supplying workers for the harvest this year.

Hon. J. H. Brockelbank, minister of municipal affairs, said stores and places of businesses would be asked to close on certain days and release staffs for harvest work.

If the co-operative method failed, the Government would consider issuing a proclamation making the closing of businesses on certain days compulsory.

Mr. Brockelbank cited an example of where two stores of similar line in a town could decide what days each should close. The staff of the closed store could work in the fields.

About 50 girls will be employed at the start. The factory was secured as the rseult of negotiations between C. P. Now YOU can send a whole box of Wrigley's Gum to Canadians serving Overseas!

$1.00 IS ALL IT COSTS YOU TO SEND 20 PACKAGES TO ANYONE IN THE CANADIAN ARMED FORCES OVERSEAS WE DO THE PACKAGING ..... WE PAY THE POSTAGE

This announcement is of great importance to every Canadian with loved ones in the Armed Forces Overseas. For some time the Canadian Wrigley Company has become increasingly aware that the men and women in our fighting forces overseas get only a small amount of the Wrigley's Gum they want.

During recent months, the demand for chewing gum in the armed forces has been increasing by leaps and bounds. This is due to the fact that men under the terrific strain and tension of battle get a feeling of comfort and relief by chewing on a piece of gum. Chewing helps to steady nerves, keeps the mouth moist—makes the tough going a little easier.

The Canadian Wrigley Company, to solve this problem, will ship all the gum it produces, if necessary, on the following Overseas Plan:

Under this new Wrigley plan you can send a 20-package box of Wrigley's Gum direct to any man or woman in the Canadian Armed Forces Overseas.

Just see your nearest retailer who is supplied with Wrigley Overseas Gum order forms.

Your order will be immediately sent to Wrigley's and they will acknowledge it to you.

Wrigley's are doing this because they feel that, with chewing gum so useful and helpful, Wrigleys' brands should go where they are needed most—to the men and women who are fighting on the battle fronts.

These quality brands of Chewing Gum now go direct to the Armed Forces Overseas

More Happiness For Peterborough

More Peterborough people than ever before are spending their holidays at the nearby lakes this summer, we are told by owners of resorts and cottages. Industrial workers who have a fortnight's vacation are hiring cottages within a few miles of their city homes, for a period of fishing, swimming, boating, sun-bathing and loafing. Many cottages are rented for a month or two months, the men of the house coming into town early in the morning for work.

We think that this is an excellent situation and one which should be encouraged. In discussing the tourist trade in our own beautiful section of Ontario we have perhaps concentrated too intently on the American trade, and have neglected what lies on our own doorstep. To the resort manager, Canadian money is quite as acceptable as American money, and although we are glad to welcome our American visitors there is no good reason why our own people should not make more extensive use of the playgrounds that lie so near.

As we have said many times in these columns, Peterborough lives by industry, and we should see that our city provides those attractions which will bring, and keep, the best kind of industrial workers. The provision of cottages at a reasonable rent, near to the city, and available for fortnightly or monthly tenancy is a boon to the industrial worker and profitable to the resort owner, and we hope that development of this kind will continue.

Further development of our city parks would help to make Peterborough a genuinely happy home for its large industrial population. Reading the Ontario Parks Association Bulletin we are impressed by the work which is being done in the United States and in many cities in Western Ontario to make parks and playgrounds an important part of city life. Supervised playgrounds for children are provided, in which a firm but unobtrusive discipline maintains; parks are places where people who have little garden around their homes can enjoy the beauty and refreshment of open spaces. Here in Peterborough we have seen the Lions' Club establish an excellent playground by the riverside, and we have seen the great success and happiness which has attended that venture. The example should suggest some ideas to the City Council.

Married School Teachers

For many years there has been a prejudice against married schoolteachers which might profitably be discarded now. A married teacher who has a family of her own is in no way inferior to an unmarried one, and may even be a better teacher because of her opportunities to observe children in the most intimate of relationships. Problems which bother the unmarried teacher do not exist for the married one, and in many respects her approach to her work is uninhibited and direct.

In Great Britain a special committee formed for that purpose has published a report on the teaching profession called the McNair Report, which calls for higher qualifications, better pay, and a better place in the community for teachers; it should be of interest in Canada. The London Daily Mirror, commenting upon it, says that "Teachers must be of the right quality and they must be forthcoming in sufficient numbers. Teaching will have to be made an attractive profession, well paid, dignified and of a status second to none". And it continues: "It has always seemed to us a woeful waste of good teaching material to dispense with a woman simply because she has become a wife". This is also something which we might think about.

Two arguments used to be advanced against married teachers: one was that their place was in their homes, and the second was that unmarried teachers needed the jobs. But nowadays we recognize that a woman's place is not necessarily in her home, but wherever she can do the best work, and that we want the best people we can get in the teaching profession and not merely those who need jobs. Competition between married and unmarried teachers should be entirely free and on a basis of merit. The war has killed the idea that a woman's 'place' is anywhere that her abilities are not fully exercised.

Modernizing The Bible

Every now and again we hear of proposals to alter the text of the Bible in some way, either by re-writing or re-translation, and the bookshops carry several Bibles which are embellished with pictures and explanations which are supposed to make the text more easily palatable to modern readers.

We are opposed to such modernizing, which we look upon as nothing more than a foolish craving for contemporaneity in a volume which is vigorously contemporaneous as it stands in the King James version. We are not impressed by people who say that the language of the Bible is out of date; the language of the Bible is the cream of a great period of English prose, and we do not believe that it can be improved upon. If there are people who find the language of the Bible hard to understand, let them educate themselves to understand it, and if they cannot do that there are plenty of clergymen who will help them, in church or out of it.

The whole trouble with aggressively 'modern' things is that they quickly become old-fashioned. The desire to modernize the Bible is not new. Benjamin Franklin suffered from it, and he once wrote to a publisher in these terms:

"It is now more than 170 years since the translation of our common English Bible. The language in that time is much changed and the style, being obsolete, and thence less agreeable, is perhaps one reason why the reading of that excellent book is of late so much neglected. I have therefore thought it would be well to procure a new version, in which, preserving the sense, the turn of phrase and manner of expression should be modern. I do not pretend to have the necessary abilities for such a work myself; I throw out the hint for the consideration of the learned".

Now what sort of modernizing did Franklin want? Here are a few verses of the first chapter of the Book of Job in the King James version, with Franklin's version in italics:

7. And the Lord said unto Satan, whence comest thou? Then Satan answered the Lord, and said, from going to and fro in the earth and walking up and down in it.

And God said to Satan, you have been some time absent; where were you? And Satan answered I have been at my country-seat, and in different places visiting my friends.

8. And the Lord said unto Satan, hast thou considered my servant Job, that there is none like him in the earth, a perfect and an unright man, one that feareth God, and escheweth evil?

And God said, well, what think you of Lord Job? You see he is my best friend, a perfectly honest man, full of respect for me, and avoiding every thing that might offend me.

9. Then Satan answered the Lord, and said, doth Job fear God for naught?

And Satan answered, does your Majesty imagine that his good conduct is the effect of mere personal attachment and affection?

10. Hast thou not made an hedge about his house, and about all that he hath on every side? Thou hast blessed the work of his hands, and his substance is increased in the land.

Have you not protected him, and heaped your benefits upon him, till he is grown enormously rich?

11. But put forth thine hand now, and touch all that he hath, and he will curse thee to thy face.

Try him—only withdraw your favour, turn him out of his places, and withhold his pensions, and you will soon find him in the opposition.

We now see that all Franklin did was to alter great prose to the pursy, flat-footed, bourgeois Business English of the 18th century; by reversed alchemy he turns gold into lead. 'Lord Job', indeed! The Franklins of today would doubtless like to turn this mighty tragedy into a drama of the employer-employee relations between Department Manager Job and Cosmic Powers, Inc. The Bible is more up-to-date than most of us can bear, and it needs no furbishing by literary interior decorators.

What Happened Last Year?

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

FOR the past three years I have published a review of the Encyclopaedia Britannica 'Book of The Year'—a supplement which is published in order to keep the great work of reference up to date. I have not concealed my opinion that these Year Books are vastly inferior to the Britannica itself; the concentration on what is flashy, and on what happened within the limits of the U.S.A. limits the value of these extra volumes very considerably. But for all this the Year Books makes good browsing. Let us browse.

◆ ◆ ◆

THIS is the "Britannica Book of The Year 1944," which means that it tells us what happened in 1943. Alphabetically, the first fact of the past year is that Abd-el-Aziz IV, sultan of Morrocco, died in exile on June 9. Then, under Abrasives, we learn that the United States made three times as many grindstones in 1942 as in 1939 — presumably for keeping their noses to. Jumping over a number of other A's we find that jungle warfare has taught us a few new facts about the Alimentary System, and that American Literature contained a preponderance of books about the war in all its aspects—no news to a book reviewer. Turning for comparison to English literature, we discover that only one or two important books about the war were written in Britain. There is obviously material for comment here, but we have no time to say more than this: the nearer one is to a war the less one seems to want to read about it.

◆ ◆ ◆

A BREEZE comes in my window and ruffles the pages of the book, and I look down to discover that "seaman jackets with handjamming pockets were favourite coats of U.S. girls in 1943"; the seamen were complimented, beyond a doubt. But although the war has helped fashion in this respect it has put a serious crimp in the jewellery trade, and I see that semi-precious stones from South America had to be used by fashionable women instead of the better goods from Burma, Thailand and Indo-China; but the U.S. produced 50,000 ounces of native sapphires, so the jewellers were not completely out of luck. The genetics of commercial yeasts were investigated further than ever before, and proved to a gentleman called Lindegren that they were rich in proteins and vitamins. It was a good year for natural gas, too, though botany suffered a serious loss in Gager, Charles Stuart.

◆ ◆ ◆

RELIGION had a good year, apparently, though the writer of the Year Book article is somewhat dubious about "the emergence of a diffused, popular" type of religious feeling; apparently in the U.S. there were some serious clashes between fundamentalists and more moderate groups in several Protestant churches with what the Year Book discreetly calls "a certain rivalry with respect to the control of funds." Bob Hope's picture appears in the Book, in the article on radio, and it seems that Fibber McGee and Molly were more popular than any other program, while Charlie McCarthy has dropped to fourth place. I am somewhat surprised to find that of the ten top programs I have only heard four; who are the Aldrich Family? Can anyone tell me? There is a picture of penicillin mould in the Book which makes it look like a rumpled blanket; apparently penicillin is quite easy to make, but I see that it is useless to eat it, as the gastric juices destroy it before it can do any good; so there is really no point in making your own.

◆ ◆ ◆

THE pictures in the book are mostly news pictures, and are consequently unflattering to their subjects; there is one on page 511 of King Haakon VII of Norway at a banquet, laughing heartily; the King is a hearty but not a pretty laughter, and it would have been kinder to the head of a friendly exile government to leave it out. The news picture of Mrs. Roosevelt rubbing noses with a Maori is in this volume, too. It was most gracious and kind of Mrs. Roosevelt to bow to a local custom, but it was not gracious or kind of a news photographer to fossilize the gesture in a picture. There are a few posed pictures in the Book, however, and one of them is of Mary Martin on the Broadway success "One Touch of Venus"; she is showing a lot of leg; it is always surprisingly to find such pictures in a volume related to Britannica, but not wholly unpleasing. The theatre, by the way, did much better in London last year than it did in New York; no civilized country can do without a theatre, even in wartime. Canada, so far as I know, is the only civilized country which does; even Iceland supports the drama. Are Canadians naturally undramatic people? I cannot believe such a slander.

◆ ◆ ◆

THE motion picture industry voted Betty Grable first of "the ten top money-making stars of 1943," and the Mormon church had some difficulty with unreconstructed members who would not give up polygamy, an embarrassing aspect of the original faith. Lovers of sweet corn will be interested to hear that the U.S. marketed 264,000,000 ears of it in 1943, a drop of more than a thousand ears from 1942.... The breeze again, and what does it reveal? A picture of King George VI, convulsed with laughter at a British Home Fleet Vaudeville Show. Well, well, I am glad that the Book can show us a few pictures of laughing Allied Kings.... a good omen.

Senate Not So Sleepy

Those who are opposed to the Senate on the grounds that it is a useless fifth wheel on the wagon will have to revise their opinions following discovery by the Red Chamber that the War Service Electors Bill contained a flaw which would have barred from voting at the next federal election several members of the House of Commons and Senate, also a goodly number of the citizens of Waterloo County and many men and women in the service. The way the bill was framed and passed the House, it would have denied the right of voting to any person whose racial origin was that of a country at war.

The mistake was in that section of the bill which contained amendments to the Dominion Elections Act, 1938, designed to bar certain Japanese from exercising the franchise.

As the bill stands now all persons of Japanese origin who had the franchise at the time war was declared in 1939 still retain their franchise rights. Those denied the vote are Japanese residents of British Columbia where voting privileges were taken from them by act of Legislature, and Japanese who were moved from British Columbia to other parts of Canada after Pearl Harbor.

Evidently somebody blundered in drafting the amendments to the Election Act and the not-so-sleepy Senate detected the flaw which escaped the notice of the House. The Senate thus fulfilled one of its purposes by giving legislation a double check that revealed a gross error which would have meant a great injustice to a body of loyal Canadian citizens.—Kitchener Record.

CORNERED

(SATURDAY NIGHT)

MR. HOWE recently described the very general criticism of his new air policy which has been expressed by the newspaper press as a "storm of propaganda" put out by "every Conservative newspaper in the country." We are not a Conservative newspaper, any more than the Winnipeg Free Press, and we have been trying very hard, ever since the Minister's measure for the divorcing of air transport from railway transport was announced, to discover some intelligible principle which would reconcile that policy with our continued belief in the merits of free and responsible business enterprise. And now, at the risk of being damned as a Conservative propagandist, we have to admit that we can find no such intelligible principle. The Minister's attitude seems to us to boil down to this, that he wants some air lines in Canada, but that he does not want them run by railways because they would probably be too well run. The Canadian Pacific Railway is strong, and the owners of private air lines in Canada must be weak.

We do not like the idea at all. The Socialists do like it, because they think it will make for Socialism; but the Socialists are so anxious for Socialism that they are willing to see it sneaked in by any back door that can be found, and to have it presented to them by one of the most individualistic Ministers the country has ever had. (At least Mr. Howe was an individualist before he became a Minister, and will be an individualist again when he is out of the Ministry; he is not interested in any Socialistic concern that he cannot run.) Our own view about Socialism is that if the country makes up its mind that it wants to have it it will have to have it, but we don't want to see it sneaked in by instalments by parties which were elected to keep it out.

Mr. Howe apparently wants the private air lines in Canada to be little local concerns run by returned fliers with capital loaned them by the new government bank—which capital some of them at least would inevitably lose. Our own view is that that is not the kind of air lines that the country will need in 1945 and thereafter. Aviation is not what it was just after the last war. It is now a business requiring large capital resources and large-scale organization; it will not get the patronage of the public on any other terms. There is no danger, as painted so eloquently by Mr. Howe, of the aviation business being as extravagantly overdone as the railway business was at the beginning of this century, because it is a totally different kind of business, requiring relatively little fixed equipment, and the cost of that equipment is not likely to be guaranteed by governments as it was then. The C.P.R. is in the business, and is doing an excellent job in it. We can see no reason why it should be forced to sell a property for which it obviously cannot, in the circumstances, expect to get more than a fraction of its real value. No powerful owner would buy it, for it is Mr. Howe's declared policy that it must not be owned by a powerful owner.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

WAKE UP! PETERBOROUGH

Sir,—While it is some time since we left Peterborough we still think of it as home and miss the friends and natural beauty of the surrounding country. When we were there, and especially since coming to Kelowna, we often wondered why Peterborough has not taken advantage of its natural resources to create a real playgorund that would not only react to the health and enjoyment of its own citizens but would bring to her a favourable widespread publicity much greater than that even now enjoyed. I think I can best illustrate what I mean by telling you that Kelowna, a town of less than 8,000 people, has done.

Kelowna is situated on Okanagan Lake and has one of the most beautiful parks in Canada. This park, consisting of several acres on the lake, not only has beautiful lawns, gardens and driveways, but an athletic field for baseball and football, tennis courts, bowling greens, children's playground with swings, teeters, etc., and best of all the aquatic club which has a nominal family membership fee of $4.00 per season. It comprises a large grandstand and a big clubhouse with spacious verandahs, restaurant, dance floor, dressing rooms not only divided by sex but by age groups, three levels of diving boards, rafts, boathouse and boats for rent. Lifeguards and free swimming instructors are provided. Every year a regatta is held which attracts internationally famous swimming and diving stars from all over the continent. This year's program includes well-known bands, a commando raid and of course the inevitable beauty contest with its float and 75 picked entrants. Even my daughter, Joyce, is in this, chosen, I suppose, because of the scarcity of blondes!

If a town the size of Kelowna can have all this how can a great city like Peterborough allow its facilities to lie dormant. What couldn't be done with Little Lake or even places along the river! Peterborough needs and could use such a playground.

There is little of special interest concerning either my family or myself. As director of the Okanagan Valley Health Unit I have an area embracing about 30,000 people to care for with a staff of 4 nurses, 2 sanitary officers and a supervisor of nurses. The people are tremendously interested in public health and co-operate with every effort made to help them. This is especially marked in our great immunization program, both for pre-school and school children. In one morning a vaccinated 158 against smallpox. Last year we had but 4 cases of scarlet fever, all in non-immunized children. We haven't had a case of whooping cough in seven months. This year I am asking for an increase of $1,500.00 for our general budget and so far I haven't heard a squawk. The increase must be passed by 3 municipal councils and about 13 school boards and not one will complain that it is excessive. I still have my fingers crossed but so far every meeting of our health board and every council meeting I have attended have been models of goodwill and encouragement.

I like the Health Unit system because by supervision of a large area the health in each municipality is better protected. To the north of us there has been a typhoid epidemic and to the south a scarlet fever epidemic and our area, some 350 square miles, moves serenely on its way while these other areas clamor for health supervision. As workers becomes available the work will be enlarged.—Sincerely,

D. B. AVISON.

Name-Giver To The Bronx

In a United States hospital somewhere in England last week Queen Elizabeth was a visitor. She talked to a patient from the Bronx. With her usual intelligent curiosity, she asked the origin of the name. It is likely enough that it stayed in her memory from her travels in this country. It is a word of genius, of strange and haunting sound, what the old warlocks would have called a word of power. The questioned paratroop lieutenant didn't know the answer. Nobody seemed to know. Lieutenant General Lee, the Queen's escort, offered to give five pounds for a correct answer. Captain Toumey won the prize with this statement:

The borough was named after the Dutch settlers, Jonas and Peter Bronck, father and son, who lived in that area "a long time ago."

Peter Bronck we have never heard of. Jonas Bronck, a Danish Lutheran who had had business transactions in Amsterdam, came to New Amsterdam in 1639 with Gochem Pieter Kuyter in an armed vessel chartered by the latter for the voyage. In July of that year Bronck got an Indian deed for 250 morgen of land between the Harlem and the Aquahung, afterward known as Bronck's River. A morgen was 2.1 acres. He built a stone mansion, barn and tobacco house. His house was called Emaus. He died in 1643. The inventory of his effects shows that he had forty books, a large library for the time, silver cups, spoons, tankards, bowls, and so on, showing him, as "The Iconography of Manhattan Island" says, as "a man of taste and education." His house "has been located at or near the site of the depot of the Harlem River Branch of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railro[ad] Company, near the corner of Southern Boul[e]vard and Willis Avenue."

He leased land to Pieter Andriessen. Did so[me] confused recollection of this Pieter beget Jon[as] Bronck's alleged son? We leave this to [the] antiquarians of Bronxia to decide. Meanwh[ile] it will be a happiness for all of us to know [that] the entente between the British Lion and t[he] Bronx Lyons is more cordial than ever.—N[ew] York Times.

CANADA'S GREAT NEED

The great majority of our people have in them the stuff that makes good citizens. It only needs to be advised and directed. Some form of education is needed that can drive home a sense of responsibility for the duties of citizenship—not only the great duties, like defending one's country in time of danger, but the smaller duties, like voting for the right man at election time.—Vancouver Province.

A Bible Message

We were starting to eat breakfast and pop said, I feel bersting with energy and good will this morning, just the way a man ought to feel every day in the week when he bounds singing out of bed. By gollies I wouldn't be surprised if I limited myself to one cup of coffee this morning, just as an indication of my healthy self sufficiency, he said.

The proof of the pudding will have to be seen to be believed, when it comes to you and coffee, ma said, and pop said, Maybe I wont take any coffee at all. What do I need with outside stimulants when I feel like one great big glowing stimulant all by myself? My condition ought to be written up in one of the medical journals, I'm an absolutely perfect case, he said.

You're wonderful, ma said. Oh, this is the morning Glenn C. Workman starts his new series of talks on the techneek of bidding, I ought to be just in time for him, she said.

And she quick turned on the breakfast room radio and Glenn C. Workman was just starting to talk, saying, Attention, army of bridge fans, I'm going to give you some very useful pointers on the takeout double. But first a few words for the Surefire Health and Accident Insurance Company. How do you feel? Just radiant with health and energy? Good, I'm glad to hear it, but don't let it blind you to the fact that germs work fast and tomorrow you may be down with a high fever that will require the attentions of a doctor and perhaps even hospital care, he said.

Shut that croaker off, pop said, and ma said, Now William, he'll turn to bridge in a minute.

And I've already turned to coffee, horse blanket to blazes, pop said.

And he quick drank 2 cups while Glenn C. Workman was talking about bridge and then hurry up left for his office before Glenn C. Workman had time to get back on the subject of sudden bad health.

Ottawa Blamed For Strikes By Duplessis

QUEBEC, August 2 — (CP). — There now are more strikes in Quebec than in any other Province, "people are suffering here more than in any other place, people are poorer here than elsewhere in Canada, and there are more taxes here than in any other Province of the Dominion because Ottawa has become the capital of the Province of Quebec, all because bureaucrats in the Federal Capital have sworn to annihilate our nationality," Maurice Duplessis, Leader of the Union Nationale, said last night at an election campaign meeting.

"The regime of Premier Godbout has done more harm to the French-Canadian nationality than even the Taschereau regime, because Mr. Godbout has abandoned our provincial rights. Premier Taschereau was more respectful of our rights than Mr. Godbout, and sometimes Mr. Taschereau stood for Provincial autonomy. Gut Mr. Godbout has sold Quebec to a gang of bureaucrats in Ottawa.

"When Labor Minister Hamel says that we are masters at home, he does not tell the truth because he cannot do anything to better relations between capital and labor and to prevent strikes. He cannot do anything because the Godbout regime is controlled by Ottawa. And those numerous strikes we have got now are caused by stupid regulations coming out of Ottawa."

Mr. Duplessis said that "a Provincial Government must be independent from any Federal political party" and that "when the Union Nationale will come into power, Ottawa bureaucrats wil no more be able to exploit us."

He reviewed his Administration when he was Premier from 1936 to 1939, and said that "like in 1936 there is now a wave that will sweep the regime." He added that "like in 1936 many Liberals are coming to us." The Union Nationale Leader said that he spent millions to help workers "while the present regime is spending billions of dollars to send our sons to death."

As somebody had asked him "to speak of Guenette," Mr. Duplessis said "I have not the power to resuscitate him, but you have the power to punish those who caused his death."

(Reference was to Georges Guenette of nearby St. Lambert de Levis who was shot recently by Royal Canadian Mounted Police while fleeing from his father's home. Guenette was saught for an attack on an R.C.M.P. constable.)

Mr. Duplessis said "the Bloc Populaire is the lining of the old Liberal regime and is now working for it in trying to split the opposition votes." He added that "when returned into power" he would abolish the Provincial sales tax.

Ralston Says Punches Were Pulled

OTTAWA, August 2 — (CP) — Defence Minister Ralston said yesterday in Commons there was no intention that texts of English and French language recruiting advertisements should be identical.

An English advertisement with the caption "Have I the Guts?" had been paralleled with a French advertisement which carried the words, "If you have blood in your veins you will not let us down."

Col. Ralston spoke in reply to references to the English advertisement made in the Commons yesterday by D. G. Ross (PC-Toronto St. Paul's) and Gordon Graydon Progressive Conservative House Leader.

The Minister said the advertisements were prepared by two subcommittees composed of advertising and publicity experts. One dealt with the English language campaign and the other with the French. It was the intention the committees should prepare copy appropriate to the areas in which it was to be used. Three of the series of eight French advertisements were translations from the English advertisements, but there were no translations from French to English.

Col. Ralston said it had been inferred that "punches were pulled" in some parts of the country.

"No instructions were given direct or indirect, by implication or otherwise to pull punches in connection with French-speaking Canada any more than English-speaking Canada," he said.

J. G. Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) asked whether the advertisements were approved by the minister and whether the one with the words "Have you the Guts?" as considered appropriate to some particular area.

Col. Ralston said with "throwing down' the committee he felt that if he had seen that particular advertisement he would not have approved it. He had been subject to criticism for going into details of his administration and in this instance he had felt he could leave approval of the advertisements to the committee for whose action he took full responsibility.

Mr. Graydon said the one particular advertisement had singled our English-speaking Canadians and should be entirely repudiated by the Government.

Col. Ralston said the French advertisement in similar tone had the same general meaning and he would not repudiate either of them.

Yanks Admire Russian Fliers

By JACK SULLIVAN,
Canaian Press Staff Writer.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, August 2 —(CP) — The tenacity and fighting spirit of the Russian armies are reflected in Soviet fliers who ferry lend-lease U. S.-built fighters and bombers to the Soviet from land field base of the Air Transport Command, U. S. Army here.

These are men who have beaten the German in sky battles. Many are decorated heroes and are here on furlough from the fighting fronts.

Lieut. William T. Sledge, Kile, Tex., a special services ofcer, sums up his impressions of the Russian fliers this way: "I've found they are all very fine sports and gentlemen. They'll smile off a loss because they know they've put up a good fight. They never give up; they fight to the last ditch."

Chinese Woman Ordained Anglican Priest

LONDON, Aug. 2—(CP). — The Church Times, Church of England periodical, said today the Bishop of Hong Kong "purports to have ordained a woman to the priesthood" and denounced the unprecedented action as "outrageous" and "aggression."

In a two-column editorial, the paper said the woman ordained, a Chinese, was Deaconess Lei Tim Oi of Kowloon and that the ceremony was performed last January. It termed this "a flagrant breach of the working principles of the church."

The Church Times said the bishop, listed in Who's Who as Rt. Rev. Ronald Owen Hall, "preferred to play a lone hand not like a civilized leader who is himself subject to constitutional authority, but like a wild man of the woods." The matter "will be raised at the next Lambeth Conference," said the paper, which continued:

"The question whether women now or in the future are capable of receiving holy orders represents a complicated theological problem to which no easy answer can be given. That makes it all the more outrageous in the Bishop of Hong Kong to have calmly jumped the claim.

"What must be done to disown the bishop's aggression? Without doubt the matter will be brought up for consideration at the next Lambeth Conference. . . ."

The paper said that "admittedly the situation which confronted him (the bishop) was a difficult one," and explained that the deaconess worked with an isolated Christian community overrun by the Japanese and "thus became faced with the prospect of being deprived of holy communion except at long and irregular intervals" since there was no resident priest.

The great mass of churchmen throughout the world, the paper added, will, however, "look for some repudiation of the attempted fait accompli to proceed without delay from individual bishops in China."

Bishop White Disapproves

Reported ordination of a Chinese woman in the Church of England priesthood by the Bishop of Hong Kong brought the comment here last night from Rt. Rev. Bishop W. C. White that such action was "unnecessary" and should not have been taken without approval of the whole church.

Bishop White is professor and director of the School of Chinese Studies at the University of Toronto and keeper of the East Asiatic collection at the Royal Ontario Museum. He was Bishop of Honan for 25 years and was well acquainted with the Bishop of Hong Kong, Rt. Rev. Ronald Owen Hall, whose purported action is severely criticized in the Church Times, Church of England periodical, in England.

"I knew he had this step in mind for some years," said Bishop White. "He had planned to give the young woman special training. I can assure you that, unless something radical has turned up, it has never been brought before the Anglican Church in China. If it was done it was his own doing."

Bishop White pointed out the serious shortage of clergy in China, and said that, with two or three of the bishops interned by the Japanese, the church had had to carry on as best it could. Bishop Hall had desires to use the services of women where suitable, he felt, but believed ordination of Deaconess Lei Tim Oi of Kowloon was not necessary and should not have been done without the whole church passing on it.

The Bishop of Hong Kong, whose signature is "Ronald Hong Kong," is the only colonial bishop in China and his metropolitan is the Archbishop of Canterbury. Other bishops in China are missionary bishops, Bishop White explained.

Sergeant Gordon Wood Sends News Of Boys In Front Line

The many friends of Sergeant Gordon Wood of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Regiment will be interested in a chatty letter received here several days ago.

The letter dated July 20: "Received your letter yesterday, written on July 12, which is good service. I think they must be flying some of our mail over from home...We are doing quite well here. As you will see by the news we have taken Caen, and are pushing forward from there. It is quite a shambles, (Caen, I mean)...Had a lot of bombing and shell fire on it before our troops went in. The towns between us and the beach are looking a lot better now; getting things cleaned up and clearing away the rubble. Some of them, of course, are not towns or villages any more. They are just heaps of ruins. It's too bad, but that's the way it goes.

"Farmers in the areas back of our lines are getting a bit of work done, and some of the are starting to harvest what is left of their crops.

Some Casualties

"The news is good on all fronts here, and the Americans are doing all right. I hope it won't take too long to finish things, but, then, you never know. Lorne Galley is just about ready to come back from England, I believe. He haw two operations on his arm before they got the shrapnel out, I understand. Major (Archie) Hamilton was wounded in the last push, although not seriously. I believe he got a piece of shrapnel in the foot or ankle, but I don't know whether it is serious enough to keep him out altogether or not. Neill Gemmell is still O.K., and is now second in command of our unit.

Some others you will also be interested in. Bill Masters finally got back to the unit as an officer in the carrier platoon, and was with us only about four days. He was hit in the hand with shrapnel, and may lose a finger. Gord Clarke was wounded in the first day or two we landed, went back to England, and then arrived back here two days ago. Yesterday he was wounded again, a bullet or piece of shrapnel in the hip; so it isn't too bad, even though it is the second time for him.

Like Chaplain

I haven't had any word from Captain Brain. I believe his wound was in the fleshy party of the leg, below the knee, so it shouldn't be too bad. I'd like to see him come back. Shouldn't wish that on anybody, but he was doing a grand job, and the men in this unit have a lot of respect for him.

And that is about all this time. We are eating as well as can be expected, and although we could do with a bit more variety, it is really not to bad."

Sergeant Wood closes with the jocular comment that all the boys agree that when they get home anything resembling corned beef or stew should be just grounds for divorce, at least for two or three months.

Watson Triumphs Over Two Husky Maulers

To the entire satisfaction of the biggest crowd in months Whipper Billy Watson triumphed over the two mauling monarchs of mayhem, Al Bunny Dunlop and Gentleman Jack Washburn, in the Tunney wrestling show at the Brock Street Arena, Tuesday night, but the British Empire champion in pulling off his iron man stunt got help from an entirely unexpected source.

His victory over Washburn, who was elected by the toss of a coin to face him first, was made possible because Bunny Dunlop tried to sneak a punch in on Watson, missed his mark and landed a right swing on Gentleman's Jack's head. Washburn dropped as if he had been pole-axed and the Whipper lost no time in dropping on him for the fall.

What the victim of this mishap had to say to Dunlop afterward forfeited any claim he might have had to the title he carries around.

No gentleman would have even thought of half the things he told his partner. In fact, Washburn was so peeved over the affair he retired to the dressing-room and Dunlop was a lone wolf for the rest of the battle.

Give the Toronto strong man credit, he fought it out until the last ditch and took a merry ride from the champ before he finally succumbed to Watson's unconscious commando hold after more than 30 minutes strenuous going.

It was a tough night on the Tunney stable. Dr. Len Hall injured his right arm in the first bout, although he stayed in their and beat Joe Christie and the popular Toar Morgan tore a muscle in his side in his battle with Earl McCready and rolled out of the ring where he was counted out. He had to be carried out of the arena an da doctor called but he recovered in time to leave for Lindsay where he is spending a holiday.

The main bout provided plenty of excitement. The two bad men got a real bronx cheer from the crowd when they marched into the arena and their every move afterwad was booed.

Washburn Beaten First.

The toss sent Gentleman Jack Washburn in against Watson first and the veteran who knows all the ropes was making a battle of it until he ran foul of Dunlop. Washburn slammed a couple of chin locks on the champ that had the Whip in trouble and then managed to survive a vigorous application of the hold from which the champ gets his nickname. Finally he slipped a full Nelson on Watson and paraded him over to his corner.

That was where he made his mistake. Dunlop, sitting outside the ring jumped to his feet and swung a vicious right at Watson. The Whip, however, saw the blow coming and ducked just in time to let Washburn get the full benefit. Down went Gentleman Jack and Watson pounced on him for the fall after seven minutes wrestling.

That left it up to Dunlop and he jumped into the ring to carry on the battle. He got a rough passage from the Whip but in between the attack the Toronto strong man managed to work in a lot of his favorite skulruggery. On one occasion after Watson had torpedoed him with a couple of flying tackles and then tossed him bodily through the ropes, Dunlop apparently picked up something from the floor before climbing back into the ring.

Crowd In Uproar.

The crowd was in an uproar, demanding that Dunlop should be searched. The bout was held up until Referee Maxwell looked for the secret weapon but could not locate it. However, after the battle resumed Bunny went to work on Watson's eyes and had him in trouble for a while. The Whip soon recovered and next moment Dunlop found himself hung up by the heels from the top strands of the ring ropes and he was suspended there for a couple of minutes with Watson blocking all Referee Maxwell's attempts to release the strong man. The Whip even floored the offical with a flying mare when he tried to interfere.

Bunny was finally extricated from the ropes and tried to sink Watson with a couple of flying tackles and then cut loose with a mule kick that found Watson on the other side of the ring. Dunlop landed heavily on the mat—and looked shocked. He was more so a moment later for Watson tossed him a couple of times with flying mares, softened him up with elbow smashes and then applied the commando and Dunlop was through. The bout went 32 minutes.

A New Bad Man.

The card served to introduce a new bad man in the person of Dr. Len Hall, 245-pound Texan veteran of the mat game who has fought all over the globe and knows wrestling from all angles. Big and yet fast for his poundage, rough, unscrupulous and tough ,the Doc hadn't gone thirty seconds in the preliminary bout with Joe Christie before the crowd was calling for his scalp. He is that type of wrestler. Christie tired hard but he was up against a pastmaster in the art of handing out the rough stuff and took a merry ride from the Texan who pulled his hair, half strangled him, tossed him through the ropes, stepped on his hands, kicked and punched until Christie must have thought he was fighting two or three birds.

Finally Hall polished off the tall Christie with a smooth application of the pile-driver as used by Champion Bill Longson. Incidentally, the Doc claims the world champ learned that hold from him. We'll let Longson and him decide tha argument between themselves.

The accident to Toar Morgan marred what started out like one of the most interesting battles of the season. The former marine and Earl McCready were treating the customers to a fast and clever exhibition of clean cut wrestling with both battlers using the flying tackle in spectacular fashion when Morgan

SPORTS - Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

The softball program for the balance of this week is on the light side. Efforts were being made today to arrange an exhibition game between Westclox Seniors and Johnson Motors for this evening. Tomorrow night Quakers and Westclox Seconds who played last night will be back for another league game that should provide plenty of entertainment. Then for Friday night a novelty exhibition game has been arranged between the Westclox seniors and the Westclox men's team of the Mercantile League. The battery of the men's aggregation will play with the girls while Joyce Withers and Isobel Bullock will be the battery for the men. This switching of battering should even things up and make possible a very entertaining game between the two outfits. Naturally this battle is the talk of the Westclox plant these days and the boys will be in for some real ribbing if the girls should succeed in coming home in front. At all events the unusual contest should provide a real entertainment for the fans and there will likely be a flock of them out Friday night to watch this somewhat unusual sort of a ball game.

There should be nothing surprising in the fact that Peterborough boys in the armed services should be writing home from faraway fields, Louie Vitarelli from Normandy, Red Eason from the Pacific Coast where he is serving with the R.C.N.V.R. etc., to say how much they are interested in the new arena project and expressing hope that the drive will go through triumphantly. After all hockey is an important a part of that Canadian way of life for which the boys are fighting and they are all of them hoping to return to communities in which all the facilities they prize so much have not only been retained but improved. All the Peterborough service men who are interested in sport, and that description would fit most of them, would be delighted to feel that when the grim task to which they have dedicated themselves is over and they get back to Peterborough they would be greeted by a modern sports arena and hockey centre. They like to picture the city they have left and would not care to have too many changes but the addition of an arena would be one improvement that would have the hearty support of Peterborough sailors, soldiers and airmen everywhere.

Always A Fighter

The announcement that Major Connie Smythe, manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs, is in a serious condition as the result of wounds sustained in Normandy where he was commanding a Canadian battery will bring regret to many Peterborough fans and some of the older players. They will recall the fact that Connie Smythe was once an ally and later an enemy of Peterborough hockey teams. Twenty years ago when the Petes got into the finals with Niagara Falls Smythe was called in to coach and handle the team and the series ended up in defeat for the local aggregation. It was not the fault of the Toronto expert but some of those connected with hockey here said things to him after the final game that he did not like and after that he took a supreme delight in beating Peterborough teams. He did that effectively for several seasons, first with Varsity in the Allan Cup playdowns and then with Varsity Grads the following year in the O.H.A. race. Old-timers will remember one amusing episode at the Varsity Arena in a Saturday afternoon game in which Connie figured. A fistic combat had started out on the ice between Hugh Plaxton, now the skipper of H.M.C.S. Cataraqui and Biffer Ranger of the Petes and all the bench occupants on both sides rushed out. Among them of course was Connie Smythe. He was wearing a derby hat and the late Frankie Collins, playing for Peterborough that day, grabbed the headpiece and crammed it down over Smythe's ears. It was on so tight that the irate Toronto pilot could not release himself until the fight was over.

* * * * * *

He was always a tough fighter and as we have said he got a kick out of beating Peterborough and rubbing it in with characteristic Smythe sarcasm but down this way there was always a recognition of the fact that the Toronto leader knew his stuff and knew how to keep a fighting spirit in the teams he handled. The following tribute by Billy Westwick, sports commentator of the Ottawa Journal, will therefore be echoed here: "Major Connie Smythe, who fumed over hockey games and later did the same because he and his battery weren't in action soon enough, is back in England seriously wounded. His stay in France was a short one, but it is typical of the former Toronto Leaf boss that he would find action quickly. When a total of absence of action ever threatens Connie has a way of developing some. Hockey hasn't seen any more fighting type of manager. And wars and wounds aren't new to him. He carries numerous wounds and scars on legs and thighs, mementos of an air battle in the First War, but they didn't deter him from hopping back into the thick of this one. Connie has been a firebrand, but even those who failed to see eye to eye with him never ceased to admire his aggressive, colorful qualities and, above all, an unlimited amount of courage."

It Couldn't Be

In publishing this entertaining paragraph from Doug Vaughan's column in the Windsor Star we dedicate it to Bob Batley, Harold Dormer, Pat Calladine, Herb Payne, Shorty barrett and company: "Of course we don't believe it, but they tell us it actually happened during the course of the party that the Windsor Umpires Association tossed for the players of both teams Friday evening following the Overseas Smokes Fund game played at Wigle Park between Bill Rogell's All-Stars of Detroit and the old Walkerville Chicks. Since the Umpires were operating on a limited budget, they wanted to keep the party destricted to invited guests. With this object in view they had a man on the door to see there were no gate-crashers. During the courset of the evening two slightly spifflicated gentlemen toddled up to the door. The guardian of the gate asked them if they had their admission tickets. "No," said one of the fellows, "we're friends of Umpire Art Ray." The gateman looked them over and then said: "You mean you're both friends of Ray?" "That's just what I mean," said the spokesman for the pair. "In fact we're really buddies." The gateman snorted in disgust. "Look, chums," he said, "I know that's a darn lie because there isn't an umpire in this city who has as many as two friends."

The St. Louis Browns, doing their best to ensure an All-St. Louis world series next October have opened out their widest margin of the season in the American loop. Last night the Brownies knocked off the hapless Washington Senators 11 to 6 and today they are 5½ games in front of the field. The second-place Boston Red Sox in spite of the fact that they called on Tex Hughson failed to keep pace with the leaders and were beaten 8 to 4 by the Cleveland Indians. Hughson was aiming a this 17th victory of the campaign but had to take his fifth defeat instead. Best game of the day in the American loop was the Athletics 2 to 1 win over the Chicago White Sox in twelve innings. Chicago had scored a run in the ninth to make extra innings necessary but the A's pushed over a counter in the first of the 12th and was good enough to win for them. In the National loop Mort Cooper pulled off his 14th triumph of the season as the Cards defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers 14 to 3, with the champs hanging out 17 hits. Cincinnati Reds scored once in the ninth to beat the New York Giants 5 to 4. Frank McCormick had a three-run homer in the opening frame.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 —(AP) — Back in 1937 Roy Cullenbine, current Cleveland outfielder, was doing a pretty good job at bat and afield for Toledo's Mudhens in the American Association—and appeared headed for the big time.

One day fun-loving Fred Haney, Mudhen manager, called Cullenbine aside just before the game and whispered:

"Do your best out there to-day, Roy. Couple of scouts are in the stands and want to talk to you after the game."

Roy had a "3 for 4" day, made a couple of circus catches, and felt just a bit chesty as Haney led him to a box behind the Mudhen dugout.

"Roy," Haney said, "Here are the scouts who wanted to meet you?"

And there, faces beaming, were two boy scouts— in full uniform — looking worshipfully at their fuming flustered favorite.

Browns Boast Good Lead Win 11 of 16

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

St. Louis boasted a 5½-game lead in the American League today after brushing off eastern opposition in 11 of 16 starts to pace the western clubs to a decisive triumph in the fourth intersectional series of the season.

While the Browns operated on home soil, the traveling Cardinals wound up their second tour of the Atlantic seaboard with a fancy 14-of-17 win record as all western Nationals broke .500 or better.

Sig Jakucki hurled the Brownies to an 11-6 nod over the Nats last night with Vern Stephens' four hits helping to send Dutch Leonard down for the eighth time.

Boston fell before Cleveland, 8-4, but kept second place when the Yankees lost to Detroit by the same score. Tex Hughson's three-game win streak was snapped by Cleveland's Ray Poat in a relief role and Ernie Bonham's six-game string was broken by Detroit's Paul (Dizzy Trout, who won his 16th. Philadelphia nosed out Chicago, 2-1 in 12 innings.

Dodgers Beaten

The Cardinals and Mort Cooper avenged Monday's beating by Brooklyn when they walloped the Dodgers, 14-3. Cooper, belted out in three rounds the night before, coasted to win No. 14 behind a 17-hit barrage off Whit Wyatt and four successors.

Cincinnati pulled out a 5-4 game from New York on Ed Heusser's fine relief pitching and hitting. He singled in the ninth and scored the winning run to beat Harry Feldman. Frank McCormick drove in four of Cincy's runs.

Pittsburgh held a 12-8 lead on Boston when their game was called at the end of the eighth by agreement. It went as a "suspended" game to be completed Sept. 25. Babe Dahlgren drove in six runs with four hits including a homer, and Dutch Neiman of Boston hit for the circuit twice. A Chicago-Philadelphia double-header was postponed because of bus and trolley strike in Philadelphia.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

Galt and Woodstock will have farm clubs in the Ontario Hockey Association next winter for the Detroit Red Wings, it was announced last night at Galt by Allan Murray, coach of the local Junior A club last season, in revealing Scouts Carson Cooper and Fred Cox had garnered a flock of puck-chasers, too young for the military draft, for the Detroit N.H.L. club, Indianapolis, and the two Ontario teams. Cox will operate the Junior B team in Woodstock, it was stated. Murray said his team will bear the name of Galt Red Wings, but declined to identify the players who had signed contracts.

Leslie Combs of On, Ky., paid 30,000, highest price of yesterday's annual Lexington yearling sales, for a bay colt by War Admiral-Alyearn, a grandson of Man o' War, which had been consigned by J. B. Hurst of Lexington. William Helis of New Orleans bid in a colt by Menow-Donna Jo for $13,000.

All but Kirkwood have won the Canadian open at least once.

The Hamilton, Ont., Jockey Club announced last night 490 thoroughbreds were stabled at the track in readiness for the opening of the second summer meeting on Saturday. Harry Giddings' Ten to Ace is expected to be nominated for the $1,200 Civic Holiday Handicap.

Quakers Trim Westclox Second Team By 9-1 Score

A home run with the bases loaded in the seventh inning, gave Quaker Oats a surprise win in a Ladies' Softball League game Tuesday evening at Ashburnham Bowl as they wrapped up the game with an 8-run edge over Westclox Seconds, winning by a 9 to 1 count. All the winners' scoring was done in the last three frames.

Quakers' pitcher, Gertie Masters, slashed out with a hot one into deep centre field in the seventh, and before the ball was brought back four runs had crossed in quick order, with Betty Arnold, Phyllis Thackeray and June McGregor scoring ahead of the batter. Previous to this frame, Westclox had held a 1 to 0 lead, gained for them in the fifth, when Verla Ferguson made a circus slide to the plate on a hit into centre by Marjorie Miles.

The seventh inning was Quakers' most successful and before the homer made an appearance they had tied the game 1 to 1 when Marie Williams scored on a hit into centre by Phyllis Thackeray.

The Porridge team went on to score twice more in the eighth inning. Velma Crane was safe on an error and Marie Williams sizzled a fast one into deep centre, where a fumble of the fly allowed Miss Williams three bases and scored Miss Crane. Gladys Brown was out at first base, Betty Arnold walked, and Miss Williams scored on a single into centre by Phyllis Thackeray.

With the 8-run lead firm in their hands, the Quaker girls came back with a two-run surge in the ninth. Carlotta Laing was safe on a fumble of her infield fly, Velma Crane whizzed a single past third base, and Marie Williams was out at first, but Miss Laing scored on that play. Gladys Brown singled to left, scoring Miss Crane.

Gertie Masters pitched for the Quakers, allowing 11 hits and walking none. With the generally light hitting, the outfielders didn't have much chance to make spectacular plays, and the attention of the crowd was directed at the infield, in which department Miss Masters was backed up admirably.

On the hill for the Clockmakers, Alice McIvor walked 3 and struck out two.

A large number of players popped out, 11 of the Quakers and 16 of the Westclockers going out via the fly route.

Carlotta Laing, on the short-stop assignment for Quakers, handled five chances.

Newark Moves Up to Second Place

By The Associated Press

A veteran and a youngster pitched the Newark Bears into second place in the International League last night.

Seasoned Mel Queen and 17-year-old Don Johnson hurled two shutouts against Toronto, 1-0 and 4-0. Young Johnson threw a five hitter in the opener, striking out six for his second win against no defeats. Queen outpitched Luther Knerr in the nightcap. He struck out eight and ran his shutout pitching through 21 consecutive innings. He was aided by Danny Reynolds' double and two singles.

The pace-setting Baltimore Orioles three run rally in the last of the seventh wasn't enough in the first game, which they lost 9-8 to the Rochester Red Wings. The Birds' ace, Red Embree, came back in the sceond game, however, and shut the Wings out with three hits, 9-0.

After being shut out with five hits, 3-0, in the first game by Jersey City, the Montreal Royals broke through on 12 hits and 13 walks to win the second, 13-4. Crip Polli whitewashed Montreal in the opener, notching his second win. Johnny Gabbard came back for the Royals in the nightcap.

At Syracuse the Buffalo Bisons and the Chiefs split their third doubleheader. The Chiefs took the first, 4-3 and lost the second, 3-1. Chu-Cho Ramos broke up a 3-3 tie in the opener when he homered in the last of the seventh. Walter Wilson was too much for the Chiefs in the afterpiece, scattering six hits as he accounted for his 12th win.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

TORONTO, August 2 — (CP). — It's only August, but the voice of the hockey turtle is beginning to resound throughout the land. Signs of activity in the ice game crop up here and there, and Ken (Vancouver Province) McConnell relays some gossip straight from the grapevine.

Ken says the National Hockey League is all set to do business this year, and has received the blessing of Ottawa authorities, but that it may have to string along without its colorful managing director, Red Dutton. Red apparently is a busy man now with his construction company working full blast, and may find it hard to handle his chores in hockey's big time.

Things will be duller without Red, if the report is true. Chances are that as soon as the teams hit the trail to the training camps, Red will find time to get back into harness.

About face:

The Army entry in the Vancouver senior lacrosse loop is back in the swim again after a brief period spent in the cold of official disfavor. The soldiers were barred from play recently by military officials in Vancouver hewing strictly to the Ottawa sports edict, but now the ruling apparently has been reversed. Army has a strong team and is expected to give the current champs New Westminster Salmonbellies, a stiff run—always providing Ottawa doesn't hand down another unfavorable ruling.

Odd ends:

Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara says E. M. Orlick, indefatigable researcher into things sporting, is convinced lacrosse was played in Montreal 400 years ago. There's a chance for a Hall of Fame discussion.....Fritz Hanson, Winnipeg Blue Bombers' starry blond football twinkletoes, is being mentioned as sports officer material for M.D. No. 10 in Winnipeg....Two of hockeydom's all-time notables, Tiny Thompson and brother Paul, got together for a chat when Tiny came home on furlough from the R.C.A.F. Tiny was one of the game's best goalies with Boston Bruins, and Paul rose to left wing stardom with the Chicago Black Hawks, and now manages them.

Jap Prisoner Writes Home

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 2 (ENS) —After a period of two years during which time no word had been sent, Joel McArthur, merchant of Campbellford received, the following letter from his son, Fred, who with other Campbellford men was taken prisoner by the Japanese when Hong Kong fell on December 25, 1941:

"Dear Dad and Family:

Just a line to let you know that I am well and in good health. Rich. Grieves and I are working every day now. We will soon be having snow here. I wish I had my skates. I would like to use them. I have made a lot of friends with some Americans. I received your letter and hope to hear from you again soon. I got a snap of Joel. He certainly is a big boy now. Don't forget to save a turkey until I get back. Give my love to Joan and Joe. Look after yourself. Good luck. Hoping to see you soon."

This letter was not written in long hand but printed with pen and ink and had Japanese characters down each side of the page. It was not dated and the address is simply, Tokio, No. 5B Camp.

SERVES IN NEWFOUNDLAND —Lieut. (Engineer) Otto W. Laderach, R.C.N.V.R., of Peterborough, is believed to be the only Swiss officer in the Royal Canadian Navy. At present serving in Newfoundland, he is doing an important job in the installation of mechanical equipment used in training warship crews. Laderach, after graduating in Europe as a mechanical engineer, developed a wanderlust and went to Canada. He harvested grain crops on the prairies and was a cowboy on a ranch in southern Alberta before settling in Ontario. While in Peterborough as a draughtsman at the C.G.E. he was well known for his skiing. (R.C.N. Photo)

Capt. A. Turnbull Rotary Speaker

CAMPBELLFORD, August 2 —(ENS) — Captain Alex Turnbull of the Salvation Army, Toronto, was the guest speaker at the Rotary Club Monday. He gave a detailed description of the work to which he and Mrs. Turnbull were called.

Introduced by President Bert Taylor who expressed the pleasure of the members in renewing this acquaintance with "Alex" Capt. Turnbull who is in charge of the district south of Bloor street to King and West from the Don to Jarvis street in Toronto, stated that his work was much heavier than in Campbellford.

He said that one of the chief difficulties met with was the dispensing of relief. In his district, even in these good times the army dispenses about $50 a month to the needy ones and the difficulty is to distinguish between the genuinely destitute ones and those trying to put something over.

For the past three years, the Army has supervised a wartime nursery, feeding forty children a day at the hall, five days a week while their mothers were busy at war work. His branch sent out 200 Christmas parcels to the poor and he told of the camp where 150 children were sent every ten days during the summer to Jacksons Point on Lake Simcoe.

The speaker said that in his district the chief problems were housing the people and drink. Continuing he pointed out that there would be a Red Shield drive in September and asked for the co-operation of the Rotarians.

Rotarian James Benor thanked Captain Turnbull for the address. Guests at the luncheon were Gil. Putnum of the Imperial Oil Co. and Mr. Percy Grant of the Municipal Spraying Co.

Rotarian Arthur Armour presented the auditors report which was adopted and the executive considered the matters pertaining to the street dance and carnival to be held the third week in August.

FRENCH RAIL CENTRE OF CAEN IS WRECKED—Rubble and debris litter the area that was once the station and yards of the important French railway and communications centre of Caen, on the Paris-Cherbourg main line. This photo was made after the former German stronghold was captured by the Allies after they had subjected it to heavy shelling and aerial bombardment.

Dead are Mrs. Beatrice Arnold of Toronto and Mrs. Jean Sharron, also of Toronto. Both suffered fractured skulls and other injuries.

The accident occurred about a half-mile east of nearby Winona. The westbound automobile — driven by Phillippe Riendeau, Fort Erie hotelman — struck the rear of the transport in charge of William D. McKay of Thorold, who had stopped on the highway because of engine trouble.

There were four passengers in the automobile, including the two women, but the extent of the injuries to the others was not available immediately.

Fireman's Life

50,000 Prisoners Taken In France

LONDON, Aug. 1 — (CP) — War Secretary Sir James Grigg announced in the House of Commons today that in the 30 days ending July 26, 50,000 prisoners of war were taken by the Allied armies in Normandy and Italy, including two Generals and one Admiral captured in Normandy.

He said he had nothing to add to the figures of July 25 of the number of the enemy dead, when he said it was estimated that 20,000 Germans had been killed and 57,750 captured in Normandy up to July 16.

Sir James said it was intended to increase the number of war correspondents in France as facilities expanded.

Germans Thought Using Rocket-Propelled Plane

By A. I. GOLDBERG
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 2 — (AP) —While more Nazi flying bombs burst upon England, Herbert Morrison, Minister of Home Security, told the House of Commons today that he knew "about a lot of horrible things" and hinted that the Germans had been able to give some degree of silence to their robots.

His statement came in answer to a question as to whether "a new kind of bomb is coming over which is more silent than the old one?"

"I have knowledge about a lot of horrible things," Mr. Morrison answered. "These bombs vary in their practice somewhat, and there have been cases in which the noise has not been audible."

He did not make it clear whether he referred to a new weapon inaudible throughout flight or to the familiar robot bombs which cut off their engines and glide in silently for long distances—a fact previously announced.

A Funny World

Emanuel Shinwell, Labour, demanded to know if Mr. Morrison was flippant in his statement about "horrible things."

The minister of home security answered: "No, there are all sorts of possibilities .... anyone doing this job is living in a world where you are up against pretty horrible actualities."

The discussion followed Mr. Morrison's announcement that he was ready to institute standard audible "imminent danger" signals to supplement sirens. With a half-minute margin, neighborhood horns will sound three two-second blasts at two second intervals when a flying bomb is nearby. A horn blast of six seconds will be sounded for "danger passed" when the bomb has left the area.

Two persons were killed and four others were injured here today just after they left night shelters to go home.

The flying bomb attacks on London and the southern counties by daylight today came after a night of sporadic attacks.

3,000 Employees Will Be Needed

OTTAWA, August 1 — (CP) — Brooke Claxton, parliamentary assistant to Mr. King, said last night in the Commons about 600 treasury officials would be required to handle the propesd family allowance payments.

At present about 40 officials were required to handle about 100,000 cheques for dependents allowances purposes and about 609,250 dependents allowance cheques were mailed from Ottawa every month It was estimated 1,500,00 family allowance cheques would be mailed each month.

Mr. Claxton said a field staff of about 500 investigators would be needed. Possibly 1,900 other employees would be required but not accurate estimate could be made because it was not known how much help could be received from the provinces.

"But Grape-Nuts Flakes give you carbohydrates and proteins and other food essentials!"

"Yes Chief—and you'll smack your lips till your ear-rings rattle over that malty-rich, sweet-as-a-nut Grape-Nuts flavor!"

"Ugh! Sound good! Carbohydrates and proteins, useful quantities of iron for the blood, phosphorus for bones and teeth and other food essentials! Famous Grape-Nuts flavor! Crisp, golden flakes made of two grains—not just one. Climb out, Sailor, we're having Grape-Nuts Flakes instead!"

Have a "Coke"=Thumbs up

. . . or how to be at ease in Lancashire

Among the British you hear a friendly greeting when the going is rough. It's Thumbs up. The Canadians have introduced another just as cordial: Have a "Coke." It means Let's be friends to both CWAC and WREN. From Ottawa to the Seven Seas, Coca-Cola stands for the pause that refreshes —is the gracious introduction between kindly-minded folks.

Coca-Cola — the global high-sign

"Coke"=Coca-Cola
It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called "Coke".

"BLUE SAILORS"

Somebody ought to tell the blue sailors (the wild chickory) growing along the railways and on some of the outer streets of the city, that their raffish flowers, like little bits of he sky caught on stiff weeds, are likely to attract the man with the scythe. One factor on their side is that men are scarce, and officialdom is willing to let the roadside weeds have their way for a while. So, these blue familiars of the sidewalk may escape proscriptive notice.

Andrew Christos Missing As Trial Called

When Andrew Christos failed to appear in police court this mornnig to answer to a charge of operating a common gaming house in the township of Douro, Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., requested that a warant should be issued for the arrest of the man and that cash bail of $250 he had put up when first arrested should be seized.

Magistrate E. A. Gee acted on the request.

"My instructions are," said the Crown Attorney, "that this man is in Detroit. His absence is perhaps better than his company."

Christos was arrested early Saturday morning when a provincial anti-gambling squad headed by Inspector E. T. Do[illegible] raided a cottage near Nassau.

8 CASUALTIES

The fighting instincts of three courageous Peterborough residents accounted for an entire family of eight skunks in a tense and exciting battle that came to an end in a culvert near the highway on Lansdowne West, Tuesday evening. Participants in the action were Jack Sullivan, Jack Clifford and Harry Neal, all of Lansdowne street. Armed only with one shotgun, which Mr. Neal had produced when informed by the other two of the presence of an invading force of two old skunks and their six young in the garden of their duplex, the party of three braved the danger of gas attack and spray-thrower to accomplish their mission. In the face of such hazards the[illegible] chased the company of wood-pussies out of the garden and brought them to bay eventually in the culvert, where all eight were quickly dispatched with Mr. Neal's weapon. Our forces sustained no casualties.—G. W.

Lt. D. Diplock Wounded Twice

After being wounded a second time in action Lieut. Donald Diplock, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Diplock, 512 Weller street, is now believed to be in a hospital in England, according to word reaching his wife, formerly Barbara Scott, 286 Hunter street. The young officer was first reported wounded July 6, but is thought to have rejoined the fight soon after. The latest wound was received July 21, but no additional information was disclosed.

Serving with a Welsh unit of the British Army, which he joined after serving as an officer of the Prince of Wales Rangers, Lieut. Diplock is an honor graduate of the Collegiate and of McGill University, where he took his C.O.T.C. He won his commission with the Prince of Wales Rangers in 1940, and after being turned down twice, he was accepted for active army service, in October, 1942. Lieut. Diplock landed in France June 25, sailing on the same boat that brought another Peterborough officer, Major James Morley, to France. He also has been wounded.

Soldier Stays On Blazing Ship To Help M.O. Evacuate Wounded

Pte. Frank James, 122 Hurley st., who was reported missing early in the invasion and who later rejoined his unit, suffered from wounds and a ducking in the English Channel before he was discovered by an Allied ship and rescued.

The vivid story of how the young soldier gave up his chance of certain escape so that he might help evacuate the wounded from the ship is told to his parents as follows:

"We have been granted permission to tell you what happened as long as we don't mention place names. We were sailing along peacefully not expecting anything when there were three sharp bangs, as shells from three shore batteries struck the middle of the ship. In no time at all, the ship was alight, and as we had petrol for the trucks and ammunition on board, the ship started to blow itself to pieces and we were ordered to abondon ship.

"I stayed behind helping the M.O. with the wounded and when I went over the side, I am sure there were no wounded on deck or in the two aft holds. The captain, a colonel and three or four others were after me. The navy had laid down quite a smoke screen and at ten feet away you were lost. The sea was running fast and there was quite a wind. Before I knew it I was out of the ship lane. How a ship got to where I was, I don't know, but it came dashing out of the blue straight for me. They threw me a life-line. I remember catching hold of it, but I forgot everything else till they started to try and force rum down my throat.

"I was shivering like a leaf but was soon O. K. and it was only then I learned that I had two small wounds in my right leg. I was patched up, wrapped in warm blankets and slung up in a hammock for the night. I stayed on that boat 4½ days. When we landed I was taken by train inland to a hospital and lodged there for 5 days. It was a terrible experience, but there is nothin gterrible if you live to tell the tale. I am now working quite a distance from the front so you have no cause for worry.

Pte. James wrote that when he was pulled out of the water he had only a shirt and a pullover. He lost everything else. Everyone has been kind and tried their best to help make up his losses. "I figure my life was worth more than trying to save a bunch of stuff, even keepsakes, so I kicked off all my clothes in the water and swam for it. It is a lucky thing I am a good swimmer as I was in the water 3¼ hours."

His wife is the former Kathleen Peters, and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank James, 77½ Park Hill Road. At the time his ship was sunk, he was serving with the R. C. O. C.

Pleading guilty in police court this morning to a charge of drunk driving, Ormand Hayes, Brown street, was sentenced by Magistrate E. A. Gee to seven days imprisonment in the county jail.

Rodney Tripp who was in the car with Hayes was fined $10 and costs on a charge of having been drunk.

The two were arrested Tuesday by Officers C. J. McGillen and Allan Edmison.

Two Peterborough School Mates Meet Unexpectedly As Casualties Overseas

Two Peterborough boys serving in different services in different theatres of war, have met in a convalescent hospital in England, according to word received in a letter from A. B. Ray Magee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Magee, McCannan avenue.

A.B. Magee writes that he was sitting on the grass outside the hospital canteen when a soldier came along and sat down with him, casually asking from which part of Canada he came. "When I told him I was from Peterborough," the letter continues, " he up and grabbed my hand and said, 'I'm Jack Grose'. I almost fell over, but was certainly glad to see someone from home."

The two were in the same class at school at one time, but had not been in contact with each other for some time before enlisting. Neither recognized the other at first, but soon were talking over old times. A.-B. Magee is convalescing from shrapnel wounds received while on duty on H.M.C.S. Q'Appelle and Pte. Gross is recovering from a stomach wound received in Italy. He was wounded in close fighting by a bullet from a German officer's gun, and as he fell, his buddy shot the German. His belt buckle, which deflected the bullet somewhat, undoubtedly saved his life. He is an uncle of Donald Davis, now in the R.C.N.V.R., also a friend of A. B. Magee.

In another letter, written a few days later, but received at the same time, A.B. Magee described a robot bomb which had passed over the hospital that morning. "They sound like a motorcycle, and make an awful noise", he says. "As long as they keep going over I don't mind, but I certainly don't want any of them stopping half way".

Church Society In Emily Gives Fund Aid

Many a church has very good reason to bless the work of a Ladies' Aid Society if they happen to be fortunate enough to have one that takes its work at all seriously, their labors of course being intimately associated with the welfare both temporal and spiritual of the particular church they are associated with.

On occasion it has been found that in the spirit of the divine command to go out and help all people, groups of this nature in the missionary style of the church have extended a helping hand to others outside their own sphere, proof of which has been found through some of them extending aid to the sufferers from enemy bomb attacks over Britain through the Peterborough and District War Victims' Fund operating for that purpose.

In this they are upholding some of the direct precepts taught all adherents of the Christian faith, thus putting into practice the greatest of the three virtues taught by the Great Master, and elaborated upon in detail by the great Apostle St. Paul.

Small church parishes in rural districts usually do not have a great deal of opportunity to step out into the wide sphere of assisting people thousands of miles away, their own needs often requiring all the help they can muster, so it stands all the more to the credit of the Ladies' Aid of St. James' Church, Emily, that they have worked on a number of occasions to give aid to the stricken bomb victims in Britain in a substantial manner.

Today this group is credited with the fine sum of $31.50 which they raised through selling tickets on a quilt, this sum having been handed in by Mrs. Wilbert Clark, and follows a substantial gift made by them last Christmas, which itself was by no means their first effort to give this fund a boost. This is one of the highest types of service which fully lives up to the title of "Ladies' Aid."

Penny Box Total $2,277.75

Second highest in the list of reveiues from one particular source, the penny box total today climbs up to the impressive sum of $2,277.75 through the latest collection from the box located in the office of the Bell Telephone Co., Ltd., on Hunter street. This time the amount is $4.00, the highest it has been in quite a long time, due in part to the interest in a practical way given by Bert Conley, the cashier, and in turn it gives this one box a total credit of $123.58 in this one particular field of the fund's activities.

In Tuesday's report, the amount of $20.00 recorded to Miss Grace Warner, should also have mentioned the fact that credit as well goes to the pupils of S. S. No. 3, Alnwick. This information arrived too late to be included in this particular report, and the fund management welcomes this school to its list of contributors for the first time, and appreciates their help very much through Miss Warner, the teacher.

RETURNS HOME—After seven months' service overseas, Lieut. R. H. Ingram, a son of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Ingram, arrived in Kingston Tuesday. Returned because of a low medical category, Lieut. Ingram was with the Prince of Wales Rangers in the Pacific command before going overseas as a reinforcement officer at Christmas, 1943. His wife, the former Margaret Brethen, went to Kingston to meet him.

WOUNDED IN FRANCE—Pte. Anthony Hearns, son of Mrs. Bertha Hearns, who lives about 1¼ miles southwest of Roseneath, is suffering from bullet wounds in the lower left chest, and shrapnel wounds in the letf foot, according to word reaching his mother. He was wounded July 19, while fighting with a Highland regiment.

Shiro Plums Invade Market

Shiro plums are moving into the centre of the fruit market stage for the week-end and at least to the middle of next week, George Clark of National Grocers informed the Examiner this morning. Most housewives know the Shiro, which is coming to market in fair volume, and usually claims attention for its preserving qualities.

The first Leamington peaches are also arriving, both yellow and white flesh, and quantities should steadily increase next week.

Incidentally Loblaw's were quoting the Shiro plum at $1.19 the six-quart basket this morning, and tomatoes two pounds for 25 cents.

According to Toronto reports the price of tomatoes dropped to 60 cents for the 11-quart basket in the wholesale market Tuesday. Mr. Clark verified that news, but explained that the break was caused by a surge of supplies exceeding the day's buying, and also because it included ripe and green tomatoes, splits and the whole works.

The tomato of this season is believed to be much improved in quality, as the field type approaches very closely to the stake grown type. Raspberries are steady at their ceiling, and getting along to the end of their picking.

Currants Luxury

The season's price feature, something to remember when this war period recedes, has been the recent price of black currants. Most people are not interested in this member of the currant family, and are quite willing to scratch the entire currant group of their list, but, any way, 35 cents a pint or $3.50 the six-quart basket was beyond the interest of Loblaw's. Anthony's have been carrying a stock, but they have been apologizing about the price as finally reaches the buyer, but the retailer is not to blame for that price peak. The black currant has been left to a free market, no ceiling, and a short supply.

George Clark told the Examiner today that the old fashioned currant bushes have nearly all disappeared. Hybrids are coming in but the plantings are light, and the scarcity of the fruit makes it sensitive to market demand, with quick bulges in the price.

Cantaloupes are plentiful at $1.89 the 15-quart basket; Lawson and Gifford pears are becoming available, but the cherries have vanished, and the local potato crop is beginning to push the price back to autumn levels.

Pte. Michael Sheehy Wounded Overseas

Serving with a tank corps in France, Pte. Michael Sheehy, son of Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Sheehy, 751 George street north, has been reported wounded in action July 15, according to word received by his parents. No details were given about the wound, but it is believed the young soldier is suffering from a leg wound. He enlisted in the summer of 1942, and after training in Camp Borden, went overseas in 1943. A brother, Richard, is serving overseas with the R.C.A.F.

5 Committees To Act On Building Project

The proposed canvass for the Peterborough Memorial Community Centre for Health, Culture and Recreation, which will appeal to the public and business interests in the city during the last two weeks in September in support of one of the most all-embracing plans yet conceived for promoting community activities, the welfare of the young and many types of sport, was broken up into five heads and chairman appointed at a meeting of the finance committee held in the city buildings Tuesday night. John E. Keyes, manager of the Bank of Commerce and chairman of the Centre's finance committee, presided.

The part of the canvass that pertains to the city's various industries will be headed by Ian McRae, works manager of the C.G.E.; Samuel Whitehouse, general manager of Canadian Sealright, will head the payroll section of the canvass within the plants; Ross Dobbin was chosen chairman for the special names and Ed. Riley for the retail merchants section; while the chairman of the general canvass, which will operate along the lines of the community chest drives, is to be selected later.

Among other business taken up at the meeting, which showed a spirit of enthusiasm for the project in the interested attitude of all attending, was the selection of a legal committee comprising Wilfred Huycke, Clarence Neal and Ed. Humpage.

The finance committee was brought up to date on the activities of other committees in recent days in a general report made by J. A. Jebson, foundation president, and it was said that the site committee had already taken up otions on various properties but that no definite location has as yet been established. The publicity committee, whose campaign is scheduled to start Aug. 15, has met to decide on publicizing plans via newspaper and radio and other advertising media.

Mr. Jebson also stated that the building committee's plans have been submitted to a number of authorities on the proposed type of structure and to individuals experienced in the erection of buildings used for similar purposes, and that their proposals received heartening approval.

A letter written by his chaplain has been sent home from a hospital in England by Sgt. Wilfred T. (Soldier) Jones, 164 Gordon Avenue, he has been overseas for nearly three years, and was only recently appointed troop commander of his cutfit.

The wounded soldier sent the following message to his people back home: "A few lines for the whole family. Since July 12 I have been in England. I have lost my left leg, but I am coming along favorably now. There isn't much you can do. I don't think I will have to go to a convalescent hospital if all goes well."

"He is being well looked after," the chaplain added in a short note. "I have written for him. He is very plucky and should, I think, get on now."

Robert McCarrell Weds Pearl Windrem

A pretty wedding took place in Knox United Church recently when Pearl Elizabeth Windrem, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Windrem, Stewart Street, became the bride of Robert Ira Earle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett McCarrell of Omemee. Rev. F. W. Craik officiated in a church decorated with ferns, gladioli, and summer flowers. Cecil Lapp was at the organ and accompanied Miss June Shield when she sang "because" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was becomingly gowned in floor-length figured sheer organza, with fitted bodice, and full skirt. The bodice was made with a sweetheart neckline, long fitted sleeves coming to a point over the hands, and finished from neck to torso-length waistline with small self-covered buttons. She as attended by her sister, Miss Lois Windrem, as maid of honor, and Misses Rhea Wilson and Edna Morrison as bridesmaids. All were gowned in floor-length white sheer, with fitted bodice, shirred round neckline, long sleeves, and full skirts, gathered at the waist. Over sixty guests were present at the reception held at the home of the bride, where the bride's mother received in a navy triple sheer redingote, with white accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. Following the reception, the bride and groom left for a wedding trip to Ottawa and points East, the bride travelling in a blue sheer chiffon frock, with Chantilly lace inserts, made with a sweetheart neckline and full skirt. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. McCarrell will live on the groom's farm at Fowler's Corners.

The groom's gift to the bride was an initialled pendant and bracelet. The soloist, maid of honor, and the bridesmaids received gold earrings, and the best man and ushers received leather billfolds.

Jams and Jellies Head List In Peterborough Preserving

With the canning and preserving season well under way, many a Peterborough housewife is busily using up her ration of canning sugar, preserving fresh fruits and vegetables for the long winter months ahead. Although most Peterborough women are using all the sugar allotted to them for canning, the quantity does not allow them to make nearly as much as in pre-rationing days. However, they are making as much as possible, and several recipes and methods, developed to meet the sugar shortage, are finding much favor.

Sugar however, is not the only shortage which has bothered would-be canners. Because of labor difficulties, farmers have not been able to place nearly the quantity of food on the market as they did previously and subsequently, prices rave been high. Many women did not can as much fruit as their ration would allow, because they felt they could not afford the raised prices. Others, working in factories, in part-time jobs, or voluntary war work, have not had the time to devote to preserving, as they did in past years.

On the whole, however, the amount of canning and preserving being done has remained quite high, with jams and jellies taking first place. The shortage of these articles was keenly felt by a great many families and women heeded the demands of jam-hungry members of the household by making sure that a sufficient quantity was on hand, ven if preserved fruits had to suffer. Strawberries and raspberries are most popular, although grapes and elderberries and apples are still to come, and have a great many rooters. Clear, tasty jelly, with just the right nippy lavor, has long been a favorite on practically all breakfast tables, as well as for afternoon treats, on bread and butter.

Peaches Popular

Peaches, of course, are the fruit which is used most frequently for preserving, and from latest accounts the crop should be quite sufficient to meet the demand. Prices, however, will probably be higher this year, because of the difficulty in obtaining labor to pick the fruit.

Honey, when it can be obtained, can be used as a substitute for sugar in preserving fruits, and a great many women have had success with it in their preserving. It must be remembered, that although approximately the same amount of honey is used, as sugar, the added moisture in the honey makes it necessary to use less water than ordinarily would be required.

The shortage of canned vegetables which existed during the winter has also been taken to heart by housewives, many of whom have undertaken to can vegetables for the first time. Green beans and peas, since they are comparatively easy to process, are great favorites, and many a proud woman has canned the products of her victory garden this year, if not for posterity, for the appreciative palates and stomachs of her hungry family, come wintertime. Canning of vegetables is not as popular as preserving fruit, though, since imported vegetables can be obtained throughout the winter, and canned vegetables are usually to be found on grocers' shelves, whereas home canned fruits are generally more tasty than preserved fruits which are bought in in stores. As a rule, women are not putting down tomatoes, since they can generally be purchased in the stores at reasonable prices, which the housewife, with the trouble of preparing and cooking them, cannot match.

In general, Peterborough women are using every grain of sugar allotted to them for canning, and are making up for the decreased amount they are able to serve by keeping a more watchful eye on the jam pot and the fruit dish. Sugar rationing has also effectively curtailed baking, and is being ably assisted in this enterprise by the butter rationing, so that preserved fruit is doubly attractive as a desert, since everyone likes to top off a meal with something sweet. Mrs. Housewife is making the best of the present situation and her family can rest assured that she will do her best to keep them supplied with their favorite dishes, although for the duration, they will have to demand a little less, to make it go further.

NAZIS EXPECTED TO MAKE STAND AT PO LINE—As the Allied armies drive up the Italian boot, military experts predict that Nazi forces will retire to the River Po (shaded line) to make their most determined stand in Italy. Although they have undoubtedly fortified this natural barrier heavily, German commanders will probably find it a difficult one to defend. Up to the present, the battleline has been geographically short. With the lengthening of the front, and their dwindling supply of manpower, military analysts believe the Nazis will be hard put to defend the Po River line for any considerable period. Beyond this line is the most important industrial region of Italy and the Allies will quickly throw the full weight of their forces into capturing this area.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Today we are giving a few nice ways to serve chicken, ways to cook it and ways to use up the leftovers so they are more appealing to the appetite, as well as to the eye. In these days when meat is not as plentiful as usual, we turn to chicken to fill in many places on the menu.

Chicken Fricassee

1 chicken (at least one year old), butter, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, ⅛ teaspoon celery salt, flour, one cup coffee cream, (or cream from top of Jersey milk), 1 egg, ¼ teaspoon pepper. Method: Singe, dress and wash chicken. Cut into pieces and wipe each piece with a damp cloth, sprinkle with salt and pepper. Roll in flour and brown in butter. Cover with boiling water and simmer for 40 minutes. Remove chicken and reduce stock to 2 cups. Melt 1 tablespoon butter, add 2 tablespoons flour, and seasoning. Gradually add broth and lemon juice, stirring constantly and cook until smooth. Add cream, scald, and pour slowly over well beaten egg. Arrange chicken on hot platter and pour hot sauce over it. Garnish with toast points.

Chicken Croquettes

Season 2 cups chopped cooked chicken with ½ teaspoon onion, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, ¼ teaspoon salt. Add white sauce, made by blending 4 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons butter. Add ½ teaspoon each of salt and celery salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, a few grains cayenne pepper, 1 cup milk and cook until thick. Cool. Shape into pryamids or cylinders. Roll in crumbs, then in egg, then in crumbs again. Fry in deep fat until golden brown, drain. Garnish with parsley and serve.

Jellied Chicken

1 chicken (one year old at least) 1 shank veal, salt and pepper to taste.

Method: Singe, dress, wash chicken. Cut into pieces and cover with water. Add salt and pepper and simmer until meat falls off bones. Remove bones. Lay a few slices of egg hard boiled on botton of mould and arrange pieces of chicken over them. Boil shank of veal to a jelly, strain and add liquid to chicken broth. Season and boil down until enough remains to cover the chicken. Place in refrigerator until set. Turn out on platter and garnish with parsley and slices of hard boiled egg.

These are all ways of using up leftovers.

DOROTHY DIX . . . . .

TEARS CONTEMPTIBLE WEAPON

Woman Using Them to Gain Ends Plays Lowdown Game on Father and Sweetheart

◆ ◆ ◆

DEAR DOTOTHY DIX: My mother has been dead for some time and my father gives me everything I could desire. However, there are times when I want things he thinks I should not have and then all that I have to do is to cry in order to get my own way.

I am engaged to a very nice young man, and sometime I do things of which he does not approve and then we quarrel, but if I cry he will give in and be again at my feet. As long as this method gets me what I want, do you think it is right for me to use it?

A SPOILED CHILD

Tears An Effective Weapon

ANSWER: Undoubtedly you have taken the easiest and quickest way of getting what you want because tears have ever been woman's most effective weapon to use against men. For some reason that no one can explain, men's backbones just melt down into a pulp under the water from a woman's eyes, even when they know that she is only weeping for revenue only.

Why this is thus, nobody knows, not even the poor, limp man who has surrendered to the crybaby. All that he knows is that he simply can't stand the weeps, so to stop he blubbering he gives her the car he can't afford, or the dress that he will have to do without lunches to pay for or he apoligizes to her for the thing she has done that provoked the quarrel and promises never never, never to cross her again.

Many a woman before you, my dear, has floated herself out of a bad situation on a tide of tears. Many a one before you has cried for the moon until she got it. Many a one has found out that hydraulic power is most effective in breaking down a man's morale. But don't you think that tears are a pretty, poor, mean, contemptible weapon to use on a man?

Because they are only effective when you use them on a man who loves you and they only work with him because he can't endure to see you make even the gesture of suffering. Have more self-respect than to play such a lowdown game on your father and sweetheart.

DEAR MISS DIX: Will you tell me if my boy friend really cares for me? I have been going with him for more than five years. Now I am planning to get married to him, but he doesn't seem to do much of the planning with me. He only comes to see me two nights a week, and the balance of the time he goes out with his boy friends to dances and places of amusement.

I have given up all of my friends for him. Don't you think we should come to some understanding about marriage? Also, don't you think he should see me oftener? Would it wake him up if I would see other boys?

JOYCE

Drawn-out Engagement Kills Love

ANSWER: It doesn't take any daughter of a seventh daughter to diagnose your boy friend's sentiment's. He is tired of you. His love is dead, killed by a long drawn-out engagement, and he is trying to get you to break it off. If you have any self-respect, beat him to it and save your face.

No man on earth who is in love with a girl limits his call to two a week. He is always hanging around her, and the only reason a man isn't enthusiastic in planning his wedding is because he regards it as his funeral. Don't force this poor chap into an unwilling marriage. It will mean misery to you both.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My husband and I married when we were barely passed our 16th birthday. We have been married a year and a half now. We began quarreling on our wedding day and we have been quarreling ever since. Our love has turned to hate and we are driving each other crazy. We have no children. But here is my problem: I think it would break my mother's heart if I left my husband. Shall I hurt her, or continue to live in misery?

UNDECIDED

ANSWER: You are young and your mother is old, so you are the one whose happiness is to be considered first in this matter. Anyway, she can take no great comfort in your marriage if you and your husband are living a cat and dog life together.

But instead of getting a divorce, why don't you and your boy husband just separate for two or three years and wait until you grow up before you decide what to do? He may grow up into the sort of a man that you would like to be married to, and you may develop into the sort of a woman who would fascinate him. Who knows?

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, August 3

JUDGING by the lunar transits this may be a day of intrigue and glamor, with many adventures or experiences holding aspects of the unique, singular or possibly the eccentric or erratic. There may be peculiar events or situations to cope with, mainly by use of good common sense and logic and not high-strung impulses or emotionalism. Keeping a safe and sane check on the proclivities when strange lures or opportunities arise, may bring exceptional benefits, perhaps in connection with important bodies, political, diplomatic or in the realm of the creative arts, drama, music, romance and beauty. Safeguard property, health, writings and the emotions, and all may be prosperous and blissful.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of unusual and intriguing situations and adventures in which drama, poetry, art, creative forms in probably modernistic or unique lines may depart from all humdrum and conventional expression. There may be need of prudence and discretion in all such developments, lest bewildering, confused or irregular circumstances arise, inciting eccentric or queer performances. The intuitions or psychic qualities may be highly stimulated under which illusion and unreality may be dangerously dominant. Guard writings, possessions emotions against danger or fraud, and all may be safe, romantic and beautiful.

A child born on this day may have unusual endowments of a mental, spiritual or artistic quality, with keen intuitions or perhaps mystical powers, stimulating exceptional creative skills. Its life may be one of romance and glamor, but it should be alert to fraud, theft, deception for practical results.

Construction Gets Underway On Foundation Of City's Barn

Workmen of the Eastwood Construction Company were this morning pouring cement for the foundation of the city's horse barn on the incinerator property, Townsend st., and will be ready to begin the brick work by next Tuesday.

The building is of brick and concrete construction 90 ft. by 40 feet, costing $21,030, according to the accepted tender of the contracting firm, and will provide stable accomodation for twenty horses. The money for this work is being supplied by the City Trust Commission out of their funds.

A reporter accompanied Alderman Swanston, chairman of the property committee, to the city's yard this morning, incidentally one of the hot spots in this bowl of the Otonabee. So, this is simply a little story in civic housekeeping that should be of some interest to the ratepayers and property owners who are aware that the city council dispensed with the contract system of collecting garbage, and have placed it directly under the control of the council under the supervision of the property committee.

For The Larger City.

"The more the people know about it, the more they will be interested in what the council is trying to do," Alderman Swanston said. "The contract system of garbage collection was unsatisfactory, and the council decided to take the plunge into municipal management.

We had to buy horses and equipment, provide stabling accommodation, and engage a staff of men to do the work. We have twelve horses at present, and all of them working. We have no spares. Ten of them are housed in the old stable that was used by the Allin Ice Company. We got it with the property the council bought from the company. The other two horses are kept for the present in northerly ice storage building that is now vacant. The main stable is an old building, not big enough for our needs, pretty dilapidated, and we think any citizen will agree with us that it is altogether unsuitable for our needs.

The council has had to plan for the annexation of the North Monaghan suburbs beginning January 1st next, and we estimate we will need about twenty horses for the whole work. Any way the present accomodation is not enough for what we need now, and we simply could not put up with the old ice barn for two of the horses during the winter. The council went into this whole problem thoroughly, and gave the property committee full cooperation, building for the future and for a garbage collecting system that affects every household.

Assembly Staff.

Garfield Torrence is in charge of the collection and disposal of the garbage; Bert Lee looks after the horses and I think we have a good staff of men on the wagons and around the barn. One of the drivers had a vacation coming to him recently but at the last minute he said he would rather stay on the job because he wanted to drive a team of blacks we'd got. And he wasn't the only one. But, it is up to them, whatever they wish to do. Garbage collection is supposed to start at 8 o'clock in the morning, but some of the men start out at 7.30. One of them said the other day, in that connection, "It's better for the horses if the get out in the cooler part of the day."

I might also say that I'm not getting any complaints from householders under our new system, and we've had some compliments about the way the work is being done. And Mr. Torrance is getting mighty few.

The council authorized the committee to buy a pick-up truck for Mr. Torrance, and it has been added to the equipment if any calls do come in. We want the garbage collecting staff to feel that their job is of every day importance to all the householders, and we want them to feel satisfied that we are interested in them, and that the success of the department depends on them.

Bert Lee comes to work around four in the morning, feeds the horses, gets them ready for the day, harnesses them, and generally looks after them. The committee hasn't everything complete yet, but we are starting with men who are horsemen, they like horses, and that counts a lot. When the new barn was laid out we put in a wash room for the men, and it will also serve as their lunch room.

When the first of January comes we want to be ready to absorb the Monaghan suburbs as smoothly as possible. We would like the people to know what we are trying to do, and after all it is their money we are spending and for their benefit, and we want the men to feet that as long as they are doing a good job we are all for them."

Are Well Fed

The morning work today, the Ashburnham routes, was finished about eleven o'clock, and the horses were munching oats when a reporter looked into the two stables. "It is entirely up to them when they get their work done, as long as it is well done Alderman Swanston said. "Collection from stores, hotels and restaurants is twice a week. Some of the stores put out a lot of stuff, and the council decided to limit the number of containers that would be picked up in the collection service. If any of them put out more containers than is provided for that way, they have to put a tag on each of them. These tags are bought at the city hall at ten cents each."

Before deciding to spend money on a horse barn, Alderman Swanston said the question of future use of horses was thoroughly considered. "We enquired from Toronto and several other places, and we had the opinions of Alderman Dutton, Ovens and Curtis who know what horses can do. I don't mind saying that my knowledge of horses is mighty limited. All opinions agreed that the horse drawn vehicles were the most economical, and that is why we are going ahead with a permanent building. It will be in use long after the present council's day."

Flt.-Lt. J. Clarke, Veteran Flier Bewildered By French Reactions

HAVELOCK, August 2 (ENS) — Flight Lieut. John H. Clarke, a Havelock boy, who is a member of the Fighter Squadron commanded by the foremost Allied fighter, Wing Commander J. E. Johnson, writing from England to his wife told of his recent promotion from Flying Officer to Flight Lieutenant.

Flight Lieut. Clarke joined the Air Force in July, 1941, training at Victoriaville, Que., Oshawa and Hagersville. He took a special course in navigation and holds second class navigation papers, coming second in his class. He was commissioned as Pilot Officer when he received his wings at Charlottetown, P. E. I., and for sometime was a reconnaissance pilot. Next he took a Fighter Pilot's course in Bagotsville, Que., and when the American Government appealed to Canada for Fighter Squadrons to go to the Aleutian Islands, he was a member of the second squadron to go there. He has over 1,000 hours in the air to his credit in the Aleutian campaign and was in 32 raids over Kiska. He was awarded the American Flying Medal.

He went to England with the only complete Canadian Fighting Squadron. He took part in the invasion from the beginning and was among the first airmen to land in France on the Sunday following D-day, the first opportunity the Allies had to use captured air dromes.

Varied Picture

Describing a sight seeing trip from Caen to Cherbourg Peninsula, which he went on during an off duty period, with members of his Squadron, Flight Lieut. Clarke states that he will never forget the sights both beautiful and destructive between the two cities. The party travelled in a jeep over dusty roads, through villages, sometimes at a snails pace behind huge motor convoys or raced along the fertile fields and through forests.

The French people were amazing in their salutes, cheers, smiles and shouts of "Canada" to which the boys replied "Vive la France". He said he felt like an ancient conqueror. Little French children would salute like the Allied soldiers, old men and women would wave their hands and give the "V" for Victory sign, young women would smile and wave while others of all ages would stare with stoney eyes. What each thought of the invasion of their country would be hard to define, he said.

Flight Lieut. Clarke wondered if they were cheering because they were being given their freedom or because the Allies for the present time were masters of their land. He said he experienced so many emotions that it was hard to describe them. One moment he was cheered by the sight of waving people and the next filled with remorse as he saw old people trekking along the road carrying their only possessions and the questions that came to him were: where were they going? where would they eat or sleep? would they ever have real homes again and be happy? Villages were in ruins, not a house standing, all destroyed by shells and street fighting.

Great Activity

As they neared Cherbourg they passed great military encampments and airfields. The shells were whining overhead and he longed to be in his "Spitfire". They passed truck loads of German prisoners whose ages ranged from 15 to 55 years. Among them, he could see the true German race—the ancieint type blonde and sturdy. Many were just "kids" who looked bewildered, while others were of the insolent Nazi type who seemed quite subdued under the gaze of their American captors. Flight Lieut. Clarke said he enjoyed his short visit with the Americans and on taking their leave for the return trip parted with the salute "Meet you in Paris."

Castilloux Beats Pete Lello Of U.S.

MONTREAL, Aug. 2.—(CP). — Dave Castilloux, Canada's lightweight and welterweight titleholder, took an easy 10-round decision from Pete Lello of Gray, Ind., here last night in Montreal's first major outdoor fight attraction in three years.

Castilloux, who weighed 135 to Lello's 140½ in the non-title affair, looked a winner all the way and the desision was unanimous. A crowd of about 7,000 watched the bout in Montreal Stadium.

W. Nayler Promoted To Leading Stoker

MARMORA, August 2—(ENS)— Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Nayler have been recently advised that their son William has been promoted to leading stoker. In a letter received by his father he writes: "I guess I'll miss fishing again this year, but I hope to be home for hunting. They won't need us much more now. We made it over ther and back okay, even if we did come back 'On a Wing and a Prayer.' We had part Canadian and part British engineers on our ship, and boy, they were really tough babies when they went ashore. The snipers and mortar fire were the worst, but they soon cleaned them up."

Hitler Offers Huge Reward

LONDON, Aug. 2 (CP)—The Nazi regime last night offered a 1,000,000-mark reward ($400,000 at the pre-war exchange) for the capture of a former Leipzig mayor charged with complicity in the recent attempt on Hitler's life as reprisals continued to rock the German army and civilians.

Announcement of the reward from the German agency, D.N.B., said 60-year-old Dr. Karl Goerdeler, former mayor of Leipzig and former Reich price commissar, was wanted as an accomplice on the plot on Hitler's life. He was said to be in hiding since July 20, date of the abortive uprising in the German army.

Other reports from inside Germany said Gen. Otto Von Stupelnagel killed himself after the plot's failure and that Field Marshal Gen. Ernst von Busch, commander of the German army on the central sector of the eastern front, committed suicide after he was grilled in connection with the plot and then dismissed. (Busch's suicide had been previously reported without details.)

LONDON, Aug. 2—(CP Cable)—One of the Britain's top-scoring fighter pilots Wing Cmdr. John Braham who has at least 20 kills to his credit, including 19 at night, was today reported a prisoner of war in Germany.

Garden Party Success Earns $237 For W.I.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 2 (ENS)—An annual event of wide community interest was held on the grounds of Connelly's School by the Seymour West Women's Institute whose garden party was a decided success.

Although the weather was threatening and at times rain fell, it failed to dampen the ardor of the large crowds who attended. The refreshment booth and fish pond were well patronized. Bingo, under the management of F. G. DeCarroll proved the chief source of amusement and drew a crowd all evening. The draw for the electric iron was won by Allan Rutherford of Stanwood.

Total receipts for the evening amounted to $237 which will be used for war work.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

UNBLOCKING A SQUEEZE

"VIENNA COUP" is still used by most players to describe a certain kind of play, despite the fact that our enemies hold that town. It consists merely of taking an early trick with a high card, which temporarily sets up for an opponent a card which you can squeeze out of him later on. If you don't do that, you may find that one of the squeezing suits is blocked.

North: ♠ 9 5 2 ♥ A 8 4 ♦ A Q 9 4 ♣ A K 10

West: ♠ J 10 7 3 ♥ 6 ♦ 8 7 3 2 ♣ 6 5 4 2

East: ♠ A K Q ♥ 5 3 2 ♦ K 10 6 ♣ Q J 9 7

South: ♠ 8 6 4 ♥ K Q J 10 9 7 ♦ J 5 ♣ 8 3

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♦	Dbl	4 ♥

That bidding came at two tables of a duplicate game, and the lead each time was the spade J. Also, after three spade tricks, East returned the club Q. Also each declarer then tried to squeeze. Winning with the club K, one declarer then ran all the hearts. When he led the last, he also had his two diamonds and the club 8, and dummy held the diamond A-Q and club A-10.

On the final heart, this chap discarded the diamond Q, and East the diamond 10. Now the diamond 5 to the A dropped the K, setting up the J, but South could not get back to his hand to use it. So he took the club A, but then had to lose the setting trick with the club 10 to the J.

The other declarer, after winning the fourth trick with the club K, looked ahead. He figured cut what finishing situation he desired, to have his last three cards be the final heart, the diamond J and the club 8, with the dummy holding the diamond Q and club A-10. Preparing for that, he followed his club trick with the diamond A to unblock the suit—the Vienna coup—then ran his hearts. Playing the final heart, he discarded dummy's diamond Q. East now could not make a good discard. With the diamond K and the club J-9, if he threw the diamond the final tricks would have been the diamond J and club A. If he tossed his club 9, the last two tricks would have been the club A dropping his J, and then the club 10. So he said, "You've got me," and took his licking.

Distilleries May Produce More Spirits

OTTAWA, Aug. 2—(CP)—Canadian distilleries will be permitted to revert to the manufacture of potable spirits from time to time between now and the end of the year, Munitions Minister Howe said today.

This is in line with action taken by the United States Government which has allowed the distilleries in that country to make potable alcohol for one month beginning today. In Canada, however, the holiday to make liquors to go into bond will be staggered, possibly a week at a time, and not all distilleries will receive the same weeks.

"It is possible that some distilleries will get a full month this year in which to replenish their liquor stocks," Mr. Howe told The Canadian Press. "But it is more convenient for us to set aside certain periods with a view to non-interference with the distilleries' contracts for supplying industrial alcohol for war purposes than to follow the United States plan setting aside a month for all the distilleries."

For about two years Canadian distilleries have been concentrating almost exclusively on the manufacture of industrial alcohol to go into synthetic rubber, explosives and medicines and the consumption of spirits by the Canadian people has been met by stocks in bond.

Officials here said Canada has sufficient rye whiskies and other types to meet the average rationed consumption for the next five years, but as it takes a minimum of three years to age these types of liquor and longer aging improves the output, the distilleries will be able to put a substantial gallonage into bond if they get four weeks between now and the end of the year.

Gin, however, does not require aging and it is expected the holiday will soon make available in the liquor stores a greater supply of this type of spirit.

Gunners Do Honor To Fallen Comrade

ROSENEATH, August 2 — (ENS) —Members of a field battery now in England have not forgotten a comrade, Gnr. Neil Mouncey, accidentally killed while in training at Sussex, New Brunswick, a little over a year ago. The flowers wired by his comrades in England to his parents to mark the anniversary of their son's death, arrived in time to be placed on his grave on Sunday when memorial and decoration services were held at Centenary United Church and Cemetery.

With a granite marker at the head and a Union Jack keeping guard at the foot, the space between was covered with the flowers from his comrades. Neil, second son of Mr. and Mrs. William Mouncey, formerly of Roseneath, now of Baltimore, enlisted 1942 at Cobourg. A brother Frank, the only remaining child, is at present in France serving with the R.C. O.C.

SIXTH WINNER V.C.—The late Capt. F. T. Peters, a Canadian and native of Prince Edward Island, who served with the Royal Navy, has been awarded the V.C., making him the sixth Canadian to be so honored. He earned the award by forcing a boom at Oran during the North African landings in November, 1942. He was the only survivor. His death occurred later when his plane crashed into the sea.

FRENCH WOMEN GREET MONTY—Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery, famed leader of the British Eighth Army in Africa, and now commander of the British forces in Northern France, is shown chatting with a group of French women during his tour of liberated villages in the Caen-Tilly sector. "Monty," as he is affectionately known among his troops, holds a small bouquet of flowers presented him by French children.

Canadians Like Royal Marines

LONDON, Aug. 2—(CP)—A firm friendship founded in co-operation in battle has been growing up between Canadian units and Royal Marines.

It began long ago in Hong Kong, where a small handful of Marines were in action with the Canadians at Christmas, 1941. That is the beginning and end of that episode, for no details have ever come through about their last, desperate battle.

But in August, 1942, at Dieppe, a Royal Marine Commando landed to reinforce the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry.

The next occasion on which Royal Marines and Canadians met was the invasion of Sicily. Here the 1st Canadian Division landed in the southwest of the Pachino peninsula. The beaches on which they landed were dominated from the left flank by positions on a headland.

Two Royal Marine Commandos knocked out defences there so thoroughly that hardly a shot was fired at the leading Canadian troops when they came ashore.

Nearly 12 months later Royal Marine Commandos again landed with the Canadians this time in Normandy. They reached the beachhead on the heels of a famous Canadian regiment and passed through them to knock out the strong points of Hitler's West Wall.

Other Marines, in a novel role as armored artillery, supported this landing and operated with Canadian troops when they made their first penetration inland.

Later in the battle, a Royal Marine Commando was placed under Canadian command with a special task to destroy the Germans in two villages, Rosel and Rots, which lie in the wooded valley of the River Mue. This attack, supported by Royal Marines with armored guns, captured both objectives with great killing of Germans and the destruction of at least one Tiger tank.

Military Group To Announce Soldier Arrivals

KINGSTON, August 2 — (Special) —A special army committee whose main function is to supervise and co-ordinate handling of servicemen repatriated from overseas to their home towns in Military District No. 3, through District Depot No. 3, Ottawa, and District Depot No. 3A, Kingston, has been set up here. The committee is particularly active in advising mayors and reeves of expected times of arrival at home town destinations of officers and men who have returned from the fighting fronts. This assistance is facilitating arrangements made by civilian groups in charge of local receptions. Other duties being performed by the committee are supervising the speedy and efficient handling of veterans immediately upon their arrival at Kingston and Ottawa and minimizing the time require dbefore they are dispatched on leave.

The committee, which is under the chairmanship of Major W. K. MacGregor, D. A. A. G., M. D. 3, has as its members Major H. E. Manning, R. C. A. M. C., officer in charge of hospitalization and supplies for M. D. 3, Captain J. Soutter, assistant supply and transport officer for M. D. 3, and Captain J. Soutter, assistant supply and transport officer for M. D. 3, and Captain F. H. Wooding, public relations officer for M. D. 3.

Under previous conditions civilian groups interested in holding receptions for returning personnel had difficulty in doing so because of a lack of information regarding names of those returning and the expected times of their arrival. This situation is now adjusted since, before soldiers leave the army depot for their home towns, wires containing all necessary details are sent to mayors or reeves who in turn advise the local group in charge of reception arrangements.

Can Send Wires.

The servicemen themselves, meanwhile, are provided with ample opportunity to notify their families of their return to Canada. National Defence Headquarters has authorized each veteran to send a wire to his family immediately upon arrival at the disembarkation point and a second wire telling his next of kin by what means (trains, car, etc) he is returning home and the expected time of his arrival. By this means both next of kin and reception committees are kept fully informed.

It has been pointed out by Major W. K. MacGregor, chairman of the Kingston committee, that while the army is anxious to lend all possible assistance to civilian groups, through mayors, and reeves, in providing information regarding returning personnel, there can be no guarantee that soldieirs will always arrive home at that time or by the means of transportation originally planned. Frequently, at the last moment, plans are changed by the soldier himself when it is found that bus transportation is quicker than rail, or vice versa, or when offered transportation in a private automobile.

It is to overcome just such situations as this that many communities hold receptions several days after the soldiers have returned. The time between their arrival home and the reception allows the men to reaclimatize themselves and also enables the local committee time to arrange a suitable function.

Canadian-Born Indian Finds He Must Enlist

BUFFALO, N.Y., August 2 — (AP). — A Canadian-born Indian residing in the United States is subject to induction into the U.S. military service, Judge John Knight ruled yesterday in a test case.

The case was brought by Delos Claus, 34, a native of the Grand River Reservation at Brantford, Ont., who sought dismissal of a draft-evasion charge.

Arguing for dismissal before Judge Knight on May 15 Attorney Marvin Marcus alleged the drafting of Canadian Indians is inconsistent with the Army's action in removing them from front line units as "aliens." He added that Claus had offered to enlist immediately after the United States entered the war, but was "refused because he was an Indian born in Canada."

Marcus also contended that the Jay Treaty permits Indians to pass from one country to another at will.

Judge Knight held, however, that "even if this (Jay) Treaty or some other treaty did grant alien Canadian registrants an exemption from military service, it would be superseded and abrogated by the Selective Service Training Act of 1940." He further stated that the defendant could not be granted relief "because as an Indian he is given particular rights by the Jay Treaty."

Marcus said last night he would "undoubtedly take an appeal on the case."

7,000 Strikers Ignore W.L.B. Order

DETROIT, Aug. 2 — (AP) — A back-to-work order from the War Labor Board went unheeded Tuesday as a force of 7,000 production workers in five General Motors plants entered a second day of strike idleness. Calling of a show cause hearing for Local 235 of the Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) to attempt to justify a walkout over a production rates dispute was expected from the W.L.B.

Five plants of Chevrolet gear and axle division of General Motors were made almost completely idle yesterday. The regional W.L.B. had ordered an immediate resumption of work, declaring it could take no action in the dispute until the strike was ended.

Federal council meanwhile sought a solution today of a labor dispute involving four Detroit area stores of Montgomery Ward and Co., employing more than 2,000 persons.

The C.I.O.'s United Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employees' Union threatened a strike, protesting what it said was the dismissal of 250 employees at the Royal Oak store.

The company declined to discuss the dispute publicly.

Russians Shell German Soil After Lightning Advance Fight 3 Miles From Border

Warsaw Defences Crumbling Fast
Russians Over Vistula
In Powerful Drives At Two Points

By EDDY GILMORE—Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Aug. 3—(AP).—Fighting raged within three miles of the pre-war East Prussian border today as Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky's 3rd White Russian Army surged forward in a drive from captured Dydizhe. Russian armor charged savagely upon German defences before the East Prussian border cities of Schirwindt, Eydtkuhnen and Wehrirchen, while Russian cannon shelled German soil.

Cherniakhovsky's forces were within 28 miles of Tilsit and 44 of Insterburght, important East Prussian rail cities. Konigsber, East Prussian capital and 18th largest German city of 368,433, was 93 miles away. Five railroads meet at Intsterburg, site of iron, machine tool and tile factories.

Front dispatches declared fighting raged near Virbalis and Wizainy, both three miles from the frontier.

While the campaign for East Prussia was intensified, the battle for Warsaw entered its fourth day of slow, bitter slugging on a 20-mile front involving the eastern suburbs of the Polish capital.

The Germans clung to a line of fixed fortifications ringing the burning city and the industrial suburb of Praga, on the east bank of the broad and swift Visula, against massed bombardment from the ground and sky. (The Polish government in London said 25,000 Polish underground fighters continued a "hard and grim" battle against the Germans in the streets of the capital.)

In the north, the Russians were 25 miles west of Riga and less than 20 miles to the southwest and closing in on all sides. A 28-mile advance from Pskow carried the Red Army to the outskirts of Aluksne (Marienburg). (The Germans said 19 fresh Russian divisions were attacking in the 30-mile corridor between Lake Peipus and the Gulf of Finland west of Narva, in a region less than 95 miles from the Estonian capital of Tallinn.)

Just north of the Carpathians, the Russian capture of Rzeszow and advances beyond placed the Red Army within 70 miles of Krakow, fifth city of old Poland. (A German report that the Russians had broken 17 miles across the Vistula in that area to Staszow would place the Reds within 62 miles of Krakow.)

Marshal Ivan Koven, the tall broad-shouldered hero of Moscow and Kharkov, sent columns probing at five Carpathian passes leading into Czecho-Slovakia, last reported 13 miles away. His advance guards in the extreme south of the active front were 120 miles from German Silesia.

Outside of Warsaw, Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's forces hammered at slowly-crumbling Nazi defences in a narrow strip on the east bank of the Vistula. He appeared to be waiting for other Russian forces advancing from positions 30 miles west of Siedlce to join him for the main push across the river.

In the northern sector, where the Russians were pushing against Nazi troops isolated in Estonia and Latvia, major advances were scored between Lake Peipus and the lake country north of Daugavpils.

The Germans originally were estimated to have two armies totalling 200,000 to 300,000 men in this area, but the number actually trapped was uncertain.

In the south, Marshal Ivan S. Konev's troops advanced west of Jaroslaw to positions only 75 miles from Krakow and 123 miles from German Silesia, front dispatches said, capturing 150 towns and villages.

Canadians Push Ahead Slowly In Normandy

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, Aug. 3 (CP Cable)—In the first good flying weather since Canadian forces launched their latest series of attacks against Tilly La Campagne, Typhoons late yesterday blasted the small but stubborn German stronghold south of Caen with rockets and attacked enemy armored formations.

Artillery joined in both attacks and the air was filled with the roar of engines and the thunder of Allied guns hammering away at the enemy.

This was the first air support since Western Canadian troops attacked the town Tuesday morning. During the night other attacks were carried out by Western and Ontario troops, and the latter reached a hill known as Point 63 just north of the town. The Westerners are dug in along railway tracks west of Tilly.

Yesterday the Germans reinforced their tank strength inside Tilly and a Canadian officer said: "Tilly is a tough lady. She seems to be the toughest thing we have encountered."

The Tilly area is saturated with German machine-gun posts and dug-in tanks, while German mortar and artillery positions just south of the town can pour tons of explosives into attacking forces at a moment's notice.

A British staff officer told a press conference yesterday that the battle for Caen, in which Canadians figured so prominently, and the current fighting around Tilly, had materially assisted the major success which British armor and infantry have achieved in their break-through south of Caumont.

American operations on the western flank also have been aided greatly by the job done around Caen by British and Canadian troops, he said.

This morning a German counterattack was made with 200 infantry and 12 Panzer Mark IV tanks but was beaten off.

Japs Retreating Fast In Burma

KANDY, Ceylon, Aug. 3—(CP)—British forces pursuing Japanese troops fleeing northeast India have lost major contact with an enemy force retreating from hill positions eight mile snorthwest of Tamu, near the Burma border, it was announced today.

The Japanese left many dead and a large quantity of explosives.

Machine-guns were attempting to cover the withdrawal of main Japanese forces south of Churachanpur, on the Tiddim Road, 40 miles from Imphal.

An Allied force that struck far in the rear down this main avenue of escape for the Japanese menaced the withdrawal.

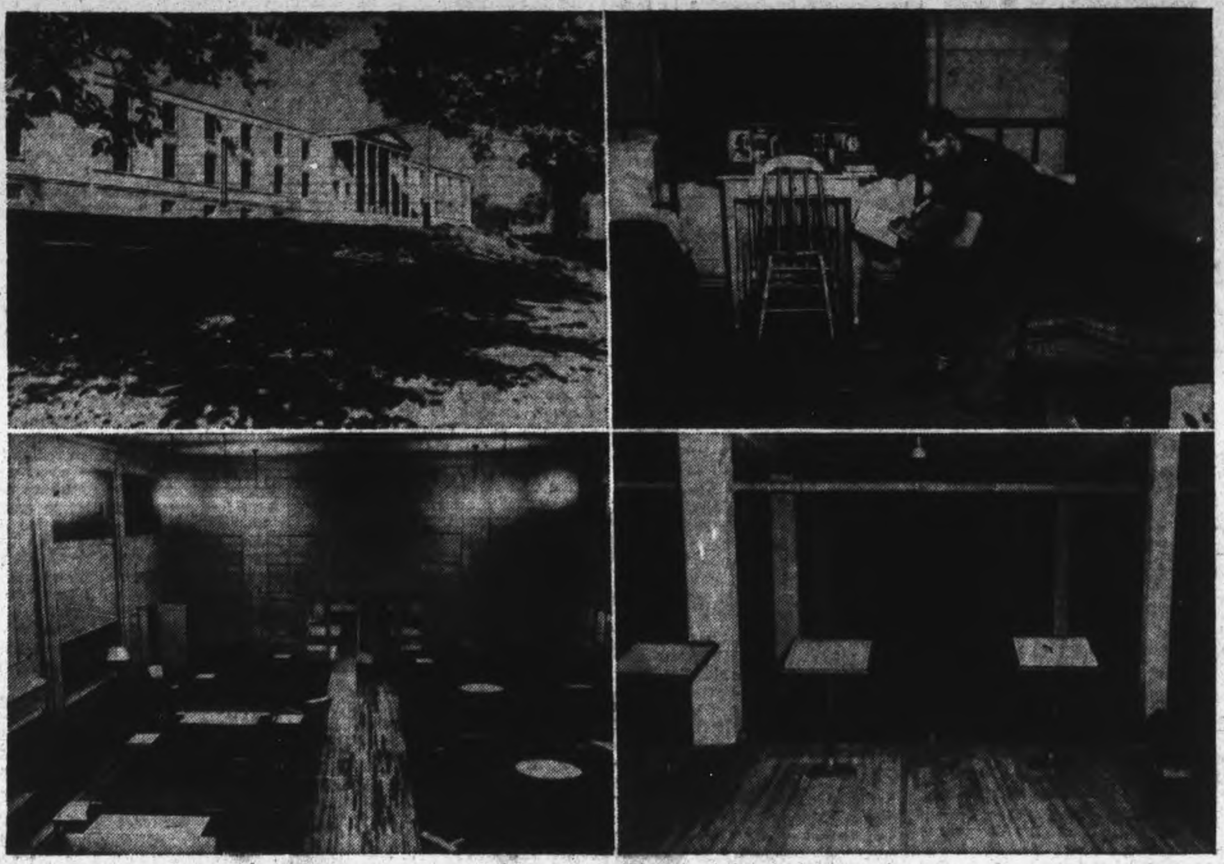
May Eliminate Malaria

Quinine Substitute Most Effective

CHICAGO, August 3 —(AP) — It should be possible to eliminate malaria from every civilized country after the war by means of the synthetic quinine substitute Quinacrine (Atabrine), and by experience gained in treating the armed forces, the Journal of American Medical Association said to-day.

The Journal made this comment on an offical report that Quinacrine "has proved to have all the anti-malarial properties ascribed to Quine" and that large-scale production of quinine "is not now considered a matter of importance" for treating army and navy personnel.

The report said military use of Quinacrine has shown that it effectively suppresses malaria during and after exposure to infected mosquitoes, without danger to the individual.



MILITARY HOSPITAL TO OPEN SOON—It has been announced by Pensions Minister Mackenzie in Ottawa that the Staff House in Peterborough across from Genelco has been taken over by his department for the purpose of a 350-bed hospital, which it is hoped will be in operation in about six weeks. A view of the exterior (Upper Left) shows the attractive entrance to the modern buildings, which are equipped with the most up-to-date appliances. Upper Right, shows one of the attractive rooms which will help to make pleasant surroundings for the patients. The spacious beautifully furnished lounge (Lower Left) opens off the entrance hall and it is not yet known whether the bowling alleys (Lower Right) will be kept intact or renovated. A week ago the Examiner contacted Mr. Mackenzie, who refused to make any statement at that time. This is the method being used by the government to alleviate a reported shortage of hospital accommodation for military personnel.

Ghost Plane

TORONTO, Aug. 3—(CP).—Airmen in No. 1 Training Command are telling a story of a student airman flying from Kingston to Toronto who was horrified to see the outline of a Focke-Wolfe 109 heading toward him over Lake Ontario. He quickly banked out of its path only to discover it was a model plane which had got away from its owner.

Montreal Strike Not Warranted

OTTAWA, Aug. 3 — (CP) — Labor Minister Mitchell said today in the Commons that he did not believe the strike of Montreal tramway employees "was warranted".

On looking at the national and think the strike is warranted on such a point," said Mr. Mitchell international situation, I don't after outlining the cause of the walkout which began at midnight last night.

He said the strike arose out of a dispute over a clause in a new agreement being negotiated between the Company and the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees. In the clause the Union asked that all new employees join the C.B.R.E. within 30 days after employment. The Company declined to agree

Nazi Doctors Spread Disease

MOSCOW, Aug. 3—(AP). — The Ukraine state atrocities committee charged today that 150,000 patients died in a German hospital at Slavuta, about 160 miles west of Kiev, during the two years of Nazi occupation.

The committee charged that German doctors intentionally spread infectious diseases by herding new patients at gunpoint into a room where 1,800 were alrready dying of typhoid and tuberculosis.

Evidence was collected by investigators under Nikita Kruschev, head of the Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, said the committee, which included medical and legal experts. Their findings were given a full page, with photographs, in all Soviet newspapers.

The patients were starved to death on a diet of 250 grams of ersatz flour, made of ground woodpulp and containing less than two per cent. of starch, the committee said.

Wartime Staff House Taken Over Becomes 350-Bed Hospital

Conversion of the so-called staff house on Monaghan Road into a military hospital with accommodation for 350 patients was announced in Ottawa Wednesday afternoon by Hon. Ian Mackkenzie, Minister of Pensions and Health.

"We expect to have this hospital in operation in abont six weeks," Mr. Mackenzie said. "The building is in excellent shape, and will require only minor alterations to make it quite suitable for hospital purposes."

The building was erected by Wartime Housing Limited for the Department of Munitions and Supply as a hostel or boarding house for single men coming to this city to work in local factories engaged in war work.

The accommodation for five hundred men was never fully utilized, and as registration gradually decreased the staff house was vacated and closed on April 1 last. Several weeks ago representatives of the Department of Pensions examined the building, and it was understood then that it was being transferred from the Department of Munitions and Supply on Tuesday, August 1.

Virtually New

The building is virtually new, and other than alterations which may be required for its change of use it should need few, if any, repairs. It was designed to provide attractive and comfortable facilities for some hundreds of men, including an expansive lounge, reading and writing rooms, dining hall, bowling alleys and other details of commodious self-contained living quarters with provision also for social and recreational diversions.

Information came to the Examiner last week that the transfer of the property was approaching decision, and it was reported that the Department of Pensions was taking charge on August 1. Confirmation was not issued officially until yesterday afternoon after press time. It was also announced that the Department was acquiring from the Department of Munitions and Supply a similar building in Kingston with accommodation for 250 patients.

Representaions have been made several times by the city council urging the Government to utilize the staff house for hospital or convalescent purposes, and the council's suggestions were presented by G. K. Fraser, M.P.

Jacob Low informed the Examiner today that the executive of the West Peterborough Liberal Association recommended to the Hon. Mr. Mackenzie the use of the staff house as a military convalescent hospital in a resolution passed on April 26, 1943.

It was suggested then that the building might be adaptable for the care of injured service men during and after the war and the resolution was acknowledged by the Minister.

Senator Duffus telephoned The Examiner from Ottawa this afternoon that the department expects to receive nearly four hundred patients in about six weeks.

"They have been moving fast on this project since it was decided to take over the Peterborough building," Senator Duffus said. "Some alterations have to be made for the special needs as a military hospital, and I was told that extensive improvements are to be made to the grounds around the buildings, so as to provide suitable outdoor facilities for men who have reached that stage of recovery.

"The staff is being assembled from men who have been in the service, but there is no announcement yet as to who will be in charge."

It is understood that plans are already under way for the transfer of patients from other military hospitals to Peterborough.

EXTRA!

LONDON, August 3 — (AP). — Flying bombs crashed on London and Southern England in salvos for 14 hours to-day in the longest sustained attack since the Germans fired the first across the Channel seven weeks ago.

At mid-afternoon, the bombardment slackened.

At least 18 persons were killed, raising the total death toll to 4,763 since the Germans began using this weapon.

Ten men repairing bomb damage were killed by a robot in their billet next door to a mortuary containing the victims of an earlier explosion. Eight others were killed when a group of houses was wrecked, adding to the 817,000 buildings destroyed or damaged since the attacks started on June 15.

Red Fleet Races To Trap Huns

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 3—(AP)—Russian trucks loaded with speedboats, torpedoes and mines were speeding up the Soviet corridor to the Baltic Sea west of Riga today in an effort to bottle up any waterway escape of 20 to 30 trapped German divisions, advices from the Baltic countries said.

By sowing mines between the Island of Osel and the mainland and by operating speedboats against German shipping, the Russians could hamper any German evacuation through the Gulf of Riga.

The truck columns were reported headed for Dubulti on the gulf, within the 10-mile Russian corridor 25 miles west of Riga. The Russian plunge to the sea earlier this week cut off an area about the size of South Carolina garrisoned by up to 300,000 Germans of the 16th and 18th armies.

U.S. Units Driving Deep Into Brittany
Aim Spearhead At San Nazaire
Noted Hun U-Boat Base 80 Miles Away

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 3— (CP). — American armored columns, pressing into the heart of Brittany, captured Rennes today, while at every other point along a 120-mile front British and American forces were stabbing powerfully into the flanks of the enemy. Canadian troops struck out with a new attack south of Caen which imperilled the whole Nazi defence in Western France.

The American thrust to Rennes, ancient capital of Brittany and important rail and highway centre, came after a two-day advance which carried them 45 miles from Avranches.

The Americans were pushing swiftly toward their First Great War base of St. Nazaire, 80 miles beyond Rennes, which is almost in the centre of the Breton peninsula. Other west-bound columns were reported in the outksirts of Dinan, after an advance of 35 miles from Avranches.

Gen. Bradley's forces thus had opened a wedge 30 miles deep and 35 miles broad in the heart of Brittany in a series of open-field dashes.

Bypass St. Malo

St. Malo, a highly important port across the bay of St. Michel from Normandy, apparently was being bypassed by the rampaging American columns which had turned the corner into Brittany.

Dinan is 13 miles south of St. Malo and 100 miles east of the great port of Brest at Brittany's tip.

Rennes, central communications point of Brittany, is 80 miles north of Brittany's second port, St. Nazaire, at the mouth of the Loire River, and near the centre of the peninsula.

Dinan is 25 miles west of Pontorson, last officially reported position of the west-bound lancehead.

Lashing out with a new attack, supported by another of the Allies' smashing aerial and artillery bombardments which saturated the area of attack with steel and fire, the Canadians struck in the Tilly La Campagne area south of Caen.

This offensive intensified the danger to German troops holding stubbornly to the granite hills and forest lands which they have turned into a huge anti-tank area as the keystone of their defences.

Must Stand Now

It is in this area, British staff officers said yesterday, that the Germans must stand and fight with the prospect of being destroyed.

The first army of a prospective encirclement — Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's British—was weaving a strong web of steel from the direction of captured Vire and Estry.

And now the Canadians were striking out from the north with the apparent purpose of meeting it.

German armor milled about in the area yesterday, apparently in a state of confusion as to where to go. A deep penetration into the valleys below Caen from the Canadian sector, a dispatch pointed out, would cut across the Germans' communications and "result in final disaster for the enemy's campaign in the whole of the west of France."

Rocket-carrying Typhoons laid the whiplash to the confused enemy armor yesterday, sending 18 tanks to flaming destruction, damaging 19 more and destroying or damaging 126 other vehicles.

Fighter bombers smashed 32 more German tanks, and more than 800 other staff cars, half-tracks, trucks, motorcycles and buses.

Strike Cripples Montreal Bus Services

MONTREAL, August 3 —(CP) — Complete paralysis of Montreal's public transoprtation system passed through its 12th hour to-day without any indication from either side in a company-union dispute that a nearly resumption of negotiations was planned.

Abuot 4,000 tram and bus operators of Montreal Tramways Company remained idle to back up their demands for a union shop clause in the contract between the company and the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway employees ,and several hundred ticket-sellers, repair men and clerks stayed home or returned home after reporting because all normal function of the company were suspended.

Company and Union spokesmen remained silent on what was likely to be the next step looking toward breaking of the deadlock, Montrealers—calling on the experience gained in two previous tram strikes within the last 17 months —got to work as best they could or stayed at home pending a settlement.

the House of Commons at Ottawa that he did not think the strike was "warranted". Last minute conferences between the Labor Minister and Union and Company officials yesterday broke down before any basis for agreement had been reached.

Provincial government officials at Quebec refused comment except to say that the situation was legislation bans strikes or lockouts in public services.

Huge fleets of trucks of all types and sizes, backed by all available worked to take some of the edge off the tie-up of the city's 1,100 trams and buses which normally carry more than 1,000,000 a day.

As employees of Montreal tramways started their third walkout within 17 months, strike-wise Montrealers put into operation plans that had been in the making for the last few days.

Today, the employees of scores of large factories gathered at strategic points throughout the city ,to be picked up by fleets of trucks that took thousands to their jobs. The selected corners blossomed out suddenly in the huge signs indicating which company had selected each particular corner as a pick-up point.

Trucks could be seen everywhere. They were augmented by jammed taxis and by private vehicles, most of which picked up pedestrians until they were full.

But motorized conveyances could not cope entirely with the problem presented by withdrawal of the city's 1,100 streetcars and buses from their usual runs, and pedestrian traffic swelled as those not fortunate enough to get a lift started hiking to work.

Back To Bed

Still other residents faced with the prospectof walking up to seven or eight miles, merely checked to make sure the strike was definitely on and then went back to bed. Hundreds more converged on half a dozen railway stations within the city area, thankful that incoming suburban trains could at least bring them into the centre of the business district.

As the morning wore on, a powerful sun gave warning of another scorching day, but Montrealers were agreed that at least this third tie-up of public transportation came in better circumstances than did the previous two. One previous strike came in bitter February gales while another was in the midst of deep spring slush.

Meanwhile, police were on the alert throughout the city to cope with any disturbances that might arrive but early reports indicated the strike was without incident.

Last night, Paul Emile Marquette, regional organizer for the Canadian Congress of Labor, spoke to Montreal citizens in a radio broadcast and outlined the union's stand in regard to the strike.

Mr. Marquette said the union did not asked for a closed shop which would require the company to hire workers who were members of the union or who had to join the union before being employed.

Later he issued a statement saying the union was ready "at any moment" to discuss the possibility of a settlement to the best interests of the parties concerned.

The tramways strike in Montreal brought to five the number of major labor disputes in Eastern Canada. At Halifax, 3,000 shipyard workers in Halifax shipyards are on strike protesting refusal of the company to institute a union check-off and maintenance of the union membership clause. Almost 1,000 miners in three pits of the Acadia Coal Company at Stellarton, N.S., are protesting the dismissal of two employees. Taxicab operators at Quebec City are on strike in protest against the refusal of the Prices Board to approve an increase in the initial drop rate from 25 to 35 cents.

Yesterday about 500 workers at the Dominion Forge and Stamping Company struck when the company appealed to the National War Labor Board a decision handed down by the Ontario Regional War Labor Board which appointed an arbitrator to hear the dispute.

Polish Children Learn Not To Cry

The courage and resolution with which the persecuted people of Poland face life in that unhappy country is illustrated in an article by a well known member of the underground reprinted in "Poland Fights."

"One day in the autumn of 1943 I had occasion to travel on a Warsaw streetcar. On a nearby bench sat a young woman wearing widow's weeds and accompanied by her blond five-year-old daughter. At one of the stops another woman entered the street car with her four-year-old son. In the struggle to get onto the rear platform (the front of the car being reserved for Germans only) the boy hurt himself and began to cry. My neighbour in black took her small daughter on her lap to make room for the other woman who also took her weeping son on her knee. The little girl looked quietly at the boy and then said to him gravely 'Polish children do not cry.'

Silence fell upon the streetcar. The mother of the girl blushed with pride, the little boy stopped crying and the little girl explained 'So I was taught by my mother when my daddy was killed."

England maintained almost continuous barrage. Some robots were reported destroyed over the English Channel.

Seven hospitals were hit, 10 patients being killed at one, and explosions covered a wide area. One bomb wrecked a big house 50 yards from a shopping area crowded with women and it was feared — in the permissible phrase — that "there were a number of casualties."

One of the robots struck the wing of a hospital, killing two patients—one a soldier—and seriously injuring three nurses.

Anti-aircraft guns along the south coast were in action most of the night. At one point gunners destroyed two flying bombs simultaneously, one exploding aloft and the other diving into the water.

Damage to one hospital was estimated at $600,000.

Farmer Finds Soldiers Expert

Two soldiers who went out from the local Military Training Centre in Wednesday's heat to help a farmer wind up part of his harvest, surprised him by finishing around supper time the job he had estimated at a day and a half. He jacked up the pay accordingly, and the two experienced lads from the West were just as pleased as their temporary employer.

"A few of the boys from the camp who want to hlep in the local harvesting have been doing a fine job, according to reports that have come to me," said F. C. Paterson, agricultural representative to-day.

"Some of the farmers have already completed the harvest, and if this weather continues the peak will be passed, generally, in the district by the end of the week. Those who have finished the grain job and are all through represent one end of the scale of accomplishment. At the other end, are those who are still battling away with hay on their hands. Most of the wheat is cut, and the oat crop is next in the order of progress.

Recent rains followed by the heat are ideal conditions for the cornfields, and they are making a lot of growth these days."

Cherniakhovsky's forces led the drive toward East Prussia by capturing Vilkaviskis, 11 miles from the border, taking Budvetse, slightly to the south, then moving west and snaring Dydvizhe. Resistance was savage in spots, but there seemed to be no large-scale massing of Nazi forces east of the border.

Northwest of Kaunas, Cherniaktovsky's troops appeared to be aiming still another blow at East Prussia, hitting north of the Niemen River toward Tilsit. More than 100 places were reported taken in this area, and the westward drive apparently was broad enough to threaten Memel as well as Tilsit, or perhaps plunge through the two cities direct to the Baltic Sea.

Front dispatches said Germans were dying by the hundreds at the gates of Warsaw, while Red Army tanks edged closer to bridges over the Vistula. Stormoviks maintained low-level blasting of Nazi troops up and down the stream.

More Violence As Negroes Battle Whites

PHILADELPHIA, August 3—(AP) —The country's second war-production centre to-day looked to the White House for action to end a work stoppage that locked the city's transportation wheels a third day and gave rise to continued violence involving negroes and whites.

Up-grading of eight negro employees under a directive of President Roosevelt's Fair Employment Practices Committee precipitated the walk-out, which appeared almost certain to culminate in Government seizure of the Philadelphia Transportation Company with possible use of troops.

Police reported a new wave of window smashings, they attributed to negro youths, as a two-hour move by a small group of P. T.C. employees to restore service on Philadelphia's two subway lines ended in failure.

An official of the Transport Workers Union (C.I.O.) who declined to be quoted by name, said back-to-work appeals to the 6,000 employees had "only a ghost of a chance" to succeed "barring a big break in Washington." Government seizure, he agreed, would be such a "break."

13 in Hospital.

Inter-racial clashes stemming from the work stoppage sent at least 13 persons to hospital before yesterday's steady rain drove wandering bands of rioters indoors.

But the downpour also contributed to a transport snarl that kept 1460,000 of the areas 800,000 war workers from their jobs, the War Manpower Commission reported, and caused a central city business decline estimated by a retail trade spokesman at $1,000,000 a day.

Late appeals to the absentee workers were made by Mayor Bernard Samuel, who said the work stoppage as "sabotage of our country's war effort," and James Fitzsimon, T.W.U. International vice-president, who asserted that "a small group of self-seeking, disgruntled" employees were "trying to regain power over the dead bodies of American soldiers."

At least a dozen draft boards announced they were reclasifying into A-1 a total of more than 500 idle workers, who previously had occupational deferments.

In the course of the slow but steady hammering down of German strong points a British Guards Brigade operating with South Africans drove the enemy from Strada, 7½ miles south-south-east of Florence. Still farther to the south-east the British punched two miles north from newly-won Monte Maggio and Monte Scalari.

While up to 50 American heavy bombers yesterday pounded Rhone Valley communications and an enemy torpedo factory in Southern France other Italy-based warplanes battered German supply lines in Italy's Po Valley. Nine Allied planes were lost and two enemy aircraft were destroyed.

Italian Based Bombers Attack Austria

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 3—(AP)—American heavy bombers were reported by Berlin today to be attacking through Austria in southwest Bavaria and also in strength in western Germany in great co-ordinated blows from Italy and England.

The heavies struck numerous objectives in France yesterday from west and south Foul weather grounded the British bomb armada for the second night.

The Swiss told of planes flying over their eastern districts, sounding sirens in Zurich, St. Gotthard and St. Moritz. The direction of their flight suggested that the goal was in the area of Munich, fourth largest German city, a hub of five trunk railways and a manufacturing centre for components of robot bombs.

For 12 hours without let-up, salvoes of the flying bombs struck England today in the longest, unbroken attack to date.

There were no reports of heavy bombers operating from either Italy or Britain last night, but R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. home-based Mosquitos patrolled the French battle area and shot down five German planes. Two of these fell to Canadian planes.

Weather reduced visibility to zero over Cherbourg today, but deeper in France it was not so murky and some improvement was forecast.

Spotty weather limited Allied bombers based in Britain and Normandy to 2,500 offensive sorties yesterday. These included strategic attacks by the U.S. Army Air Forces and assaults by R.A.F. heavy bombers ranging from Belguim to the Bay of Biscay and deep into southern France, smashing bridges, rail lines, enemy fuel and supply dumps and armored vehicles.

Ten German planes were destroyed in combat over France yesterday while 17 Allied craft were lost.

Auto Accidents Kill 7,785 In 13 Years

Figures just released by the Minister of Highways, show that in the past thirteen years 7,785 persons have died and 135,918 were injured in motor vehicle accidents in the Province.

Comparing the death and injury toll with population figures, Mr. Doucett said, "This largely unnecessary loss is equivalent to the death total which would result from the complete destruction of a city such as Kenora; or of Simcoe and Wiarton combined; while the injury total would be about equal to the combined population of Windsor and Fort William; or of London Port Arthur and Sudbury."."

"During 1943," said Mr. Doucett, "there were 11,025 accidents reported to the Motor Vehicles Branch, in which 549 persons were killed and 8,628 persons were injured. Corresponding totals for 1942 were 567 killed and 10,205 injured."

"Largely due to an increase in fatal accidents involving child pedestrians, the death rate on the basis of miles travelled for gasoline consumption was higher than in 1942."

"This situation," said Mr. Doucett, "demands that motorists exercise increased care in driving and at the same time emphasizes the need for greater supervision and more attention to safety training by parents and teachers."

"Teh pedestrian is the greatest sufferrer as far as fatal accidents are concerned and an examination of the circumstances of such accidents should cause us to remember that for our own safety when walking, we have certain duties to perform and responsibilities to accept and not be too insistent upon our individual rights. At the same time the driver must keep in mind the fact that the vehicle under his control has great damaging power and he must drive accordingly."

"While the problem of accidents is thus to a large degree a matter for the individual pedestrian, the proportions of the problem, which will tend to increase when restrictions on driving are removed, make it a problem and a provincial problem as well. There is a need for increased and fulltime educational effort to combat accidents and I believe the close coordination of provincial agencies but also the organization of county and city safety groups who will be prepared to deal with problems intimate to the individual communities, in cooperation with the Department of Highways.

"While it is true that last winter was remarkably mild, and fair reserve stocks have been built up, total stocks throughout Canada and still below normal," he said. "Shortages of transportation, scarcity of truck drivers and other factors make it imperative for those who heat their homes with wood to stock up now, while supplies are adequate."

dozers were put into action to clear the highways.

Another British spearhead was driven into the centre of the 60-mile pocket south of Caen, its tip reaching within 2,000 yards of Aunay, south of Villers-Bocage.

The British were at the edge of Villers-Bocage itself, one of the chief German strongholds, and were believed to have turned it into a no-man's-land. Attacking by moonlight, the British took five towns before dawn in the Villers-Bocage vicinity.

Vire itself fell under British control, front dispatches reported.

(A BBC broadcast heard in New York said the town had been captured, although a dispatch from Associated Press War Correspondent Roger D. Greene said snipers still held out on its fringes.)

An American column moving from the southwest reached St. Pois, 10 miles from Vire—one of Normandy's chief communications centres.

This tightened the drawstring on the German rear guard, including the Elite Second and 116th Panzer Divisions, withdrawing in the Vire-Tessy-Percy-Villedieu pocket although they may be able to squeeze out through the 10-mile gap.

The invasion of France now has rolled into its 59th day with at least 85,000 prisoners among the casualties inflicted on the Germans.

(A Nazi correspondent at the headquarters of Field Marshal Guenther Von Kluge reported "the situation in the western sector of the invasion front still is critical" a Berlin broadcast said.

On the Allies' Eastern sector British troops attacking by moonlight captured five towns before dawn and are beating at the gates of the German's keystone city of Villers Bocage, which now is believed to be in no man's land.

The Germans still were defending the town's outer perimeter but were leaving it virtually empty for fear of Allied aerial attack and shelling, a front dispatch said.

Another British column striking in the region south of Villers Bocage advanced within 2000 yards of Aunay Sur Odon, seizing the village of La Lande to the West and high ground to the north.

The Germans were fighting savagely in the area between Villers Bocage and Aunay Sur Odon. Although it was not yet apparent whether they would continue to stand and fight or attempt a mass retreat, a front dispatch said there were signs that Nazi reinforcements were beginning to arrive in an effort to plug the breach torn in the centre of the German line.

Another pincers were forming around a great block of Germans with a British advance east of Vire which pushed another three miles to the vicinity of Vassy. A British staff colonel at the front said, "We are pushing eas' from the Vire Le Beny Bocage sector in a most satisfactory manner"

The American drive into Brittany was proceeding so fast and on such a wide front that it was completely ahead of reports and the only official word at Supreme Headquarters was the same as 24 hours ago, "the advance beyond Pontorson continues," although today it was known to cover far greater gains than yesterday. (22 words were censored here).

The blackout in reports was bound to furthe. bewilder the disorganized Germans who are fleeing so precipitously they have no way of really knowing where Lt.-Gen. Bradley's troops are.

Americans Hold Two-Thirds Guam Island

PEARL HARBOR, Aug. 3 (AP)— American forces have blasted the Japanese from another airfield and three more villages on Guam, and have captured nearly two-thirds of the former United States possession.

As soldiers and marines carved out gains of more than a mile all across the island, the doomed enemy force of perhaps 10,000 men today was falling back into the jungle-covered plateaus of Guam's northern third.

There was still no confirmation of Tokyo radio reports that Americans had invaded Rota Island between Guam and Tinian.

Rota is the last large island in the Southern Marianas not yet dominated by the Americans.

Americans captured Tiyan airfield, a fighter strip in the centre of Guam Tuesday. In the same sweep they took the towns of Saucio, Toto and Timoneng. They now have seven airfields in the Marianas, well within Superfortress range of Japan.

It was disclosed that the invaders have killed about 33,000 Japanese in the Southern Marianas, at a cost of 5,139 American dead or missing.

On the British New Guinea coast, 1,300 miles south of the Marianas, units of a Japanese force of perhaps 45,000 trapped in the Wewak-Aitape sector since April, made two new Banzai-shouting charges against American lines Tuesday. Both attacks were beaten back with heavy Japanese losses.

to the clause because it believed the employees should have the freedom of choice as to unions. The Company also was informed by its solicitors that such a clause would be contrary to the Laws of Canada and of the Province of Quebec.

Mr. Mitchell said that the government had made various attempts to settle the disagreement over the clause. Yesterday, he had suggested to Company and Union officials that the agreement be signed, but that the disputed clause not go into effect until the Supreme Court had ruled on whether it was legal or not.

The Company had accepted the suggestion and the Union had partlyaccepted it. However, the Union had asked that the agreement and the clause take effect immediately. Other suggested ways of settlement had been found unacceptable by the Union.

"I don't know of any labor dispute in which any government—and I am speaking of all governments—made more attempts to bring about a satisfacory settlement," Mr. Mitchell said in reply to Gordon Grayday, Progressive Conservative House Leader, who asked that the cause of the strike be outlined.

Mr. Mitchell said the strike was the third by tramway employees within "recent months." Causes of other walkouts had been settled. Wages did not enter the picture in the present walkout.

Great Retreat Started May Finish War

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The Allies continue to tear into the disorganized Nazi ranks on the invasion front of France, and a late dispatch from British headquarters in Normandy, says this is the beginning of "the great retreat."

That may well be so. The cold fact is the Germans are up against an overwhelming strength in both men and material which have been poured through the bloody beachheads of Normandy.

Hitler's fighting - machine in France is beginning to break up, just as it is doing on the eastern front.

If the Americans succeed in cutting off the Brest peninsula and capturing the great port of Brest —and today's reports indicate smashing progress—it will provide harbor and rail facilities which will add much to the Allied striking power. However, Cherbourg can fill the bill for the time being without Brest, and we may expect that there will be no delay in pressing the drive on Paris, for the Canadians and Britons are destroying the Nazi right wing and the centre in the Vire sector, while the Americans race into Brittany on the other flank.

Hitler's pagan Gods have deserted him. At last he's feeling the mighty weight of the Allied vise. With the Red armies slashing his entire line to ribbons, and today at the very border of the "sacred soil" of East Prussia, he can't spare troops from the eastern theatre to bolster his hard-pressed forces in France. And he has nothing like enough troops or equipment in the west to protect himself for long.

The Germans claim that the Allies have 50 divisions in Normandy. If that's so it might mean close to 700,000 men. When you consider that the Germans have only about 65 divisions in Western Europe, Hitler's problem becomes doubly clear, for he has many points to protect against further Allied invasions.

Sicily Recovers From War At Rapid Pace

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Reporter

CATANIA, Sicily — (CP) — It takes 90 minutes. The plane leaves Naples about eight in the morning, by 9:30 is at Catania. Sicily. Swiftly, a year ago, war whipped this rich, lovely island up into the maelstrom of modern conflict, spun it furiously, briefly, then as quickly moved on, leaving in its wake a battered land and a reeling- puzzled people.

But war is a long way from Sicily today. Not so much the war of battles and fronts and fighting but the war of ruined buildings, or hunger, personal suffering and spiritual torment. The industry of the Sicilian peasant and laborer when working for himself is incredible and his collective effort has returned the country to its peace-time state.

There are few indications of the 1943 campaign around now. Certainly not in the part traversed by the Canadians. There aren't more than 20 pieces of derelict equipment, Allied or enemy, in the fields and roads from the Pachino beaches, through that wide circle to Catania by way of Modica, Vizzini, Caltagirone, Valguarnera, Assoro, Nissoria, Leonforte, Agira, Regalbuto and Adreno. There may be a dozen burnt out tanks, trucks and guns, no more. On Pachino beach Italian barbed wire emplacements still stand where not cut through or blown by Canadian landing groups. A burnt out truck of the Loyal Edmonton Regiment is a short way up from the beach, while the front shield of a 17-pounder anti-tank gun is still in the water just a few yards from land. Salvage and clean-up have been thoroughly accomplished.

Officially or otherwise, whether they knew it or not, Canadian and British salvage units were wholeheartedly assisted by Sicilians everywhere. New tool sheds and primitive bits of peasant furniture have been made from Canadian equipment boxes with the name "Casket," code word for the landings, still discernible. Canaidans cables, ropes and chains, pick-axes and shovels, have found their ways into Sicilian farms, not to mention untold quantities of military boots, summer drill uniforms and wedge hats in current wear.

Airport Now Farm

Pachino Airport has just delivered up its first grain harvest since 1939. Reconstruction is proceeding space and in southern parts, where damage was slightest, is completed. New homes, built in traditional stocky peasant style, dot the countryside. Bridges over gaps, streams and rivers are finished, all well-done in stone or brick. Only two bridges of interest to Canadians are incomplete, between the Simeto River. Meanwhile, diversions and temporary bridges built by Canadian Corps Engineers last autumn are still in use.

Pachino, Modica and Caltagirone are cleaned up and damage rebuilt. Places like Vizzini, Granmichelo, Assero are also back where they were a year ago—just as dirty. In a direct line between Agira Hill and Mount Etna, is the Canadian Military Cemetery, spread around about a hilltop distinguishable for miles around.

Regalbuto and Adreno, two towns badly hit both by shelling and bombs, still lick their scores. But from their rubble order is coming forth. But Catania's life today is blissful. Indeed, so is that of all Sicily, which is forgetting, all too quickly, that just a 90-minute plane ride finds war a neighboring, and grim reality.

Approve Bill To Stabilize Prices Of Fish

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Aug. 3.—(CP).—With the blessing of members of Parliament from both the east and west coasts, the House of Commons last night placed its approval on a bill to assure stable prices for fish in the period of transition from war to peace.

In six hours of calm discussion which contrasted with the sharp exchanges that occurred early in the week on family allowances, the House advanced two important pieces of post-war legislation, dealing with fish prices and export trade.

The export credits insurance bill passed through third reading and the fish floor prices bill received second reading.

The export trade legislation is designed to set up a corporation to insure exporters against inability to collect the price of the products sold whether from the insolvency of the purchaser, currency fluctuations or inability of the purchaser to pay due to governmental restrictions.

It also authorizes the government to lend money to other governments or their agencies to enable them to purchase goods produced in Canada and guarantee the securities of other governments and their agencies issued on account of the purchase of Canadian goods.

Trade Minister MacKinnon said the insurance feature of the bill was on the same lines as British legislation which had been in effect for 26 years. He regarded the insurance phase of the bill as the one which the government would prefer to see employed after the lending and guarantee provisions as designed for emergency conditions after the war.

When Howard Green (PC-Vancouver South) urged that provision be inserted to bar loans to the governments of enemy countries Finance Minister Illsey said that was not desirable. The scheme would last only three years from the time of passage of the bill. It might be desirable to help the people of former enemy countries if they were under different governments.

Fisheries Minister Bertrand on his floor prices bill said it might never be necessary to use the $25,000,000 fund provided for the purchase of fish should prices fall to unduly low levels.

The bill, however, would offer security to fishermen on the same basis as the bill already passed to provide a floor for farm prices.

COBOURG, Aug. 3—(ENS)—Cyrus E. Winter, formerly of Cobourg, was appointed to the post of meter reader and clerk, at a special meeting of Cobourg Public Utilities Commission on Tuesday night. He will fill the vacancy left by George Lowe, who is ill in Toronto General Hospital. Mr. Winter is at present in Montreal but will return shortly to Cobourg with his wife and family. Eight applied for the post.

Accounts passed at the meeting amounted to $391.13 in the electrical department and $491.30 in the water department.

Berlin Consented?

LONDON, August 3 — CP). — A Reuters News Agency dispatch from Stockholm said last night it was reliably reported there that the change in presidents in Finland, in which Baron Manerheim succeeded Risto Ryti, was preceded by a Finnish-German agreement in Berlin consenting to a separate Finnish peace with Russia.

Plywood Homes Believed Practical Plan

TORONTO, August 3. — Before the war the commonest use for plywood was when father fretorked a frilly frame in which to place slogans such as "God Bless Our Home." But that was before plywood came into its own. For plywood has grown up in importance, kboth as wartime construction material where lightness and toughness are necessary, and also as a substitute for brick and mortar in building construction.

Prefabricated homes are expected to be a post-war booster of plywood. In fact, efforts are now being made to prove by experiments that plywood is as good as the brick or stone structure. Houses built in factories have been transported and set up all over Canada and the United States, and these, according to reports, are proving sat-

Mr. Churchill Is Optimistic

Prime Minister Churchill, whose duty it has been in the past to make many reports of loss and disaster to Parliament and to the Allied world, is now able to speak in terms of secure optimism; he has even gone so far as to say that we may enjoy victory sooner than we expected. There are people, of course, who have been expecting victory daily ever since our forces landed in Normandy, but their attitude was less one of optimism than of unreasonable euphoria. But now that the Anglo-American forces have broken out of the Normandy peninsula, and the Russians are moving at astounding speed from East to West, it really looks as though victory might be ours before winter.

But before that time we must expect the Germans to do their uttermost, not in the hope of winning, but in the hope of leaving marks on us which we shall never forget. The rocket bombs, as Mr. Churchill has revealed, have done serious damage and have killed and maimed thousands of British people. The Germans insist that they have other and more terrible weapons, and they may speak the truth. Germany has determined to go down fighting (as all her plans for a negotiated peace have miscarried) and when Germany is losing the fighting becomes very dirty indeed.

Mr. Churchill also made the surprising statement that Japan might not last very long after Germany had fallen; this will be very good news for those who have assumed that the Japanese war might go on for years after the European war was over. It must have given Mr. Churchill the greatest pleasure to make his latest report to Parliament—at least as much pleasure as it has given the world to hear his hopeful words.

The Importance Of Turkey

Several reports have been heard during the past month that Turkey is ready to declare war on the Axis. As a result several newspapers have been saying that Turkey has waited too long, that we no longer want her, and that she need not expect to have a say in the peace settlement. Now it is true that Turkey has played both ends against the middle and has kept out of the war as long as possible, and is undoubtedly entering it with an eye to national advantage. But it is not true that we do not want Turkey in the war; we do, and Britain has kept on good terms with Turkey for precisely that reason.

If Turkey enters the war we shall have the quickest route to the Balkans laid open to us, and we can very quickly give Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania their chance of surrender or ruin. We can, if necessary, force the Germans to fight on another front. And if Turkey makes these developments possible, she will want the Dodecanese islands as her reward.

The war is moving so rapidly now that it may turn out that Turkey has waited too long. Turkey has been playing her own game since the war began, and why not? But if we have to continue the war for another year, the entry of Turkey would be of great value to the Allied cause, and we should not underestimate that possibility now.

J'Accuse, They Cried, And

The best summing up of the affair between Mr. J. C. Landeryou of the Social Credit Party and Mr. Coldwell of the C.C.F. Party at Lethbridge, seems to be in the words of Mr. Dooley—"J'accuse, they cried, and t'run him out!" Mr. Landeryou says that C.C.F. ushers rushed him out of the hall where Mr. Coldwell was speaking, and beat him up in the lobby; Mr. Coldwell says that the affair has been misrepresented and misreported in the press, and that Mr. Landeryou was handled quite gently; he admits, however, that a C.C.F. supporter "struck at Landeryou and evidently scratched him near the ear".

The C.C.F. seems to be exceedingly unfortunate in its relations with the Canadian Press, for it very frequently complains of being misquoted or misrepresented. Last December Mr. Harold Winch told an audience in Calgary that his party was a militant revolutionary party, and would not hesitate to use the police and the military to deal with any Canadians who opposed its program, when once it was in power. In order to cover this indiscreet outburst the C.C.F. had to explain that Mr. Winch had been misquoted, and Mr. Winch had to explain that he had not meant exactly what he said, or had spoken in fun, or something of the sort. Frankly, we cannot understand how the Canadian Press reports the C.C.F. inaccurately when it has a very high standard of accuracy in all the rest of its work. The Canadian Press cannot be accused of a bias against the C.C.F.; it gives that party a great deal of publicity, and indeed contributed Mr. Jolliffe, the Ontario leader, to that party.

It looks as though Mr. Landeryou had been looking for trouble in Lethbridge, and he got it; he provoked C.C.F. adherents to a display of strong-arm work, and thus far he was to blame. But what many people will want to know is this: why were the C.C.F. strong-arm boys so well organized? Is this the shape of things to come?

Collaborator's Haircut

A few days ago we published an editorial disagreeing with someone who wanted to restore the pillory as a punishment of minor offences; we protested against public humiliation as a form of punishment. But we think that those British newspapers are mistaken which have labelled 'fascist' the action of the Norman French, who have shaved the heads of several women who 'collaborated' with the Germans during the occupation. The 'collaboration' in their cases was of a special kind; they were prostitutes who had consorted with the Germans; apparently, their countrymen thought that even prostitution should have its limits and its integrity, and therefore these women had their heads shaved, or rough-trimmed, so that everyone might know what sort of Frenchwomen they were.

When we think what might have happened, we feel that these women got off lightly, and that their countrymen showed restraint and even a rough humour in their punishment. Hair is a woman's crowning glory, and has always been an important instrument of enticement: off it comes! They have lost their crowns, and they shall entice no more! The women were perhaps handled roughly, and they are laughing-stocks until their locks grow again, but they are unhurt in any serious sense.

Weigh their barbering against the punishments which the Germans and Italians inflicted upon those who collaborated with their enemies. The Germans tortured them grimly, and put them in wretched prisons to die: the Italians gave them castor oil in doses which caused death or lifelong invalidism. No, we cannot become excited because some Normans have shaved the heads of a few too-obliging Norman women. We think that they got off very lightly under the circumstances.

Allowances To Soldiers' Wives

A good deal of incorrect information is current about the allowances which are made to soldiers' wives, and recently a woman signing herself Sympathetic Housewife wrote to the Timmins Press on the subject, alluding to a soldier's wife with six children who received only $60 a month. We are glad to see that Sympathetic Housewife has been put right by a soldier, who gives the enclosed table as a record of what a woman with six children actually does get:

Husband's Compulsory Ass't.	$23.00
Dep. Allowance (wife)	37.20
1st Child	13.92
2nd Child	12.00
3rd Child	10.00
4th Child	8.00
5th Child	8.00
6th Child	8.00
Total	$120.12

We reproduce this for the benefit of any of our readers who are interested in the subject; there are many among the United Nations who consider the Canadian allowance very generous.

NOTE AND COMMENT

"Cut Rommel's Centre", says a headline. As a work-out, we hope, for the greater task of cutting Goering's.

We are expected to send 75,000,000 dozen eggs to Great Britain this year, so if you are waiting for the price of eggs to drop, you'd better take a chair.

An American novelist says that one of his dreams is to go to England, walk into a peaceful old English inn, and buy a glass of good beer. We gather from British papers that many Englishmen cherish that same ambition.

The Little Man

(By GRANT DEXTER)

OTTAWA: In the preceding article some of the long view arguments against wage increases as an alternative to family allowances were summarized.

But there is as well a short view argument. If social security is to be sought in wage increases, the price ceiling policy must be abandoned. Wage increases would be reflected in costs and in prices and as the prices of manufactured goods advanced, compensation by way of higher prices would have to be allowed to farmers. Inflation, in greater or lesser degree—probably the former—would be inevitable.

To some people there may seem to be a weak spot in this argument. Why not allow wage increases only to those receiving say, less than 50 or 60 cents per hour? The record, here, is quite clear. Wage differentials cannot be brushed aside. If low-wage workers get an increase, the higher wage workers must also be paid more. Recent evidence on this point will be found in the steel strike. The wage schedules are like a ladder, but you must not change the position of the rungs.

THERE are additional arguments in favour of family allowances. The principle has already been conceded in the income tax. If you are a married man with a family and earning more than $1,200 a year you are allowed an exemption for each dependent child. If you are a single man you get no exemption.

It may be said that this is not the same thing as a family allowance; that all the state does in this case is to take less from the taxpayer with a family. The point, however, cannot be brushed aside so lightly. In the income group above $1,200, two men, one married with children and the other unmarried, are both doing precisely the same kind of work and are receiving the same income. The state permits one to keep a higher income than the other because he has a family dependent uopn him. But if both men are earning less than the income tax minimum, the state does not intervene. Why, it may be asked, should the state be concerned about the families of men with, relatively, higher incomes and not with the families of men with low incomes?

Then there is a minor point with respect to soldiers' dependents. The allowance here is generous—much more so than under the Unemployment Insurance Act. Should the state place a higher value in terms of allowances, on children because their father is in the armed services? Will not the children be equally deserving when the war is over and their daddy is once more a civilian?

Yet to increase the dependents' allowances under the Insurance Act would wreck its soundness. The result of substantial unemployment would be to bankrupt the fund, just as the fund in the United Kingdom became bankrupt in the middle of the inter-war period. Family allowances would buttress insurance funds of this type.

MUCH the same point is made with respect to housing. It is argued that slums are the result of extremely low incomes. The breaking point is somewhere around a rental of $20 per month. Unless the head of the family can pay this scale of rent, the result will almost inevitably be a slum home.

It is no answer to the problem, it is argued, for local, provincial or Dominion authorities to do away with slums and build decent homes for the low-income people. Unless the income of the occupants is sufficient to support a fair rental, or the state goes in heavily for subsidies, the slum condition will recur.

The remedy for slums, it is held, is to raise the income of the lowest-paid groups. If it is possible for people to pay rentals of $20 instead of $12 to $15 per month, the slums will tend to disappear. Family allowances, therefore, are regarded as greatly strengthening the base of the national housing policy. It will enable such a policy to be carried on—with government guarantees as in the pre-war policies—by private enterprise and in a way which will serve all the people.

Likewise, it is argued, family allowances will be reflected in better education, improved health and efficiency. Particularly in rural areas the difficulty has often been that the farmers could not pay adequate salaries to teachers or afford proper buildings. To the extent that the income of the needier farmer is increased, these difficulties will be lessened. The trouble, it is believed, is not that farmers are opposed or indifferent to education. In the past, over wide areas, they have been unable to afford it.

An important point with advocates of family allowances, therefore, is that you must not regard the total expenditure as entirely additional to present expenditures. A substantial part of the money will be spent in such a way as to reduce or to eliminate other calls for cash.

Families in the low-income group have many and varied needs. Unless you are prepared to deal with each individual case and provide aid in kind rather than in money, the payment of a lump allowance to the parents is the best method. Money is the common denominator: it will buy food, or clothing, a better home, or better schooling. In scores of different ways it can operate to improve the home and, thus, the children in it.

IT is claimed for family allowances that in no other way can money be applied so directly to the group which needs it. Only in this way can the state reach directly the group—rural and urban—which needs aid.

Administratively, the advantages are great. Family allowances, it is pointed out, are just as simple to administer—perhaps more so—than old age pensions. You draw a line on income. Every head of a family below the line gets the allowance. There is no discrimination within the low-income group and no social stigma attaches to the payments. Moreover, the money is invested in that part of the rising generation which most needs it.

THERE are two further points: Family allowances, it is claimed, offer an escape from the constitutional difficulties which hitherto have beset this problem. The right of the Dominion to give such allowances can scarcely be questioned. The power of the Dominion to tax is unlimited.

Secondly, family allowances, it is contended, will greatly simplify the administration of unemployment relief in the event of another depression. In the 1930's many cases were reported of heads of families who preferred to live on relief rather than accept work—because the difference between their income from relief and the income they would earn was not sufficient to attract them. If family allowances are adopted, relief payments would be paid only to adults. There would be no payments for children because such payments would be made by the Dominion as a matter of course. Therefore, the loss of income due to unemployment would be substantial and the income obtainable by relief relatively much smaller. The incentive to work would be correspondingly greater.

THE $64 QUESTION — By Goldberg

The Radio Report

(By B. T. R.)

OTTAWA: The report of the special committee on radio broadcasting, just tabled in Parliament, like similar reports in recent years contained a declaration of confidence in the Canadian Broadcasting Act, 1936, which is the foundation of the nationally-owned radio system. Yet its recommendation, involving an amendment to the act, that the position of a full-time chairman be created, is more sweeping than appears on the surface. It signalizes a change of viewpoint from that found in the radio reports to Parliament of 1942 and 1943. It will be central issue if and when the government brings down an amendment to the act, and it will be obviously the chief point of argument among public-minded supporters of the national radio system.

The question of internal organization of the CBC which has remained an acute problem for several years and especially since the 1942 committee brought in a report that vigorously criticized the general manager of that day, Gladstone Murray, has moved through several phases and an observer may hold legitimate doubts that 1944 radio report has discovered the final answer. At the same time, the problem of relations between the publicly-owned CBC and the private radio stations has obviously grown into an acute issue, and the committee's references to this will be studied with interest.

Regarding internal organization the report finds that the functions performed by the general manager, a post vacant since Dr. James Thomson resigned in November, 1943, embrace two fields which are wide apart. It said:

"One function calls for imagination, a broad culture, a comprehensive understanding of our national problems, and an enthusiastic faith in the future of our country. Whilst for the other, business experience, administrative ability, and a positive mind are required."

FOR these reasons, the committee recommended that a full-time salaried chairman be appointed, in addition to the salaried general manager. The first impression that this would mean two heads of the CBC of comparatively equal rank and authority is mistaken, as a reading of the report will show. What the committee has in mind is to supercede the general manager and restrict the functions of the latter to that of business administrator. The report speaks of "a full-time chairman and under him and the board the general manager". As if to emphasize the words "under him" it goes on: "Should any conflict arise, the authority of the chairman must be predominant or such matters might be referred to the board".

The chief problem of the C.B.C., now a thriving public utility, is to find the right man to run it. The 1944 report, in advising a division of functions, is virtually an admission that the right man cannot be found. To see the force of this, one needs to recall what the 1942 report said. The general manager, it said, "should be preferably a Canadian of character and integrity.... He should have organizing ability and administrative and executive experience although not necessarily in the field of business.... The chief executive does not need to be a specialist in finance, or a specialist in publicity; he needs to be a person who can, if necessary, recruit specialists, direct their activities, weigh and consider their advice and their recommendations, and in the last analysis accept responsibility for their actions. His education and experience should fit him to deal with public questions in a broad and imaginative way. He should have enthusiasm for his country, and its services and recognize the contribution that broadcasting may make to your national life".

THIS rather idealistic description of the kind of man required as general manager, it should be noted, was based directly on the original scheme of things adhered to in CBC policy down to hte present. The 1943 report, for instance, reaffirmed the principle that "decisions as to policy are to be made by its board of governors while administration is to be unified under a general manager." Lack of confidence in the general managership of Mr. Murray had the effect of causing the board of governors to hedge around the authority of general manager with a series of bylaws, chiefly designed to transfer financial controls to the assistant general manager. But these bylaws were rescinded when Dr. Thomson took over, and his tenure of office was the last occasion in which the original principle of separating policy-making in the board from administrative responsibility in the general manager was in force. It is apparent htat, since the resgination of Dr. Thompson, this simple and sound principle has come under questioning, especially by the parliamentarians of the radio committee.

Under the proposed set-up the salaried chairman is also the head of the policy-making body of the CBC. The proposal to identify a large part of administrative responsibility with the policy-making authority is certainly a major departure from the original principle of separation found in the act.

THE 1944 report contains a marked change of tone towards private broadcasting from that found in the 1943 report. The latter said the committee recognized that private stations "serve a useful function," and let it go at that. This year, however, the Canadian Association of Broadcasters made several recommendations, chiefly that licensing powers should be transferred to an impartial body separate from the CBC. The 1944 report rejected this request, with the comment: "We believe that the regulations with reference to control over the privately-owned stations have been exercised with fairness, and we recommend a continuation of that policy." Nothing would be gained, it reported, by having an over-all controlling commission. It added, somewhat cryptically, that future radio committees might investigate private broadcasting, as well as the CBC.

This last may be taken as an admission that the whole position of private broadcasting requires further investigation. In any case, the issues opened up by the private broadcasters will inevitably arise again. The 1944 report contains obvious hints that the growth and expansion of radio will soon usher in an era of important development. Much costly preliminary work and expenditure, it said, will have to be made to develop television, frequency modulation and facsimile. In addition, with opening of CBC's short-wave station this fall, a new era in that field will bring fresh problems for parliament. More than ever, it seems, the truth of a 1942 recommendation is apparent, that a standing or special committee should review each year the situation in radio broadcasting in Canada.

Canossa

As the German armies in Italy retreat northward they will pass close to the ruins of the ancient stronghold of Canossa. The castle of Canossa rose in the foothills of the Apennines some twenty miles southeast of the city of Parma. It is one of the famous castles of history. The humiliation of a king was enacted there. To those of Hitler's armies who remember their history, Canossa will be a portent. They will remember King Henry IV of Germany and his struggle with Pope Gregory, who loved justice and hated iniquity.

Outraged by Henry's mode of life and his oppression of the Saxons, the Pope admonished the King to alter his ways. Henry defied the Pope. Thereupon Gregory declared the King accursed and excommunicate. Evil days followed for King Henry. The Saxons plotted his removal. The King's vassals joined in the plot. The King hastened to seek forgiveness of the Pope, who was at the castle of Canossa. In midwinter Henry crossed the Alps and journeyed to the castle. Fasting and in tears, he stood before the barred gate begging for an audience. He wore the coarse garments of a pilgrim and stood barefoot in the snow. At the end of three days he was permitted to enter the castle and receive absolution. Later the King was again excommunicated. His reign was a succession of civil war, treason among his followers and finally abdication. Henry met defeat in Rome and with his armies fled northward to final disaster. Thus too the armies of Hitler retreat.

"We shall not go to Canossa," Bismarck said, in a happier moment in Germany's history. The Chancellor's words were prophetic. Within their own country retribution is hurled upon the Germans from the air. It is visited upon them by the underground of the suffering nations surrounding them. Anathema to the civilised world, the Nazis will have good reason to account themselves accursed and excommunicate as the armies of liberation approach their borders.—New York Times.

THE ESSENTIAL BLIND

Blind men at the bomber modification centre in St. Paul, sorting pieces of metal which have fallen to the floor, are chalking up a better work record than did workers with good eyes. Their sensitive fingers sort bolts and nuts and rivets and screws and washers—nearly 5,000 different kinds of "sweepings"—for salvage. Many of these parts are impossible to get new.—Minneapolis Star-Journal.

REPRISALS FOR BOMBS?

The flying bomb which is being used by the enemy against Southern England may represent one of the last devilish resorts of a doomed dictator seeking to escape retribution, but is there any reason, ethical or military, why murder of civilians should be tolerated for a moment longer without reprisals being undertaken after due warning?

A stern answer should be returned. Let the German people — who have hailed the flying bomb as a means to victory through terror—be warned quite definitely that if mass murder by indiscriminate bombing continues, we shall take reprisals which will bring them swiftly to a realization that murder does not pay.

In an article quoted today, Mr. Sydney Carroll asks if, in addition to a carefully directed onslaught upon the bomb-discharge platforms, there should not be attacks upon all the principal German cities, obliterating every building —not upon the civilians, but the towns and cities in which they live.

Let the Germans consider that. They know we have the means to do it. — Sheffield Telegraph.

A Bible Message

Then cometh he to a city of Samaria, which is called Sychar, near to the parcel of ground that Jacob gave to his son Joseph. Now Jacob's well was there. Jesus therefore, being wearied with his journey, sat thus on the well: and it was about the sixth hour. There cometh a woman of Samaria to draw water: Jesus saith unto her, Give me to drink....

Then saith the woman of Samaria unto him, How is it that thou, being a Jew, askest drink of me, which am a woman of Samaria? for the Jews have no dealings with the Samaritans. Jesus answered and said unto her, If thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that saith to thee, Give me to drink; thou wouldest have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water.... The woman saith unto him, Sir, give me this water, that I thirst not, neither come hither to draw.

Jesus saith unto her, Go, call thy husband, and come hither. The woman answered and said, I have no husband. Jesus said unto her, Thou hast well said, I have no husband: for thou hast had five husbands; and he whom thou now hast is not thy husband: in that saidst thou truly. The woman saith unto him, Sir, I perceive that thou art a prophet....

The woman then left her waterpot, and went her way into the city, and saith to the men, Come, see a man, which told me all things that ever I did: is not this the Christ. (John 4: 5-7, 9, 10, 15-19, 28, 29.)

A girl fresh from the West Highlands visited a sister living in Glasgow. At the outskirts of the town she stopped at a toll-bar and began to rap smartly with her knuckles on the gate. The keeper, amused at the girl's action, and curious to know what she wanted, came out, when she very demurely interrogated him as follows:

"Is this Glesca?"

"Yes."

"Is Peggy in?"

An Englishman touring Canada was staying at a wayside hotel. One night it was very cold and the Englishman, feeling it pretty badly, came downstairs early next morning to get warm. At the same time a trapper, who had been out looking at his traps, came in at the door. Icicles were hanging from his moustache and with a pitying expression the Englishman looked at him and exclaimed:

"By jove, old man, what room did you sleep in?"

London Children Know War Terror

BY ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 3 — (CP) — This has been a strange childhood for London's children of the war. Not that they seem to mind particularly themselves but as you see them leaving town these days there is the feeling their tiny minds haven't had a chance to know much else than constant change.

Today the wooded parks and the Commons and the alleys and even the gaping places where the 1940's bomb fell and flowers now grow are pretty well silent and deserted of children. Because with the flying bombs coming to London the elders have sent their children away in even greater numbers than they did during the war's early heavy bombings.

It was curious in the "in-between" period, the time between the blitz and today's buzz bombs, to see children playing in the cleaned-out ruins of what the early bombs left. The childish mind doesn't connect anything dreadful with 1940's bomb site. It became just an open space in which to play while the wild flowers gradually took root among the rocks of old foundations and made it that much more pleasant.

Those were the "playgrounds" which a great many of London's children found and took over when they returned from their earlier evacuation to safer territories than this city. And now they have set forth on their wanderings again.

Many of these children were born as the city rocked to the anti-aircraft barrage and trembled to the thud and thunder of fallen bombs. In their short span of life, they haven't had much chance to enjoy the usual childhood joys and already, in the buzz-bomb era, new children have come into the world as a silent blacked-out city listened to the throb of the flying bomb and waited for its explosion.

Many of these children who left London—some with their mothers, some without— have for their first memory the day when they went to the A. R. P. centre to be measured for and equipped with their gas mask.

Rumors Rampant Monty To Run For Parliament

By DOUGLAS AMARON,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, August 3 —(CP) — When the war ends, General Montgomery may find himself engaged in a new campaign, the battle of politics.

Rumors, which so far have brought no comment from the commander of the Allied forces in Normandy, suggest there may be a political career waiting for him when he finishes his immediate job of licking the Germans.

"There is some ground for believing that the general does cherish political ambitions, and we agree with those who are hoping that eventually he will stand for parliament," said the Daily Mirror in an editorial titled "Monty, M. P.?"

"He would possess the confidence of a great proportion of his countrymen and make an ideal representative of all those who are fighting in this war. It is easy to imagine his becoming an outstanding figure in the House of Commons.

"It is suggested, with what degree of accuracy we do not know, that he contemplates associating himself with the Liberal party, in which case that ancient and somewhat moth eaten political organization might once more give the other parties a real run for their money."

Brian Colquhoun, 41-year-old director general of Aircraft Production factories of the Ministry of Works, is resigning his position to go into practice as a consulting engineer. Colquhoun always kept pair of wooden scissors on the wall of his office inscribed "to be used for red tape only."

Capt. Lewis Ritchiie, successor to Sir Eric Mieville as press secretary at Buckingham Palace, tells this story:

Lady Spencer, one time lady-in-waiting to the Queen and now a county chairman of the Women's Land Army, was calling at the palace and as she passed through the gates a group of American soldiers asked her the meaning of the letters W. L. A. on her armlet.

"Women's Land Army," she replied.

"Is that so," said a soldier. "We thought it might be we love America."

Wise Cracks At Banking Talk

OTTAWA, August 3 — (CP). — The best protection that can be given Canadian taxpayers is to get the Canadian economy in a position to provide prosperity and to permit of expansion of industry, Dr. W. C. Clark, Deputy Minister of Finance, said on Wednesday before the House of Commons Banking Committee during discussion of the Industrial Development Bank Bill.

He spoke after Arthur Slaght (L-Parry Sound) expressed fear the taxpayers' money would be lost on bad loans which would not be taken by any other borrower.

"Should the name of this bank be changed to "Lame Ducks Incorporated? " asked W. A. Fraser (L-Northumberland).

"I would suggest it be changed to 'Sure Losers Incorporated,'" said Mr. Slaght.

Dr. Clark said the Bill was not for the purpose of lending to the bankrupts and sure losers, but to enable small enterprise to get capital which it would not otherwise get on reasonable terms no matter how sound the risk.

2 Million People Eligibe To Vote

QUEBEC, Aug. 3—(CP)—Nearly 2,000,000 persons will be eligible to cast their ballots at the August 8 general provincial election, Antoine Lemiex, K.C., clerk of the Crown in Chancery, said here Wednesday. Mr. Lemieux added that the revision of electoral lists is almost finished.

There were 753,000 names on the lists at the last general provincial election in 1939 and the present increase is due to wartime population increases and the fact that for the first time Quebec women are allowed to vote at a provincial election.

Russian Pilots Stripping Fairbanks Of Merchandise

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Aug. 3 (CP) —A young pistol-toting officer, his pockets bulging with the large-sized pre-war American dollar bills, today is a familiar sight on Fairbanks streets. Citizens are beyond the eye-brow-raising stage because they've seen similarly-dressed men come and go for the last two years.

The officer, a Russian pilot and war hero, most likely is shopping for silk stockings, canned meats, jewelery, toys and other "luxuries" to fly back to his family and friends in Russia on his next trip in a lend-lease United States-built fighter or bomber.

Last Christmas the stores had a tough time holding some of their supply of toys for the local trade. The Soviet fliers tried to buy it all.

Charlie McLean, proprietor of a night club situated 1½ miles west of the city, says most of the Russians he has seen "are here for a holiday.'

"The majority, in Alaska on furlough from the fighting fronts, carry the one-star and two-star decorations on their tunics, which usually means they've shot down 10 or 20 planes They get a star for each 10 planes downed.

"They are free spenders. Their behavior is exemplary and they are always the perfect gentlemen. I think they're tops."

The Russian women, most of whom are in their 20's and blonde, are attractive. They look and dress much like Canadian and American women and it would be difficult to single them out from Anglo-Saxons. They are the beauty parlors best customers.

Winnipeg Wants East-West School Games

WINNIPEG, Aug. 3—(CP)—Robert Jarman, director of athletics in Winnipeg public schools, said today the Toronto Board of Education had rejected a proposal for an East-West high school football game between Toronto and Winnipeg teams in Winnipeg this fall and "now are negotiating with school officials in several other eastern Canada cities" for such a game.

"Montreal appears to be quite willing to participate but as yet no arrangements have been made," said Mr. Jarman, adding that the game should be played before Nov. 11.

A. E. (Bert) Longstaffe, president of the Winnipeg Rugby Club, said an offer by the club to finance a Toronto-Winnipeg game will apply no matter what eastern city is willing to participate.

Quaker Oats and Westclox Seconds will clash in a Girls' Softball League game at the Ashburnham Bowl tonight and the result should be another interesting battle. The same two clubs met on Tuesday evening and for most of the distance it was one of the most evenly fought contests of the season. The Baby Bens scored the only run pushed over the counting station in the first six innings. In the last three frames however the Quakers broke in front, scoring nine runs to win the argument 9 to 1. Westclox hope to effect a different ending to tonight's struggle and to come back with a victory. Quakers nave different ideas and see no reason why they should not repeat their win of Tuesday night. They cannot both be right of course but at all events they should stage an entertaining contest before the issue is decided. Gertie Masters is expected to do the tossing for the Quakers with Alice McIvor on the hilltop for the Baby Bens. This will be the last league game of the week in the girls' loop and should draw a real crowd.

* * * * * *

Incidentally a lot of interest is being shown in the exhibition contest scheduled for Friday at the Bowl between the Westclox girls' team and the Westclock men's club of the Industrial League. The Big Ben girls will have the men's battery of Hopcroft, pitcher and Joe Blewett, catcher, working for them while Joyce Withers and Isobel Bullock will be in the points for the men's team. The result should be a novel and interesting contest that will undoubtedly attract a big crowd including most of the Westclox employees who have been arguing about the battle ever since it was arranged. Both sides have their following and which ever happens to win the game will probably be a topic of conversation around the big Armour Hill plant for some time. Both outfits are claiming a victory. The girls declare that they are going to demonstrate that the quality of ball played in their loop will stand comparison with the brand displayed by the men and that should help to make the affair a thrilling tilt. While it is of course only an exhibition fixture one of the season's biggest crowds will undoubtedly be on hand to see the unusual contest which is billed to start at 7 o'clock sharp.

Another Argument

Down in Kingston they must have lost all the available copies of the baseball rule book or else the warm weather has been getting them down. Any way Mike Rodden tells of an argument that arose the other night about a base runner who overran first base and was called out, according to the scribe, because he turned to his left instead of to his right. If the play was as the eminent Mister Rodden describes it there shouldn't have been any argument. There is nothing in the rules to say that a runner who over-runs first has to turn to his right in coming back to his base. The whole thing hinges on whether or not the runner attempts to make a break for second. If he does that, of course he can be put out by being tagged. But if he makes no effort to go to second he can turn either right or left and come straight back to the bag without running the risk of being put out. The idea that he must turn right is like the other old fallacy that a player can be called out for "refusing to run." If he continues the refusal until the ball beats him to first, of course, he would be out, but otherwise there is no rule covering "refusing to run."

* * * * * *

The trend in modern hockey in which junior teams are used as farm clubs by N.H.L. outfits is illustrated by the announcement from Galt that Scouts Carson Cooper and Fred Cox of Detroit have picked up all the youngsters they need for Galt's junior A team of next winter. It is stated that Galt will have a squad of 18 juniors. The two scouts are just back from a trip during which they rounded up a bunch of young hockey stars, several of which will go directly to Detroit or Indianapolis, but most of them are ear-marked for the Galt junior A and the Woodstock junior B outfits for seasoning to fit them for professional hockey. It is a setup that the fathers of amateur hockey in Ontario never even dreamed of back in the days when there was a strict residence rule operating in Ontario and players who made a move had to be in their new towns months before the opening of the season. The whole arrangement nowadays is virtually on a professional basis and it suggests that one of the things that Peterborough will have to secure along with a new arena will be a working agreement with one of the N.H.L. outfits. It seems the only way for a town to get anywhere in "amateur" hockey these days.

Colts Win Close One

Oshawa Colts had another tight exhibition battle the other day beating De Havilands 1 to 0 with Whiteley allowing only one hit. Says George Soup Campbell in his sport column: "Oshawa softball fans who like their games close and exciting, dominated by outstanding pitchers and defensive play with runs as scarce and hard to get as a can of good salmon, shouldn't miss any of these exhibition games the Oshawa Colts are playing. The Colts played four exhibition games in the month of July and the scores were 2-1 in Batawa; 5-2 over Thomson Products of St. Kitts; 1-0 for Hamilton Police; 5-4 in 11 innings at Peterborough and 1-0 over De Havilands of Toronto, here Saturday afternoon. The game against the Toronto club here was another "pipperoo." The only run of the game didn't arrive until the 7th inning and it came as the result of a clean single, a surprise sacrifice bunt on the 3rd strike and then a wild pitch by "Susie" Turner, one of the few he had all day, followed immediately by a high pitch which caught the catcher squatting at the time and which the catcher tipped over the screen when he reached up for it. It was a tough break for the likeable Toronto sportsman. Unlike some Queen City softball experts we have met, and big "Susie" is truly an expert at this hurling business, the big fellow can take a defeat with a grin and even the tough break that caused the only run of the game failed to wipe off his congenial grin and good humour."

St. Louis Cards who are apparently out for a new record in the matter of winning margins are now 16 games out in front and show no inclination to follow. The champs, behind five-hit pitching by Max Lanier handed the Pittsburg Pirates an 8 to 4 defeat before the biggest Pittsburg night crowd of the season. The Corsairs used three pitchers, including Rip Sewell, but could not stop the Cards who had 13 blows. It was Lanier's 12th win of the season. In the American loop the Philadelphia A's and the Chicago Sox split a double bill at Chicago, giving Connie Mack's hirelings five wins in a seven game series. The Mackmen won the first game 9 to 3, despite the fact that Luman Harris yielded 13 blows but the Pale Hose came back with 7 to 3 victory in the second, with Tony Cuccinello with four for four sparking the winners' attack. There is a light schedule in both the major leagues today with only two games in the National and one in the American on the card. There will be a full bill, however, tomorrow.

56 Pairs Enter Tourney; Weather Ideal

(By HERB MARTIN)

With close to a record entry for men's doubles tournament, for Eastern Ontario, the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club staged their postponed tournament of June 14, yesterday afternoon and evening.

So great was the crowd that every blade of grass was in use from 1.45 p.m. Wednesday until 2.30 o'clock Thursday morning. Despite the excessive heat about every bowling club in this district was represented and many clubs outside of District No. 14 were represented.

To H. J. Taylor and Walter Wiggins of Campbellford go the honor of winning the Empress Hotel shield and first place. Nelson Routley and J. Detcher of Peterborough were next in line only a few points behind.

It was the first time for some years that our club has been forced to use a double draw for our tournaments. Many old timers took the opportunity to come for a day's outing and also to renew old acquaintances. Percy King from Newmarket; Reg. Fox, Toronto; Dr. C. Brereton, Toronto Granites and E. Hircock, Cobourg were among those noticed.

It was no small job to keep one hundred and twelve men happy for close to 12 hours and the committee is to be congratulated. The draw was capably handled by Judge S. Smoke. As the hour was late when the last bowler came off the greens the distribution of prizes was made in quick style. And although it was late many spectators stayed right through to the finish.

The open doubles tournament of 1944 will go on record as being one of the best ever sponsored by our club.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3—(AP)—With the Brooklyn Dodgers taking two of a six-game series with the Cardinals, and the St. Louis Browns out front in the American pennant race, the impression is growing that anything can happen in baseball.

We, however, are reserving opinion on the "anything can happen" angle until Ernie Lombardi leads the league in stolen bases.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Two U.S. Army privates last night were epxected to sell upwards of $14,000,000 worth of war bonds at New York with Promoter Mike Jacobs predicting at least 18,000 ring fans at Madison Square Garden for the 10-round clash between Beau Jack and Bob Montgomery Friday, the purchase of a bond being the requirement for admission. The two fighters, both on furlough for the scrap, are trading punches for the fourth time and getting only training expenses although they took down about $100,000 each in their previous encounters. The bout has no bearing on the lightweight title, now held by Montgomery.

Mervyn (Red) Dutton, managing director of the National Hockey League, last night advised E. W. Bickle, president of the Toronto Leafs, he would resume direction of the circuit although he had considered devoting attention to his contracting business in western Canada.

The R.C.A.F. squad from Clinton, Ont., captured the team championship at the regional track and field meet yesterday at Little Stadium, London, from seven other stations in western Ontario while airwomen from Aylmer trotted off with the honors in the women's division.

Connie Smythe Shows Improvement

TORONTO, Aug. 3—(CP)—An official of Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto said Wednesday that word has been received that high hopes were held for Major Connie Smythe's complete recovery from wounds received recently in Normandy. Major Smythe, who was managing director of the Gardens and manager of Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League before going overseas is in hospital in England. He is officer commanding the 30th Battery, R.C.A., Canadian Army Overseas.

Toronto Swimmer Suffers Defeat

KELOWNA, B.C., Aug. 3—(CP)—Two upsets marked the opening day of Kelowna's 38th international regatta here Wednesday. Winnipeg's Catherine Kerr defeated Shirley Muir of Vancouver in the ladies' open 100-yard free-style event, and Doris Geldard of Toronot, star of the recent Canadian championships meet at Vancouver, was defeated by Gwen Causton of Toronto in the 50-yard junior girl's breast stroke.

Miss Muir placed second and Barbara Hunt placed third in the 100-yard free style British Columbia championship event won by Miss Kerr.

An army team from Brantford, Ont., lost the 300-yard men's medley race to a Victoria team. A Vancouver team placed third.

McCormick Rates Top Player For First Base

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 3—(AP)—Ten years ago, scouts shook their heads after watching him play and sadly exclaimed "He will never do," but today Frank McCormick of the Cincinnati Reds is rated the best first baseman in the major leagues.

The six-foot-four-inch Redleg, who makes his home in New York, first caused veteran experts to lift their eye-brows with his unorthodox stance at the plate.

However, in his first full year with the Reds, 1938, McCormick made 209 hits in 640 times at bat, both high for the loop, and batted .326. He joined the select group of players who made 200 or more hits in their freshman year. The next year he duplicated his 209-hit total, again to lead the league in that department, and drove in the most runs, 128.

In 1940, he added the doubles title and for the third time in succession led the league in hits.

In his first five years with the Reds, McCormick drove in 617 runs, more than any of the other top sluggers of the circuit in the corresponding period. McCormick has the unique distinction of being selected for the National League all-star team in each of his seven years in the majors.

This year Frank got off to a bad start. After hovering around the .270 mark for the first half of the season, he staged a batting spree to climb to a point over .300. In the past two weeks, he made 22 hits in 64 times at bat for a .344 average and batted in 21 runs.

Red Embree Has Great Season

By The Associated Press

Big right-handed Charles (Red) Embree is on his way to one of his best seasons in organized baseball, providing the stimulus that may give the Baltimore Orioles the International League flag.

The Birds' fire-balling ace is tied with Al Jarlett of Toronto and Mike Roscoe of Buffalo for games won, with 13, and he leads the league with 134 strike-outs. His record assumes impressive proportions when it is seen that he has been pitching only since May 28. Until then he was with the Cleveland Indians.

Red displayed a striking propensity for racking up third strikes when he led the Eastern League in 1941 with 213. He now is gunning for the International record of 330, set in 1923 by a young Baltimore pitcher namer Bob (Lefty) Grove.

In the one league game played last night, Bob Malloy pitched the Syracuse Chiefs to a 9-2 victory over Buffalo. Eddie Kobesky accounted for both Bison runs with a homer with one on in the sixth, his 20th of the year.

TORONTO, August 3 — (CP).— What may well be the world's oddest curling rink will be in operation this winter at far-Northern Norman Wells in the North-west Territories. There are numerous ardent curlers among the employees of the Canol project at Norman, so it was only a matter of time until they got together and drew up the plans for what it is believed will be the northernmost curling rink in the world.

Ambitious backers of the plan say they intend to build three or four igloos end to end and install a heating system so the roarers can curl to their hearts' content in comfort. All told there are about 150 prospective curlers just itching to get started, and most of them are having their own rocks shipped north.

Eight Army Teams Compete In Overseas Championships

WITH THE CANADIAN ARMY OVERSEAS Aug. 3.—The first of the Canadian Army (England) championships for 1944 was held at the Aldershot Command Grounds on Wednesday, July 19, with eight teams competing. These teams represented the winners and runners-up of four area championships, Canadian Army in England, held during the previous week.

The event opened with a parade of all athletes lead by the Royal Canadian Artillery Trumpet Band. Major General, the Hon. P. J. Montague, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., M.C., V.D., receiving the salute and presenting the awards at the conclusion of the meet.

Max Lanier of the St. Louis Cardinals reigned as strike-out king of the majors today, with his total of 104 victims boosting his past Bill Voiselle of the New York Giants and Tex Hughson of the Boston Red Sox.

The pudgy left-hander threw the third strike past seven Pittsburgh hitters last night as the Cards hammered out an 8-4 verdict to make their present road trip record 15-3 with three to go before reaching home.

Lanier's total of 104 strikeouts topped by three Voiselle's bag and was five more than Hughson required to pace the American league, where Hal Newhouser of Detroit was his closest competitor.

If the Cards can break even in their remaining 58 games, second-place Cincinnati could grab the flag only by winning 46 of 58, a gait some 200 points above their 1944 form.

As St. Louis snuffed Pittsburgh's smouldering pennant hopes at the start of a long home stand, the American League race marked time.

The Mackmen pulled the opener out of the fire, 9-3, on a seven-run ninth inning in which a triple by Bobby Estalella and doubles by Joe Burns and Hal Epps were the big blows.

Gordy Maltzberger saved Johnny Humphries' fifth win in the finale by stopping a Philadelphia threat as Chicago took a 7-3 edge. Tony Cuccinnello enjoyed a perfect game with four singles.

A Chicago-Philly game was postponed because of the Philadelphia transportation strike and all other clubs enjoyed an open date.

Boon To Exporters

OTTAWA, Aug. 3—(CP)—All Canadian exporters will be able to have their exports insured by the Export Credits Insurance Corporation which the government proposes to set up in an effort to ease post-war trade with other countries, Trade Minister MacKinnon said today in the Commons.

Small exporters likely would be the first to make use of the insurance, said Mr. McKinnon. He spoke during resumed study in committee of the bill providing for establishment to guarantee the purchases in Canada of a foreign government or its agents.

Premier Drew Introduces Contest For Designs

TORONTO, August 3 — (CP). — Premier Drew of Ontario to-day told the Canadian School Trustees Association that new designs are needed for school construction in the province and plans a competition for school design ,details of which will be announced soon.

"Prizes will be awarded to those architects producing the most satisfactory plans for types of schools which can generally be adopted throughout the province, giving the greatest results of modern construction methods and giving the fullest advantage of every dollar spent on actual construction.

He added that the Ontario Government believes such a competition will produce plans which can be used as guide wherever new schools are to be constructed.

Teach Government.

The Premier referred to what happened in Germany and Italy when the responsibility of government was left in the hands of a few people and said Canadians now realize more than ever before how necessary it is to teach school children something of their own system of government.

"That does not mean the teaching of politics in the sense of any particular doctrine. That has no place in our schools. But the actual way in which the country as a whole, the provinces and the municipalities run their affairs is an essential part of the knowledge of any well-informed citizen."

The best antidote to the doctrine which actually precipitated the war was a clear understanding of the part that each individual must play in the preservation of freedom and the duty of each person has as a citizen to assume the full responsibility of citizenship, said the Premier.

"On what the child learns at home, in the churches and in the schools will depend the strength of the nation, the security of our people and our opportunities for the future."

The Premier outlined plans the Government has for the extension of health and education among Ontario school children and referred to a plan for establishment of summer camps in Northern Ontario. He announced recently that a committee will study this matter.

Claims Corporal Used Bottle To Slug Colonel

WOODSTOCK, August —(CP) — Evidence was concluded Wednesday in the hearing at an army court-martial of charges of ill-treating a soldier and conduct prejudical to good order in the army against Lt.-Col. N. A. McIntosh of the Canadian Army Driving and Maintenance School here. Addresses to the court will be completed Thursday.

Col. McIntosh ,a former Windsor resident, testified at this afternoon's sitting that he resented the attitude of Cpl. W. J. Sillers, steward in the officers' mess, in refusing him a drink of liquor in the presence of his civilian friend, T. R. Dent, Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario Legislature for Oxford.

Col. McIntosh admitted he did not have coupons for the liquor and that the corporal was within his rights in refusing to serve him. There was a scuffle which started when he demanded an explanation from Cpl. Sillers for his uncivil attitude to an officer, said Col. McIntosh. He added that Sillers struck him with a bottle and they came to grips and went down to the floor wrestling.

Mr. Dent testified that when Col. McIntosh was unable to get him a drink because he did not have coupons, a card was obtained from another officer and he had the drink. He said he left the mess when he finished his drink and did not see anything of the scuffle.

Withdrawal Motion Denied.

At the morning sitting the court denied a motion by Defense Counsel W .C. Kerr of Chatham, asking that the charge of ill-treating a soldier be withdrawn. Mr. Kerr, who made his motion after Capt. R. D. Evans, prosecutor, completed his case, made no reference to the charge of conduct prejudical to good order in the army.

The charges arose out of incidents June 26. Col. McIntosh is accused of assaulting Cpl. Sillers for refusal to serve a bottle of liquor for which the officer had no permit.

Lieut. A. R. S. McDonald of the RCAMC testified that he treated Sillers for scratches and bruises after the incident and said that one of the corporal's teeth was chipped and another loosened. Capt. E. M. Warren dental officer, said he attended Sillers the day after the incident and the corporal's teeth were removed, but that this had been done because they were bad.

Brig. A. M. Martin is president of the court and Major A. S. Ferguson is judge advocate.

Trustees Support Agricultural Schools

TORONTO, Aug. 3—(CP)—Canadian School Trustees' Association, meeting in Toronto yesterday and today, endorsed a resolution last night that the Dominion government provide a grant of at least $10,000,000 to be distributed through the provinces for building and equipping agricultural schools.

The curricula in these schools should include manual training and home economics, citizenship, business practice, economics and social studies and a "definite agricultural education" as well as adequate cultural courses, the trustees outlined.

"The general courses of study in secondary schools are not adapted to rural conditions," the resolution pointed out.

Premature Bombing Kills U.S. General

WASHINGTON, August 3—(AP). —The U.S. Army announced yesterday that Lt.-Gen. Lesley J. McNair was killed by the explosion of an Allied bomb which fell short in the intensive bombardment of enemy lines in preparation for the latest breakthrough in Normandy.

This report was sent to the War Department by General Eisenhower, the brief announcement said.

The fact that some bombs were released over their own troops by Allied airmen was announced in the theatre by Lt.-Gen. Brerton, tactical Air Force commander, who said that a number of casualties were inflicted by this premature release of bombs among forward elements of the American lines.

McNail, until recently in command of the Army's ground forces, was in Normandy as an observer. His death was announced last Thursday.

Quotations on the lower grades were described as nominal. No changes were made in prices to the retail trade.

Light offerings of Ontario solids were readily absorbed yesterday, price No. 1 grade holding at 33¾ cents. Asking price for Western butter was 34¼ to 34½ cents, with some sales reported at the lower figure.

Wild Goat Of India Gives Birth To Young

Two young have been born to the male and female thar, an unusual species of wild goat native to the Himalaya Mountains in India, which are living in the Peterborough Game Preserve. The animals, which were acquired by the Fish and Game Association from the Toronto zoo four years ago, were at first thought to be both males.

The thar have ranged the Game Preserve, chiefly in the vicinity of Blue Mountains at the American Nephelene Co. near Lakefield, since they were brought to the district, and have survived with no difficulty the rigors of northern winters in the open. Resembling closely the Rocky Mountain goat, their coat is more like that of a deer and sheds water, so that the animals are protected against the possibility of catching pneumonia.

The thar have been found to be exceptionally timid and the men who go out each winter to bring them grain and hay have never been able to get within 200 or 300 yards of them. In the summertime the two wild goats exist comfortably on the grasses in the Preserve.

There are still some of the same species in the Toronto zoo, but through the length and breadth of Canada there are not many of the thar in existence.

Bomb Barely Misses Boy Of 13, On Beach

BRANTFORD, Ont., Aug. 3 — (CP) — Thirteen-year-old Howard Franklin narrowly escaped being injured last night when a bomb from a night-flying aircraft engaged in bombing practice, dropped on the beach at Avalon Park just west of Port Dover, Ont., The bomb hit the ground about 25 feet from where the boy was standing. It is believed that a nearby ground elevation saved him from injury.

The aircraft came from Jarvis airport and was on a bombing practice over Lake Erie, the target being located more than a mile off shore. The bomb fell at a point some 50 feet inland and made a hole six feet deep in the sand.

RETURN FROM OVERSEAS

Lieut. C. C. Snowden of Port Hope; Pte. J. Shaw, of Cobourg, and Pte. D. E. Bosley, of Tweed, were in a group of officers and men who arrived in Kingston Wednesday night from overseas. The personnel now in Military District No. 3, saw action in France, Italy and Sicily.

THIRTY-FIVE DONORS

Blood donations at the Clinic on Wednesday were again 35, the same number as on the first day of the week. A group came from the Quaker Oats, and there were employees of Ventilating Shades Co. and Martin-Hewitt Containers Ltd. One donor vas present from Lakefield. Due to Civic holiday on Monday next, there will be no clinic that day.

QUICK SERVICE.

Preparing to step off the wharf into his boat for a spot of fishing Wednesday evening on Stoney Lake, Thomas Humphries from Toronto thought he would make a practice cast from the dock before shoving off to try his luck. He did so, and hooked a lunge right then and there. It was a good-sized one, too. Having landed the fish, he went out in his boat and caught—nothing.

HELD BY POLICE.

Arrested at Warsaw Wednesday, a man giving his name as John Moffatt is being held here by Provincial Police for safe keeping. The man, 47 years old, had not eaten for several days and was in an exhausted condition and yet the sum of $296 in bills was found on his person when searched by the police. He claimed that he was on his way from Gooderham to Ottawa and that his intention had been to catch a train at Norwood.

BANK CLEARINGS

The Clearing House total for the week in Peterborough was $1,113,-951.

TWO CARS DAMAGED

Cars belonging to P. Grant, Avenue road, and A. Doig, 237 George street, were damaged in a traffic accident at George and Sherbrooke streets Wednesday. Doig was driving north on George street and was making a left turn into Sherbrooke when Grant's car, also travelling north, came into collision with the other vehicle. No one was hurt.

CAR IS ROBBED

Sneak thieves are still busy in Peterborough and citizens are warned about leaving valuables in parked cars. Wednesday night Godfrey Sandbach, Cricket place, left his car on the south side of Charlotte street, near Bethune street, and when he came back found that a coat and his wallet containing $8 in cash his chauffeur's licence, registration card and army discharge papers had been stolen. The car was locked, but a rear window had been forced.

DOES IT MATTER?

Undoubtedly belonging to the cautious school, a youngster in Peterborough who practised it to the extreme on Wednesday, is probably wondering if it does any good to be cautious. Riding a bicycle along Murray Street, with no cars in sight either way, the boy insisted on hugging the curb, along which a number of cars were parked. The inevitable happened, and after banging into one of the cars, the cyclist displayed the neatest exhibition of flying over handlebars seen around here in a long time. After the mishap, he just picked himself up, dusted himself off, and was away on the bike again.

L.-Bdr. G. Clark Killed Serving In Smythe Unit

"Everything's fine; don't worry about me," wrote Lance Bombardier George Eric Leslie Clark in a letter received by his sister, Mrs. Mansel Wilson, 166 Adeline street, Tuesday, August 1, the same day his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Clark, 51 Maria street, were officially notified that he was killed in action July 26, with Major Connie Smythe's light anti-aircraft battery in Normandy.

When Major Smythe, manager of the Toronto Maple Leaf hockey team, and a veteran of the last war, was recruiting his battery, young Clark decided that that was the unit he wished to join. He went to Toronto, was accepted in that handpicked unit, and went overseas in October, 1942. He was striken with typhoid fever in England last September, returned to his unit, and then suffered a ruptured appendix and was again in hospital from the end of November until the day after Christmas. He was transferred to a convalescent home until April 26, and there was some doubt for a time as to whether he would be able to continue on active service. However, he was anxious to rejoin the anti-aircraft battery, and was finally passed again by a medical board.

Three Brothers in Forces.

Lance Bombardier Clark was born in Montreal, and lived with his parents and their family for some years in Huntingdon, Quebec, until they moved to Peterborough about twelve years ago. He was one of the four sons of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Clark who enlisted for active service. His brothers are: Corporal Chester Clark with the R. C. A. F. overseas, Trooper Royal Clark with a tank corps at Camp Borden and LAC Shirley Clark with the R. C. A. F. in British Columbia.

He is also survived by his parents and two sisters, Miss Viola Clark a nurse in Hamilton, Ontario. and Mrs. Mansel Wilson, of Peterborough. A recent snapshot of him and several of his comrades of the battery showed him wearing the riding boots which were a special present from his father and mother last Christmas.

Major Smythe was reported July 31 seriously injured in action on the Normandy front, hit near the base of the spine with a piece of shrapnel. He has been the Commanding Officer of his unit, the 30th Light Anti-Aaircraft Battery of the Royal Canadian Artillery which was recruited in Toronto in 1941, and subsequently saw service on the English coast beore going to France.

Stoker Alex Craig On H.M.C.S. Petrolia

At least one Peterborough sailor is a member of the crew of H.M. C.S. Petrolia, the latest of Canada's big new "Castle" class corvettes to be received from Britain in exchange for Canadian-built minesweepers.

He is Stoker Alex. Craig, son of V. R. "Bud" Craig, 561 George street, who has been overseas since the beginning of the year stationed at H.M.C.S. Niobe in Scotland, after training for some time at Boston. Stoker Craig was recently drafted to the Petrolia which is commanded by Lieut. P. W. Spragge, Toronto.

The Petrolia was commissioned a short time ago at a British port with simple and brief ceremonies, in which Major J. S. P. Armstrong, Ontario's Agent-General in Britain, and Rev. D. N. Sinclair, of Ottawa, padre, took part.

WINS PROVINCIAL AWARD—School Section No. 11, Smith, has been awarded first place in the Provincial rural school-grounds competition for the 1943-44 term. They scored 87 and were followed closely by S.S. No. 4, of Hope township, Durham county. This school is in the inspectorate of R. F. Downey.

S.S. No. 11 Smith Chosen Winners In Provincial Competition

First place in the Provincial Rural School Grounds Competition for the term of 1943-44 has been won by S. S. No. 11 Smith, township, in the county of Peterborough, it was announced to-day by J. A. Carroll, Toronto, Superintendent of Agricultural and Horticultural Societies for the Province of Ontario.

"This annual competition, held under the auspices of the Horticultural Societies Branch of the Department, has produced excellent results in improving the appearance and beauty of the grounds at rural schools, and this year's competition," Mr. Carroll said "brought some exceptionally praiseworthy results."

The prize-winning schools were place as follows:

1st— S. S. No. 11, Smith, Peterborough—87 points.

2nd—S. S. No. 4, Hope Township, Durham—86 points

3rd—S. S. No. 3, Stamford Township, Welland—85 points.

4th—S. S. No. 13, Percy, Township, Northumberland.

Leader's Close.

"The results of the competition," Mr. Carroll said, "were very gratifying. The first three schools were so close that any one of the three might have been placed first, but the finer finish at the Smith Township school decided the issue. All the schools have done good work and the results of the competition will be lasting in improving school buildings.

R. F. Downey, Public School Inspector, received the information from the Examiner this morning, and said it was grand news for the boys and girls and the trustees of No. 11 Smith.

"As for myself," Mr. Downey said, "I have always been hoping that one of the schools in my inspectorate would win the Provincial first prize and Carter Cup, and it remained for No. 11 Smith to accomplish it. I am very proud of them, and as Inspector I am sharing in the honor they have won .

"Miss Olga Wilson of North Monaghan is the teacher at this county and provincial championship school, and I do not need to try to add anything to the distinction which comes to her as the teacher of that school. I am sure that everybody will join with me in offering our congratulations to Miss Wilson and to the boys and girls of her 1944 classes.

"Mr. Elmer Milburn is chairman of the Board of Trustees who cooperated with Miss Wilson and the scholars, and I think that he and his associates of the Board should be delighted with the results announced from Toronto to-day. It just shows that we can do things down here in Peterborough county abotu as well as any other community in the Province. I should like to add that Mr. Milburn's father, Thomas T. Milburn, who must be known to nearly everybody in the county, took a great interest in the work that was done at No. 11 school this year, and I am sure he will be just as pleased as the rest of us with the winning of this provincial title.

Six Active Schools

"We announced some time ago that No. 11 Smith had won the county school improvement honors and the Gordon K. Fraser Cup.

"I should also like to mention that I received hearty cooperation from at least six schools in my inspectorate. They were No. 11 Smith, No. 4 Harvey, No. 8 Harvey, No. 3 Smith, No. 3 North Monaghan and No. 1 Emily, across the Victoria boundary.

"Last year, you may remember, the second prize for the Province, the Dewan Trophy, came to our inspectorate. That prize was won by S. S. Harvey of which Stanley Cowling was the teacher ;and incidentally he and that school held the Fraser Cup for two years.

"From last year's second place in the Provincial competition to first place this year is pretty consistent work I think, and I am sure everybody will agree with us. My heartiest congratulations go to Miss Wilson and her boys and girls and the trustees of No. 11 Smith, and I hope they will always keep their success before them. You can't always win the prize, but in these competition there is ample reward in just keeping our school buildings and grounds looking at their best. Their attractiveness is something we can all appreciate and I am sure that it has some aesthetic influence on us, and helps in stimulating community interest and citizenship."

The standing of other schools in this competion was: —

5th—S. S. No. 9, Chaffey Township, Muskoka District, 78 points.

6th—S. S. No. 18, Tyendinage Township, Hastings County, 77 points.

7th— S. S. No. 9, West Nissouri Township, Middlesex County, 77 points.

8th— S. S. No. 23, Cornwall Township, Stormont County, 75 points.

9th— S. S. No. 17, Mosa, Ekfrid and Metcalfe Townships, Middlesex County, 73 points.

10—S. S. 10, Otonabee Township, Peterborough County, 72 points.

11th—S. S. No. 10, Kincardine Township, Bruce County, 72 points.

GUNNER KILLED—One of the four sons of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Police Squad Finds 4 Sleepers In Stable

While a police squad was investigating another matter early this morning they came across four men sleeping in a stable off Hunter street and the quartette was arrested.

Gladiolus Show Aids Victims Of Robot Bombs

Many people will recall the very successful show held by the Eastern Ontario Gladiolus Society and the Peterborough Aquarium Society, and will undoubtedly be glad to know that another and even better event of a similar nature is to be held in the Market Hall on Wednesday and Thursday, August 16 and 17.

This event attracted a widespread interest throughout the rest of the Province, and even came in for favourable notice by the Canadian Society, and it is expected that entries will be received from far and wide. The beauty of this show lies also in the fact that it is not held with the object of making money for the two societies concerned, that side of it being entirely given over to assisting the bomb victims in Britain, through the local and district fund operating for that purpose.

It is not required that a person should become a member of either society in order to make entries into the show itself, and no entry fee is asked for either, so a splendid opportunity is presented for all and sundry to enter in any of the classes so abundantly provided, details of which may readily be secured by getting in touch with H. B Ball at 85 Gladstone Ave., president of the Gladiolus Society, or C. H. Bacon, president of the Aquarium Society at 697 Ross street, or F. H. Storey, secretary-treasurer of the show committee at 130 Maria Street.

Five prizes will be drawn for an evening of the show, these having been donated for that purpose by W. E. Franks Furniture, Canada Packers Ltd., Ladies of the E.O.G.S., Howard Hall, Nesbitt Funeral Co., H. S. Routley, W. M. German, Nurseries, N. T. Routley, R. C. Braund and Fred Cripps. Tickets for these which also give admission to the show on either nights or afternoons, have been on sale for some time at 25 cents each or five for a dollar.

This year there will also be a display of pet birds such as budgies, canaries and cockatoos etc., and in addition there will be door prizes which will include an aquarium of tropical fish fully planted and inhabited, so taken in all, with such a worthy cause to assist this event should be one of the major local events of this year.

Bailieboro Girls Help

Four school pals, June and Joyce Snowell, Betty Joan Howson and Barbara Campbell of Bailieboro, presented a Concert in Bateson's Hall at that place recently, giving a program of readings, songs, a tap dance with fife accompaniment and a play entitled "A Serious Case."

Prior too this they had sold tickets on a dresser set which was drawn for by little Arlene Bateman at the close of the evening's program, which gave the prize to William Bateman, and in all they raised the nice sum of $8.55, which is listed in their name to-day.

These young girls will have every cause to remember that they made very good use of their leisure from school duties, and in the years to come when the history of these stirring days are recalled, they will be very glad that they had done something to assist in the cause of freedom.

At regular intervals, the penny box located in the Royal Bank at Norwood has given a helping hand to the fund, another such assist being listed to-day, having been forwarded by D. B. Cutcliffe who represents the fund in that place.

AIRWOMAN OVERSEAS—Cpl. Lois Geraldine Buskard, R.C.A.F. (W.D.), whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Buskard, live in Deloro, is serving overseas. She enlisted in August, 1942, and for 18 months she was posted to a recruiting office in Toronto. Later she went to No. 4 Wireless at Guelph. Before enlisting, she worked at the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company, and a brother, Sgt. Burnett Buskard, is with the R.C.A.F. at Malton, having formerly been overseas.

BACK ON LEAVE—Home for a brief leave before being assigned further duty, is Sgt. Jack Newton, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Newton, 503 Stewart street. The 20-year-old airman, who was injured while his plane was sowing mines off the coast of Holland, formerly was an assistant pro at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, and also worked for a time at the C.G.E. He was educated at Peterborough Collegiate.

Jack D. Newton Returns Home; Has Face Wound

Suffering facial wounds received when his plane was attacked by a Nazi fighter off the coast of Holland last March, Sgt. Jack D. Newton, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Newton arrived home Wednesday for a 20-day leave, after which he will go to Ottawa for further duty.

The plane, on which the 20-year-old airman was serving as a wireless air-gunner, was mining the waters surrounding the Fresian Islands, when it was attacked by a Nazi night-fighter. Before the battle ended, three of the crew were wounded, with Sgt. Newton sustaining a facial wound which has affected the sight of one eye.

The gunner of that plane, Sgt. Newton said, was later awarded the Distinguished Flying Medal.

Sgt. Newton said he has made the acquaintance of the German terror weapon, the robot bomb; variably known in England as the doodle-bomb and buzz bomb. "I'm trying to forget them as soon as possible, and although none have ever exploded near me, while I was in London once, I saw plenty of them zooming directly overhead, and I've heard many of them exploding", he said. When asked if there was any panic among the Britishers when the fantastic rocket-propelled missiles whip-over, Sgt. Newton said, "There's never any panic among the English, and it would take a lot more than robot bombs to make those people go into a panic."

Happy to be home, and anticipating a few rounds of golf while on leave, the young flier said when the invasion broke in England, people took it in a much more sober way than expected. "One of the fellows who had a radio in his barracks heard the first reports and came and spread the news around. At first we wouldn't believe him . . . we thought it was just a rumour and so on". But later, he said, when it was the talk of the country, we knew it was on, but definitely.

"Yes, I met quite a few boys from Peterborough while I was in Britain, and at one of the bases I was stationed at, I was surprised to see two or three Examiners on the desks . . . and they sure looked good then," he reminisced.

"I thought I'd be in the invasion", he said, "but after I got banged up in the plane, I figured my chances were very slim."

Life in England, according to the young airman, is very much different from here. Home sweet home never means more to you than when you're 5,000 miles away, and then, it does no good thinking about it. Sgt. Newton said there were many different accents in England to understand, but as he had great trouble understanding any of them, it didn't make much difference.

Commenting on the radio system in England, he said the B.B.C. has its good points, but admitted that the absence of all advertising was the main one. He said all the favorite radio programs on this side were broadcast there by means of recordings, and told of hearing popular comedians such as Bob Hope and Jack Benny quite often. He said the English equivalent of the American U.S.O., the NAF, is doing an excellent job under the circumstances, adding that the circumstances were often very poor.

He enlisted in June 1942, and took extensive training in St. Thomas, Winnipeg, Mossbank, Sask., and Halifax, before sailing for England in July 1943. In Britain, he also continued his training, for a period of about six months. Educated at Port Hope public school, Port Hope High school, and Peterborough Collegiate, he was employed at the C.G.E. for some time before enlisting. But getting back to Sgt. Newton's golf, he was an assistant pro at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, and had participated in a tournament, once. With golf the favorite sport, he hopes to be able to catch up on it a great deal next year . . . if he isn't out battling the Nazis again.

Abrother, Pilot Officer Murray Newton, is serving with the Royal Canadian Air Force, and is stationed at St. John, Quebec.

Vacation Crowds Swell Drink Line-ups

"Mummie, what are they lining up for?" asked a small boy, exercising his juvenile prerogative of putting delicate or difficult queries, as he walked down Georeg street beside his parent in the sweltering heat this morning. The reply— and we wonder how it was phrased, whether frankly or in an oblique manner to hide from junior the natural frailties of his erring elders —was lost in passing through the bedraggled shopping crowd.

Small boy, they are lining up for likker, for whiskey, for wine and in another part of town, for beer. Where you saw them at approximately 11 o'clock, there was already a crowd —and a bigger one too, actually stretching round the corner from George street on to Hunter—at 9 o'clock ,a good hour before the Liquor Commission opened its doors.

The constable on duty there supervising the eager throng said so himself, and he ought to know. He reminisced: "Yes, it's a big crowd and you have seen a lot bigger one an hour and a half ago. But I've seen them just as bad. For instance around Christmas and New Year's Eve. Then I stood out here when it was 15 degrees below."

It must have been then about 90 in the shade, and you couldn't always stay in the shade. It was certainly plenty hot standing on the pavement, but that didn't stop anyone. The waiting permit holders were patient —to all appearances— and restrained. No unseemly noise, no unmannerly jostling and jockeying for position. Maybe it was too warm for any unnecessary movements. Anyway, the constable had an easy job. He surveyed the crowd with a professional eye. "It's the holidays, you know," he said.

There are 4,000 emplyoees of the Canadian General Electric on their vacations and other plants and other persons are enjoying their two weeks too. Apparently they are going to enjoy them well, as long as the supply holds out. And there are many American tourists frolicing in the Kawarthas these days, as everyone knows. Part of the frolicing depends upon a successful visit to the L. C. B. O. and that is no secret, either.

"Does the hot weather have anything to do with the line-up here?" the Examiner asked the representative of the Law. "Do you think anyone's going to cool off with the wine they serve in there?" he answered the question fairly in question form. We laughed in agreement and moved on. Our permit is used up for this month.

Down at the Brewers' Warehouse, though ,the hot weather does have something to do with the rush, though here again holidays are the controlling factor. In that block of Water south of King, there was something like a traffic jam this morning and people questing for their share of nut-brown ale packed the building and stretched in a line two or three abreast back through the "In" door out onto the sidewalk and into the broiling sun.

Here the situation was much the same yesterday —which was also a hot one—but on Wednesday the beer ran out before the morning was over. To-day, warehouse officials said they had an adequate supply to take care o fall comers until the closing hour, despite tre crowd. The crowd was orderly and quiet, and the Browers' Warehouse, which has never yet had to ask for police supervision, didn't require it this morning either.

Why were there so many individuals standing singly or in little groups at street corners in the vicinity of the Liquor Store this morning? It's anybody's guess. One guess made offhand by a shrewd observer was that they were waiting for other persons who were getting bottles for them to issue from the shop with the booty. "Look at them, will you. Those young girls and even elderly ladiies in the line-up," remarked one astonished observer, himself a non-participant. "Isn't it disgusting?"

That, small boy, is the story of the line-ups Thursday morning.

Otonabee Boy Arrested; After Shooting

A nine-year-old Otonabee boy, living near Downer's Corners, was arrested Wednesday night by Provincial Police on a charge of having shot a 12-year-old girl, living near Madoc.

The girl, shot in the groin by a rifle bullet, is reported by police to be in a precarious condition, although making a great fight for life.

The Otonabee boy had been visiting in the neighborhood of the girl's home and police state that on Sunday he threatened her with a knife and that the shooting followed the next day.

Provincial Constable John Hatch took the boy back to Hastings county last night.

Votes Ordered At Two Plants

TORONTO, Aug. 3—(CP)—Votes were ordered in two cases decided yesterday by the Ontario Labor Relations Board involving two Belleville, Ont., companies and their employees. In the case of Local 253, United Garment Workers of America, (A.F.L.), petitioner, and Deacon Brothers Ltd., respondent, and Dee Bee Workers Agency, intervener, the Board found that there was undue interference on the part of the employer in the formation of the agency and ordered that a vote be taken to decide whether or not the employees wish to bargain through the petitioner.

In another case involving Local 426, United Automobile Workers of America (C.I.O.), petitioner, and Belleville-Sargent & Co., Ltd., respondent, and Belleville-Sargent Employees' Guild, intervener, the Board decided that a vote be held to decide whether the employees desire to bargain through the petitioner or the intervener.

Two voting constituencies are to be established, one including all employees except the office staff and all persons above the rank of foremen—here the vote will be between the petitioner and the intervener; the second constituency will include office staff who will be asked whether or not they wish to bargain through the intervener.

Colonel Faces Charges At Court Martial

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Aug. 3—(CP)—A motion asking withdrawal of a charge of ill-treating a soldier against Lt.-Col. N. A. McIntosh was denied Wednesday during a general court martial at the Canadian Driving and Maintenance School. The motion was made by W. C. Kerr of Chatham, civilian counsel for Col. McIntosh who is a former resident of Windsor, after Capt. R .D. Evans, prosecutor, completed his case. The motion made no reference to a second charge against the colonel—of conduct prejudicial to good order in the army.

The charges arose out of incidents June 26. Col. McIntosh is accused of assaulting Cpl. W. J. Sillers in the officers mess for refusal to serve a bottle of liquor for which the officer had no permit.

Lieut. A. R. S. McDonald of the R.C.A.M.C. testified today that he treated Sillers for scratches and bruises after the incident and said that one of the corporal's teeth was chipped and another loosened. Capt. E. M. Warren, dental officer, said he attended Sillers the day after the incident and the corporal's teeth were removed but that this had been done because they were bad.

Brig. A. M. Martin is president of the court and Major A. S. Ferguson is judge advocate.

Capt. G. Morrow Back From Italy

"I didn't see any of these German robot bombs, but I heard plenty of them, and I certainly don't like them one bit," said Captain Grant G. Morrow, 745 Water street, who returned home Tuesday evening after seeing action in the invasions of Sicily and Italy. It is the first time in 2½ years that Capt. Morrow has been home.

"The robot bombs are treacherous weapons, and they are making London a mighty unpopular spot these days," he said.

Capt. Morrow arrived in Toronto Tuesday, and on hand to greet him at the Union Station were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Morrow, and his wife, Mrs. G. Morrow, who lives at 745 Water street.

With a Calgary tank unit, serving with the 1st Canadian Armoured Corps., Captain Morrow took part in the invasions of Sicily and Italy, and remained in Italy until the capture of Ortona and the Moro River crossing . He said the Canadian troops in other sectors were very dissappointed at not being able to take part in the Normandy invasion, but added, "we've had our little show, and it was far easier than the one going on in Normandy right now."

Capt. Morrow said General Sir. Bernard Montgomery was tremendously popular with the Canadian forces in Italy, and he paid frequent visits to their regiments.

Excellent Fighters.

He described the individual Nazi soldier as an excellent fighter, not to be under-estimated, but added there were some slave-type fighters with the Germans, who would give in without much of a struggle. Up to the time he left Italy, Captain Morrow said he hadn't encountered many of the more powerful Nazi tanks, such as the Tiger tank, and that the ones he had seen, were far out-gunned by the Allied tanks, which were superior to them in every way. The hardest fighting probably was during the push up the east toe of the Italian boot, and at Foggia, and Campobasso, he said.

He returned to England early this year, as an exchange officer, and while in England spent an enjoyable two-day leave with his brother, F. O. Clifford W. Morrow, who has made several missions over enemy territory, formerly flying with the famed Bison Squadron, and who is now serving with the 405 Squadron, R. C. A. F. He also met many boys from Peterborough and district, while in Italy, Sicily and England, he said.

He enlisted in June 1941, and after training in Kitchener, Brockville, and Camp Borden, went overseas as a lieutenant in the early part of 1942.

ARRIVES HOME—After 2½ years of service overseas, Captain Grant G. Morrow, 745 Water street, arrived home Tuesday evening for a leave before he goes on a tour of duty in Canada. The officer saw action in Italy and Sicily.

NAZI CRISIS IN THE EAST—From East Prussia to Turkey, events on the eastern front rush to critical showdowns. The Red Army, travelling at times at the rate of a mile an hour, is reported (1) at Warsaw while East Prussia is being pressed following the penetration of the "Suwalki triangle" annexed by the Germans in 1939. The Reds are in pre-war Germany. In Turkey (2) the threat of war is imminent as Turkey breaks off diplomatic relations with Germany.

Wendell L. Wilkie May Be Heard Before Election In November

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, August 3—(CP)—Wendell L. Willkie, snubbed and rejected early in his campaign to win the Republican Presidential nomination, may yet play a decisive role in next November's elections.

There is anxiety among the Democrats and Republicans over the presence of an estimated 25 per cent of the electorate sitting on the political fence, trying to make up their minds how to vote.

This large group of electors presumably look for something more progressive and modern than the time-worn, vague, general promises they find in the Democratic and Republican election platforms.

They like leaders such as Vice-President Henry Wallace whose fate at the hands of his party was not unlike Willkie's. Wallace was rejected when he sought re-nomination at the Democratic national convention in Chicago.

Wallace, in spite of that rebuff, has declared he will work for President Roosevelt and for Senator Harry Truman who defeated him for the Pice-Presidential nomination.

So the Democrats have a man with the right appeal to sway that estimated 25 per cent of the undecided electorate.

If Willkie supported the Republican ticket he could make an offsetting appeal to that group and even the odds. If he remains silent he will leave the advantage with the Democrats.

Make this pleasant 30-DAY TEST

See how one simple change of diet can help you keep fit

1. If you're really ill—see your doctor! But if you're just all the time feeling dopey and "blue," without real zest for life, chances are you're just suffering from incomplete elimination. It's an almost ever-present danger when you're over 35. Yet there's no need to risk your job, or spoil your fun! Just take this simple precaution:

2. Start now to eat Kellogg's Bran Flakes every morning! To keep fit you don't need horrid doses, or harsh cathartics that actually may be harmful. Instead, discover the natural way. Get plenty of "bulk" in your diet by eating Kellogg's Bran Flakes with Other Parts of Wheat. Gently laxative, they help keep food wastes moving promptly ::: supply valuable minerals and proteins too.

3. Just thirty days, and you'll know you have the answer! Thirty days away from the medicine cupboard, eating a big bowlful of these crisp delicious flakes every morning, and you should have proved the pleasant way to keep fit. Proved how grand it is to feel alert, have extra energy to do the extra things you want to do!

THOUSANDS HAVE PROVED IT!

"I'm foreman in a firm of manufacturing Pharmacists. My work is doubled with so many of the boys away. For a while it seemed I was just too tired to keep going. About a month ago I started eating Kellogg's Bran Flakes every day. Now I've zip left for playing too."

"I've been a bookkeeper for eighteen years. Just recently I started feeling so fagged out—my job was almost too much for me. Harsh laxatives simply upset me. So, I tried Kellogg's 30-day test, and kept right on. Now, work is a pleasure again."

"A drafting board is no place for a headache—the work is too exacting. But I couldn't get rid of that dull, head-achey feeling. Unpleasant doses did me no lasting good. Then I began to enjoy Kellogg's Bran Flakes every morning . . . and I mean enjoy! No more dragging, listless days for me!"

LOOK FOR the name "Kellogg's" on the distinctive golden-yellow package at your grocer's. Regular or economical Family size. Made at London, Canada by the makers of the famous Kellogg's Corn Flakes.

KEEP FIT with Kellogg's every day in the year!

Millbrook Flier Enjoys Touring India

MILLBROOK, Aug. 3 (ENS) — An interesting letter written July 12 by F.O. E. L. Burnham, R.C.A.F. now attached to the Headquarters Air Command, New Delhi, India was received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Burnham, on Monday of this week. He describes a furlough spent in the Himalayas, and says in part:

"I am back in the Himalayas again, this time at Kashmir, and at present Ross Donald and I are at the Park Hotel, in Srinagar, 5,200 feet above sea level, where it is cooler and more pleasant than at New Delhi. Tomorrow we go farther up to Gilmarg, 3,000 feet higher, and near the snows. We started this trip Sunday, coming by rail to Rawalpindi, stayed at the Hotel Metropole Monday night, and came on to Srinagar by car, the journey from Rawalpindi being 180 miles, and quite pretty through the foothills of the Himalayas. The road is good, cut into the sides of the hills, and in some places we went through short tunnels.

"After going through Kohala and Uri, we came out on a large plain, surrounded by the Himalayas and quite fertile. At Srinigar we went to see the Nisbat Gardens, and the famous Shalimar Gardens. There was no water in the pools, and the fountains were not playing, but we had a good look around and took some pictures; later we went by tonga a distance of 9 miles from Srinagar to Dal Lake, and took a ride around this lake in a chikari, and through the lotus beds, which are much like our water lillies, but larger and very pretty. A chikari is a long, narrow, pointed boat, with a lounge and canopy near the middle, and since Dal Lake borders on the Shalimar Gardens (Gardens of Love) these chikaris might be suitable places in which to do some lovemaking!

Sharp Rise

Continuing his letter on July 13, F. O. Burnham describes the trip to Talmarg, and then on to Gilmarg, "the rise being 3,000 feet in five miles. There are three ways of going up and back: By pony; walk; and by Dandy chair, which is a box-like affair, with handles back and front, and carried by four coolies. We got coolies to carry our luggage and rode the ponies up, Mac had never ridden a horse before, and I am no horseman, but we arrived safely after about two hours in the rain; it certainly would not have been good walking, as the trail was muddy and slippery.

"The hotel where we are staying is of wood, small and quite new and we find it much cooler; I have on my long trousers and my sweat shirt, and feel quite comfortable. It is very beautiful, with the mountains all around, and snow on the ones behind the hotel. Here, too, are tall pine and fir trees much like the ones in Northern Ontario.

These are really forests, and there are no jungles up in this part. The night we spent at Sulmarg was plenty chilly; it took me a long time to get my feet warm, in spite of the fact that I had three blankets over me. The altitude is about 9,000 feet, which accounts for the cool air. This morning we went to the bazaar and bought some walnut carvings, and tomorrow we are arranging to climb one of the peaks back of the hotel. It is supposed to be 14,000 feet above sea level, and has snow on it and some frozen lakes.

On July 16 a Major, Mac and I started out to climb Mount Apharmat, riding ghoras (ponies) to 11,000 feet, and then walking the rest of the way. We found the trees stopped at 10,000 feet, but above that there were juniper bushes, and plenty of small yellow, blue and white flowers, and rocks. After lunch, which the coolies had carried Mac and I struck off to look the glaciers over, the Major taking his dog and going in another direction. The snows are melting at this time of year, but there is still a lot of it, so we threw snowballs, and Mac made a snowman, and took a picture of it. There are millions of large boulders there, and the peaks are all rock. It didn't take so long to go down 5,000 feet to Killenmarg. We all had headaches, and were more or less sunburned.

"In Gilmarg there are no wheeled carriages, not even baby carriages, or bicycles. They are not allowed to come beyond Tangmarg, so if you want to go any place you go on a ghora, or walk. Babies are carried by coolies in a basket or box-like affair, with handles. Maybe they might be called bassinettes?

Indian Salesmen

Concluding his letter on July 17, the writer tells of a Kashmir goods' salesman coming around, and of purchase of personal gifts for the family at home, jackets, kimonas, housecoats, shawls, table covers and bed covers being the main articles offered for sale, all beautifully embroidered by hand. "I hope by the time I am due for leave again, I may be taking it in Canada. That will not be until next year, of course, but it won't take the time long to pass. I have taken a lot of pictures, and I hope to have some good ones to send you.

This trip has been unique in many ways and I will have many interesting thiings to tell you when the time comes We don't hear much war news up here, but I do hope the Germans will be beaten before the end of this year. It is surprising the number of people who come to places like this but it is much like going to summer resorts at home. There are buildings above this on the mountain, and we had tea at Killenmarg on the way down."

CHURCHILL RIDES A JEEP TO MESS IN FRANCE — Prime Minister Churchill with Air Vice Marshal Harry Broadhurst, D.S.O., D.F.C. (in back) and Wing Commander Charles Stewart Morice, M.C., London (driving), commanding officer of a Canadian Typhoon station in France, on their way to mess in France in a jeep.

SEES HIGHLIGHTS IN INDIA —FO. Ernest L. Burnham, R.C.A.F., only son of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Burnham, Millbrook, recently spent an interesting leave in India touring places noted for their great beauty. Before enlisting in 1941 he was employed at the Peterborough Utilities.

Robots Whoosh Upsets Bride

TORONTO, August 3 —Any one contemplating a thesis on robot bombs can get complete first-hand information from Mrs. Harry Shaw, who can be found at 117 Douglas Avenue, Toronto. Two weeks ago she could be found flat on her face in London, the victim of a doodle-bug's whoosh.

Married to Sgt. Harry Shaw of Tortnot 10 months ago in England, she arrived here Wednesday with 15 other British war brides. Her husband, a sergeant in the 48th Highlanders until recently, preceded her home by five months. He was honorably discharged, is now a civilian.

Doodle-bugs, in fact, endeavored to keep Joan out of Canada not once but twice.

Front Door Blown Off.

"The first time," this honey-haired, grey-green-eyed English girl explained last night, "I had two heavy trunks packed and waiting to be transported to the ship. A robot crashed two blocks away.

"It blew the front door up to the top of the staircase. It blew both my trunks clear across the room. It broke every window in our house."

She didn't appear particularly dismayed.

"There is no use of being dismayed," she replied. "There's nothing one can do about them."

The second time she was walking down the street, minding her own business, when the things struck again. This one was a good 300 yards away, but the concussion knocked her flat.

What did she do?

"Why," she replieid again, lifting her eyebrows in mild surprise, "I picked myself up and continued to walk down the street."

Unlike bombs, robots leave no craters. They land, blast out in all directions. But the English are still philodsophical about them.

"Joan's grandmother is 87," Harry supplied. "She has a fourth-floor flat and when the doodle-bugs come over she never heads for a shelter. She sits in front of her fire and makes tea."

The 16 war brides were received Wednesday in the finely appointed Red Cross reception centre in Union Station, opened a few weeks ago.

Plant Disposal Not Determined

OTTAWA, August 3 — (CP). — Final disposition of Government-owned munitions plants is a matter on which, it is understood, policy has not yet been determined, and there are no indications whether Canada will follow a course forecast for Australia in operating some of the plants for the production of civilian goods.

John Curtin, Australian Prime Minister, said yesterday that while the Government might enter some field of civilian production it was not proposed to enter into competition in adequately covered fields, except where there was monopolistic control.

One of Canada's most important war plants—the Polymer Synthetic Rubber plant at Sarnia, Ont.—is the one exception to the uncertain future of war plants. Munitions Minister Howe has made it clear that the Government has no immediate intention of disposing of the Polymer plant although offers have been made by private enterprises.

Aids Civil Servants

OTTAWA, Aug. 3 — (CP) — The Senate yesterday gave third reading to a bill extending provisions of the Civil Service Superannuation Act to cover certain classes of employees not now covered. It now awaits royal assent.

The amendments to the act will give more than 3,500 civil servants, who declined to come under the act when it was first passed, one year in which they may take up an option to come under the act.

Lord Harding Dies

LONDON, August 3 — CP). — Lord Harding of Penshurst, 86, former Viceroy of India, died yesterday.

Drew Opposes New Family Allowance Bill

RICHMOND HILL, Ont., Aug. 3—(CP)—Premier Drew of Ontario said last night that in the family allowance bill which has been passed by the House of Commons Prime Minister Mackenzie King "has treated our clearly defined constitutional rights with arrogant contempt." He added that the Ontario Government will "resist, in every way possible, this carefully-planned attempt to break our constitution by a steady process of attrition."

Addressing a Progressive Conservative rally in this York County town, Ontario's premier said that while the province was not consulted on the bill it was committed to pay $100,000,000, half the initial annual cost of the allowance scheme. If that money were handled by the provincial government, expenditure of $45,000,000 would provide family allowances for Ontario on a more generous scale than under the Federal legislation and the remaining $55,000,000 used for educational and health services, highway construction and debt reduction.

"These are the things the people of Ontario would have for the same $100,000,000 if we retain control over the social services which was given to us by the British North America Act. That is why the government of Ontario will not concur in any such high-handed procedure."

Mr. King had said in the House of Commons that the Federal bill would be discussed at the coming Dominion-provincial conference and that the provinces would be asked for their co-operation in regard to several of its details, said the premier, adding:

"Mr. King makes it quite clear that the provinces have a joint interest in the administration of this bill and yet he has the sublime effontery to pass this bill without consulting the largest province, whose co-operation he now asks."

Premier Drew said he had been urging for nearly a year the calling of a Dominion-provincial conference and had received "no reasonable explanation" as to why it had not been called sooner. It was essential that such a conference be held "before legislation was introduced into the House of Commons affecting the joint interests of the Dominion and provincial governments."

He also criticized Mr. King for his objection to the bill being called a bribe and said that "if anyone had any doubt on that score it must have been removed" by speeches Tuesday night by Mr. King and Premier Godbout of Quebec.

Mr. Godbout told a political meeting that "this baby bonus is the result of his collaboration with Mr. King and in the same evening Mr. King went out of his way in the House of Commons to point out the very special advantage this bill offered to the people of Quebec."

"On Mr. Godbout's own statement, supported by the evidence of Mr. King himself, this bill is an outrageous bribe offered to the people of Quebec immediately before an election, upon which Mr. King's last chance of political survival depends."

Mr. Drew said "this sort of conduct on the part of the prime minister of Canada can lead only to domestic chaos."

Trio Of Leaders Head Election

FREDERICTON, Aug. 3 —(CP)— Leaders of the three parties involved in the New Brunswick general election Aug. 28 have one thing in common—all are leading a party in an election campaign for the first time.

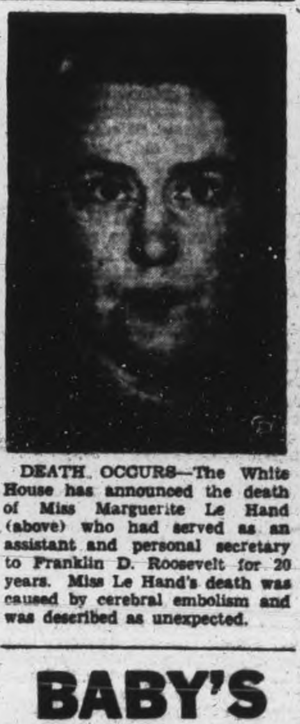
Hon. J. B. McNair became premier after Hon. A. A. Dysart led the Liberals to victory in the 1939 election. Premier McNair is a candidate in York County, where he suffered defeat in the same election before winning a by-election in Victoria.

Choice of Hugh Mackay as Progressive Conservative leader also was made after the last election. Mr. Mackay is seeking re-election in Kings County. The Co-operative Commonwealth Federation campaign leader, J. A. Mugrideg, is the tyro of the party chiefs. His candidature in Saint John city is his first public political venture.

The two older parties already have nominated most of their candidates and will contest all 48 seats. The C.C.F., slower in getting candidates into the field, have said they also will be making a fight for each seat when nomination day arrives Aug. 14. This party made its first appearance in a New Brunswick election in 1939, when the solitary C.C.F. candidate met overwhelming defeat in Saint John City.

Premier McNair is a lawyer, Mr. Mackay a financier and Mr. Mugridge an electrician. Other candidates represent most phases of New Brunswick life, with farmers and lumbermen predominating among those in basic industries. Of professional men in the list, lawyers are most numreous. There are four doctors, two coal mine operators, merchants, county councillors and wardens, a dentist, druggist and a combined undertaker and a blacksmith.

The candidates include three army men—Capt. William T. Cooper, C.C.F., running in Saint John City; Sgt. L. Keith Ingersoll, Progressive Conservative, Charlotte, and Dr. E. T. Kennedy, Progressive Conservative, Kings.



DEATH OCCURS—The White House has announced the death of Miss Marguerite Le Hand (above) who had served as an assistant and personal secretary to Franklin D. Roosevelt for 20 years. Miss Le Hand's death was caused by cerebral embolism and was described as unexpected.

Bird Sanctuary Set Aside Near Lakefield

A huge bird and game sanctuary, established on property originally owned by the Canada Cement Co. at Buckley's Lake, near Lakefield, has just recently been set up by the Peterborough Fish and Game Association. It covers a tract of approximately 1,000 acres of swamp, lake, canals and considerable forest, and is known to be admirably suited for the use to which it will be set aside.

In by-gone years the cement company dredged out marl from this area for their cement and as this was abandoned, it became grown over and now provides a wonderful cover for birds and game of all kinds. There are 6 miles o fcanals, 40 feet wide and ranging about six to twelve feet in depth.

The association has secured the services of Moses Marsden as warden of the large sanctuary, to watch over and take care of it. Mr. Marsden will have permission to trap muskrat and mink in the area, but the Fish and Game Association has announced its attention of encouraging multiplication of beaver, of which there are already a number.

To promote good growing conditions, a certain amount of timber will be cut from this area, but only enough to thin it down. This work will be in charge of H. R. Scott. Thereafter, it is planned to plant thousands of new trees in addition to some 2,000 new ones already in the ground. Wild rice, mangolds, buckwheat, sunflower, etc., are also going to be planted.

To help the project along, any parties visiting the sanctuary are urged to take with them a bag of grain, and while in the bird and sanctuary to scatter it around or place it in containers on trees.

Canadian Woman Patrols For Coast Guard

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 3—(CP).—The only woman coastguard operator in the United States owning her own boat is a Canadian—Jean Thornton Linderman, formerly of Woodstock, Ont.

Widow of Bert Arthur Linderman, industrialist and inventor, Mrs. Linderman's home, "Liar's Lair," located on the Florida Keys has become a Coastguard auxiliary base. And its hostess is the only feminine auxiliarist skipper in the United States.

Her job is to patrol the Florida Keys — mangrove-circled, mystery-shrouded dots of land with miles and miles of twisting creeks and waterways—hideout of bootleggers and army deserters.

She has been on duty for two years as a member of the U.S. Coastguard Temporary Reserve. Previous to that she did voluntary patrolling when the Nazis began sinking ships off the coast of the United States.

Noted for her hospitality, during her 13 years as chatelaine of "Liar's Lair," she has entertained numerous world notables. "We called it 'Liar's Lair'," she once explained, "because Mr. Linderman built it as a winter fishing lodge. And you know the reputation of all fishermen."

Deserter Nabbed.

Mrs. Linderman's knowledge of the Keys and the people who live there has already resulted in capture of a two-time deserter from the U.S. Army.

She installed a small marine railway on the island so that her boats could be repaired at home. Many of the conveniences of pre-war days come in handy, too. The electric generator now provides the island with electricity and operates the well-equipped machine shop which was a hobby of her late husband. Those machines are used in preparing wood that goes into the making of many of the ammunition boxes carrying shells to fighting men the world over.

An article in Depth Charges, the U.S. Coastguard Auxiliary and Temporary Reserve publication, recently paid tribute to Mrs. Linderman:

"This five-foot-six dynamo of feminine efficiency is best described in words of one of the regulars stationed nearby: 'I don't know what we'd do without her. She knows the Keys and people so well that it would take years to train anyone to take her place'."

Starr-Norrad Nuptials Are Solemnized

St. Luke's Anglican Church, decorated with vari-colored gladioli and fragrant cedar, was the setting for a pretty wedding Wednesday, when Marguerite Edney (Babs) Norrad, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Norrad, 149 Stewart street, became the bride of Harvey Reginald Starr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Starr, 215 Carlisle avenue. Rev. A. J. Arthur officiated. Mrs. Gerald Bousfield, the groom's sister was at the organ, and played "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was becomingly gowned in floor-length white brocaded satin, on long torso lines, with Sweetheart neckline and long sleeves. Her finger-tip veil of white embroidered net was gathered and caught to her head with gardenias, and she carried a bouquet of Bettertime roses. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Clinton Crowe, as matron of honor, in floor-length white net over satin, with pink flowers brocaded on the full skirt. She wore a white net shoulder-length veil caught with pink flowers, and carried Briarcliffe roses. Sgt. Vimy York was best man.

Following a reception at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Starr left for a wedding trip to Toronto, the bride travelling in a navy blue tailored suit, white accessories, and a corsage of Briarcliffe roses. On their return the young couple will make their home at 618 Bethune street.

Norway's Women Failed To Use Political Rights

By ADELAIDE KERR, Associated Press Writer.

NEW YORK, August 3 —(CP) — "The war taught us women of Norway —who were among the most politically privileged women in the world—that we did not use our rights well enough."

That comment comes from Else Margrete Reed of the Norwegian Information Service in New York. Miss Reed is qualifiied to speak for Norwegian women. She is a former editor of Norway's leading woman's magazine —We Ourselves and Our Home, a former underground worker and now is in the United States as an unofficial representative of Norway's women.

"Before the war," she said, "Norwegian women had progressed so far in the matter of women's rights that it was ancient history for us. Since the Viking days, Norwegian women have been a vital force in the country. The men went to sea and the women remained at home to assume responsibility for the home and children. Norway was the first sovereign state to give women political rights. Norwegian women got the vote in 1907 and the right to hold state postions five years later.

"But there we stopped. We were too lazy to go into politics. We shrugged our shoulders and said, 'Leave it to the men.' In the Norwegian Storting (parliament) of 150 members there were never more than three women at any time. We did not use the rights we had well enough.

Can't Blame Men.

"All the world knows what happened in Norway during the war. I do not mean to infer that women in the government could have prevented the war, just because they were women. But women always blame men for war. And I say we cannot rightly blame them, when we were not in there helping them prevent it. If you want to enjoy the priviliges of a democractic country, you must contribute to it."

Miss Reed belives that Norwegian women will be much more active in politics and in the country's ffairs in the post-war period. They have played an effective and indomitable role during the Nazi occupation, she said. Norwegian teachers have refused to teach Nazi doctrines in school, and Norwegian women generally have been extremely active in the underground.

She herself was active in the underground until warned that the Gestapo had orders for her capture. She pacekd a little overnight bag and escaped on a few hours' notice.

"Friends in the underground took me by car to a certain spot where we met my first guide," she said. "We walked for about six hours till we met the next guide and so on. I walked the better part of four days and nights till I reached Sarna, Sweden. I have no idea who the men weer who guided me. I never saw them before and probably I shall never see them again. They were all members of the underground.

From Sweden Miss Reed went to London where the Norwegian government in exile asked her to join the staff of the Norwegian Information Service in New York.

Women's Work Essential On Home Front

By EDNA JAQUES

At the conclusion of a recent three-day visit to Normandy, Prime Minister Churchill talked to about 500 Airforce men who surrounded his plane just before it took off for England. He told them that the "war might come to an end earlier than we have a right to say," and added, referring to events inside Germany, "think how you would feel if there was a revolution at home."

Thus he gave to the home front an importance that is sometimes overlooked, the vital day-to-day need of stability and strength at home.

"Just where is the home front anyway?" a woman asks. "All you hear is home front . . . where do they mean?" We'll tell you where it is.

The home front is right where you live. It might be a cattle ranch in the foothills, a hot farm kitchen on the prairie, an apartment in down-town Toronto. A shady lane, a corner store, a backyard where kids play with old spoons in a sand box is part of the home front. So is Main Street, where buses kick up clouds of blue exhaust smoke and old ladies sputter and wish the war would end.

It is anywhere in Canada where supplies are being produced or tools of war turned out, wherever there is a maple leaf in a clean window looking out on the street, and a son overseas. There is your Home Front.

Do Good Job

So wherever you are . . . in a smoky dug-out along the Athabasca . . . in a red-hot kitchen getting meals for harvesters . . . in a munition plant . . . a shipyard or an assembly line . . hold that front, hold it for the boys overseas who are giving all they've got. Remember that every pair of hands, every tired back counts for victory.

Here are a few ways you can help. But cutting out all unnecessary spending. Our money is needed for tools of war. Lending every cent we can spare for medical supplies . . . food for the armed forces . . . shells . . . guns . . . tanks. Being satisfied with your share of scarce supplies. Supporting both price and wage control. Not asking for higher profits or higher pay because of wartime conditions.

Bright Towels Popular For Curtains

Inexpensive, easy - to - launder towels are becoming more and more popular for use as bathroom curtains, and are especially handy when hung on those little rods which swing back from the window to allow light and air to enter, but can be swung over in a minute for privacy. However, all-white towels, though light don't have quite enough dash and smartness to brighten up the average bathroom.

For a little "different" touch that will make the curtains look twice as expensive and snappy, try appliqueing bright flowers or floral designs on the white background, and be surprised at the finished effect they produce. The designs can be bought, but it is also quite easy to make them. Just buy a yard or so of washable glazed floral chintz or fast color sateen-type cotton fabric that has complete and separate flowers, leaf and stem designs. These types are easily cut out and mounted.

"High twist" type cottons, if they are obtainable, are much easier to work with, since they do not ravel easily, and it isn't necessary to turn under the edges. In a fabric with a looser weave, however, it is wiser to turn under the edges about one-eighth of an inch and baste all around before sticking on the towel. Always remember to tack the design in place before starting to applique.

Here are a couple more ideas to put in idle hours on hot evenings. If an old beach robe has outlived its usefulness, try cutting it up for use around the house. If the garment was made of terry cloth, even the smallest salvageable piece can be made into wash cloths, and the larger pieces will make handy towels. If the robe was made of print, gay cushion covers for the couch in the sun-porch can be made with very little trouble. A dress that has become worn out at the elbows or under the armholes can also be utilized. Rip out the sleeves; cut armholes and hem them; turn in the front to form a deep V; and presto, a jumper dress, ready for action. A crisp white blouse added to the ensemble, and there's a new outfit.

GIVING BLOOD FOR FIGHTERS—When the Red Cross mobile blood transfusion unit paid its first visit to the Ottawa Car and Aircraft Ltd. plant, more than 200 donors came forward to give their blood to save a life on the firing lines. Mrs. F. S. Wilder, wife of Lieut.-Col. Wilder, now at Canadian Army Headquarters in England, found a veteran donor in Benoit Dupont, an O.C. and A. worker. It was Mr. Dupont's 4th blood donation. In the picture Mr. Benoit smilingly watches Mrs. Wilder perform the finishing touches after his 4th donation.

JUST FOR WOMEN

By CONNIE NICHOLSON
(Society Editor of The Examiner)

The fierce and penetrating summer heat and humidity are playing havoc with business nerves, and every working girl looks forward to rushing home and collapsing in a comfortable chair in a cool, fresh house. However, a cool, refreshing house is easier said than done these days when the heat seems to penetrate even through closed doors and windows, combining with humidity to make working doubly uncomfortable for everyone.

It's surprising the difference the appearance of a room makes in the overall effect of coolness. A plain, simply furnished room, free from too many knick-knacks stuck here and there, gives an illusion of freshness that goes a long way toward creating a more bearable atmosphere. Light backgrounds too help in this respect. Try storing the carpet for the hot weather, leaving polished floors with just a few small rugs here and there to protect spots which get more wear. No one is in the house more than is necessary in the warm weather, so floors shouldn't suffer too much without this protection, and the effect of spaciousness and freshness is well worth the effort.

Instead of leaving the fireplace cover in its usual spot, try moving it away and putting some greenery in the fireplace where the wood generally is placed. Huckleberry foliage or other green leafy branches will give an added touch of life to the room, and their cool fresh odor will be delightfully soothing and refreshing. Keep shades and windows closed during the heat of the day, and open them at night to catch any little breezes which might deign to come along. When opening windows leave doors and bedroom doors open as well, insuring cross ventilation.

Every little hint that saves time and effort in particularly trying weather is worth a trial, and here is one which should help: Dust has long been the bane of every housewife and open windows on warm days mean a fine coating of dust on the window sills every day, requiring a thorough wiping. After the next cleaning, try giving the sills a light waxing with ordinary floor wax and watch how easily that annoying film can be whisked off.

Help Jaded Appetites

Hot sultry days mean faded, picky appetites and present the additional problem of appetising as well as nourishing meals. Salads, of course, are always an old stand-by, and their variety provides ample room for experimenting. A green salad, although tasty, is not nourishing enough in itself, but if strips of cold meat and cheese or slices of hard-cooked eggs are added, necessary food values are provided and the dish will still be inviting.

Fish dishes provide a welcome change from the familiar salad and cold meat menus, since they are light and have a wealth of food value. As a little change from fried fish, try stuffing and baking it instead or baking the fillets in milk. Broiled fish steaks are also tempting, if basted once or twice with melted margarine to which lemon juice and a little minced onion has been added. Remember, sliced lemons always add that little tangy touch most fish dishes need.

Shiny Surfaces

Windows and mirrors have a tendency to cloud up and look dirty and streaky in hot weather. For clean, shining windows, use water and washing soda, ammonia, borax or alcohol. Never use soap, since it leaves a film. A little vinegar added to the water produces a bright polish, and better results are obtained on extra dirty windows if they are wiped first with a damp cloth.

To clean mirrors, mix a little powdered bluing, whiting or pumice stone with alcohol, to form a thin paste. Smear the surface of the mirror with this mixture, using a small rag or sponge, and rub off before the alcohol evaporates. Polish with a soft cloth.

Timely Hints

Brushes of all kinds are more difficult to obtain now, so it is wise to take care of those already on hand. Nothing spoils a brush quicker than accumulated dirt and dust, and a weekly cleaning will insure longer and more satisfactory wear. To clean hair brushes, for instance, rinse them thoroughly in cold water to which a generous amount of ammonia has been added. Then shake, and place in the open air to dry. The ammonia removes the dirt very quickly. Nylon bristled brushes can be cleaned with soap and warm water.

Before ebony brushes are washed, the wood should be thoroughly rubbed with vaseline to prevent ammonia or soda water from spoiling the ebony. Floor brushes which have become dirty can be cleaned by rinsing in a tepid soapy lather, to which a generous amount of salt has been added. Rinse in clear warm water and dry in the open air.

Speaking of brushes, here's a novel idea suggested by a friend. Take a piece of cheese cloth and cover the brush with it. The bristles will work right through—and wind it around the handle so that a firm grip is obtained. Then brush the hair in the regular fashion. When finished, remove the cheese cloth, wash it out, and it's ready for another day. This idea helps considerably in saving the brush from too frequent washing.

Beldock-Chaplin Vows Pledged

TRENT RIVER, Aug. 3 (ENS)— A pretty wedding was solemnized on Tuesday under a pink and white arch, trimmed with white bells and baskets of summer flowers, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Ruttan, when Rena Marjorie Chaplin, fourth daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Chaplin, Trent River, became the bride of Gordon Beldock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Beldock of Norwood. Rev. J W. Wilkinson officiated and Mrs. Chaplin, mother of the bride, played the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was frocked in pale blue Benquin georgette street-length dress, and a matching hat and shoulder veil with white accessories. She wore a corsage of yellow roses and baby's breath.

Miss Clara Chaplin sister of the bride was bridesmaid, in pale pink street length frock of silk chiffon, wreath of pink roses and shoulder veil to match and wore a corsage of deep pink Delight roses and white accessories.

At the reception the bride's mother received in a gown of navy blue sheer crepe trimmed with shoulder corsage of white roses and the groom's mother assisted dressed in black sheer over flowered back ground. The spacious dining room was attractively decorated in pink and white cut summer flowers and the bride's table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake, silver candle-sticks with tall pink candles. A dainty buffet lunch was served to the immediate relatives by friends of the bride: Mrs. F Ruttan, Mrs. E. Little, Mrs. H. Mann and Mrs. D. Liberty.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Beldock left on a honeymoon trip to Muskoka Lakes and points north.

For travelling the bride donned a two-piece ensemble of navy blue sheer crepe, navy and white hat and white accessories.

Vancouver Woman Builds Own House

WHITE ROCK, B.C., August 3 —(CP). — This is the story of a Vancouver dressmaker who needed a house so she made one herself.

Mrs. O. Battryn could not find a house and she couldnt find any workmen to build her one, so she took matters into her own hands. Now she owns a trim, new storey-and-a-half building finished just the way she wants it.

The house lies in a forest clearing on the outskirts of neighboring Ocean Park. It is 20 by 28 feet and has seven rooms. Except for the outside framing which was erected by two local carpenters the entire house was built by Mrs. Battryn.

She made all the fittings andthe kitchen is complete with a linoleum-covered workbench, built-in sink, and wall cabinets. Mrs. Battryn set and hung every door and window. She is her own plumber, paper-hanger and painter.

"Whenever I grew short of materials I prayed and things just seemed to turn up when they were most needed," said Mrs. Battryn, who is an evangelist.

The dressmaker-evangelist cleared her own land and dug her own well. Even her ladder is one she made herself, but perhaps she is prouder of the split-cedar shakes around the outside base of the building than of anything else. These she hewed herself from logs off her own land.

Musical Therapy Good For Health

NEW YORK, August 3 — (CP)— Frieda Hempel is no doctor, but she knows that music is medicine. She has watched it work.

The famous lyric and coloratura soprano has been performing for wounded servicemen in this war as she did in the First Great War. And she's found the recipe for melodic medicine is just as effective to-day as in 1918.

"Something gay, light and charming—waltzes, Schubert, little French songs—that's what the boys like. Nothing nostalgic, nothing sad. When they hear gay songs, they relax. They forget the world of battle."

Music can do more than make servicemen forget the horrors of warfare, the singer believes. She is campaigning for an active kind of musical therapy— a treatment with rhythm. If she had her way, she would put a singer on every hospital staff, to get the wounded to sing themselves to health.

Even the mentally unbalanced might be taught to co-ordination with rhythm, she thinks. The full relaxed breathing so important in singing would be good for them, too, and also would help cure chest diseases such as tuberculosis and asthma.

"Everybody likes a good tune," says the opera singer. "And everybody reacts to music. When I hear people say they do not like music. I am afaid of them. I stay away."

Nurse Shortage Big Worry To Hospital Heads

TORONTO, Aug. 3 — Toronto lacks about 150 registered nurses in 20 hospitals, but the local situation is less severe than in other parts of Canada. There's a shortage of 2,000 R. N.'s across Canada and the small towns and cities less attractive to migratory nurses are experiencing the famine at its worst.

Toronto, for all its size and extensive hospital facilities, bears but 7 per cent of the shortage. Montreal has vacancies for 250 full-time nurses, and 900 women and 275 men are desperately needed on the domestic staffs. Toronto needs but 140 people on the non-professional staffs.

Mary Eadies, women's supervisor in this district for National Selective Service, provided the Toronto figures. "The situation is much improved now, and will be until the fall because many high school students have taken positions on the non-professional staffs. Our survey was made in June, before the end of the school term."

The shortage in Toronto is "not nearly as bad as in other cities," she added cheerfully.

Appeal Made by N.S.S. Head.

Every registered nurse in Canada —all 6,000 of them —recently received a personal letter from Arthur J.MacNamara, director of National Selective Service, suggesting that the girls get down to work. Miss Eadie chuckled. "I don't think that helped much either."

Toronto officials aren't very hopeful of relief for the duration. Miss Winnifred Griffin of the Central Registry of Graduate Nurses said the profession had lost "a great number" of nurses to the armed forces, and that any influx of nurses to Toronto would mean a greater shortage somewhere else.

"I can't see that the situation has been steadily increasing since last summer. The highest was 422 in June. July is usually the slowest month of the year, and the records showed a drop of about 200 requests for nurses. But more than 400 calls were unfilled.

"Married nurses are help enormously," Miss Griffin continued warmly. "They're staying with us. They take time off to be married and come right back. Since most of them marry servicemen, the work helps them to keep busy while their husbands are away."

Miss Griffin commented on the fluid quality of the supply of nurses. They come from small towns and from the West, enough to earn money to move on to another. "They know they can get jobs anywhere, so some of them seem to be wandering from coast to coast."

"I can't see that the situation has

◆ ◆ ◆

Undoubtedly there are men who have a talent for matrimony, just as there are men who have a talent for singing, or playing bridge, or making money. It is not that they are especially handsome, or intelligent, or Clark Gableish, or even that they are particularly diplomatic and skillful in handling women. They just seem born housebroken and knowing how to work in double harness without upsetting the apple cart.

Now while it is true that no one knows exactly just what qualities it takes to make a man a desirable husband, a great light has been thrown on the subject by a recent happening in which two women discovered that they ere simultaneously married to the same man.

The women, neither of whom had dreamed of the existence of the other, met for the first time at their mutual husband's funeral, and, strangely enough instead of upbraiding his memory for his deception, they both bore testimony to what a good husband he had been.

"No one," said Wife No. 1, who had been married to the deceased bigamist for 31 ears, "could have wished for a better husband. He was always so kind and gentle and attentive and cheerful and good-natured."

"Our marriage was such a happy one," testified Wife No. 2, whose marriage had lasted 18 years; "he was so pleasant to live with."

Ordinary Man Pleased Two Women.

Now this man was just a plain, ordinary, run-of-the-mill sort of a chap who had no way of gilding marriage for his wives. He supplied them with no fine houses, or gay life. He gave them no limousines or mink coats. He was no Glamor Boy himself. But just because he was easy to get along with they contentedly cooked and washed and scrubbed for him and pinched the pennies, and forgave him for the deception he had practiced upon them.

And after all has been said, isn't this the real answer to what is a good husband, and how to be happy though married? Especially for women. Deep down under all the romance and the ambitions and the craving for luxuries, even down under love itself, isn't the one thing that a wife wants in a husband more than anything else, is for him to be pleasant to live with.

It isn't a husband's virtues that make or mar a wife's happiness. It is his disposition. He may be as moral as all the Ten Commandments, but if he is grouchy around the house and she goes in fear and trembling of doing or saying something that will send him into a spell of the sulks, she will envy every woman who is married to a cheerful sinner.

A man may hang his wife with jewels, but if he never speaks to her except to say something sarcastic that cuts like a knife, her matched pearls will not ease the pain in her heart. If he never does anything to make the home bright and cheerful, she has less than the poorest woman whose husband pals up with her. So perhaps what a woman wants in a husband is just a good disposition.

SHE WEARS THE PANTS—For summer rambles over country paths or on the seashore, slacks are smart and practical. Many a girl would never have learned the hard way that she is allergic to poison ivy or oak had she taken to slacks when she took to the woods. Slacks likewise stand off mosquitoes, ferocious gnats and the cruel slashes of briar bushes. Well cut, so that they hang true, this slacks model is made in such cheery colors as blue, gray, green, beige and gold.—By Prunella Wood.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

With green apple time in sight we are going to give you a few recipes that you will both enjoy making and eating. The first, "Apple Cobbler," makes a grand dessert, is most inexpensive and is a good food for everyone. Try this recipe. You will be glad you did.

Apple Cobbler

3 large tart apples, 2-3 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 cup flour, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, few grains salt, 2 tablespoons shortening, 1-3 cup milk.

Core apples, pare, slice thin. Combine sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg. Place apples in greased pan, sprinkle with sugar mixture. Dot with butter. Sift together, flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in shortening with 2 knives or pastry blender. Add milk to make soft dough. Roll out on lightly floured board to 8" x 8". Place on apples. Score dough in squares. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 35 minutes. Serve hot with sauce.

Hard Sauce: 1-3 cup butter, 1 cup sugar (confectioner's), 1 teaspoon vanilla. Cream butter, add sugar, creaming until fluffy. Add vanilla. Mix well. This will make one cup.

Creamed Apple Tart

3 cups sliced apples, ¾ cup brown sugar, juice and grated rind of half a lemon, 2 cups boiled custard. Method: Line small pudding dish with pie pastry. Place in it apples, sugar, lemon juice and rind, and cover with upper crust. Bake in moderate oven of 350 degrees for 40 minutes. When baked, lift top crust and pour in boiled custard. Replace crust and serve ice cold.

Custard Sauce

1 cup milk, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons white sugar, ¼ teaspoon flavoring, ⅛ teaspoon salt. Method: Bring milk to the boiling point in double boiler. Gradually add beaten egg and sugar and cook until sauce coats spoon, stirring constantly. Cool, add salt and flavoring. Strain if necessary.

Crumb Pie Shell

1 cup sweet cracker crumbs, ¼ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-3 cup melted butter. Mix crumbs, sugar and cinnamon, blend in shortening, press into 9" pie plate and chill. Graham crackers are the best to use. However, if lemon wafers are used, omit cinnamon. An attractive border is made by halfing the wafers. This makes a very tasty and very inexpensive pie shell.

Peach Cobbler Dessert Suggested As Summer Dish

BY MARY MOORE

If you watch me closely you can see that I haven't been eating at home, or we wouldn't be having a series of such time-taking dessert,—crepes suzette, lemon pie, French pastry to mention a few.

During the whole month of July the Moores have been moving around like gypsies,—well-fed, spring-mattressed gypsies though,—but on the move between three different beloved friends' or relatives homes. Now we have to stay home so I can do some serious canning.

While we had smoked loin of pork baked with sauerkraut; and cold Restigouche salmon with every conceivable appropriate garnish (even large capers from Algiers), and Maryland Chicken with potato dumplings—those things were super, but the desserts are more seasonable so that's what counts today.

Peach Cobbler

Using white flesh peaches prepare 3 cups peeled and sliced, 2 tablespoons tapioca (minute), ¼ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon or nutmeg, 1 tablespoon butter, biscuit dough. Place peaches in shallow baking dish which has been buttered, sprinkle with the tapioca, mixing it down into them a little, and let stand 10 minutes. Sprinkle with sugar, salt and spice. Dot top with butter. Roll biscuit dough to ¼-inch thickness (see ingredients below). Prick and place over top of the peach mixture. Bake at 425 deg. Fhr. for about 30 minutes or until golden. Apricots, blackberries or red raspberries are good too in place of peaches.

Baking Powder Biscuit Dough for this cobbler contains a little sugar, but except for that is the same as standard baking powder biscuit: Two cups sifted flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 4 teaspoons shortening, ¾ cup milk, ¼ cup sugar. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Rub shortening in with finger tips. Add milk slowly and mix to a soft dough. Roll out on a slightly floured board to ¼-inch thickness. Place over fruit in pan and proceed as directed in recipe above.

Banana Cake

This cake has no season (except when the importers can get the bananas distributed these tumultuous days), but does make a good summer dessert, for it may be carried for picnics, and because of its delicious flavor makes a complete dessert in itself.

One and ¾ cups sifted flour, ¾ teaspoon soda, 1½ teaspoons cream of tartar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1/3 cup shortening, 2-3 cup sugar, 2 eggs, well beaten, 1 cup mashed bananas (about 3 ripe ones). Sift flour, soda, cream of tartar, and salt together 3 times. Rub shortening to a creamy consistency with the back of a spoon. Stir in the sugar, a few tablespoons at a time, and continue beating until light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat well. Add flour mixture alternately with banana, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Pour into well-greased loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees F. about 1 hour. If baked in pan 9 x 9 x 2 inches it requires not more than 50 minutes.

Apple Fritters

One cup flour, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, 2 tablespoons sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅓ cup milk, 1 egg, 5 or 6 sour apples. Mix and sift flour baking powder, sugar and salt. Add milk and well-beaten egg. Mix well. Pare and core apples. Cut in sections or chop and mix with batter—if chopped dip in batter, and fry each piece of fritter dropped from spoon until golden at 360 deg. fahr. in hot fat. Drain on unglazed paper and sprinkle with powered sugar. Good as is or served with lemon sauce.

ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I read your column daily and have tried an enjoyed many of your lovely recipes.

Now I would like to know if it is possible to make up and can Chop Suey and Chili con Carne for winter use, while the vegetables are plentiful.

Would you have a good recipe for making a spicy chili con carne? Also is there a method of canning grapefruit? Thanking you—Mrs. Wilbert Jordan.

ANSWER: The canning of meats and chicken requires processing under steam pressure. The temperatures required for successful sterilization (240 to 250 deg. F. equivalent to 10 to 15 lbs. steam pressure) cannot be obtained inside the can or jar except by the use of the steam pressure canner. The water bath, the oven, and the steamer without pressure are inadequate for canning meats and cannot be used safely.

When glass jars are used, meats should be precooked in the oven or in water before being packed in the container. When tin cans are used, the meat may be precooked in either of these ways and packed hot, or it may be packed raw and the cans exhausted before being sealed—to exhaust means to heat contents in can before sealing.

Chili con Carne.

Using 2 lbs. chili beans or some other pink or red variety pick over, wash and soak overnight in cool place. Remove rough meat and most of the fat from 5 lbs. lean beef, or beef and pork mixed and grind coarsely or cut in ¾-inch cubes. Slice thinly 2 or 3 cloves of garlic, and add them and 3 to 5 tablespoons fresh chili powder, 3 tablespoons salt, ½ cup flour, and mix very well. Saute this mixture in 1 cup hot beef fat until red color disappears from meat. Now you may add 2 quarts hot water or stewed or fresh tomatoes or tomato juice and let all simmer for 10 minutes. Drain the beans, and blanch them by boiling 5 minutes in boiling water. Drain well but keep hot. Fill cans or jars about one-third full of hot beans. Add the hot meat mixture to about 7-8 capacity of can, then fill with boiling water. Stir mix with sterile fork to allow water to drop through beans and chili mix, then you may be able to add a little more boiling water. Seal. Process at 240 deg. Fah. for 2 hours for No. 2 tins (20 oz.) or 150 minutes in quart glass jars.

Chop Suey.

Two cups raw chicken, veal or pork cut in strips, 1 cup celery cut in diagonal strips, 1¼ teaspoons salt, ½ green pepper, 1 small Spanish type onion, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 or 2 tablespoons butter or cooking oil, soy sauce, boiled rice. Roll the meat in flour and saute in hot fat until light gold, then add finely chopped onion, slices of pepper and the celery and saute for 2 minutes, then add salt and pepper, and about 1½ cups liquid—either chicken stock or boiling water. Simmer ½ hour, adding 1 tablespoon soy sauce during last 10 minutes. Taste for salt, and if your family likes soy sauce add more. Have ready fluffy boiled rice. Serve mound or rice in centre of platter, surround base with chop suey mix, garnished with pepper rings. To can chop suey proceed up to and put in cans same as chili con carne. Process at 240 deg. F. 2 hours.

The method of canning grapefruit is very complex, even in canning factories, but it can be done in the home without pressure equipment. The details of peeling, the lye bath required for loosening skins and membrane, density of sugar syrup, temperature control during process are an exact science. I doubt very much that you would think them worth while. If it is the flavor of canned grapefruit you want you can always procure fresh grapefruit and make a compote of them at any time. However if you would like me to outline the canning method write again and I will send it under separate cover.

Detailed Plans Ready For Nazi Collapse

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3—(AP).—Plans for immediate follow-up of the surrender or collapse of Germany are reported here to have been worked out in great detail.

Officials familiar with their provisions said today that they call for full co-operation among Britain, the United States and Russia in the hour of victory.

Early victory forecasts by Prime Minister Churchill yesterday brought a renewed wave of speculation here over what will happen if the Germans surrender first to the Russians, or what difference it will make if they give up instead to British-American forces.

The answer given to both questions in official quarters here is:

It will not make any difference. Either will accept Germany's unconditional surrender at any time or place—in the name of all the Allied powers.

Britain and the United States pledged unconditonal surrender at Casablanca conference 18 months ago. Russia formally subscribed to it at Moscow. A further commitment to joint action in peace and victory as well as in war was made at the Teheran Conference.

The European advisory commission of British, American and Soviet representatives was assigned the task of working out plans for military and political co-operation when Germany quits. The commission has completed its work.

The plans cover two distinct periods:

1. The end of organized resistance. This may cover several days or even weeks or may come as a single orderly surrender. The enemy's eastern front might collapse and the Russians march through to Berlin while British, American and Canadian troops were still fighting their way through France.

2. Occupation. This provides for three-way occupation of Germany by British, Russian and American troops, joint occupation of Berlin, creation of a joint military commission to administer the country and means of getting civil authorities functioning again. Completion of the task of disarming Germany, including destruction or conversion of its armament factories, is called for.

Untold Wealth Believed In Tar Sands

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON, Aug. 3—(CP)—Research engineers in white coats bend over a witches' cauldron festooned with pipes. It fumes and bubbles and, with the technique of a dairymaid they skim a tarry substance from the surface with a spoon.

In that rite, perormed with the skill of long practice, the Research Council of Alberta believes it has the key to open the door to wealth in oil never seen before. By it, engineers demonstrate how oil-rich bitumen can be extracted from tar sands.

It's a long story they tell here about the tar sands along the Athabasca River 250 miles northeast of here. Some say the sands contain 70 per cent of the world's known oil supplies. Their eyes shine when they say that for sure there are about 1,000 square miles where the tar sands lie in unknown depth. Perhaps there are 30,000 square miles. No one knows with certainty for no one has had time to examine all the area.

The actual oil produced from the sands is minute in quantity compared with what it could be, provincial authorities say. What they hope is that a modern plant, using methods developed in Alberta Research Council laboratories, will be constructed soon on the Athabasca, to serve as a model for others to tap the sands over the long rich miles.

They think one efficient provincial government plant will be enough. If the efficiency of the extraction method is demonstrated, they expect private industry will build others. The Dominion Government is conducting tests with a plant at the tar sands area now. The Dominion is using methods not exactly the same as those proposed by provincial research officials.

Plywood Homes

In Toronto, an effort is now being made to have the city invest in 500 prefabricated homes for servicemen's dependents facing loss of their present accommodation in October. The Canadian Corps Association is taking the lead in urging the immediate construction, in park areas, of these homes.

Agree on Value.

A survey yesterday revealed that general agreement obtains among lumber dealers as to the suitability of using plywood as the main material when constructing prefabricated homes.

Plywood is made by stripping the bark from a section of maple, fir, birch or cedar tree and "peeling" the wood off in thin layers. The layers are then glued together and subjected to great pressure. Two processes are used, the hot process if the product is to be waterproof, and the cold process for interior woodork here proofing is not so imprtant.

Plywood board may be any thickness, up to 1¼ inches, depending on its purpose. Though waterproof plywood is obtainable, so for, no one has put a fireproof product on the market.

So far as strength is concerned, one dealer said that a 10-pound board of plywood would support a greater weight than a 10-pound sheet of steel.

Durable Material.

Durability is an asset not usually associated with wood, but given proper care, dealers said, plywood should last for many years and keep its shape and appearance.

Insurance rates on prefabricated houses are higher than those on brick or stone structures, an insurance firm indicated. But the same rates would probably be given on prefabricated houses as prevailed for frame dwellings, it was said.

Cost of the suggested homes for Toronto's servicemen's families is estimated by O. T. G. Williamson, secretary of the Canadian Corps, at approximately 2,400, the total project costing $1,200,000. The houses would rent at $25 a month, and this amount was expected to carry operating expenses and amortize the capital debt.

Each house would have a 9 by 12 foot kitchen, a 12 by 15 foot livingroom, a 9 by 12 and a 9 by 9 bedroom, and a 6 by 9 bathroom. Two clothes closets, a furnacette, and all plumbing and heating fixtures would be included. The houses would be insulated with rock wool between the plywood layers, and according to Mr. Williamson they would be practical in winter time. He added that he had been assured fixtures for the houses could be obtained.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

GET DOWN TO GROUND

IN ANY activity, bridge or anything else, it pays to get right down to the ground and observe fundamentals instead of favoring something which may appear more fancy and tricky. That is one reason why the more advanced players always look first, when declarer, to see if the hand can be played according to the simplest formula, dropping trumps first and then discarding losers on high cards of a side suit. Medium players are more prone to look for chances to ruff losers first, for some reason or other. Perhaps there has been a lot of bad teaching.

North: ♠ 6 ♥ Q 8 6 ♦ A Q J 10 8 ♣ 8 7 6 2

West: ♠ K J 10 8 7 ♥ J 9 3 ♦ 9 5 ♣ K Q J

East: ♠ A Q 4 ♥ 10 7 ♦ 7 6 4 3 2 ♣ 9 5 4

South: ♠ 9 5 3 2 ♥ A K 5 4 2 ♦ K ♣ A 10 3

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	1 ♠	2 ♦	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	4 ♥

In a duplicate tournament, one South reached 4-Hearts that way, and another by raising to game when North bid 3-Hearts on his second turn. One made it, very easily, with an extra trick, and one managed to get himself set three tricks. The successful one, after winning the club lead with the A, studied a bit and saw that this was a Type 1 hand. So he played trumps two rounds, scored the diamond K, led to the heart Q and ran diamonds, discarding all four spades, and so lost nothing except two club tricks at the end.

The other declarer, upon winning the first trick, noticed that he might pick up a few by ruffing out his spades—his favorite pastime. So he led the spade 2 to the second trick. East won and returned a club, West getting his side's second and third tricks there and firing back his heart 2. South won that in the dummy with the Q and led the diamond 8 to the K.

Now he ruffed the spade 3 with the heart 6, ruffed the diamond 10 with the heart 4, ruffed the spade 5 with the heart 8, and ruffed the diamond A with the heart 5 to get back to his hand. West, however, over-ruffed with the 9 and returned the spade K. South trumped with the K and led the heart A. But he then had to lose a final spade, and was down two by means of what might be called masterfully rotten play.

Tomorrow's Problem

What promotional principle operates in making North's cards more valuable than if South were unable to bid on this deal?

Fliers Destroy Plane Over Nazi Ship

Written For The Canadian Press
By FO. REG. MOIR

WITH THE R.C.A.F. INTRUDERS IN BRITAIN, Aug. 3—(CP)—A Canadian and an American in the City of Edmonton Squadron recently had the unique experience of fighting a JU88 over a 10,000-ton liner near Rostock.

Flt. Lt. C. M. Jasper of Spokane and his observer, Flt. Lt. C. A. Martin of Ottawa (385 Chapel St.) were cruising about looking for trouble when they saw the enemy. He flew directly over the liner to gain the shelter of its anti-aircraft guns but the Canadian fliers knocked it down pronto.

There's no end to the variety of targets the City of Edmonton Mosquitos shoot up as they prowl over enemy territory. Aircraft, trains, barrack-blocks, troop columns—it's all the same to them. Recently Sqdn. Ldr. E. R. McGill of Saskatoon (413-29th St.) and Flt. Lt. T. G. Anderson, Winnipeg, (163 Chestnut St.) destroyed a Dornier 217-Z in the air, damaged another in the ground and shot up a freight train, all on one patrol.

One Junkers 52 is just a mass of junk on a French field now because it recently made the mistake of getting between a Canadian Mosquito and a bright-full moon. Flt. Lt. J. B. Kerr of Trenton, and his observer FO. J. I. Clark, Ottawa (320 Creighton St.) spotted the luckless Nazi aircraft while trouble-hunting near Chateaudun airfield and finished it with a two-second burst of gunfire.

A single two-second burst of cannon and machine gun fire by Flt. Lt. D. A. MacFadyen, D.F.C., Toronto (29 Chestnut Park Rd.) was sufficient to destroy a German Junkers 52 recently while on patrol in France.

Flt. Lt. F. H. R. Cotterill, Toronto, probably established a record for speedy destruction of enemy aircraft when he downed four German planes in 20 minutes and bombed an enemy airfield between combats. He was on intruder patrol.

First he sent a JU52 down in flames from 600 feet with two short gunfire bursts; three minutes later his second victim was finished off. Then, near Orleans airfield, the Canadian spotted three aircraft with lights on, one landing, the others circling the field. Picking out the second in line, another JU52, he blew it up. Suddenly he noticed another enemy plane douse its lights and streak away. He caught it and gave it a single burst and saw it burst on the ground. Cotterill then planked two 500-pound bombs on the airfield runway but leaving the vicinity of the field saw another JU52 coming into to land. One burst sent it crashing.

Near the Baltic coast two Mossies piloted by Sqdn. Ldr. Bob Kipp, D.S.O., D.F.C. Kamloops, B.C., and PO. M. H. Sims, Vancouver, spotted a JU34 and a Heinkel 111 over Bagnkop Island. Kipp got the Heinkel and Sims closed with the JU34 and saw it crash and blow up on Langeland Island.

Always Felt "Dead Tired" Weak, Listless, Rundown!

Lost Time From Work, Suffered Stomach Troubles and Constipation, But Is Like New Person Since Taking Syntona.

MR. ELWOOD R. HILL

There is scarcely a person who at one time or another has not suffered from functional stomach, kidney, liver or bowel disorders and the long train of symptoms that often follow. Such people suffer from gas, bloat, indigestion, nervous irritability, dizzy feelings, backache, rheumatic pains, get tired easily, and feel rundown.

For example, here is a recent experience of Mr. Elwood R. Hill, 66 King William Street, Hamilton, Ontario, who is 23 years of age:

"I was badly rundown and felt so miserable I had to lay off work. I seemed to have lost all my energy and, although I felt dead tired at night, my nerves were so upset I couldn't sleep. There were aching pains all through my back, limbs and joints. My appetite was very poor, yet what little food I ate caused gas and heartburn followed by belching up of hot, sour liquids. In fact, I always had a bloated nauseated sensation in my stomach. I often had dizzy feelings and was badly constipated. Being only a young man I knew I should be enjoying good health and couldn't figure out what was wrong.

"Finally I read in the paper how other people who were in the same condition were being helped by Syntona, so I began taking it, too. I think it was only a matter of a few days when I noticed an improvement. The troubles with my stomach and bowels then grew less and less as I kept taking it. My appetite picked up and I began to regain my lost strength. One by one my other troubles went away, until now I am like an entirely different person. I work steadily without feeling tired or nervous and am surprised how good I feel when I am through for the day. I think more people should know about this fine medicine."

Vistula River Line At Warsaw City Pierced By Russians

BY DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Aug. 4 — (AP) — Russian hosts which smashed the German Vistula River line advanced swiftly today to within 91 miles of German Silesia while other Army groups in the north shelled towns and villages inside pre-war East Prussia from positions three miles from the frontier.

Russian forces moved within 58 miles of Krakow, fifth city of pre-war Poland, over difficult hill country. In this area west of the Vistula, some 110 miles below beleaguered Warsaw, the Russians were within 30 miles of Tarnow and 28 of Kielce (Pop: 58,200), last large Nazi bastion before Krakow.

No Word On Warsaw

Official sources were silent on the siege of Warsaw, where Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky's army group was pulled up just east of the Polish capital. In the Baltic states, Russian tanks were patrolling the shores of the Gulf of Riga 25 miles west of Riga and Pravda said they were striking both east toward that capital of 393,000 and also west toward that capital of 393,000 and also west toward Liepaja, Latvia's second city and a west coast seaport.

All along the 1,000-mile front from the Baltic to the Carpathians the Germans were reported rolling up reserves, particularly in the Warsaw and Vistula beach area. Concentrations of the German Air Force appeared in a desparate attempt to check Russian lunges.

The belief in Moscow quarters was that the Vistula break-through might be the start of a serious Ger-

Myitkyina Falls To British Key Burma Base

By CHARLES A. GRUMICH
Associated Press War Correspondent

KANDY, Ceylon, Aug. 4—(AP).—British, American and Chinese forces have captured Myitkyina, major Japanese base in Northern Burma, after a bitter and bloody siege that began last May 17, it was announced today.

At least 3,000 Japanese were slain there during the 2½ months of fighting. The last remnants of the garrison either were killed or captured in the final mop-up of this largest city in Northern Burma.

The victory gave the Allies control of two Myitkyina airfields and an important road and rail junction on the upper Irrawaddy River for a prospective link-up with Chinese forces in Yunnan to the east in a combined effort to open a land route to China.

Forward Allied troops in North Burma are firmly established probably not more than 20 miles from advance elements of the Chinese moving westward. Possibly patrol contacts already have been made through the rugged mountains.

Invaders Fleeing

Fall of the city, which had been in enemy hands more than two years, came after Allied forces had put to flight Japanese troops who invaded Northeast In ia.

A new phase of the North Burma and China campaigns is expected to be mounted from Myitkyina under General Stilwell. But the most immediate benefit of the city's fall lies in control of two important air fields on the famous "Hump" route into China.

Myitkyina's capture was an essential step in Stilwell's drive to link the new Ledo highway with the old Burma road. The North Burma and Yunnan campaigns both form part of this program.

The city, which has a population of about 7,500, is the terminus of the trunk railway from Rangoon, capital of Burma about 600 airline miles to the south.

With the fall of Myitkyina the only Japanese known remaining north of the Mogaung-Myitkyina rail line are disorganized bands already written off in the Fort Herts valley.

Fliers Smash Peenemunde Rocket Plant

Great Kiel Navy Base Aircraft Plants On List Of Targets

LONDON, Aug. 4—(CP). — More than 1,200 U.S. heavy bombers attacked a variety of targets in Germany today, including the Peenemunde experimental station where the enemy develops flying bombs and rockets.

About 1,000 fighters accompanied the bombers, making the armada 2,200 strong.

Other targets included:

A fighter parts plant and airfield at Anklam, 47 miles northwest of Stettin.

An aircraft assembly plant at Rostock, at the Baltic, 110 miles northeast of Berlin.

Port installations at the great naval base of Kiel.

An oil refinery at Bremen.

The planes made a flying round-trip of about 1,200 miles to the German Baltic coast town of Peenemunde, 100 miles north of Berlin.

Before dawn, bombers from Italy and Britain scourged German supply routes across France.

Unfavorable weather again restricted night operations of British-based planes, but skies over France cleared at dawn, bringing the prospect of the first full day of heavy aerial activity in more than a week.

Normandy-based fighter bombers were in the air at the first sign of light in a renewal of the assault on German forces and installations beyond the battle line.

British Mosquitos battered rail targets from Dreux to Le Mans and barges on the Seine River last night, while Mediteranean Allied Air Force bombers flew from Italy and pounded railroad yards at Portes Les Valence in Southern France.

Only nine German planes were sighted over the battle area last night, and seven were shot down by the Mosquitos.

After the weather cleared at mid-day yesterday the Allied air units based in Britain and Normandy flew 5,000 sorties.

Many of these were by British, Canadian and American heavy bombers, which ranged over Germany, France and Belgium, smashing at oil and transport targets in many places and plastering depots and robot launching sites.

Heavies of the Canadian bomber group struck twice at flying-bomb dumps in France yesterday in the heaviest raids yet mounted by the R.C.A.F. Fourteen Canadian squadrons joined the R.A.F. in the attack in which no Canadian planes were lost.

700,000 Dollar Damage In Army Fire

OTTAWA, August 4 — (CP). — Fire of undetermined origin to-day destroyed the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps workshop and garages in Lansdowne District Depot, together with valuable equipment and vehicles, causing damages estimated unofficially at $700,000.

A military court of inquiry was opened to determine the cause of the big blaze.

The Service Corps garages and workshops were in the huge general purpose building of the Central Canada Exhibition group which is in the south-central part of the city near the Rideau Canal and adjacent to the federal district parkway.

The building, worth approximately $500,000, was demolished in a fire that started at 6:15 a.m., and was a smouldering heap of debris at 9:30 a.m. An official said the City of Ottawa, which owns the building, holds insurance partly covering the damage but he added the Army's $500,000 equipment loss is uncovered.

An unidentified sergeant major, who first noticed the flames spreading from a workshop, ran back into the building to warn comrades. He became trapped and was slightly injured when he jumped from a second storey window. His 25 comrades of the night shift all got out safely. Later a fireman suffered minor cuts from falling glass. Military officials said no other persons were injured.

The building is isolated and there was never any danger of the fire spreading. However some of the hundreds of military transport parked in an adjoining lot were badly damaged.

Rennes' Nazis Wont' Surrender

BENEATH AN AMERICAN TANK NEAR RENNES, Brittany, Aug. 3—(Delayed)—(AP)—Everybody thinks the American 1st Army is in Rennes today—except a strong circle of non-co-operative Germans.

They are surrounded but are too stubborn to know when they are licked.

And as a result, the ancient city of Rennes at 5:30 p.m. is still a military layer cake with a core of 80,000 nervous citizens doubly enveloped by a circle of "suicide" German squads surrounded by a great American armored and infantry ring. (Secretary of War Henry Stimson in Washington announced Rennes' fall last night.)

Advance American units thrust to the outskirts of the city last night, but were forced to pull back temporarily because this former capital of Brittany still was defended by an enthusiastic perimeter of German troops who haven't yet been convinced they are in a hopeless trap.

That is why I'm lying under this Sherman tank with the most advanced tank units more than two miles from Rennes, horizontal rather than vertical because the Nazis have just thrown over three cracking air bursts with their double-purpose 88-mm. guns from their stronghold in a tiny village just on the northeast outskirts of Rennes.

Drive To Isolate Brittany In Spectacular Push; British Retreat 2,000 Yards

Canadian Positions Remain Static American Armored Unit Speeds 20 Miles Beyond Captured Rennes

By GLADWIN HILL—Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 4—(CP).—U.S. armor and infantry, spreading in a widening and lengthening tide over Brittany, reached within 43 miles of the two big ports of Nantes and St. Nazaire on the Loire today and cut off most of the peninsula. In the middle of their shrinking line of organized resistance, the Germans counter-attacked to stave off an immediate threat to Aunay Sur Odon and drove British troops from three villages west of Aunay.

There was intense air activity over the Canadian-British front during the past 24 hours, William Stewart, Canadian Press war correspondent, reported, with hundreds of figheer-bombers and rocket-planes blasting enemy gun positions, transport and armor. Operations on the ground south of Caen were confined to heavy patrolling, he said.

While bursting through country 20 miles south of Rennes, the American forces also spread 27 miles west of that rail and highway hub in the centre of Brittany coming within 108 miles east of Brest.

Yet other forces advanced in rapid strides to within two miles of Evran, seven miles south of captured Dinan on the north side of Brittany, and jumped off to attack the German-held north coast city of St. Malo which had been by-passed in the strike to Dinan.

Fighting raged in Rennes along streets leading to the heart of the town, where an encircled but fanatic enemy garrison was holding out.

The Americans struck due south close to Bain-De-Bretagne, 17 miles south Rennes and 43 miles from Nantes ,a port city of 195,000 population up the Loire river.

20 Mile Gain.

They also were within five miles of Piriac, 20 miles southwest of Rennes and 43 miles from St. Nazaire, the U-boat base and U. S. troop port in the First World War.

Although there still was fighting at Rennes, field dispatches said the position of the German garrison there was hopeless.

(Secretary of War Stimson in Washington yesterday announced the capture of Rennes and subsequent dispatches from correspondents at supreme headquarters also told of the seizure of the city. These dispatches were based on the Washington announcement and front line reports that American troops had pushed beyond the communication centre. Supreme headquarters itself did not announce capture of the city.)

In the westward push past Rennes, the Americans were reported approaching Mauron, 27 miles directly west, and within two miles of St. Meen Le Bretagne, nine miles to the northeast.

Broons, nine miles northwest of St. Meen and 14 miles southwest of Dinan ,also was reached in the westward drive.

St. Meen Le Bretagne is on the main road running almost down the centre of Peninsula from Rennes to Brest. Both St .Meen and Mauron are about 108 miles from the big French naval base at the tip of Brittany.

Berlin, in its high command communique said American troops were "engaging German base garrisons" after a breakthrough into Brittany, and reports from the front continued to stress that only this type of enemy troops was being met — troops which could not be expected to put up as strong resistance as front line outfits.

British Army Storming Florence City

ROME, Aug. 4— (AP) — The British 8th Army reached Florence today.

South African troops gained the outskirts of the city and patrols working forward found that five of six bridges across the Arno river within the city had been destroyed, Allied Headquarters announced.

The Germans were on the run back through Florence, and their guns flashed from the peaks which rise behind the Tuscan city.

Nazi forces departed last night from a ridge south of the city. From that vantage point to-day Associated Press War Correspondent Lynn Heinzerling looked down on Florence and through the smoke of German guns just outside the city was able to pick out glistering church domes.

Some of the Allieid troops were less than three miles from the city. Lt.-Gen. B. C. Freyberg, commander of the New Zealanders, made plans for an entry by his troops, which have been on the go since the battle of Crete.

(To-day's German communique said German troops had "detached themselves toward a narrow bridgehead immeiately south of Florence" and that renewed Allied attacks again sthis portion were frustrated. It declared—without Allied confirm-

Montreal Still Strike-Bound

MONTREAL, August 4 — (CP)—A strike by 4,000 workers in the operating departments of the Montreal Tramways Company continued through the second day to-day and hopes of a speedy settlement to restore the street car service to the city appeared less hopeful.

Members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees (C.C.L.), the workers said they were ready to carry the fight "to a finish" and talked of a strike lasting as long as two weeks.

The strike followed a vote by the members of the C.B.R.E. in which they voted 3,520 to 78 in favor of a walkout after a Conciliation Board had refused toapprove inclusion of a union shop clause in the collective bargaining agreement.

There was no report of any attempt to negotiate the strike yesterday although A. R. Mosher, the president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, was reported still in Ottawa where last-minute efforts to halt the strike on Wednesday failed. Paul Emile Marquette, regional organizer of the C.C.L., said the union did not intend approaching the company again.

Strikers Threaten Violence Army Acts in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—(AP).—Bands of strikers threatened violence today to operators attempting to restore service on Philadelphia's paralyzed transportation system and the army, which seized the lines last night, announced that persons with apparent enemy sympathies had prevented resumption of service.

"Protection will be provided on the trolleys, buses, subways and elevated lines," Maj.-Gen. Philip Hayes, commanding the army's 3rd Service Command said after only a few subway and elevated trains and the trolleys on one route had made runs.

Hayes took control on orders of President Roosevelt last night after the stoppage had stranded hundreds of thousands, curtailed vital war production and given rise to race violence.

Even as the army took over, new clashes between whites and Negroes—with one shooting—were reported.

General Hayes said would-be workers were kept from work "by threats made by persons who are apparently more interested in aiding the Axis than in seeing to it that essential transportation is provided for Philadelphia's war workers."

Block War Effort

"Delay in restoring full operation is measured in the blood of American soldiers overseas," he said. "Those who obstruct our operation have that blood on their hands."

He promised full legal penalties for any who interfere with service and said "it is obvious that the overwhelming majority of transit employees are conscious of the supreme obligation they have to our fighting men."

Five truckloads of strikers stoppaged at Philadelphia Transportation Company emergency repair wagon in a residential street and warned the crew to answer no calls.

"Don't if you know what's good for you," they said.

After seven trains had pulled out of the 69th street elevated terminal, a band of strikers appeared on the platform and attempted to dissuade other crews from making their runs. Only one crew walked out again.

Windows were smashed during the night in a flare-up of race disorder which already had sent 14 persons to hospitals.

Meanwhile hundreds of thousands of Philadelphians again hitch-hiked, walked or used makeshift transportation provided by employers, to get to their jobs.

The army gave no immediate indication of what action it would take if complete service were not restored.

Racial Issue Unsettled

A mass meeting of many of the Philadelphia Transportation Company's 6,000 employees voted last night to continue the walkout on the ground that the racial issue said to have prompted the work stoppage three days ago had not been settled by Government seizure.

The men walked out originally to protest the up-grading of eight Negroes to jobs as motormen.

New disorders, the first since Wednesday night, were reported as nearly 1,000 workers, part of a mass meeting that earlier voted to end the walkout last night roared approval of their leader's declaration.

Pick Canadians For Pacific War

OTTAWA, Aug. 4—(CP).—Between 400 and 500 officers and other ranks of the Canadian Army, to be drawn from units now training in Canada, will be sent to India and Australia in the near future, Defence Headquarters announced today.

The unit destined for India will include mainly technical personnel and will total between 300 and 400 other ranks.

The announcement said they will serve with the Indian Army "for the time being."

The detachment going to Australia will be employed in the operation of special equipment in the southwest Pacific theatre. All highly trained technicians, they will serve "for the present" with the Australian Army.

The men to be sent will all be general service volunteers.

It could not be learned immediately whether they would serve as self-contained units attached to the Indian and Australian armies or whether they would be dispersed among various formations of those two forces.

Apart from today's announcement, there has been no official statement on the extent of Canada's role in the Pacific war.

Polish Patriots Take Buildings

LONDON, August 4 — (CP). — The Polish Telegraph Agency said to-night that Gen. Bor's underground army inside Warsaw had captured the chief skyscraper in the capital, the 16-storey Prudential Building, the general post office, main power station, and gas works.

"The battle is general and centres of action are all over the city with the exception of Zoliborz, where our troops were scattered by enemy armored units," Gen. Bor radioed from the beleaguered city, the agency said.

"The Polish flag is flying from all the captured buildings. The telephone exchange has been attacked several times, but we have not succeeded in taking it so far.

"Now we have the initiative well in our hands. The population enthusiastically supports our fight. Streets are cut up by barricades. The entire Stare Miastro region, which is the old city of Warsaw, is in our hands.

"The enemy has blown up some of his blockhouses and burned many homes, especially in the suburbs. The enemy has suffered very heavy losses in men and armored equipment. Prisoners have been taken. We fear nothing except a scarcity of ammunition. We have insufficient arms to provide for our volunteers."

The battle started at 5 p.m. on Tuesday. Earlier, a communique from the exiled Polish Government said the Patriots held many points in the north, south and west sections.

Millionaire S.D.G. Officer Wants Action, Drifts To France

Few people in Peterborough knew or remember the McMartin brothers of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders during the months of their organization in Peterborough beginning shortly after the outbreak of the war.

They were millionaire officers of the new unit wihch with its kilt and sporran and its tartan attracted these wealthy Scots from Cornwall whose fortunes bubbled out of the Cobalt silver boom.

One of them was J. B. McMartin whose turning white along the temples but whose spirit was eager for the adventure and action of war and who was also inspired by a sincere sentiment of patriotic duty.

The other was Allan, known to his intimates as "Ack-Ack", from all accounts a man of many parts and glints of color.

When the Glengarrians reached Debert, "J.B." was finally rejected. His years cancelled his fighting heart, and his wish to go along and see things through. He resigned his commission and regretfully parted company with the regiment and its officers and men.

Too Much Leave

"Ack-Ack" passed successive medical examinations, but the years of waiting overseas and going through the prolonged training manoeuvres were more than he could endure. He went "A.W.L." (absent without leave) so often that the regimental authorities could no longer overlook these lapses which were really an expression of his desire for action. And so he was retired from the Glengarries. That is a mere sketchy outline of Lieutenant Alan McMartin as he used to be known in Peterborough.

Dubs News Story Malicious

Pensions Minister Defends Program

OTTAWA, Aug. 4 —(CP) —Pensions Minister Mackenzie in the Commons to-day termed an article in the Toronto Globe and Mail as "malicious."

(The article said that the failure of Mr. Mackenzie's department to discharge its duties in preparing adequate hospitalization for war casualties, has been extended to the Soldier Civil Rehabilitation program.

(The story added: "according to authorities, the action of the three services last April in appointing their own rehabilitation branches came directly from the dissatisfaction held by Defence Minister Ralston, Power and Macdonald with the efforts of Mr. Mackenziel's Department.")

Mr. Mackenzie referred to the article after Dr. Herbert Bruce (PC.—Toronto Parkdale) asked why after five years of war the Pensions Department was still trying to find hospital accommodation.

The most careful consideration was being given to providing hospital accommodation for war casualties, said Mr. Mackenzie. And the matter was being dealt with "in conjunction with the three ministers of National Defence."

Mr. Mackenzie said he considered plans for hospital accommodation were adequate.

30 Years Ago Aug. 4 Start Of World War

By The Canadian Press

Thirty years after Britain first declared war on Germany her troops are back in France with their Canadian comrades to finish the job on which they embarked in the First Great War.

It was August 3, 1914, when the British Government renewed her guarantee of armed support to Belgium should Germany violate Belgian neutralism to strike at France. August 4 the British Government sent an ultimatum to Germany which expired at 11 p.m. that night.

For four years the war to subdue Germany was waged on a scale the world had never seen, unequalled until the present war which is approaching its fifth year.

Won't Seize McLean Books

Shareholders Suggest Fraud Likely

TORONTO, Aug. 14—(CP)—G. D. Conant, Master of the Ontario Supreme Court, yesterday rejected a motion by James A. Therrien asking that books of two companies of which Harry F. McLean is president and director be produced in court. Therrien's application was in connection with an action he has brought against McLean and the two companies—the Dominion Construction Co., Ltd., and the Grenville Crushed Rock Co.

Therrien, suing on behalf of all other shareholders of the two companies except McLean, claims that McLean as majority shareholder controls the companies and that he has "in fraud of other shareholders caused large sums of money to be illegally disbursed to himself and other persons."

In his statement of defence, McLean denies fraud and other allegation in the statement of claim and says all moneys disbursed by the companies have been properly accounted for in the balance sheet presented at the last annual meeting of shareholders. The balance sheet was approved by shareholders including Therrien, he maintains. Both companies also deny fraud.

In connection with the application that the books be produced Mr. Conant ruled that the issue of the plaintiff's right to damages must be determined before the question of producing the books can be considered.

4. Present provision of one-way railway fare in excess of $10 for clerks, stenographers and typists recruited in different parts of the Dominion to Ottawa be extended to provide for full one-way railway fare.
5. Present "quota system" in connection with permanent appointments be cancelled and that, subject to the established policy of preference to ex-service men and women, persons who have qualified by examination for permanency and are occupying positions of a permanent nature be given permanent status.

Secret Weapon Becomes Fizzle

BY ROGER D. GREENE
Associated Press War Correspondent

ON THE BRITISH FRONT IN FRANCE, Aug. 3 — (AP) — A German attempt to exploit a new aerial weapon—a pilotless pick-a-back bomber crammed with high explosives—ended in a spectacular but harmless crash into the sea off a British beachhead, it is disclosedd.

The crewless plane was shot down by an R.A.F. fighter several nights ago.

"It made a colossal splash but that's all," said Capt. R. C. Lewis, who witnessed the end of the bomber from his beach anti-aircraft post.

"The idea is old but the Germans have given it a new twist. It's a Messerschmitt—109 fighter 'married' to a Junkers-88 bomber. The Junkers is stripped of all armament and its glass-house, or nose, is filled with explosives to make a warhead.

"The planes take off together, pick-a-back style, with the Junkers remotely controlled by the Messerschmitt pilot who guides it until the last moment when it is set on a course to crash against a selected target."

Merchant Fleet Growing Fast

By FRANK FLAHERTY,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, Aug. 4 —(CP) —determination of Government policy on Canadian shipping after the war awaits the report of a committee of civil servants and experts now studying the matter, the House of Commons was told last night by Transport Minister Michaud.

The minister disclosed Canada will have some 300 merchant ships after the war compared with 37 before the war. He added:

"There is quite a divergence of opinion as to that will become of mrchant ships built and owned by Canada after the war. It is impossible to state at the present time.

"But there is no difference of opinion as to whether Canada should retain as many of these ships as can be used for the trade of Canada. Whether our Canadian merchant marine should be operated by the Government or by individuals or private companies is another matter."

No one with any experience, however, he said, could hope that all Canadian exports and imports would be carried in Canadian ships.

A brief discussion of post-war shipping was precipiated by R. W. Mayhew (L.-Victoria, B .C.,) during discussion of Transport Department estimates after the house passed the Fish Floor Prices Bill through third reading and a bill to provide a permanent full-1time chairman for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation through second and third readings.

Mr. Meyhew said there was no reason why the great supplies Canada would send to Europe after the war should not be carried at least partly in Canadian ships. Britain required 5,000,000 houses, one every 10 seconds for 10 years. That would call for a lot of lumber from Canada.

Clarence Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South) said the Canadian Government merchant marine was "sabotaged" after the First Great War in the interest of private shipping compaines. Mr. Michaud said there was no intention of sabotaging any of the ships now owned by the Government.

Percy Black (PC-Cumberland) and Vincent Pottier (L-Shelburne-Yarmouth-Clare) warned that in operating ships after the war Canada might be up against the competition of countries with standards of wages and living much lower than Canadian ones.

Check Freight Rates

The time has come for an overhauling of the freight rate structure, John Blackmore, Social Credit leader, told the House. He served notice that applications for revisions of certain freight rates could be expected after complaining that Alberta and Saskatchewan are in effect surrounded by a tariff wall by reason of high rates.

The building of the Chignecto Canal to cut across the 19-mile isthmus which links Nova Scotia and New Brunswick was put down as post-war project on the basis of exchanges between Mr. Michaud and other members.

Mr. Michaud said surveys made in 1933 resulted in estimates on three different routes of from $40,000,000 to $60,000,000.

The revision of the CBC set-up passed without a recorded vote, but opposition was expressed by Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, and M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader.

Mr. Coldwell said he felt it would result in divided authority as between the full-time chairman and the general manager and Mr. Graydon thought it meant adding another high-salaried official at the top who would not add to the efficiency of the CBC.

Tengchung is less than 60 miles southeast of Myitkyina, main enemy base in North Burma which has fallen to Allied forces. Capture of Tengchung would be still another step in reopening an overland route for transportation of military supplies into China.

Bitter fighting continued in Hunan province, where the Chinese continued to resist in encircled Hengyang.

7,000 Japanese Trapped In Guam

PEARL HARBOR, Aug. 4—(AP)—Two powerful traps today enmeshed more than 7,000 Japanese on Guam's north plateau and some 40,000 more in the British New Guinea jungles, with only death or surrender awaiting them.

Already the Japanese death toll in those areas is upwards of 26,000.

On Guam, where 7,893 enemy dead have been counted, American marines and soldiers are pushing the Japanese toward the sea, with only eight miles to go.

In British New Guinea, a Japanese army once 60,000 strong is caught between Australians at the Sepik river on the east and Americans south of Aitape on the west.

Added to the dead were 5,000 estimated by Admiral Nimitz to have been accounted for by marine conquerors of Tinian over which the American flag was raised formally Wednesday.

Four thousand civilians have been interned on Tinian and 7,000 on Guam.

FLIER MISSING—FO. Clifford Morrow, whose wife, formerly Lillian McFarlane, lives at 274 Braidwood avenue, has been reported missing after air operations. He is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Morrow, 745 Water street, to be a casualty this year.

Clifford Morrow Reported Missing Overseas

Flying Officer Clifford Morrow, who is believed to have completed between 25 and 30 missions overseas, is reported missing in action after an operational flight, according to word received by his wife, formerly Lillian McFarlane, 274 Braidwood Avenue.

The young airman, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Morrow, 745 Water Street, enlisted in the R.C.A.F. as an aero engineer in January, 1940, and saw service in many parts of Canada. He remustered to air crew in October, 1942, and graduated at Malton in May, 1943, receiving his commission. FO. Morrow went overseas in July, 1943.

Up to the time he was reported missing, FO. Morrow had been serving with a Pathfinder Squadron and he is also a member of the Caterpilalr Club.

A brother, Capt. G. G. Morrow has just returned from overseas after being in action in the Sicilian and Italian campaigns, and a second brother, Harold Morrow, with the City of Windsor Squadron in Italy, was killed earlier this year.

ation—that Allied artillery confirm-directed "on the historic city with its irreplaceable cultural treasures.")

The latest advance gave the 8th Army a strong hold on the hills two miles northeast of Laromola. Giogoli, less than five miles southwest of Florence, was captured in the course of the thrust.

Enemy resistance continued strong due south of Florence, after the Nazis pulled back and permitted South African armored units and a British Guards Brigade to capture the important town of Impruneta, 5½ miles due south of Florence's outskirts.

Despite this opposition, however, there were indications that the ruthless pressure on the contracting arc around Florence was steadily breaking down Nazi strength and the city might fall to Gen. Alexander's troops any time.

Allied artillery was now in a position to shell enemy positions. The Arnor river crossings immediately west of Florence and the bridgehead across the Pesa River farther to the west have been strengthened sufficiently to become a grave threat to German troops on the south banks of the Arno.

The last defences of Florence began collapsing only after many days of the most bitter fighting the German tactics of slow withdrawal with numerous heavy counter attacks were costly to them.

New gains included the capture of Viltraki, nine miles south-east of Schirwindt, East Prussian border city on the road to the Prussian rail centres of Tilsit and Insterburg, 40 miles from Schirwindt. Also taken were Griskabudis, seven miles north-east of Viltraki, and other points farther north, including Luksiai and Sutkai, both less than 20 miles from the frontier and 55 and 60 miles, respectively, east of Tilsit.

The Moscow communique said nearly 500 towns and villages were captured by the Russians on all fronts yesterday. These included 200 localities taken west and northwest of Kaunas, former Lithuanian capital.

Scorching Temperature Chief Conversation As Sun's Siege On Home Front Advances

Thursday's probabilities of warmer for Friday were verified by Peterborough's official thermometer at noon today as it heated up to 84 degrees as compared with 78 at noon yesterday and 90 degrees as the highest for the day. Today's peak depends on this afternoon's sizzle, but the readers of the Examiner should be reminded that the official recording is charted at the waterworks, the Utilities Commission filtration plant, half a mile north of the city where the breeze must surely be cooler than at George and Charlotte streets, Water and Hunter or down at the incinerator yard on Townsend street.

Public comment on the official weather reports these days suggests suspicion of a differential as between the waterworks park and the domestic thermometers all around town. Meanwhile the 90-degrees heat plus humidity is vying in public interest with buzz-bombs, the thrust across Brittany, the advance on Leghorn and the Russian approach to Warsaw, and generally what do you know?

London Gets Blasting From Robots

LONDON, Aug. 4 —(A P) — The Germans renewed their flying bomb salvos against London and Southern England last night after a late afternoon respite from a damaging 14-hour blasting that was a record for length and severity.

Night explosions increased the casualties and destruction as rescurers still dug for victims among the rubble of some of the dwellings business houses and the 10 hospitals hit in the day's barrage of horror missiles.

The new barrage came despite three heavy bomber attacks against launching ramps Wednesday night and bombings of three robot supply depots in France Thursday.

The 14-hour attack had eased off late in the day after a blanket of low clouds lifted from Dover Strait and gave anti-aircraft gunners better shooting at the missiles.

Gunners Busy.

The gunners were busy from midnight on and got many robots on the wing, but many got through Just how many can best be told by thefact that 10 hospitals were hit. Ten patients were killed in one of them.

Before the clutter could be cleared up by extremely efficient civilian defence workers, new patients were being admitted. At another hospital two babies were born just as a bomb fell.

A bomb wrecked a hig house only about 50 yards from a crowded shipping area, causing —in the permissible phrase — a "number of casualties." Ten bomb-damage repairmen were killed in their billets. Eight persons were killed when a group of small houses was wrecked, and eight hours of digging was required to recover the bodies.

One of the robot victims was Dr. Hubert Hall, 87, author of historical works and former literary director of the Royal Historical Society.

In the midst of the record attack Home Secretary Herbert Morrisan broke the cheerless news that the Government had decided to continue the blackout.

Worse Than Blitz.

In giving officiall figures on civiliain air raid casualties from the beginning of the war through the first half of 1944, Mr. Morrison revealed that the robot bombs have been killing more persons than ordinary aerial bombs did at their worst.

The worst year for ordinary air raids was 1940, when 23,747 persons were killed, whereas nearly 300 have been killed each week by the robots a rate of nearly 36,000 a year.

Last night and Thursday the robots came over in waves with the intervals between waves shorter than before. In some areas one could hear a distant "thump" — or something louder —every few minutes.

A sequel to that McMartin chapter appeared in the cabled news from Normandy, a fresh story of "Ack-Ack" as written by L. S. B. Shapiro of the North American Newspaper Alliance.

In British Unitd

"This is a story of $10,000,000 worth of fighting man He is Lce.-Sergt. Allan McMartin of Great Britain's famed 51st Highland Division which arrived in Normandy soon after D-Day.

"If the name of Allan McMartin sounds faintly familiar to readers of pre-war gossip columns about London, New York, and Hollywood, there is need for confusion. This lange-sergeant is the same Allan McMartin they used to read about—the Canadian gold mine multimilionaire with estates in Montreal, Montebello, Que., Bermuda, and East Africa the husband of film star Margot Grahame, big game hunter and favorably known to maitres d'hotel of luxury places in every capital of the world.

McMartin used to be known as a playboy. Now he has gained a new kind of fame in the 51st Division as one of its best fighting soldiers. He won his sergeant's stripes during one of the first big battles east of the Orne River.

He was not always in the ranks of enlisted men. He obtained a lieutenant's commission when he joined the Canadian Army in 1939, and he came overseas as a captain in 1941. When the Canadian Army streamlined its fighting formations for action early in 1943 McMartin was retired on account of his age and given permission to return to Canada. He was forty then, and considered too old for front-line action as a junior officer.

Joined British Army.

His subsequent actions belie every popular notion about pampered millionaires. Before he could be returned to Canada he offered himself to the British Army as a private and joined the 51st Division in Sicily where he won his corporal's stripes. I saw him this morning resting in a half-destroyed barn, his battle dress caked with mud as a result of sleeping in a slit trench during the recent heavy rains.

He has grown a walrus moustache reminiscent of the old-time British sergeants and he was full of enthusiasm for the job at hand

"This is a bit tougher than shooting elephants in Africa," he said, grimly, "tougher, but a lot more worthwhile."

He was wounded slightly early in the campaign, but was not out of action for more than a few hours.

To-day at 41, he is one of the oldest front-liners in the ranks in Normandy, and certainly the richest. His yearly income from gold mines runs high into six figures. This news will probably come as a shock to his officers who are trying to get him a promotion to full sergeant. As lance-sergeant he wears three stripes, but gets only a corporal's pay, and his officers think this is a crying shame.

Drive To Isolate

14 Miles from Vannes

In thrusting to Lohoeac, five miles from Pipriac, the Americans were just 18 miles outside Redon, chief communications centre of southern Brittany.

They were 41 miles from Vannes, port on the south sideof the peninsula, and 70 from Lorient, an important port and U-boat base to the west.

As American columns raced on toward these great ports the German front of organized resistance in Northwestern France shrank to a mere 35 miles from Vire to Caen.

It was estimated that the total Nazi casualties since the invasion numbered 200,000 men — half the enemy's initial defence force.

Bedraggled German units which once hemmed in the Allies along a 100-mile expanse in Normandy were retreating in confusion and abandoning their equipment virtually everywhere except along a short stretch between Vire and Caen. The Allied offensive had developed into a sudden threat to the whole 40,000-square-mile Seine-Loire quadrangle of northwest France.

Faced with the growing danger of entrapment against the Orne River, the Germans near the middle of their still-organized line in Normandy staved off an immediate British threat to Aunay Sur Odon. Bolstered by reinforcements from east of the Orne River, the Germans drove the British from the villages of St. Georges D'aunay, La Lande and Le Manoir immediately west of Aunay.

A British staff officer discounted the German gains around Aunay, declaring that the counter-attacks might be the enemy's final gesture to cover a retreat from the river bastion.

Head For Brest

American armored columns pressing westward along the north side of the Breton Peninsula from Dinan were headed toward Brest some 110 miles away. The force moving southward beyond Rennes was threatening Nantes and St. Nazaire.

Earlier it was unofficially estimated that the Breton Peninsula might be cut off by the week-end, with nothing more than a desperate last-ditch defence of Brest and with the enemy organizing for a stand along the south bank of the Loire River, some 60 miles south of Rennes.

Three powerful Allied columns from the coastal corridor to the northeast were pressing eastward toward the Orne in an attempt to encircle the desperately battling Germans in the Bocage country.

The first was the British drive in the area of Aunay and Villers Bocage. Against it the Germans threw counter-attacks which forced the British to fall back.

The second was a British push east of Vire which gained several miles along the Vire-Conde road to a point within a dozen miles of the Orne.

The third was an American drive 15 miles farther south from newly-captured Mortain, 20 miles east of Avranches. This, with the Vire push, formed a pocket from which remnants of two German armored and four infantry divisions are withdrawing.

At the eastern end of the Allied line, in the area south of Caen, the Germans were moving their armor westward toward the Vire area, a front dispatch said. A senior Canadian staff officer on that front estimated the Nazis had thus given up all hope of clinging to every part of their Normandy line as presently constituted.

Reaches 100,000

In the 24 hours up to yesterday afternoon, American troops took 8,000 more prisoners, bringing their total since D-Day to around 70,000. The British have captured an estimated 30,000 making the prisoner total 100,000.

The Americans have buried 10,000 German dead, and the Germans are estimated to have buried at least that many of their own dead.

On this basis, conservative estimates of German wounded on the American sections of the line would total 40,000. On the British sectors the German dead and wounded are estimated to be at least 30,000, making the over-all total of German casualties 190,000.

Allowing a liberal 15,000 men for each of about 27 under-strength enemy divisions in the D-Day defence layout, the German casualties have equalled about half of their initial force. This does not necessarily mean that the German force over all of northwest France actually has been halved, however, as there have been undetermined replacements.

American troops now are 110 miles south of Cherbourg, captured five weeks ago, and in their current offensive, now in its 11th day, have smashed south 80 miles.

In improving weather Allied air power is having a field day with the retreating German 7th Army, flailing its armor with dreaded shells and bombing its lines of withdrawal.

The U.S. 9th Air Force alone reported 3,562 tanks and vehicles destroyed or damaged in 10 days.

Acquit Colonel On One Of Two Charges

WOODSTOCK, Aug. 4.—(CP).—Lt.-Col. N. A. McIntosh of the Canadian Army Driving and Maintenance School was acquitted Thursday by an army court-martial on a charge of ill-treating a soldier. The court's finding on a second charge of conduct prejudicial to good order in the army was forwarded to military headquarters in Ottawa and will be announced there.

The court's decision was announced by Brig. A. M. Martin of Toronto, the presiding officer, at the conclusion of a closed sitting of the court yesterday afternoon. The closed sitting began after arguments by counsel—W. F. Kerr of Chatham, for Col. McIntosh, and Capt. R. D. Evans for the prosecution—yesterday morning.

The court-martial opened Tuesday and the charges were based on an incident in the officers' mess June 26, with Col. McIntosh, former resident of Windsor, being accused of attacking Cpl. W. J. Sillers assistant mess steward, for refusing him a drink on the grounds his liquor quota was used up.

In the argument this morning Capt. Evans argued that Col. McIntosh precipitated the scuffle with Sillers and Mr. Kerr held that the colonel was justified in his actions in checking a mess steward for a breach of discipline.

The judge advocate, Major A. S. Fergusson of London, Ont., commented that "provocation is not a ground for acquittal, but may tend to mitigate the crime."

Unless there is an immediate acquittal, the courts findings will not be made public until they have been reviewed at military headquarters in Ottawa.

Allies Whittle Japanese Island Bases

BY C. R. BLACKBURN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4 — (CP) — Along with personnel losses, estimated as high as 500,000 killed, the Japanese are seeing a slow but sure Whittling away of the island bases they obtained in their south-eastward sweep of conquest across the Pacific.

Present operations in Guam, Tinian and Saipan threaten to cut in half the ocean area of control Japan had acquired in the nine months following the attack on Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941.

But this half contains only the small island bases and part of New Guinea, leaving the Philippines and East Indies still in Japanese hands as well as her mainland conquests.

However, the strategy of island-hopping has already immobilized and isolated strong enemy forces and a successful attack on the Philippine Islands may render comparatively simple the ultimate recovery of the Indies area.

Line Moves West

At the end of July, 1942, the Japanese virtually controlled the Pacific within an area bounded by a horizontal line crossing just above the northern tip of Australia, eastward to the 180th Meridian and north on that line to include the Aleutian Islands of Kiska and Attu.

Now the line has moved far west to nearly the 160th Meridian, from Paramushiro, in the Japanese Kuriles, south to the New Guinea, and present operations may move it even further, to the 140th Meridian.

From point of view of air power the line is much further west since the Allied Air Commaid virtually controls the air almost to the mainland. The bases now being fought over in the Marianas put the Allies within 1,500 air miles of both Japan and the Philippines.

In that first year after Pearl Harbor it was a fight for survival and all the odds—more than they realized—were on the Japanese side

But in mid-1942 the Allied forces, led by the Anzacs and Americans, commanded by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, began to feel their strength and the progress of the Pacific war has steadily improved the Allied position until it is now almost entirely offensive.

Area of Control

Outstanding developments in the campaign to whittle down the Japanese area of control were the capture of the Aleutian Islands of Attu and Kiska, the conquest of the Solomons, the bloody but successful fight for Eastern New Guinea, and the subsequent island-hopping which has brought the Allied forces to almost within striking distance of the Philippines and Japan itself.

It has been an expensive campaign for both sides, but most expensive to the Japanese, whose killed are estimated as high as 500,000 and who are believed to have lost nearly 3,000,000 effectives since their attack on China 10 years ago.

The American Navy communiques have listed 162 Japanese ships of war sunk, 33 believed sunk and 176 damaged. These include 76 destroyers, two battleships, 30 cruisers and seven carriers known to have been sunk.

The Japanese are also known to have lost 779 cargo, transport and other vessels sunk by Allied action. Japanese aircraft losses are estimated in excess of 12,000.

American naval losses exceed 160 known to be sunk or captured including 43 destroyers, six heavy cruisers, three light cruisers, 26 submarines and six aircraft carriers.

TURKS BREAK WITH NAZIS — After many months of neutrality Turkey has broken diplomatic relations with Germany. Bowmanville Boy Committed For Trial On Murder Charge

COBOURG, Aug. 4 — (ENS) — Charles Francis Davey the 15-year-old Bowmanville Training School boy, who is charged with murder in connection with the slaying of 4-year-old Norman (Buddy) Lamb of Cavan township on July 16, was committed for trial Thursday in closed court. A. R. Willmott, counsel for the accused, pointed out that the accused was under 16 and that under the Code it was not a public trial even although the accused had been sent on from a juvenile court.

Crown Attorney Harry Deyman concurred with the view of defence counsel and Magistrate R. B. Baxter accordingly excluded all those who were not directly concerned with the case.

The accused sat throughout the preliminary hearing head downcast, regarding his fingers, which he kept entwining and releasing. When the grandfather of the slain lad described how he found the body, the accused trembled slightly but otherwise gave no other sign of emotion. If anything he seemed bewildered by the entire proceedings.

Joseph Fee, grandfather of the deceased, broke down when he told of finding the lifeless little body of Buddy Lamb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Lamb, in a swamp at one end of the Lamb farm. He told the court that he employed the accused and that he was a good worker and had not given any trouble before.

Last Seen Playing

On the day of the tragedy he and Mrs. Fee and the accused went to the Lamb home for Sunday dinner. After dinner the two boys went out in the yard. Witness said that he heard Buddy laughing as the two played on the lawn. Late in the afternoon when he and Mrs. Fee dedecided to return to their home he looked for the two boys and couldn't find them around the house.

"Bill Davies, my son-in-law's hired man, and I went to the south end of the farm. I heard the dog barking back of the house and I thought that the boys had returned so I went back to the house but found on arrival that they had not. I returned to the south end of the farm and as I was getting worked up about it by then, I hurried on ahead. I reached the berry patch in the woods and nearby found Buddy's shoes. Further on I found the little body," testified Mr. Fee in tears.

Steadying himself with a visible effort the witness went on:

"About 25 or 30 feet from the shoes I found the body. It looked as if it had been carried and thrown in the bushes. The body was lying face down and was fully clothed except for the shoes. He was dead. I picked him up and hurried back to the house. Dr. Temple was called after we were unable to get Dr. Hobbs," related Mr. Fee.

In reply to questions from defence counsel, the witness said that the accused was a good worker and seemed trustworthy. He understood that in the fall he might have to return to the training school.

Earnest Lamb, father of the deceased boy, told the court that he saw Buddy and the accused leave the house at about 2 p.m. on July 16 and head south towards the barn. Further south of the barn was the swamp. Later in the afternoon his wife came and asked for the accused as her father and mother were intending to return home and wanted to take him with them.

Not Berry Picking

"I thought they might be picking berries. When I couldn't find them I thought that they might be lost in the swamp and I took the car and drove down to the next concession but could find no trace of them. I returned home to find that Buddy was in the house—dead," testified Mr. Lamb.

Dr. C. Temple of Millbrook said that he arrived at the Lamb house at 4.50 p.m. July 16 and found the boy lying dead on the sofa. There were bruises around the lips and eye and evidence of blood lying just below the skin. The lips were also blue. He told of flexing the right arm to establish the extent of rigor mortis and estimated that the boy had been dead for a few hours.

Dr. J. B. McKay, Belleville pathologist, fixed the cause of death as asphyxiation through strangulation.

Asphyxiation Signs

Dr. McKay said that he conducted the postmortem at Port Hope on July 17. He found the skin of the head and neck and upper part of the body in a blued state. There were multiple small scratches on the skin of the face and arms and a small hemorrhage under the white part of the left eye. The lips were also blue. Internally the hyoid bone, a U-shaped bone near the Adam's Apple, had been broken at the tip, a piece about ⅛ to ¼ of an inch being missing entirely. This was a common finding, stated Dr. McKay in cases of death from throttling. The lungs were distended, indicating an unsuccessful attempt to get air in and out and there were small hemorrhages under the covering of the lungs, all signs resulting from asphyxiation, he said. There were scratches on the neck as might come from throttling. The doctor fixed the cause of death as asphyxiation due to throttling and he fixed the time of death as within 22 to 24 hours prior to the time of his examination.

Constable A. H. Dalton of Peterborough Police Dept. said that on the night of July 16, around 11.30, a boy walked into the police station. He was the accused. The boy said that he wanted to give himself up and he gave his name to the police. His evidence was corroborated by Constable E. Beatty who said that he then locked the boy up.

Vincent Massey Visits Lieut. J. Arber

ROSENEATH, August 4—(ENS). —During a broadcast from England by the Hon. Vincent Massey, made following a visit to soldiers in hospital wounded on invasion day, he told of talking with a young lieutenant from Canada who lost a leg on the Noramndy beaches. Several listeners in the village hearing the broadcast wondered if it were possible the young lieutenant might be Jack Arber. As it turned out, their surmises were correct, for in a letter written to his wife, C.S.M. Lois Arber, C.W.A.C., Lieut. Arber told of talking with Mr. and Mrs. Masey, the latter asking for Mrs. Arber's address.

The sequel to the story arrived a few days ago when Mrs. Arber received a gracious letter from Mrs. Massey telling of their visit with Lieut Arber by herself and Mr. Massey.

Lieut. Arber, prior to enlisting, was a member of the Royal Bank staff at Roseneath.

Housing For Canada

The Hon. Mr. Ilsley has made it clear that the Dominion Government means to take some steps to remedy the shortage of houses, which is a great problem in Canada at present. Although no details have been made public it is possible that this will mean an extension of the Dominion Housing Act, which entered on a scheme just before the war which made it possible for people with small capital to borrow money to build homes.

The housing shortage in Canada is of long standing, but the war has given it special prominence. Many people have been moving from smaller to larger centres of population, and crowding has reached the point where it is unhealthy, uneconomic and unaesthetic. We need more houses badly, and it is good news that the Government means to assist in providing them.

If the Government should decide to take a hand in the housing business in a large way, we hope that it will consult a few first-rate architects before it does so. Canada not only needs houses; it desperately needs a renaissance in domestic architecture also. At present a great many 'modern' houses are unsatisfactory as dwellings. They seem to combine the inconveniences of the old-fashioned house with the pokiness and insubstantial building of a temporary house. We need houses which are built to last, and which are comfortable to live in.

As for cost, we hope that provision will be made for people with small incomes, industrial workers and so forth, to build and own their own homes — homes of which they can be proud and in which they can be happy. Living in a rented house for years on end is unsatisfactory, and men earning from $1,000 to $1,500 a year should have a chance to borrow the money to build a good house and pay for it within twenty years. On long-term payment, a worker will want a house which has not become a slum before he has made it entirely his own.

More costly homes should be provided for, also. Many young couples of the white collar class want homes in which they can raise families, and the homes they want cost between $6,000 and $8,000 to build. Under present conditions they cannot hope to build such homes until their children are ten or twelve years old, if then. Why not encourage such building by loans under a Government scheme? Other countries have dealt satisfactorily with this problem and we are sure that Canada could do so, too.

Tinkling Cymbal

The incident of the expulsion of Dr. H. A. Bruce from the House of Commons on Monday last does not reflect any special credit on the parties concerned. The Prime Minister took offence somewhat hastily and asked that Dr. Bruce be expelled for a period of a few hours, which was unimpressive. Dr. Bruce, whose behaviour is frequently theatrical without being dramatic, took this trifle as an excuse to play the role of martyred statesman. The whole affair was a bad example of the littleness and touchiness which bedevils public life in this country, and which is a sign of Canada's intellectual and political adolescence.

It has brought out a good deal of the pettiness of partisan politics in other quarters also. One Western Ontario newspaper declares that the Prime Minister 'played to the gallery', (though it was Dr. Bruce who did a cake-walk down the Commons, and then bobbed up next day to bow to Mr. King) and sobs that the member for Toronto-Parkdale was punished for having the courage of his convictions. It even asks the old question, "Where was Mackenzie King in 1914-18?" By this time we think that most people know that Mr. King, who was 40 in 1914, did some remarkable labour-relations work for the Rockefeller Foundation during that period, and that the United States recognizes that his work was of invaluable aid to the industrial effort of the Allied Powers, even if some Canadians do not.

But what were these convictions which Dr. Bruce defended with such mettlesomeness? Apparently they were based in such intransigent hostility toward Quebec that he can see only bribery in anything which benefits Quebec as well as the rest of Canada. He does not, apparently, wish to help any poor child in Canada if by doing so he is likely to help a poor child in Quebec. A strange conviction, that one, and apparently his fellow Conservatives do not share it, for they supported the Bill unanimously on its second reading, as did the C.C.F. and Social Credit members. A perusal of the article in our Third Column will explain this matter further.

Short of a little dubious publicity for Dr. Bruce and his 'conviction' that Quebec should be excluded from benefits granted to the rest of Canada, we cannot see that the incident had any result whatever.

A Matter Of Fact

When a newspaper has a taste for crusading it may be excused a good deal of intemperate language and some violent slanting of the facts; but abandonment of facts should not be allowed to pass. That is why we call attention to this passage from an editorial printed in the Toronto Globe and Mail on July 27:

> "There were more than 1,000,000 people on relief. Mr. King had wiped his hands of responsibility for what were so heartlessly called the simple unemployed transients. They were kicked from pillar to post. They had no jobs. None was provided for them. And Mr. King was in charge".

Mr. King was not in charge; he was in Opposition. Mr. Bennett was in charge, and according to a survey carried out by his government there were nowhere near a million people on relief. Mr. King and his party had been defeated in 1930 and it was Mr. Bennett's task to steer Canada through the depression. That depression was bad enough, but it was never as bad as politicians have since tried to make out.

If Canadian affairs were mismanaged during the depression the Conservative party must bear the blame. Our memories are not so short that we cannot recall Mr. Bennett's regime, its principal features and its dates, without consulting a handbook. The Toronto paper might give us credit for ordinary memory and perception. And if it wants to talk about Mr. King and unemployment, it might talk about the Dominion Unemployment Insurance Act, which was one of Mr. King's improvements in the social legislation of this country, and which makes the bitterness of the Bennett regime impossible in future.

A Chance For Pedestrians

The city of London (Ontario) is considering an idea which seems to us to be good enough to deserve attention everywhere. It concerns traffic lights, and the plan is this: motor traffic shall move on red and green lights as at present, but there shall be an intervening amber light period during which only pedestrian traffic shall move.

The adoption of such a plan would gladden the hearts of all pedestrians, particularly the old and the timid. At present the pedestrian never really feels safe. He keeps on the pavement while the red light shines, but when he attempts to cross the street on a green light motorists, and particularly buses, are likely to whizz at him from around a corner and scare the daylights out of him. A period of complete freedom from fear would be invaluable to him.

Though motorists deny it furiously, it is a fact that motorists hate pedestrians and do not like to see them crossing streets. Sitting at ease in powerful machines, they naturally despise poor wretches who still creep about on their hind legs. But as pedestrians are also taxpayers and the children of God, they must have their rights. It is true that some pedestrians never pay any attention to any lights, and are dangerous to themselves and everybody else; perhaps angry motorists could be appeased by a new regulation permitting them to kill, without fear of prosecution, anyone over the age of twelve years who crosses the streets on a red light.

NOTE AND COMMENT

An American soldier kidnapped a Welsh girl and took her with him to Normandy front. Mademoiselle from Llangollen, parlez-vous?

Two Toronto boys were arrested in Galt for wearing girls' clothing. This is grossly inconsistent at present, when girls wear boys' clothes as they please. The boys had a perfectly tenable idea: any Scotsman will tell you that in a choice between trousers and a kilt the latter is the more comfortable and practical garment. And from the aesthetic point of view there is nothing to be said for trousers, and much for skirts.

Who Gets The Money?

(By GRANT DEXTER)

OTTAWA: Four facts with respect to the allowance policy are essential to an appraisal of the statistics on families.

1. The allowance in varying amounts is to be paid to all children under 16 years of age.
2. The allowance is forfeited if a child over six is not either going to school or undergoing other suitable training.
3. To qualify for the allowance a child must either have been born in Canada or have resided here for three years prior to registration.
4. To avoid duplication of benefits the allowance will not be paid to persons receiving exemptions for children under the Income Tax Act. This is the broad principle. Special regulations will be necessary to apply it.

Here are the statistics on children, showing the cost of the policy before income tax exemptions are deducted. The final column is significant. It shows the per capita cost for all Canada and then the cost by provinces. This indicates that some provinces, having relatively more children, will benefit more than others. While income tax exemptions are not deducted, allowance has been made for the variation in payments due to the size of families.

JUNE, 1941

Province:	Children 0 to 15 Years Inclusive	Cost	Popul'n	Net per Capita
Canada	3,410,000	$20,610,000	11,490,000	$1.79
P. E. I.	30,000	181,000	95,000	1.91
N. S.	180,000	1,080,000	578,000*	1.87
N. B.	155,000	918,000	457,000	2.01
Quebec	1,133,000	6,721,000	3,332,000	2.02
Ontario	989,000	6,071,000	3,788,000	1.60
Manitoba ..	205,000	1,258,000	730,000	1.72
Sask.	287,000	1,750,000	896,000	1.95
Alberta	244,000	1,478,000	796,000	1.86
B. C.	187,000	1,153,000	818,000	1.41

◇ ◇ ◇

IT will be observed that in the foregoing figures the total cost would approximate $250 million per year. Income tax exemptions are believed to amount to $50 million so that the net cost of he policy is placed at about $200 million.

The following table covers the size of families:

1941
Total with children under 16	1,411,650
1 child	561,250
2 children	369,000
3 children	200,150
4 children	118,200
5 children	69,400
6 children	41,000
7 children	26,650
8 children	14,700
9 children	7,350
10 children	2,450
11 children	1,000
12 and up	500

As to age groups of children, there were in 1941, 1,256,379 children 5 years or under; 837,287 from 6 to 9; 661,653 from 10 to 12; and 654,592 from 13 to 15. The total is 3,409,911.

If you take the per capita cost of the policy at $1.79 for the country at large, the variation against this average in each province would be as follows (the calculations are based on the 1941 census and the fgiures cover one year):

Prince Edward Island gains 12 cents per head or $136,800 per year.
Nova Scotia gains 8 cents or $554,880.
New Brunswick gains 22 cents or $1,206,480.
Quebec gains 23 cents or $9,196,320.
Ontario loses 19 cents or $8,636,640.
Manitoba loses 7 cents or $613,200.
Saskatchewan gains 16 cents or $1,720,000.
Alberta gains 7 cents or $668,640.
British Columbia loses 32 cents or $3,730,080.

IF you decided to spend $200 million per year on family allowances but divided the money among the provinces on a per capita basis, the amount spent in each province would be quite different from the totals shown above. But when you spend the money directly on the children, rather than take each province as the unit, the result is that the provinces with the most children get the most money.

Quebec, undoubtedly, gains most but the margin is by no means as great as is commonly supposed. New Brunswick is a very close second and Saskatchewan a good third.

Quebec with 29 per cent of the total population will get 32 per cent of the money.

Ontario with 33 per cent of the population will get 29 per cent of the money.

British Columbia with 8 per cent of the population will get 5 per cent of the money.

The other provinces fall between these extremes. The wildest variation, as will be seen, is 4 per cent as between the relations of provincial to total population and provincial to total benefits. Since this is a national policy, however, there are no reasons other than racial or sectional, why it should be calculated on a provincial basis.

The variation between rural and urban benefits is more marked. Rural population is 5,239,000 and urban 6,251,000. But rural families are larger than urban families so that rural receipts will be $14,000,000 higher than the average and urban $14,000,000 lower.

Latest figures no gainfully occupied, persons place the total at 4,465,797. This includes the armed services.

◇ ◇ ◇

OF the total, 48 per cent are single. Of those married or widowed about 39 per cent have no children under 16 years of age. And of those with children under 16 years, about 40 per cent have but one child. In the result, it is apparent that 84 per cent fo all children under 16 years are dependent upon family heads who constitute only 19 per cent of the total gainfully occupied population. That is, the responsibility of raising the youngsters who will form the great body of citizens of tomorrow falls on less than one-fifth of the present working force. And the wealthier of these heads of families now are forgiven a part of their tax burden because they have children while the poorer of them get no help from the state.

(This is the fifth of a series of articles on Social Security in Canada.)

BANKING CONFUSION

To prove that the science of banking was confusing to the lay mind, G. T. Clarkson, Toronto auditor and witness before the banking and commerce comittee, gave an extreme example. In 1933 some Canadian banks wrote off part of their outside reserves.

"There was a woman who had a deposit in a bank at the corner of St. Clair and Bathurst street, Toronto," said Mr. Clarkson. "She was upset at the action of the banks, thought they were in trouble and stood in line to withdraw her money. She then walked eight blocks and deposited her money in a branch of the same bank."—Regina Leader-Post.

"SAVING IT FOR A RAINY DAY" —By Goldberg

The Ant

(NEW YORK TIMES)

THE ant is an insect. It has a thick-shelled head, a thorax to which six tireless legs are attached, an abdomen of limitless capacity. Its mandibles, or jaws, can and do chew or bite at will. It lives in colonies, in the earth, in old stumps, in house beams or in bags of sugar in the pantry. Some entomologists insist that the ant is very smart; many amateurs are equally insistent that the ant merely persists in its stubborn way.

Some who have spent a good deal of time studying ants say that they have a socialistic economy. The observant amateur may wonder why no Socialist has ever sued for libel. The ant's economy seems to consist of a large group of female workers, almost as many drones, a standing army which is always looking for trouble, crowds of slaves and a queen who does nothing but perpetuate the ant race. Most of an ant's time is spent harassing its neighbours; the rest of it is spent in eating or looking for food.

The ant is supposed to hear sounds beyond the range of the human ear. That is why the ant knows you are preparing to war on the ants in the pantry before you even make a move in that direction; it hears the thought clicking through your brain. The ant is also believed to have a remarkable sense of smell. That is why the ants gather in the pantry and dance in glee while you go to the store and spend your coupons for more sugar; they smell it coming, two miles away.

Ants fertilize flowers, quite unintentionally, while they are looking over the pollen situation. They pasture their herds of aphids on the best cabbage plants. They sharpen their mandibles on the under side of the front steps. But, thank goodness, they also eat sodium fluoride when it is mixed with powdered sugar.

The C.C.F. Is Very Careless

(By R. J. DEACHMAN)

THE C.C.F. is very careless—very careless indeed! On the other hand it is very bold, terribly bold. It locates the strongest point of the forces of the enemy and attacks at that point. It realizes, very clearly, the amazing improvement in health conditions in Canada during the last few years and especially in Alberta and against the facts it directs its efforts.

A recent advertisement of the C.C.F. carries the picture of a healthy looking baby boy. "It's a boy" reads the caption. Then it warms to the attack:

"What chance has he now? Canada's maternal death rate highest of 22 leading countries. Give him a chance under the C.C.F. Social Medicine means free medicine, etc., etc., etc."

The claim is false, the facts dispute it. The C.C.F. can tell its story for, since the war, the figures of maternity death rates in many other countries are not available. They would be useless if they were. In the countries under the impact of war, they would be abnormally high but let us see what has happened in Canada and in Alberta in the last few years—all figures in this article are from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, as well as in the Province of Alberta.

Maternal Death Rate

1926-30 Average	5.7	6.6
1931-35 "	5.1	4.5
1936-40 "	4.6	4.5
1940 "	4.0	4.0
1941 "	3.5	3.1
1942 "	3.0	2.3

This remarkable table tells the story. The maternal death rate in the Dominion has dropped from 5.7 on the average of the 1926-30 period to 3.0 in 1942. It stood, in 1942, at 52.6 per cent. of the 1926-30 average. What happened in Alberta which the C.C.F. now assaults? The drop was from 6.6 in the 1926-30 average to 2.3 in 1942—it was in that year less than 35 per cent. of 1926-30 average. The C.C.F. must have known the record it attacked at the strongest point.

Let us now turn to the infantile death rate—it reveals an equally remarkable record. Here are the facts:

Infantile Death Rate
(Deaths per 1,000 live births)

	Canada	Alberta
1926-30	93	75
1931-35	75	60
1936-40	64	53
1940	56	48
1941	60	51
1942	54	38

There is the record of the Dominion of Canada as a whole, and of the Province of Alberta. The lowest recorded figures on infantile death rates, so far as I can locate, were in Iceland and New Zealand. They were 27 and 29 per 1,000 live births. Alberta would go into the next group, Sweden, Norway, Switzerland with 37 and 38.

Remember these countries do not face the difficulties which are presented in Alberta. They are of one common race or as in Switzerland of one common standard of education, whereas in Alberta there are many racial groups and those who migrated to Canada, when they mature, carry with them the habits and ideas of their country of origin. Time changes their ideas, but it takes time.

I have dealt here mainly with the maternal death rate and the infantile death rate. So far as the general health is concerned, this statement from the Canada Year Book for 1942 is important.

"The Netherlands, New Zealand, the Union of South Africa (Whites), Canada and Australia, are the only countries with death rates under 10.0 per 1,000 of population."

There is a table on page 136 of the Canada Year Book which might also be read with interest. It gives the crude death rates in 43 different countries and in the nine provinces of Canada and the lowest is Saskatchewan with the rate of 7.0 per thousand, Alberta with 7.9, and Manitoba with 8.7. Will C.C.F. publicists please copy. It is good news for the Province of Alberta, not so good for the C.C.F. The cause of that party flourishes best on death and disaster.

Moments Of A Garden

Often you would wonder which is the most beautifull moment in this garden—at noon, on a hot summer day, when the light reflected from the water quivers in dazzling patterns upon statues and walls, and upon the warm velvet of the lawns, or on spring mornings when in their mist the trees are towers of crystal, each twig a glittering vein in it, or later, when whole rival choirs of birds practice within them, and every twig is unfurling a golden and transparent pennon; on summer nights when you feel its mystery, as at other times you feel its joy—for in the manner of all gardens it is a little haunted, with the mystery of stillness and space and silence, a rustling sense of expectancy that, though alarming, is not disagreeable—and then, a miracle that can only occur in this neighbourhood, the whole sky flames out from the furnaces, and the sighing, tall summer trees and the dark walls of the hedges smolder in the fierceness of this light until, after a minute or two, the flares subside and the world settles to darkness again, the white owl snores once more in her moated grange, the hollow tree upon an island, and the startled bats fly home in arching, segmented flight; or in the early mornings of October, when the mists and cobwebs natural to a Derbyshire fine morning at that season are being brushed away by the sun, which, nevertheless, all day long, seem a little tarnshed, so that everything, every stone and trunk and dying, gilded leaf, takes on a hue of deeper and decaying gold.—From "Left Hand, Right Hand!" by Sir Osbert Sitwell. (Boston: Little, Brown.)

BOOKS AND GIN

Everyone knows from experience that it is more difficult today to obtain a copy of Pride and Prejudice than to buy a bottle of gin. The causes behind this book famine (and new books are as scarce as old) are revealed by a memorandum issued by the Publishers' Association this week. Stocks are being very rapidly used up; the number of books disposed of in 1943 exceeded by almost 50 per cent, the number of books printed.—London News Statesman.

ROBOTS AND LONDON THEATRES

After the greatest boom in British theatrical history, London's West End has suffered its greatest slump. Within the few weeks of the flying-bomb capaign 21 theatres have closed their doors.

A few closures are temporary—shows going into the provinces until better times come. At present only a dozen West End theatres are open, and two of these are presenting ballet.

Actors and actresses in these shows have accepted unprecedented salary cuts.

Men and women earning £50 ($200) a week are now playing for £12 ($48).

Big West End successes have dropped from round about £2,000 ($8,000) per theatre to £500 ($2,000) a week or even less. One smash hit took less than £60 ($240) one night.—London Daily Mail.

SHOES FOR A BOY

....Take shoes for a boy of seven, just as one example. We know one boy who got a new pair of boots and in three weeks he had gone right through them so that his feet were out the bottoms. The boots were half-soled and he also got a pair of play shoes to help out. Altogether, within six weeks it cost that family ten dollars just to pay for the footwear of a seven-year-old lad. Maybe the quality of the leather is not as good as it used to be, but that does not make it any easier for the young mother to finance.

Big business talks in its millions and hypothetical billions. But, when it comes to real practial budgeting to make ends meet in the home, the young fathers and mothers do not need many pointers in how to make a dollar go a long way.—Windsor Star.

GOLF AND GROUNDLINGS

I had a very courteous opponent last week at the game of golf. He sliced, as the very elect may do, a long drive into the rough and after a long search found the ball lying snug in a lark's nest. The law of the game did not allow him to remove it by hand without losing strokes and his humanitarian feelings did not allow him to play it, so he insisted on surrendering the hole. Larks' nests on that course are numerous. Two willow warblers nested — on the ground, of course, close to two teeing grounds. The juniper bushes are well sprinkled with linnets' nests, and an occasional long-tail tit's. The red shrike nests in the thorns. I have seen two birds hit by golf balls; one a lark which soon recovered from the blow, the other a cock chaffinch which was hit full in mid-air and instantly destroyed. Twice I have found a yellow-hammer's nest (one in August), thanks to its juxtaposition to a crooked golf ball.—Rex Beach in London Spectator.

A Bible Message

And when Jesus departed thence, two blind men followed him, crying, and saying, Thou son of David, have mercy on us. And when he was come into the house, the blind men came to him: and Jesus saith unto them, Believe ye that I am able to do this? They said unto him, Yea, Lord.

Then touched he their eyes, saying, According to your faith be it unto you. And their eyes were opened; and Jesus straitly charged them, saying, See that no man know it. But they, when they were departed, spread abroad his fame in all that country. (Matt. 9: 27-31.)

Pickens—Moore

HASTINGS, Aug. 4 (ENS) — A quiet wedding took place recently at the Presbyterian Manse, when Helen Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Moore of Asphodel, was united in marriage to Kenneth Prest, only son of Mr. and Mrs. George Pickens of Percy, with Rev. M. J. Davey officiating.

The bride wore a turquoise blue silk sheer with Peter Pan collar, long full sleeves, with shirring at the shoulders and waist. She wore shoulder length veil of English net in Queen Antoinette style and carried an arm bouquet of Briarcliffe roses.

She was attended by Miss Helen Fleming of Campbellford, who wore a pink silk sheer, with long full sleeves, full skirt, sweetheart neckline, with white accessories and carried a bouquet of pink rose buds. Mr. James Moore, brother of the bride, attended the groom.

By The Canadian Press

OTTAWA, August 4 — (CP). — OVEN CANNING: Fruits and tomatoes are foods which may be successfuly oven canned, although this process does not work with other foods, says Laura C. Pepper, chief of the Agriculture Department Consumer Section. Her advice on this method of canning is this:

Don't use an oven without thermostatic.

Don't use the oven at all for vegetables other than tomatoes.

Don't use the oven for any food packed in tin cans.

Don't use the top element at all in oven processing.

Do be sure that the control registers accurately.

Do maintain temperature at exactly 275 degrees Fahrenheit.

Do stand sealers in an inch of water in a shallow pan.

CURRANT NEWS: Red and white currants are definitely among those present when the vitamin C family gets together, says the Pensions Department Nutrition Division. They may not contain quite so much "C" as the black variety, but they have their share. Crushed and sweetened just before serving, either red or white currants will make a delicious pudding sauce quick as a wink. And you will probably want to put up some tangy currant juice for next winter.

◆ ◆ ◆

GLAMOR SHORTCAKE: A recipe from the Agriculture Department experimental kitchen gives an extra zip to fruit shortcake, a favorite with so many Canadians Make your favorite biscuit or sponge cake shortcake base in a single pan. Split, spread with the crushed fruit, put together and ice with a fluffy meringue. Bake in a moderately slow oven, 325 degrees Fahrenheit, until meringue is delicately browned. Serve with additional fruit.

◆ ◆ ◆

SHABBY BLINDS: Can be made fresh again by painting, say the Consumer experts. The shade should be put on a table which is well covered with old newspapers.. ..for sometimes the paint goes through the shade to the table. After as much dust and dirt as possible is wiped off, any good quality paint, thinned with turpentine, may be applied with a brush, preferably brushing it across. Before rolling the shade up make sure the paint is thoroughly dry.

◆ ◆ ◆

POTATO SECRETS: A recope from the Agricultural Department Consumer Section glamorizes the lowly potato and provides an excellent plain course for lunch or supper. It requires six large potatoes, one cup cooked ground meat, one cup of gravy or cream sauce, ½teaspoon of onion juice, salt and pepper to taste, and ½ cup cooked carrots finely chopped.

Wash and scrub the potatoes well and remove any spots. Bake in a moderately hot oven, 375 degrees Fahrenheit, until soft, about an hour. Mix meat, gravy, seasonings and carrots. Cut slices from broad sides of potatoes. Scoop out the potatoes, leaving the unbroken shells. Mash potato, add salt and pepper to taste, and a little top milk. Whip until fluffy. Half fill shells with meat mixture and pile mashed potatoes on top. Reheat in oven until potatoes are lightly browned. This serves six.

Hardships of Soldier's Wife—Kept Home by Baby She's As Much a Prisoner as Though in Stone Fortress.

Dear Miss Dix — Everybody is greatly concerned about keeping up the morale of our men in the service. Why doesn't someone give a thought to keeping up the morale of the lonely service wives? I am 19 years old, married to a soldier. I have one baby a year and a half old and expect another soon.

I am a stranger in a strange city, without a friend or a relative, and no one holds out a kindly hand to me. I am a prisoner in my own little apartment. I can't go to church. I can't go to a show. I can't do Red Cross work. I can't go any place where I could meet people because I am tied down to the baby. Even on the rare occasions when my husband can come home we can't step out to any place of amusement, for we can't find anyone to mind the child.

All we service wives can do is to stay put while the single girls are gadding about dancing with our husbands, and we are getting gray hair trying to figure out ways to pay exorbitant rents and still have enough money to eat properly. Believe me, if anybody needs to have their morale jacked up, it is us.

MRS. R. A.

Wives Endure Hardships Like Soldiers.

Answer—This letter is an indictment of every one of us women who are so busy selling bonds, or running canteens, or getting up dances for soldiers. We overlook the tragedies of war that are happening right next door to us.

Yet these poor little young child-wives who have left their comfortable homes, their families and friends. to follow their husbands and who are stranded in strange cities where they know no one; who are living in miserable and uncomfortable lodgings and who are tied down by babies, are enduring just as much of the hardships of war as their husbands are.

They are starving for companionship just as much as they would for food in any concentration camp. They are held prisoners by a baby's hand just as much as they could be by an armed guard, and they are just as much shut up in a two-by-four apartment as they could be in a stone fortress.

And we pass them by without even giving them a kindly word, or asking them into our houses for a cup of coffee and a doughnut, or offering to mind Junior for an hour or so. Yet they are far more in need of our ministrations than the soldiers who, at least, have the companionship of crowds, and who are free to roam the streets in search of diversion.

Let's hope that this woman's letter will have a double-barrel effect. First, that it will make a lot of folish girls, who think it will be so thrilling and exciting to follow their husbands about from camp to camp and wait in strange cities for them to come back, put off marrying until after the duration. And, secondly, that it will make us all do more to make the lives of the service wives less lonely and dreary.

Dear Dorothy Dix—When my wife and I married it was a marriage of convenience and we did not pretend that we were in love with each other. We were not even very well acquainted. But I soon found out that she was an excellent housekeeper, a good cook, easy to get along with, an intelligent and interesting companion and a good sport.

To-day we are celebrating our fifty-fifth anniversary. We have had no quarrels, and as I look back and see the good things my wife has done I am filled with wonder at how happy we have been. Now we have had no romance, but we have been well satisfied with each other. What have we lacked?

◆ ◆ ◆

Answer—Nothing, I should asy. Not all people are romanticly-minded. Your marriage has been a beautiful friendship and in that you have had the best of marriage.

◆ ◆ ◆

Dear Miss Dix—My daughter is bashful and has a hard time making friends. I am planning to send her to college. Do you think this will help her? Would you advise a large, small, coed, or girls' college?

PUZZLED MOTHER.

Answer— Nothing will do so much to cure your daughter of her timidity as sending her away from home and throwing her upon her own. I would strongly advise the girls' college for her where she will be thrown with girls. What she will learn from other girls will be more valuable to her than anything she can get out of books.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, August 5

THE ATTENTION and energies seem to be focused on the enjoyments, social, convivial, romantic and emotional adventures rather than the practical and workaday. In spite of setbacks, trvial disappointments and reverses there may be prospect of thrills and excitements, with much stirring in connection with celebrations or parties. A tendency to extravagance of funds and forces, in this indulgence should be curbed, with prudence and discretion in all menacing situations, either in business, finance or personal engagements.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of surprise and commotion, with the pursuit of pleasure probably outshining all commonplace activities. The element of romance, adventure, hospitality and festivity may lure to over-indulgence or ertravagances, with resultant regrets, loss or estrangements. Upheavals, change, new agreements or alliances should be wisely and prudently consirered, lest there be penalties in health, funds and general well-being.

A child born on this day may have many strange adventures in life, some giving social or romantic happiness, others involving loss of substance and prestige. It should choose its associates with discretion.

The Whipper To Give Bad Man A Test

Dr. Len Hall's display of roughhouse tactics here Tuesday night and his incessant bragging since coming to Canada that he has seen no wrestler here that he couldn't take for a ride have not gone unnoticed by Promoter Tunney who has booked the new bad man for a main bout battle at the Brock St. Arena next Tuesday night with Whipper Watson. "The Whip will find out whether this Hall bird has the goods or is just shooting a line," the Toronto promoter said in announcing the bout. The Doctor looked decidedly tough in making a wreck out of Johnny Gyroffy here the other night and it may be that the popular Whipper will have a real job on his hands subduing the Texan rowdy.

Golden Jubilee For Connie Mack

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4 —(AP)—"The first 50 years were the easiest," smiled Connie Mack, 82, as he looked back to-day over his years as a major league manager while last-minute preparations for his golden jubilee celebration tonight were rushed to completion.

Early indications were that a huge crowd will be on hand to attend the gala program honoring the owner and manager of the Athletics.

Baseball's great of to-day and yesterday—Honus Wagner, Tris Speaker, George Sisler, Mickey Cochrane, B. Dickey, Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth and a score of others— will be on hand to honor the grand old man of baseball.

In the 50 years since "Mr. Baseball" began his managerial career with the Pittsburgh Nationals, Aug. 4, 1894, Cornelius McGillicuddy —as he prefers to be called— has lost some of his spryness but none of his fervor for the national sport.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—(AP)—If we were a baseball player, and could pick our job, we'd take over for Joe Just, Cincinnati Red catcher, Roy Berres, Giant catcher, or Lena Blackburn, Philadelphia Athletics coach. Just has played in only seven games this year, batting only nine times; Berres has been up only once in five games, while Blackburn gets $50 from the American League for sending each club a can of special dirt with which the umpires rub the baseballs before each game. What a life those guys lead—and Berres was a holdout, yet.

Juvenile Baseball

Two Lions Club Juvenile teams, Riverside Park, 6:30 o'clock.

Exhibition Game:

Westclox Ladies vs. Men's Industrial League team, East City Bowl, 7:00 o'clock.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Peterborough is to have a baseball game, the first in a number of years, tonight at Riverside Park, starting at 6.30 o'clock. Thanks to the enterprise of the Lions Club which has succeeded in gathering together the necessary equipment and in interesting a bunch of youngsters in a revival of the diamond pastime, two teams of kids in their younger 'teens have been rounded up and they will battle each other this evening. Alex Kay, dean of Peterborough umpires, who retired from active service in baseball years ago has consented to help the effort along by acting as umpires in tonight's tussle and a lot of friends of baseball have promised to be on hand to see the youngsters perform. It is a movement that should have general support. In the Health centre program that Peterborough citizens will be asked to support next month a first-class baseball diamond with proper grandstand accommodation is included and it is time that we began to prepare for a proper use of such facilities by making sure that we will have a crop of ball players ready. Reviving the game among the "kids" is the only effective way of preparing for the better days that lie ahead.

* * * * * *

Another sporting attraction of this evening will be the exhibition game between the Westclox senior girls' team and the Westclox men's team of the Industrial League with the batteries swapped. This tussle which is slated for 7 o'clock at the Ashburnham Bowl will see K. Hopcroft pitching for the girls and Joe Blewett performing behind the bat while Joyce Withers and Isobel Bullock of the Big Bens will be the battery for the men against their own club. The result should be an interesting argument and both sides are confidently claiming a victory. It may evolve into a question of which team can hit its own pitchers the harder. At any rate a battle of that kind will be a hot-weather novelty and its likely to attract quite a crowd. Over at the Westclox plant the tilt has been the main item of conversation all week and both outfits have plenty of support.

Is It Big Enough?

Tentative plans for Peterborough's modern hockey and sports arena call for a seating accommodation of 2800. Before there is a final decision on just how large the building is to be this column believes that the question of seating accommodation should be very carefully considered. The suggested accommodation for the Peterborough project is below that of St. Catharines arena and well below that of the Oshawa Arena, a building that is now getting to be in the venerable class. Would this community be wise, now that it is about to provide itself with a home for hockey that will undoubtedly have to serve this city for the next 20 years or perhaps much longer, to be satisfied with a structure offering less accommodation than is now provided by existing arenas in centres in our own population group? We are about to take a big step forward in building an arena. We should be sure before we go ahead that we are taking care of the needs of this community for the next couple of decades. Admittedly a seating capacity of 2,800 would more than take care of ordinary games for the next few years but the gravy in all such arenas comes in the big crowds that can be expected from a winning hockey team. If the seats are not available when such an opportunity comes the gravy naturally falls off. It is much simpler to provide that seating capacity now when we are putting up a new building than it would be to try to add it later.

Writes Chick Appel in the Stratford Beacon-Herald: "Stratford has fielded better senior baseball teams than the current edition of the Nationals, but it's doubtful if this city ever had a more popular one than the present one. It was surprising the number of complimentary remarks this corner heard about the present Nats after the game on Saturday. The members of the club can rest assured that they have the staunch support of the fans as long as they show the same fighting spirit. The fans realize just as much as the management and the players themselves that wartime conditions have played hob with the team that wore Stratford uniforms last year. The fans still recall those great teams of 1934, 1935 and 1936, when the Nats reigned supreme. At that time the Stratford club boasted of some of the finest amateur ball players in the Dominion, who were expected to play errorless ball, and when they did boot one it caused some surprise. Today the Nats don't possess the power at the plate, nor the ability in the field of former years, and one can expect nothing else when green youngsters must be brought directly from city juvenile ranks to fill the vacancies caused by the enlistment of former veteran stars."

Why They're Leading

"With no Brown players sparking to any great extent in any one department, many fans are wondering what keeps the St. Louis club out in front in the present American League race," says Bill Gaynon in the Niagara Falls Gazette. "A quick glance at the lineup fails to reveal a pitcher of the Bucky Walters or Tex Hughson type, a second baseman comparable to Bobby Doerr or a slugger who can match the feats of Dick Wakefield or Rudy York, yet at this writing the Mound City team is 4½ contests in the van of Boston, and that much expected crack seems off their books. Probably the correct answer for such a state of affairs is that all departments are clicking in steady fashion, which pays off in larger dividends than power in one part of the lineup and weakness at other posts. Certain it is that hitters like Vernon Stephens, George McQuinn and Mark Christman, can account for some runs if they appear at the dish at opportune moments, and Bob Muncrief seems to be a capable hill artist."

If the policy set forth yesterday by Judge Anderson, chairman of the Saskatchewan Department of Labor Mobilization Board is to be generally followed this winter the N.H.L. is in for some tough times. Judge Anderson declares that no border crossing permits will be issued this year to men in categories eligible for military callups who wish to play hockey in the United States. Other officials state that if the labor of hockey players is required on this side of the line they will not be permitted to leave. That seems common sense appreciation of the situation. Where other young men are governed by selective service regulations there is no reason why professional hockey players should be exempt. But let us hope that if the policy of refusing border permits to players in Saskatchewan is adopted, that the same policy will be in force in all parts of the Dominion. On other similar rulings in other seasons there has been a wide difference in the manner in which the regulations were applied.

Lakeshores Beat Mimico 16-8

TORONTO, Aug. 4—It was pretty hot both on and off the lacrosse field at Mimico Thursday night when Toronto Lakeshores handed their suburban rivals, Mimico Mountaineers a 16-8 lacing in an O.L.A. senior contest. The win ties Lakeshores for first place with St. Catharines.

Play became so hectic in the final moments that both Dixon and Howes got the gate. Mimico held a 7-6 lead at half-time, but ran into a series of penalties in the last stanza. Red Hartley, Lakeshore goalie, played a standout game, and held the determined thrusts of the Mountaineers in the final quarter.

Lee and Love had three goals each for the winners, and Gord Gair two. Masters scored twice for Mimico, while Hayes, Pritchard and Blain McDonald were outstanding.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Aug. 4—(CP)—Truly, an era in the world of sport, in Toronto at least, has passed into the proverbial limbo. Female wrestling fans in the Queen City are reportedly casting blase eyes on the efforts of wrestling promoters to supply them with "hero-villain" contests to send chills up and down their spines. The girls now are booing the heeroes and cheering the villains.

Always, in happier days, the girls would scream frenziedly and hoarsely as the ugly-visaged vallain gouged, bit and kicked the hapless, handsome hero, and they would applaud madly when the "good fellow" reversed the table and won out, Alger style.

Some of the girls, when asked why their strange aversion to handsome Whipper Billy Watson, snorted in disdain and branded him a "clothes horse" and a "pretty boy with a lot of conceit." They made no bones of the fact they would like to see anyone—Man, Angel, Turk or Masked Marvel—trounce the erstwhile hero.

All of which is very strange and unfathomable. Perhaps it presages the end of the "bobby socks" era.

Hitler Note

A professional wrestler pal of Bob (Calgary Herald) Mamini is credited with discovering what democracy, Canadian style, really means. The mat gentleman, Karl Pojello by name, defines it thus: "On the trip to Calgary we see a farmer. He drive tractor and smoke big cigar and on his tractor radio play. That is democracy."

Here And There:

Al Urquhart has retired after a long career as a railroad engineer. That doesn't mean much to the younger generation, but oldsters will remember him as a member of the original Regina Roughriders football squad in 1912. Brian Timmis has called him the greatest guard he ever saw, and Al Ritchie seconded the motion heartily. Al also played with Regina Victorias when they took the Allan Cup in 1914. The rink at Windsor, Ont., will be busy come fall. Cleveland Barons, Detroit Red Wings and Pittsburgh Hornets all are due to train at the Motor City. There's a move afoot to build a roller skating rink in Halifax, and revive once-popular roller-hockey... Jimmy Ward, one of the famous old Montreal Maroons, is slated to coach a hockey squad in Portland, Ore., this winter.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Manpower officials in Western Canada gave evidence of being tough in connection with the migration of hockey players to the United States next winter in announcements last night. At Regina, Mr. Justice P. M. Anderson, chairman of the Saskatchewan Labor Mobilization Board, said Doug Bentley, star of Chicago Black Hawks in the N.H.L., would have to take winter work in that province although, as a farmer, he qualified for a border crossing permit last fall. At Edmonton, William Carnhill of National Selective Service announced no one would be permitted to go to the States to play hockey or for any other reason if they were needed for jobs in Canada.

On a muddy track at Belmont Park yesterday, the Toronto-owned Tulachmore could do no better than fifth in a field of seven in the $3,500 six-furlong Mohawk Handicap. The Canadian horse came in five lengths behind the winner, Bill Sickle.

Oxford Athlete Dies

The Air Ministry at London yesterday announced the death on operations of Sqdn. Ldr. Lord David Douglas-Hamilton, former Oxford athlete known as "the boxing marquis." His widow is Prunella Stack who was director of the Women's League of Health and Beauty.

It was a gala occasion at Guelph last night for the opening of the Inter County bantam playoffs. Premier George Drew of Ontario returned to his home town for the event, O.B.A.A. officials and civic fathers attended in a body and Bobbie Rosenfeld of Toronto officiated as an umpire. All in all, 'twas a big night—except for the fact that the home team suffered a 12-2 lacing at the hands of the Kitchener nine.

Winning all three sprints, LAC. Ross Macklin of Barrie carried off the individual honors in yesterday's annual field day of the Bombing and Gunnery School of the R.C.A.F. at Mountain View, Ont.

Quaker Girls Defeat Westclox Team

With a 1 to 1 deadlock up to the first half of the sixth inning, Quaker Oats lashed out with a 10-run rally in the last section of that frame, and took the argument from Westclox Seconds with a final 12 to 7 score, in a Ladies' Softball League game, played in good time at Ashburnham Bowl Thursday evening.

The Quaker crew began the scoring in the second inning, when Bev. Boutette, a newcomer to the Quaker team, walked to first, stole second, dashed to third on a wild throw to that base, and completed her run on a daring steal to home, while the ball was still behind the plate.

The Westclox girls tied the game in the first half of the sixth frame, with Florence Robinson doing the honors on a hit into centre by Millie Miller.

The last of the sixth netted the Porridge team a total of 10 runs, made on 9 hits, 3 errors, and including a hot double into left by Bev. Boutette, and a home-run by Carlotta Laing, the latter being a ball into deep left field.

Westclox made a determined come-back in the eighth, scoring three times. Joy Nice singled to left field, Florence Robinson followed the same track, Florence Hanwell popped to short stop, and Millie Miller walked, with Miss Nice taking advantage of some confusion to score on that play. Laura Storey was safe on an error, scoring Miss Robinson. Alice McIvor was out to first base, but Miss Miller scored on that play. Mina Dunford was safe on an error, running in Miss Storey.

The final part of the seventh upped the Quaker count one notch, with Phyllis Thackeray scoring on a fast ball through short by June McGregor. This completed the Quaker girls' scoring efforts for the evening, and while many of their runs came their way by means of expensive Westclox errors, there has been a decided improvement in most departments, during the past few games.

Westclox Gets Three

Westclox kept the battle going in the ninth, again bringing three batters down the home stretch, to knock off three runs. Rita O'Heron singled through short, Joy Nice whipped one over third base, Florence Robinson hit one to pitcher who let it bounce out of control, allowing Miss O'Heron to score. Florence Hanwell shot one to the third baseman, who tossed it to second to oust Miss Robison, but Joy Nice ran in. A hit into centre by Millie Miller brought home Miss Hanwell.

Gertie Masters did the pitching for the Quakers, fanning none, and walking one, holding the oppsition to 13 hits. Alive McIvor handled the hurling for Westclox, striking out five and walking 2.

The teams:

Westclox II—Mina Dunford, 3b; Dorothy Johnson, 2b; Rita O'Heron, 1b; Florence Robinson, cf; Florence Hanwell, lf; Millie Miller, ss; Laura Storey, rf; Alice McIvor, p; Joy Nice, c.

HARGRAVE, England, Aug. 4—(CP)—Owen Rutter, 54, widely-known writer and lecturer, died Tuesday at his home here.

Chicago Cubs Move Into Top Division

By JACK HAND.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Cholly Grimm's banjo strummed a merry tune to-day as the Chicago Cubs inhaled rarefield first-division air after spending the first three months of the season in and out of the National League cellar.

The Bruins headed home via Pittsburgh with a nine-game winning streak and a record of 12 victories in 17 Eastern starts. Since June 25, when Grimm's crew was mired in last place by 4½ lengths, Chicago took 26 of 38 games to pull past all the Eastern entries. For the first time this season, the four Western clubs hogged the first-division spots.

Bill Nicholson stepped up his home-run production from its usual sub-par start and clouted nos. 22 and 23 yesterday as the Cubs humbled Brooklyn twice, 6-2 and 7-1. Nicholson moved past Mel Ott of the New Cork Giants in the home run derby passed out the Cards, Ray Sanders to take the R. B. I. lead with 75.

St. Louis humbled Pittsburgh 15-2 with Teddy Wilks winning his seventh straight and his 10th victory to one loss. Danny Litwhiler batted in six runs with four hits, including a three-run homer.

Chicago's White Sox went into a fifth-place tie with Detroit in the American League by downing Cleveland twice, 3-2 and 5-1. Bill Dietrich nosed out Al Smith in the opener with the help of Johnny Dickshot's triple and Ormal Grove got the nod over Chief Reynolds in the second.

Dwyer Holds Unusual Records

By The Assocated Press.

Teams and players and records may come and go, but the International League's Bill Dwyer appears to go on forever.

The veteran Newark outfielder holds a few records not likely to fall in the near future. He is the only man in the minor leagues to have made more than 1,500 hits or to have driven in more than 1,000 runs.

His mates recorded their 12th win in their last 14 starts last night when they blasted the Montreal Royals, 12-6. Steve Kuk, Mike Portner, Jerry Crosby, and Bill Drescher made sure of the Bear victory as they all clouted home runs.

Ken Brondell hooked up with Toronto's Alec Mustaikis and the result was a Jersey City victory, 4-1. Limiting the Leafs to six hits, Ken notched his 10th victory as Mustaikis suffered his 10th loss.

The tighest pitching duel of the night was put on by Rochester's Trotter and the Syracuse Chie.. Bob Katz. The battle lasted until the ninth when, with the score locked at 1-1, Maurice Sturdy tripled and counted on Earl Naylor's long fly, Rochester winning 2-1.

Hockey Rules To Be Reviewed

OTTAWA, Aug. 4 — (CP- — A hint that regulations governing the movement of men to the United States to play hockey might be reviewed before the season opens was given here Thursday by a spokesman for the Labor Department.

He was commenting on a Regina despatch which quoted Mr. Justice P. M. Anderson, chairman of the Saskatchewan Mobilization Board, as saying the Boa: would not give border cross' permission to men of callable militar, catergories wishing to play hockey.

The Labor Department spokesman said this rule was in force last year when men of military age and medically fit for military training were denied border crossing permits to play hockey. However, permits were granted to men who were medically unfit, depending on the essentiality of their work in Canada.

He said the rules had not been changed and indicated that they would be reviewed before the hockey training season begins.

Brothers Meet On French Road

WARSAW, August 4 —(ENS) — A letter just received from Gnr. Reg. Payne telling of his arrival in France also tells this story of sitting by the roadside shortly after he landed. When a truck went by the driver waved his hand, and thinking it was one Canadian greeting another in a strange land, he returned the salute. But when the driver stopped, got down, and came back he was surprised to see his brother, Everett, who landed in France on D-day and whom he had not seen since Christmas.

Forestry Corps Reaches France

LONDON, Aug. 4 — (CP Cable) — Husky Canadian lumberjacks of the Canadian Forestry Corps, have landed in France, it was reported today.

The lumberjacks embarkd in a great grey liberty ship at a British port. One English reporter who covered the embarkation went "overboard" in describing these "big bronzed husky men," who for the last three years have been employed in forestry work in the woods of the Scottish highlands.

"Never have I seen troops in better shape or more eager to be at the enemy," he wrote in a dispatch to his London paper. "Among these tough and brawny lads I picked out the toughest and brawniest and certainly tallest—Pte. Slim Rennison from Vancouver Island, who stands six feet four inches in his outsize boots.

The report quoted one of the Canadian officers as saying that he did not know what the unit's job would be in France, but "besides cracking down trees we hope to get a crack at Jerry."

Worthington, Tough Tank Leader Trains On Front-Line Conditions

CAMP BORDEN MILITARY CAMP, Aug. 4 — (CP) — A short, grey-haired, pipe-smoking general—the soldiers overseas called him "Fighting Frank"—jumped lithely from a jeep and strode with a spring in his step to a machine-gun range.

He stopped to watch a platoon of recruits handling machine guns and then approached one youngster having trouble properly sighting his gun.

"Here, son," he said, gruffly dropping to the ground, "this is the way to do it. You want to be a killer don't you."

The high officer was Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, 55-year-old general officer in command, Camp Borden, and former commander of a Canadian armored division overseas.

Rightly described as the father of Canadian tank warfare, Gen. Worthton has brought three years experience overseas to this sprawling training centre, 60 miles north of Toronto, for general service and N.R.M.A. troops.

New Conception

Since he assumed command two months ago a new conception of how reinforcements should be trained for the field has been put into effect—with accent on killing Germans.

Tanks, as can be expected, are the general's love and the armored corps on the camp feels, especially, the firm, pursuasive voice of his commands. There's little rest for them, but under the general's scheme of things there's little rest for anybody.

A tankman aptly summed up the general's attitude.

"He makes us work hard," he said, wiping his oily hands on a piece of waste. "But he's setting and keeping up to his own pace and so we don't mind how hard he drives us."

The general didn't pull punches as he described how he planned to train reinforcements so they would need only a smattering of operational and practical training overseas to fit them for duty at the front.

C.C.F. Plans To Take Power Co.

DRUMHELLER, Alta., Aug. 4—(CP).—Elmer Roper, Provincial C.C.F. leader, said in an Alberta election campaign speech last night that one of the first acts of a C.C.F. government if elected would be to take over the Calgary Power Co., the leading Alberta power company.

"Premier (Adelard) Godbout of Quebec is trying to save his political skin by taking over the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Co., but I doubt if it will save him," said Mr. Roper.

"But taking over these companies is the only way to ensure there will be rural electrification such as is urgently needed by farmers today."

(Alberta and Quebec Provincial elections are on the same day—Aug. 8. Mr. Godbout leads a Liberal administration).

Speaking in this coal mining centre, Mr. Roper said he had been informed by a lawyer who was an authority on constitutional questions that a C.C.F. government could carry through its plans to take over companies giving essential service to the public.

1,100 Tire Workers Strike In Kitchener

KITCHENER, August 4—(CP)—An estimated 1,100 employees of the Dominion Tire Factory in Kitchener are on strike to-day. The workers are members of the United Rubber Workers of America (C.I.O.).

Joseph McKenzie of Toronto, district representative of the union, said he has been notified that the Department of Labor will send a conciliator here to-day. Indications are that negotiations will be started within the next 24 hours.

The strike started in the press room on the day shift yesterday and employees of other departments walked out in sympathy.

Prisoner Bags Nears 100,000

ON THE BRITISH FRONT SOUTH OF CAUMONT, Aug. 4 — (AP) — Gen. Montgomery mapped the next phase of battle within sight of the enemy today and in high spirits declared:

"We are hitting the Hun a good crack."

With the Allied bag of German prisoners seized since D-Day approaching the 100,000 mark, Montgomery told the Associated Press that "progress is excellent."

The commander of the Allied ground forces stood in the shade of an apple tree only a few thousand yards from the enemy.

"It is all going very well," he said. "I am very satisfied and delighted with the whole thing."

Then noticing the U.S. war correspondent insignia on my cap, the general said, with his blue eyes sparkling.

"The Americans are going splendidly too. It is excellent, the whole thing. But the question now is, when is the war going to end? Do you chaps know?"

He said this last with a chuckle and made no attempt to make a prediction.

Dr. Bruce, Premier Tangle Again

OTTAWA, August 4 — (CP) — Prime Minister Mackenzie King said today in the Commons that Dr. H. A. Bruce (SC—Toronto Parkdale) violated more rules of the House than any other member.

Dr. Bruce, directing a question to the Prime Minister as to whether he had conversations with Premier Adelard Godbout of Quebec on Family Allowances, attempted to read a press dispatch purporting to show that Mr. Godbout had collaborated with Mr. King on the Legislation.

There were noisy cries of "Order, Order," but Dr. Bruce continued to read until the speaker motioned for him to sit down.

Mr. King in the meantime said that as a matter of fact he had not talked "one word" to Mr. Godbout on the subject.

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, interpted to say there were indications of collaboration on the part of Mr. Kind and Mr. Godbout.

Dr. Bruce attempted again to ask the Prime Minister a question, but he was interrupted by repeated shouts of order.

At this juncture Mr. King accused Dr. Bruce of violation of rules.

Leaves Turkey

LONDON, Aug. 3 — (CP) — The German-controlled Paris radio said today that Laurence Steinhardt, United States Ambassador to Turkey, left Ankara yesterday for the United States.

CAUGHT BY ALLIED BOMBS—Once the pride of the rails, this modern streamlined French locomotive, in peace-time, hauled crack Continental trains. It was used by the Germans during the occupation of France until blasted by Allied bombs in the railway yards at Vaucelles. Canadian Engineers will try to get it running again.

Storm Troopers Battle Royals Dieppe Unit Exacts Vengeance

BY ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS SOUTH OF CAEN, France, Aug. 4 — (CP Cable) — This is the story I have wanted to write for nearly two years—the story of the Royal Regiment of Canada, Toronto, how it came back to France and here on the Caen front avenged the heroic men of the other Royals' battalion who were killed, wounded or taken prisoner on the beach at Puits, a mile east of Dieppe, Aug. 19, 1942.

I went to Dieppe with the Royals and know what fire they faced. They went into the narrow Puits beach 600 strong. Fifty-three of us got back to England. Now the Royals have returned to France and two members of the Regiment who survived Dieppe and won decorations for gallantry are with the unit.

They are Jack Anderson, Toronto, awarded the Military Cross, and Fred Ruggles of Toronto, who won the Military Medal.

There With Them

I was in the same assault craft with them on that beach. Then a Captain, Anderson was wounded in the head by my side. One of the bravest men in the craft full of gallant soldiers was Ruggles who wore the stripe of a Lance Corporal. Anderson returned to France with his majority, Ruggles as Company Sergeant-Major.

The regiment went into the line at Eterville, three miles southwest of Caen, July 12 and for the entire week was shelled and mortared continually.

"It was about the worst seven days this battalion ever put in, for we could not hit back," said Anderson. "But the chance was coming. The battalion was practically all new but everyone knew its Dieppe story and was as anxious as we were to pay off a debt."

Fought All Night.

On the night of July 18 the Royals captured Louvigny Wood and a 17th century chateau, two miles southwest of Caen where the Odon flows into the Orne. All night long the Royals fought in orchards and through woods. Anderson directed the attack and Ruggles was there, too, for his revenge.

Then the Royals went over the Orne and on July 25 shared in the Canadian attack south of Caen against the German line guarding the road to Falaise, 15 miles to the southeast. While the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, another Dieppe regiment, fought its way into Verrieres, five miles south of Caen, the Royals under Anderson's direction got two companies 400 yards beyond the village.

The Germans threw in counterattacks and the enemy tanks milled around the area. A squadron of Canadian tanks commanded by Maj. D'Arcy Marks of Toronto supported the Canadians. The Royals stayed in there until nightfall, when they established themselves on a slope just east of Verrieres where they were well dug in.

SS. Attack.

During the night the Germans came at the Royals. SS. troops, big strapping soldiers accompanied by tanks, they waved potato-masher grenades and other weapons, shouted, screamed and made all the noise they could.

"The Germans thought they could scare us into bolting but the men stuck tight in the trenches and not one of them moved," said Capt. Strothers. "They held their fire until the Germans were right on top of them and then we blasted them with every weapon we had."

Not a single German who got anywhere near the Royals' trenches returned to his lines. Enemy dead littered the grain field before the Canadian foxholes. This attack was beaten off and then another was made with the same wild shouting.

Some Germans bellowed at the Royals "Surrender, Canadian swine," and the Royals shouted back "To hell with you, come and get us."

The Royals drove off this attack also.

The Germans gave up trying to break through the Royals' position and next day, Anderson said, there was "just the usual lull—mortaring and shelling."

Buried Treasure

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 4—(AP).—"Buried treasure"—already amounting to $6,000 and believed to total perhaps $16,000, all in gold and silver coins — has been found in a deserted house, formerly inhabited by two elderly bachelor brothers, it was reported today. Searchers are working from maps left by the now-dead brothers.

Union Workers Given Notices

BRANTFORD, August 4 — ((CP) —Eileen Kilgour, secretary of the United Garment Workers Union (A. F. L.) at the Kitchener Overall and Shirt Company here said to-day that seven-day notice has been given to all female and some male employes of the company who are union members.

Reason for the lay-off was said to be because union members refused to cut material which was to be sent out to non-union factories to be made into garments, Miss Kilgour said.

Bruce Kitchen, plant manager, said certain employees had received notice, but that the matter was "a general understanding" and not a direct disagreement with the union.

The executive of the local branch of the union gave the company permission some time ago to send out work to non-union factories, Miss Kigour said. But union members on hearing of the action, held a meeting and overruled the executive's decision.

Union members have asked Samuel Lapedes, of Toronto, A. F. L. general organizer, to come to Brantford in an effort to settle the dispute.

Instructor, Student Perish In Crash

OTTAWA, August 4 —(CP) — An instructor and a student from No. 2 Service Flying Training School at nearby Uplands were killed and a third airman, FO. Ken Leonard of Ottawa, escaped serious injury when two Harvard training planes collided Thursday near Carp, Ont., about 18 miles west of here.

Leonard was able to land his aircraft after the collision with only a bent propellor. Wreckage of the second plane was found on the farm of A. H. Acres.

Next-of-kin have been notified and the names will be made public shortly.

Napanee Printer Dies Suddenly

NAPANEE, Ont., August 4—(CP) —Stricken with a heart attack this morning Ernest Bland, 52, linotype operator at the Express Printing House for the past two years, died in his hotel room shortly after telephoning his employer that he would be unable to come to work.

Believe Nazis Leaving Finland

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 4 (AP)—Reports from Finland suggested today the Germans may be in the process of evacuating all their troops from that country as a result of Marshal Baron Carl Gustaf Mannerheim's replacement of Risto Ryti as the Finnish president.

Despite Ryti's now-nullified agreement with the Germans not to make a separate peace with Russia, the Nazis were said to have sent the Finns only one infantry division plus a panzer brigade to bolster the active southern front.

This division and a German division long stationed in northern Finland were reported already withdrawn to Estonia.

(A Reuter News Agency dispatch received in London from Stockholm said it was reliably reported that the change in presidents in Finland was preceded by a Finnish-German agreement in Berlin consenting to a separate Finnish peace with Russia and a Nazi promise to evacuate German troops at least from southern Finland.)

Reliable advices said Mannerheim had received advance assurance from Russia that the Kremlin would consider an application for an armistice which would guarantee Finland's independence.

Valuables Left In Clothing Put Gray Hairs On Cleaners

If the men in the cleaning and pressing business could have one wish granted with no questions asked, the chances are they'd sigh, and whisper with their tears dripping into the cleaning fluid...."Please, let all people stop leaving articles in their clothes, when he sends them to the cleaners!"....And when that cleaning man said "articles," what he really meant was pennies, keys, chains, stones, letters, knuckle-dusters, dimes, papers, memos badges covering everything from good-luck charms to Willkie buttons, pipes, nickels, and a trillion other odds-and-ends, that pop out of clothes in a steady stream at the cleaner's store, just around the corner.

In a survey made of most of the city's dry-cleaning and pressing establishments, cleaners reported this scourge to be the main reason why they go gray. Added to this plague of leaving things in clothes, which, incidentally has been going on for generations, is the newer menace, brought along by wartime, and aided by the fact that help is at a premium right now. It works something like this: A man brings his clothes to the cleaners. A day later, when clothes are all wrapped up and sent to the factory, he remembers that important luncheon, club meeting, family reunion, or even a wedding, and calmly proceeds to send cleaners out of this world with his pleas, often mingled with the actions of a semi-neurotic.

Johnson's Cleaners, on Chamberlain street, who have found practially everything from "soup to nuts" in clothes, said the most valuable thing they'd found up to now in clothes, was a wad containing exactly one hundred dollars, that came in recently in a package of woman's clothes. The tidy sum, which was left in the coast, was found by the cleaners, and they kept it is safekeeping for her. They didn't have to hold it long though; immediately the woman discovered her loss, she hurried over to the store, and received her hundred dollars back,.... pronto. Ration books, covering supplies ranging from butter to gas, and from sugar to beer, regularly turn up in the store, and one occasion, a bottle opener sporting a "lucky seven" inscription tumbled out of one coat pocket.

Take Care of Articles

Johnson's explained that when a suit of clothing comes in for treatment, it is given a check-tag, and any articles coming out of the pockets, are given a corresponding number. Therefore, when the suit is returned to the customer, he finds the articles still in the suit, though they have been removed while the cleaning process is in operation.

Burtol Cleaners, on George street, think men have too many pockets, and usually, they're always carrying something in them! Sums up to $100 have been found, and men most consistently leave cigarettes or tobacco in their clothes, they declared.

"It's rather a coincidence for you to be asking me what people leave in their clothes when they send them to the cleaners," laughed G. C. Staples, proprietor of Burtol's Cleaners. "It's funny when you think that I myself left a sum of money in my clothes, when I had them cleaned just recently."

Mr. Staples can't remember anything particularly amusing that he has turned out of pockets, except.... he said, for a few scattered photographs that came in, and some of those, according to Mr. Staples, were definitely on the funny side!

Men Worst Offenders

In the 40 years Dependable Cleaners, Hunter street, have been in the business, J. B. Harris, and Mrs. Harris, have seen just about everything tumble out of clothes. "After seeing articles being taken out of clothes in England, Scotland, and many places in Canada, I've come to the conclusion that people just will never get over this habit, and as long as they send their clothes to be cleaned, we're going to find something in them every time," he said. In order to bear him out, Mrs. Harris brought out an enormous drawer, filled to the limit with articles of every description, left by people in their pants, coats, etc.

Mrs. Harris thinks men are worse offenders than women, but admits if women had more pockets, they might be just as bad. Women, says Mrs. Harris, most often leave paper hankies, ration books, and jewellery in their garments. "Before the war, some of the most beautiful linen handkerchiefs used to show up; now all we see is paper ones!"

Soldiers mostly leave snapshots, date-books, wallets and letters in their pockets, and judging by glimpses of some of the letters, if the cleaners had time to look at them, they would make interesting reading. Mr. Harris found that the money turned in is usually claimed in short order, by the person just remembering where he left it.

"A man from Baillieboro left $85 in his suit coat not long ago, but he got it back in a short time," Mrs. Harris said.

Asked what excuse a man offers when he leaves a suit smeared with lipstick at the cleaners, she said, "Either they pass smoothly over it without saying anything, or they boast of it, and tell you how pretty the wearer was."

Ear-Rings Hidden

Most valuable article left in his store, Mr. Harris thinks, is a pair of genuine diamond ear-rings, craftily hidden in the sleeve of a woman's jacket. Coppers, nickels, dimes, are seen in huge quantities, and it is quite the ordinary day to see wads of $14 and $15 come in. The list of things left in clothes would run into infinity, and include electrict light plugs, dice, emblems, rabbits' feet, teeth, combs, letters, diaries telephone number books, and complete cosmetic sets with lipstick, powder, rouge, nail-files, eye-shadow, and rouge showing up the most, in that order.

Ferguson's Cleaners, Charlotte street, laughingly recall a gold tooth from someone's upper plate, that fell out of a suit coat pocket. The flustered owner, when presented with the tooth, testily insisted he was not the owner, and smiled widely to prove his uppers did not need an additional gold tooth! The dental piece was put away, and it was noticed that the same man came around to claim it soon after. Also in this vein, it is not out of the ordinary for someone to insist, sometimes angrily, that money taken out of his pocket is not his!

If the huge amount of good-luck omens and charms emptied from pockets in the cleaners means anything, it must indicate a good amount of superstitious Peterborough people.

"Ho hum," sighed the girl at Fergusons! "We find everything, and that includes street-car tickets from all over the continent, bank books, matches, rings, watches, keys....and to top it all off....the leave-behind to end all things left behind, once we found a pair of white silk men's shorts, in someone's pants pocket!"

DIED OF WOUNDS—Pte. Fred. Drummond, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Drummond, 153 Park street, is officially reported as having died of wounds in Normandy on June 7, the second day of the invasion. He had previously been reported wounded. Pte. Drummond was one of five brothers who had been enlisted with the Canadian Army. He was with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders when he was hit.

Airman Thanks School Children

Appreciation of the Air Council of Canada has been expressed by Air-Vice-Marshal K. G. Nairn to the boys and girls of all the schools in Peterborough and Victoria counties for their substantial assistance in raising funds for two Hurricane fighter planes.

Letters of congratulation and acknowledgment have been received by the three school inspectors, R. F. Downey, Leo W. Copp and Colin Lees.

Vice-Marshal Nairn comments that recent successes on all fronts permits a retrospect of accomplishments.

"It becomes my pleasant duty to refer now to the splendid contribution by 120,000 children of Canada toward production of fighter and trainer aircraft which have played their considerable part in the favorable developments of the present stage of the conflict.

Will Continue.

"While this plan was originally one of a temporary nature, the response has been more than gratifying to all concerned, and after consideration it has been decided to continue the campaign.

"In this great concerted endeavor by the children of Canada through their purchases of War Savings Stamps, the children of your schools have done their share of thoughtful saving and sacrifice.

"Will you, sir, accept for yourself and express to them on our behalf the high regard and deep appreciation of the Royal Canadian Air Force."

Heavy Nazi Mortar Shelling For 10 Days Fails To Break Spirit Or Beat Stormonts

Their ten worst days in eight weeks of fighting in the forefront of the Normandy invasion occurred for the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders at the little village of Hubert Foolle, in the corridor south of Caen; and so terrible were those days, a war correspondent has written, that even the pipers were silent, an unheard-of thing even in the fiercest fighting up to that time.

The pipes had to be silent, members of the regiment afterwards explained, because days when they played the music of the Glens the men couldn't hear the whine of shells and mortars in time to duck They were dug in like moles, harassed at any hour of the day or night by terrific mixtures of everything the Germans had to throw—heavy shells, moaning minnie mortar bombs and 38-millimetre stuff—and it was important to know when one was coming your way.

It was hard on the pipers, headed by Bob Wishart of Barkerville, B.C., and including such fellows as Bill Dewar of Lancaster, Bordon lair of Smith's Falls, Joe Somerville of Cornwall, Bill Kennedy of Brockville and Bob Webdale of Lindsay. They had played when the regiment entered Caen and in the midst of other serious frays, but not one wailing note did they raise in the din of Hubert Folie. That was a time for silence, and there were even casualties among the instruments. The pipe major lost two sets and one of his musicians another two.

Set Record.

The Highlanders from Peterborough, Kingston, Brockville, Cornwall and the villages and countryside between set a record for themselves during those 10 days of vicious artillery duelling that no regiment since D-Day can surpass. Under the command of a calm, cool former schoolmaster from Kingston of Danish descent, the whole unit was pinned to earth by shells and mortars in showers and spasms, day and night, and men only left their holes for urgent necessity.

Lieut. Reg. Dixon of Peterborough brought forth a cartoon he had drawn under fire, not great art, perhaps, but indeed emphatic and to the point. It showed a Glengarian as a pixie peeping out of hole. He had a long nose, eyes like telescopes and ears like a rabbit's. "Our ears sure stretched, listening, so we could duck in time," it was said.

This was what it was like one night, according to a Glengarian officer. Between 10.30 and 2 a.m. the boys in the slit trenches underwent five serious lacings of from five to ten minutes each. In one such session exactly 70 medium or heavy shells landed in the area by actual count; and on that basis, the two and a half hour period produced a tidy barrage of between 350 and 400 larger shells. Then there was the smaller stuff, and no one even bothered to count that.

Ten Days' Torture.

The boys lived in crowded quarters, two to a hole, and they hardly had their shoes off the whole 10 days. They sat quietly and watched the Germans, who commanded their position from higher ground, moving around and digging. Their only pleasure was seeing the Huns hit the dirt when they fired. It was a long spell in Hades and three of the regiment's ammunition dumps were blown up. And yet the Germans could not blow them out or drive them out. The Glengarians just stayed there.

People of Peterborough and District over in Britain your fellow Empire citizens and kinsfolk are being killed, injured and maimed for life, at a faster rate right at this moment than ever occurred previously in this titanic struggle for the freedom and liberty of mankind, which includes you, and you, and you.

Since the second week of June, close to one millian homes and buildings have been destroyed, among them numerous hopitals of which ten occurred in the past 24 hours, about five thousand people have been killed, and over 14,000 injured.

Surely this means something to people living in this safe part of the Globe, or are we too bent on thinking of our own holidays, to even give it a thought and spare even the price of one first class meal to help them. If everybody in the city of Peterborough on the average gave just one dollar, it would mean over $25,000 something really worth while.

When one considers that great plans are being made to raise about aquarter of a millian dallors for a Memorial Health Centre, a most worthy objective, with every expectation that it will prove a success, the close to $19,000 that has been given during the past three and a half years to help in this life giving and moral uplifting work of assisting those who have been in the front line of attack through air raids, and most recently the robot bomb, is considerably dwarfed.

One can of course say, Oh, but that's for ourselves, which is perfectly true, but where would ourselves or any of the peoples of the world would be at this moment, but for the heroic stand the Britons made in 1940, in not yielding to the upparalleded pressure of bombs from the sky when the British Commonwealth of Nations stood abslutely alone.

The Peterbrough and District British War Victims Fund needs another $565 to complete the next gift of £500 and with such a need as exists at this moment staring one in the face, can any who can afford to help just look on like the Levite of old, and then pass by on the other side. The writers opinion is that given proper thought, the good people of this city and district will surely rise to the opporunity that is theirs.

Personal Help Leads To-day.

Nothing can carry one's own individual sympathy better than a personal gift, to-day's contributions for the mots part being of this type. Mrs. Rufus Payne had provided a considerable amount of goods for a rummage sale that the W. A. of Mark Street United Church held recently, and they in turn gave her a percentage of the receipts, which she in turn handed over to the fund to add to a substantial amount prebiously raised in various efforts on behalf of the fund.

One doesn't have to be in an affluent position to help, as shown by Williaim A. Taylor of Crawford's Grove, who for the third time in the very recent past has given through the medium of sales from his garden, another of these also appearing to-day.

A nice personal gift of $10.00 is listed from "A Friend E. T." while another is recorded from E. Palmer amounting to $2.00 and the penny box at the Utilities Office on Simcoe Street yieilded $3.00 on its bi-monthly collection.

Pte. Drummond Dies Of Wounds In French Fight

Originally reported wounded on June 7, Pte. Fred Robert Drummond, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Drummond, 153 Park street, is now officially reported as having died of wounds on the same day a message from Ottawa received by his parents states.

Pte. Drummond, who was 20 years of age, was a member of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders and was one of five sons of Mr. and Mrs. Drummond to enlist in the Canadian Army.

Apparently he was wounded on the second day of the invasion. The parents were notified to that effect early in June, received another message from Ottawa a few days later that no more details were available, and then have waited all this time with no further word until Wednesday's wire to the effect that he had died on June 7. No explanation has been given as to the delay in reporting Pte. Drummond's death.

The young soldier enlisted with the S. D. and G.'s here in 1940 and went overseas with that unit. He had formerly worked in the C.G.E.

Three other brothers, Thomas, Charles and William, are in the Canadian Army, the first two now serving in France. Another younger brother, Walter, was discharged as being under age, but he is re-enlisting.

Jackie Cooper Facing Charge

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Aug. 4 (AP) —Arthur F. Scherr, St. Joseph County prosecutor, said today affidavits had been filed charging four persons, including Jackie Cooper, 22, of Beverly Hills, Calif., whom he identified as a star in a recent movie called "Where Are Your Children," with contributing to and encouraging the delinquency of minors.

Cooper has been stationed at the University of Notre Dame here as a navy student since last November.

Also charged in the affidavits, which Scheer said grew out of a police investigation of a party at the LaSalle Hotel here the night of July 22, were Pauline Frederic, 19, of South Bend, George Bender, a navy student at Notre Dame, and Olie Lowery, a hotel waiter.

Deputy Prosecutor Leo J. Cook said Juvenile Referee Albert L. Doyle would issue warrants for the arrest of the four defendants, who would be arraigned in juvenile court.

Prosecutor Scherr said Cooper was charged specifically with contributing to the delinquency of a 15-year-old South Bend girl by furnishing her intoxicants and by encouraging her to remain away from home overnight in a room engaged by him at the hotel.

Bentley Likely To Be Out Of NHL Battles

REGINA, Aug. 4 (CP) —Chances that Doug Bentley, star left winger with Chicago Black Hawks, will see action this winter in the National Hockey League were slim to-night in light of an announcement by Mr. Justice P. M. Anderson, chairman of the Saskatchewan Department of Labor Mobilization Board.

He said that no border crossing permits would be issued this year to men in categories eligible for military callup who wished to play hockey in the United States.

Mr. Justice Anderson said today that Bentley, who was granted permission to cross the border last winter because he was engaged in farming, this year would have to take such winter work as the supervisor of Provincial farm labor requirements would allocate to him. "If he is not needed on his farm he will have to go into essential war work"

Bentley, N.H.L. scoring champion in 1942-43, farms 360 acres at Delisle, Sask.

At Edmonton William Carnhill, officer in charge of National Selective Service said that under no circumstances would men be permitted to go to the United States to play hockey—or for any other reason —if their labor was required. "The labor situation is acute enough here without letting available manpower get away from us," he said.

Officals of the Manitoba Mobilization Board in Winnipeg refused comment.

3rd Round Draw Made For President's Cup

The third round draw of the President's Prize Tournament has been made and a number of scratches were necessary due to some players being away on vacation and not being able to complete their match on schedule.

There are still a couple of second round matches outstanding and these players have been allowed an extra day or two in order to complete their game and thus enter the third round.

Bob Abbott is at the top of the bracket and will play the winner of the match between Russ Kitchen and C. S. Cummer; Fred Garner will meet Andy Rutter; C. V. Elliott will play Jim Watson; Dr. Weldon is drawn against W. S. Cowell and Hugh addell will play against Gordon Monroe.

W. B. Butler must complete match against Gordon Whatman as quickly as possible to meet the winner between O. M Steer and F. H. Jobbitt. This match particularly has been held up on account of holidays.

Rev. George Kelly should have an interesting game with Heck Thompson, and Orley Degraw will have to get by Dr. C. C. Cragg in order to fill in the bottom half of the bracket.

Most of the matches this year are moving along very rapidly and it is the intention of the Matching Handicap Committee to have all the tournaments down to the semi-finals or finals early in September.

Stan Payne, last year's champion, continues to swing his way through the opposition towards the final bracket of the Club Championship, although he did stagger noticeably during his effort to eliminate Gordon Whatman on Wednesday night. Whatman at one time had Mr. Payne two down and the match was only settled on the last green where Stan sank a carefully studied 10-foot put to eliminate the new-comer one up.

A sweepstake will be held as usual Saturday afternoon. A good turnout is expected, although some of the boys are planning fishing trips into north country.

Once again may we remind all two-ball foursome players that the C. G. Graham Trophy originally scheduled for Sunday the 6th has been postponed until August 13.

Family Subsidy Bill Hit By One Senator

OTTAWA, Aug. 4 —(CP) —The Government's Family Allowances Bill received general support in a Senate debate Thursday, but was attacked by one member, Senator R. B. Horner, a Progressive Conservative from Saskatchewan.

Senator Horner said the legislation had been brought down by the Government to meet a threat of socialism.

"It is the particular and peculiar duty of the Senate to vote against this measure," he said. "The very thing the Senate was created for was legislaion of this kind."

Senator A. K. Hugeson (L., Quebec), among those supporting the measure, said that while it was true Quebec stood to gain greater benefits than other Provinces, the differences had been exaggerated in unjustifiable attempts to stir up racial prejudice.

Senator A. J. Leger (P. C., New Brunswick) supported the bill. While a high birth date was the most convincing sign of prosperity in a nation, supporters of large families had been financially handicapped by laws restricting the hours of their work, heavy taxe son commodities they had to buy and compulsory school attendance which reduced the earning capacity of children.

Wages could not be adjusted in proportion to the family responsibilities of workers and there was therefore a responsibility on the Government to provide a measure of security. Allowances were not charity, but rather "remuneration for eminent services rendered the State."

Senator A. K. Hugeson said one of the worst features of depressions was the cutting off of incomes in homes where there were children.

"Our people, if they are determined of one thing, are determined that the conditions of the 1930's shall not return," he said. "This measure will at least assure some income for homes where there are children."

Senator Hugessen, said there had been "unjustifialbe attempts to stir up racial prejudice' 'in the discussion on allowances.

Provinces Compared.

Allowances paid in Quebec would amount to some $6,700,000 a month compared with $6,100,000 in Ontario.

The Quebec Senator referred to a speech made on Wednesday night by Premier George Drew of Ontario, referring to the allowances as "baby bonuses" and "an outrageous bribe offered to the people of Quebec immediately before an election."

Senator Hugessen said Col. Drew was "a gallant soldier in the last war, but a man whose gallantry becomes sadly tarnished when he uses dirty references such as those."

Senator Salter Hayden (L., Ontario) suported the Bill as recognition by the State of a definite obligation to children.

"When in wartime we are prepared to vote one billion dollars by way of a gift or mutual aid to assist in the security of the people, I am not terrified by the prospect of $250,000,000 a year," he said.

"It is investing money in the best asset we have—the children of Canada."

Senator L. M. Gouin (L., Quebec) said he supported the Bill because he felt Canadian children were entitled to obtain with the least possible delay relief from inhuman conditions under which many of them were forced to live.

He said he would have preferred to have allowances given under the Provincial systems which were adjustable to meet local conditions, but it was not possible for the Provinces to finance such schemes. He also would have favored smaller reductions than are provided in the Bill for large families.

Debate on the Bill will be continued on Friday (to-day).

At yesterday's sitting the Senate gave third reading, and passed the Bill providing an insurance scheme for veterans, and gave the second reading to the Bill providing for export credit insurance, and a Bill amending the Quebec SavingsBank Act.

All Borrowers To Get Credit

OTTAWA, August 4 —(CP) — Considerable risks will have to be taken in th post-war period in the organization of Canadian economy, Graham Towers, Governor of the Bank of Canada, said Thursday before the Commons Banking Committee.

He was discussing the industrial Development Bank Bill which was under criticism from both Liberal and Progressive Conservative members, partly on the ground that it involved risking taxpayers money in venturesome industrial enterprises.

Proposed bank, Mr. Towers said was intended to fill a gap, which was found in a survey of Canada's exisiting credit facilities. The gap was the lack of opportunity for small businesses to obtain long term capital. It was felt that going into the post-war period the least that could be done was to provide sufficient credit facilities for all types of borrowers.

Mr. Towers, who will be president of the new bank if the bill passes, said generally speaking it was difficult for small businesses to obtain capital, regardless of their soundness. Issues of securities to the public could not be sold if the total was under $500,000.

Great Ignorance About Canada Displayed In U.S.

BY C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4 — (CP) — American newspaper readers are likely to be exposed, in the next months, to a great deal of information on Canada's fast-developing political situation, but it is unlikely many will digest it.

Interest in Canada and Canadians seem to be real and friendly. But knowledge and understanding of Canada and Canadians appears non-existent among the great masses of people.

Next month a large group of American and international correspondents will go from Washington to Montreal for the council meeting of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration.

It is a safe bet that their interest will be fairly divided between U.N.R.R.A. and the significance of the Socialist trend, and the rise of the Bloc Populaire. Also the chances of the two old parties in the forthcoming general election.

Lack of Knowledge

Canada has been given a lot of publicity here in recent years. The people of the United States do not need to be "sold" on Canada. They accept and treat Canadians as well-liked relatives.

But the basses of people, especially those living away from the border centres, know little of how Canadians live and conduct their economy.

They are politely but not deeply interested in such things. Canada is a happy, robust country and, a good place for a holiday. That is all they want to know.

Here are some questions asked of a Canadian reporter by a group of southern delegates returning from the Democratic convention in Chicago on the conventional special

"Do Canadians still use pounds, shillings and pence? Why don't you Canadians ask England to let you thrown in your lot with the United States? Isn't it true that the bulk of your taxes are paid directly into the British treasury?"

Later the reporter related the incident to a fairly high government offical here. "Well," he commented, poker-faced, "those are all good questions. What are the answers?"

Old Time Fanfare.

Campaign pre-war style: Contrary to all forecasts the Republican Presidentiial candidate, Thomas E. Dewey, is off on election business wit ha special train ,carloaods of reporters and all the pre-war setup, with the blessings of the office of defence transportation. He will have the advantage over President Roosevelt unless the Security Control over the President's movements is lifted. L. D. R. travels plenty but without publicity.

Out of the frying pan, etc. One branch of Government administration has licked the rubber shortage created by Japanese conquest of the southern Pacific production areas. There now is plenty of raw rubber for all essential needs but tire allotments are being halved and thous ands of vitally needed trucks are standing idle. Their number is increasing daily. There is ample raw rubber but a desperate shortage of manpower to fabricate it.

Need Protection Noordwyn Warns

MONTREAL, Aug. 4.—(CP).—R. B. C. Noorduyn of Montreal, president of Air Industries and Transport Association, has submitted a memorandum to the Dominion Government outlining the attitude of the association toward post-war customs and duties, it was announced today.

The memorandum said that "terms of the Atlantic Charter are interpreted in some quarters as inductive of a new type of national economy for Canada, based upon or approaching the principle of international free trade," and added;

"It is difficult to conceive that protection against the products of countries with low standards of income and living could be considered unnecessary.

"Whatever policy Canada may follow in the matter, whether in principle or in detail, any decision as to such policy should be coupled with the clear realization that there will be enterprises in Canada, essential to the existence of an integrated national aircraft industry, which will not be able to survive foreign competition, even from countries with high wage and living standards, unless subsidized or otherwise protected to an extent which provides compensation for the higher costs of Canadian production."

The brief submitted six recommendations in connection with preferential tariffs, duties and taxes.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

CARDS OPPOSITE CARDS

ONE PRINCIPLE of card valuation which is not very well understood by the average player is the promotional value of one high card opposite another one. If you know your partner has a fair hand, from the fact that he opened the bidding, you can safely assign a greater trick-taking value than otherwise to each honor you possess. For instance, a queen becomes a top card if your partner has an ace-king, or can turn a king of his into a certain winner.

North: ♠ Q 10 9; ♥ Q 6 2; ♦ Q 6 5 4; ♣ 8 4 2

South: ♠ A K J 7 6; ♥ A K 7 4; ♦ 10 9 3; ♣ 7

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	2 ♣
2 ♥	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♠

North did right to pass that, as his two previous bids were scund only because of the promotional principle whereby high cards become more powerful when opposite other high cards. All three of his queens proved to be trick takers.

West led the club A and then the Q, South rufing with the spade 6. The diamond 10 was sent thrcugh to the J, and another club was trumped by the spade 7. The diamond 9 was next dispatched to the A, and the heart 10 rcturned to the A. Now the diamond 3 was won by the K and the heart J returned to the K.

Followed quickly the spade A, K and the J overtaken by the Q. That was the first of a sexies of three winning queens, as the heart and diamond ladies were now good, too, and scored the last two tricks.

South: ♠ K 3; ♥ A Q J 10 9; ♦ A 10 9 3; ♣ A J

How would you bid the South hand of this deal if you were in a tournament and straining for a top score, better than others would be likely to make?

Nazi Generals Facing Serious Problem

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE,
Associated Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, August 4—(AP)—German commanders are "scratching their heads"— as a senior Canadian staff officer said— to-day over a problem that is not merely critical but acute:

What will they do or try to do with their armored divisions in Normandy.

Yesterday the milled about with armor south of the British-Canadian sector of the front. Rocket-firing typhoons laid steel whips on their tanks— apparently uncertain just where to attempt to go. This attack destroyed 18 enemy tanks, heavily damaged 19 more, destroyed 50 other vehicles and damage 76 more.

Here is the enemy's position.

All the forces he has in the American sector have not been able to stop or seriously impede the 1st Army's columns.

At the centre, the British 2nd Army still is bludgeoning its way through his defences.

Here, on the Allied left, he has been confronting the Canadians with two elite armoured units — the Adolf Hitler and Hitler youth panzer divisions, along with several other divisions.

By using the relatively great froce he has thus far been able to prevent a deep Canadian break-through to the valleys south of Caen and thus across his lateral communications to Germany— penetration of which, if made in strength, would result in final disaster for his campaign in the whole Western France.

Now, he asks himself, can he move his heavy armor from this sector.

And, although up till this morning's attack, there had been no net gain by the Canadians on this front where action has been focussed about Tilly La Campaigne for several days, German forces in this sector already have their hands full.

Hitler Says Army Now Truly Nazi

LONDON, Aug. 4—(CP)—Adolf Hitler's own newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, was quoted in a Berlin news broadcast today as declaring the German army is "a Nazi army and will be run by Nazi laws."

The paper, commenting upon recent events in Germany, said they "marked the transformation of the old army of the last war into the new Nazi army of today" and added: "It is only obvious that in this war the army must be truly National Socialist."

OTTAWA, Aug. 4—(AP)—James Muir, 73, editor of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics publications and a former managing editor of the Ottawa Journal, died last night after a short illness.

Born and educated in Scotland, he started a newspaper career in London, England, and came to Canada in 1902 to write a series of articles on lumbering. He remained in the Dominion and worked on Toronto and Montreal newspapers before coming to Ottawa in 1904. For a time he operated a newspaper at Almonte, Ont., and then returned to Ottawa as a member of the parliamentary press gallery. He joined the Bureau of Statistics staff in 1931.

Court Quashes Garage By-laws

TORONTO, Aug. 4 — (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal today quashed a bylaw of the city of Kitchener limiting hours of operation for auto repair shops, including service stations and garages. The action came on a motion by H. L. Daulfman, representing the Automobile Supply Co. of Kitchener.

Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, who heard the motion, ruled out the bylaw because it attempted to regulate wholesale as well as retail hours, for which there was no authority, and because it provided that emergency work could be done in closed hours under a certificate from a senior police officer.

British Extend Summer Time To Sept. 17

LONDON, Aug. 4—(CP)—Herbert Morrison, Minister of Home Security, today announced British double summer time would be extended from Aug. 13 to Sept. 17.

At the same time he doused recently-aroused hopes of Britons that the blackout might be ended by telling the House of Commons that such a change would "not be desirable at the present time."

Mr. Morrison reaffirmed that the restrictions on travel overseas could not be withdrawn without prejudice to the military operations, but said he was prepared to consider applications from wives of persons permanently stationed overseas and persons returning to their homes within the Empire or Allied countries.

RED UNITS ENTER PRE-WAR GERMANY

1,100 Planes Thunder Into Germany

Widespread Damage Left In Wake At 3 Large Cities

LONDON, Aug. 5 —(AP)—More than 1,100 Liberators and Flying Fortresses thundered into Germany today, attacking numerous targets in Dollbergen, Hanover and Brunswick, and striking at Germain oil refineries and aircraft industry.

Another great day of Allied aerial assault in excellent weather appeared in progress against Hitler's Europe.

Yesterday Italy-based Lightnings of the U.S. 15th Air Force, escorted by Mustangs, shot up communications in Romania and landed on Soviet bases, an eastern U.S. Air Force announcement broadcast by Moscow said.

Weather was good for the attack on Germany, the U.S. strategic air forces said, and bombing was visual.

The aerial activity began with a devastating moonlight attack by U.S. 9th Air Force Marauders on ammunition and fuel dumps in De Sille Forest 30 miles east of Laval that left the depots swirling in flames.

In the smash against Germany and France yesterday the Allies flew 4,000 sorties, downed 50 enemy planes in the air and destroyed a number on the ground. Allied losses were 19 bombers and 22 fighters.

Escorted heavy bombers struck yesterday at targets throughout France and Germany. They smashed airfields at Lille and Achiet, the railway bridge at Etaples, a coastal battery in the Pas-de-Calais, and oil depots at Pauillac and Bec d'Ambres near Bordeaux.

Medium bombers cascaded exploves on railway yards at Montfort and Beauvais, a railway embankment at Pernon, and a concentration of troops south of Aunay. Light bombers blew up an ammunition train near Bordeaux and hit rail targets.

Also under attack were an oil dump at Angers, Seine barges, the Amiens airfield, and locomotives and motor transport in northern France.

Allies Land On Adriatic Isles

ROME, Aug. 5 (AP)—Allied forces landed on the islands of Korcula and Orebic near the eastern shores of the Adriatic Aug. 2, attacked enemy craft, inflicted casualties on the enemy garrison and withdrew without loss, it was officially disclosed today.

R.A.F. Spitfires provided a constant cover for the landing on the Dalmatian island of Korcula by British units supported by British naval forces.

The planes knocked out German gun positions on each side of the Peljesacki Channel and strafed enemy troop concentrations.

"The pilots watched the disembarkation proceed without interruption, then saw our artillery score hits on enemy ammunition and supplies," the R.A.F. announcement said.

"Their reports confirm that the raid was very successful and achieved complete surprise."

It was not possible immediately to locate Orebic, which was mentioned only in the communique, and was not listed in any available atlas.

Must Capture Robot Bases To Curb Weapons

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Hitler's robot bomb, which is pouring so much death and destruction into London, presents a major problem the solution of which seems to depend on the speed with which the western Allies are able to develop their drive toward Paris and Berlin.

There are two apparent ways in which this devlish weapon can be eliminated. One is to destroy the launching platforms—and intensive bombing thus far has failed to turn this trick. The other is to compel the Germans to retreat from the Pas-de-Calais coast opposite England so far that they will be outside the effective radius of the robot, which is about 150 miles.

That brings us back to the swift-developing battle of France. When the Allies start to sweep east and northeast from Normandy, they will outflank the Nazi coastal forces that are operating the flying bombs. This should cause the Germans to withdraw. Indeed it won't be surprising to see them heading for their inner defences behind the Maginot and Siegfried Lines before long, the way their fighting machine is cracking up.

Elimination of the robot bomb thus becomes one of the prime reasons for speed in the Allied offensive—a speed likely to accelerate rapidly now that the Allies have broken out of the Normandy peninsula. This fresh bombardment of civilian London can't be brushed aside lightly with the truism that "the British can take it."

Certainly the British can take it, and the German's can't help their cause by such tactics. Actually Hitler's new weapon is only making it certain that he and his gang will pay after the war. However, it would be foolish not to recognize the terrible strain which Britain is enduring.

EXTRA!

MADRID—French factory workers in the "red belt," Communist sector around Paris, have begun open guerrilla warfare against German occupation forces, information reaching here from the French capital said today.

LONDON—More than 100 R.A.F. Lancaster bombers plastered the submarine pens at Brest today to prevent the Germans from pulling their U-boats out of the port threatened by the American advance.

KANDY, Ceylon—In a swift follow-up to the capture of Myitkyina after a three-months siege, Chinese troops have crossed the Irrawaddy River and taken two-thirds of Waingmaw, while Kachin Levies east of the river thrust into the Maingna area, headquarters announced today.

British Take Suburbs Of Florence

Germans Intend To Defend Historical City

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Aug. 5—(AP)—British 8th Army troops have completed occupation of the suburbs of Florence south of the Arno river and, bearing down along a 25-mile sector, are pressing the enemy back against the stream on both sides of the city, Allied headquarters said today.

General Alexander's command announced "although the enemy proclaimed that he regards Florence as an open city, he has seen fit to use it for his military traffic, and when outfought south of the city has blown up all the bridges except the historic Ponte Vecchio. His paratroops, however, are posted along the northern bank of the Arno within the city limits."

There were no reports today indicating actual fighting within the portions of Florence reached by 8th Army units, but an Allied spokesman said "It is clear the enemy intends to oppose the crossing of the Arno on both sides of the city which remain in no man's land."

All along the south side of the Arno, British, Indian, New Zealand and South African forces crushed the Nazis back and threatened to cut the weakening defenders into small formations.

Little Destruction

A front dispatch from Doug How Canadian Press war corrrespondent, said last night there were few signs of destruction in the city, but—in contrast to the Allied entrance into Rome—little civilian rejoicing at liberation, probably because skirmishing was going on nearby.

He said the walls of Florence were liberally marked with "Vivas" for Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and Gen. Alexander.

Two and a half miles east of Florence, a British division punched through Bango A Ripoli to within 1,000 yards of the Arno's banks, while the enemy still held high ground to the east.

Advance elements pressing down into Florence were reported engaged by the enemy in a brief delaying action, reminiscent of the flurry of fighting on the outskirts of Rome, which the Nazis found necessary in order to gain time to extricate their main forces from the city.

It was suggested the Germans possibly spared Ponte Vecchio because it is unsuitable for wheeled traffic.

RCAF Squadrons Out In Force

WITH THE CANADIAN BOMBER GROUP IN ENGLAND, Aug. 5 — (CP Cable) — The Canadian bomber group unleashed all its squadrons Friday in a 200-bomber raid on an enemy supply depot near Paris while Canadian fighters flying from French airfields were credited with new victories.

Today's bomber assault was the second major attack by this group in two days and was made through heavy anti-aircraft opposition, but no fighters came up to challenge the Canadians, who reported their bombs set off large explosions followed by volumes of smoke.

The R.C.A.F. also reported that 20 ME-109's flying low about 55 miles southeast of Caen were surprised last night by a flight of the Canadian Wolf Squadron led by Flt.-Lt. Doug Lindsay of Arnprior, Ont. Protected by his No. 2, F.O G. R. Weber of Killarney, Man., Lindsay attacked, damaging one enemy plane and shooting down another for his seventh confirmed victory.

Squadron commanders who led the airmen were Wing Cmdr. Frank Watkins, Winnipeg, of the Bluenose Squadron; A. J. Lewington, Oshawa Ont., of the Porcupine; R. A. McLernon, Montreal, of the Goose; C. W. Burgess Port Credit, Ont., of the Thunderbird, and L. H. Lecomte Actonvale, Que., of the Alouette.

Other Canadians on the raid included F.O. Bob Solmond, Toronto; PO. Bill Bonar, Sedgwick, Alta.; Flt. Lieut. Don Hall, St. Lambert, Que.; F.O. John O'Brien, Toronto; Sgt. Rene Davis, Montreal; Sqdn. Ldrs. D. C. Hagerman, Saskatoon; J. S. Stewart, Montreal; J. C. Hull, Ottawa; W. C. Venezan, Smiths Falls, Ont.; M. Bryson, Barrie, Ont.; M. W. Petit, Toronto, and F. C Kruger, Reston, Man.

SILVER JUBILEE—The Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada, celebrates his 25th anniversary as Leader of the Liberal Party, on Monday; it was on August 7, 1919, that he was chosen to succeed Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in whose Cabinet he had served as Minister of Labor, 1909-11. During his quarter-century as a leader, Mr. King has been in power for almost eighteen years, a record exceeded only by Sir John A. Macdonald among Canadian statesmen. Mr. King will be 70 in December.

Settlement of Tram Strike Likely Soon in Montreal

MONTREAL, Aug. 5—(CP).—Orders issued by the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees (C.C.L.) to employees of the Montreal Tramways Company not to make week-end engagements without first consulting the strike committee left Montrealers with some hope today that a settlement of the two-day old tram strike might be expected shortly.

The order, issued last night to workers, suggested that they listen carefully to the radio for any announcement from the union.

Asked if these requests might indicate the strike might soon be over, Paul Emile Marquette, regional organizer of the Canadian Congress of Labor, would not comment but said there were "sound reasons" to issue the orders to workers.

This morning, Montreal citizens set out to work afoot, and in the emergency transportation provided by large industrial and war plants for their employees. The majority of Montrealers now are accepting the lack of tram and buses in good spirit while motorists are more than willing to share their cars with pedestrians.

Yetserday, a delegation representing the city of Montreal and various organizations conferred with Labor Minister Mitchell and Justice Minister St. Laurent at Ottawa but there was no announcement following the session. J. Omer Asselin, chairman of the Montreal executive committee, who headed the delegation, said afterward: "Within a short time, certain things might happen."

The union issued two statements yesterday, one calling on Montrealers to "write, telegraph or telephone" the Labor Minister to urge him to decide the question by getting a legal ruling on a union shop clause in a collective bargaining agreement.

The second said that Mr. Mitchell carried a card in the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (A.F.L.) and that his own union had enjoyed closed shop conditions in the building trades since before 1900. However, Mr. Mitchell denied this at Ottawa, saying: "The card I carry is in the International Brotherhood of Operating Engineers (A.F.L.)."

Major Enemy Retreat Likely Soon

Normandy Forces In Confusion Before Canadians

BY GLADWIN HILL
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 5 - - (AP) — British 2nd Army forces, knocking loose the key-stones of German defences west of the Orne River after battering at them for six days, have advanced several miles on their eight-mile front and swarmed into evacuated Villers Bocage and captured Esquay, Evrecy and Hills 112 and 113—all points that Germans have defended fiercely for weeks.

As the British success—which included capture of at least 15 towns and villages—sent the Germans into general withdrawal from the whole Orne-Odon valley southwest of Caen, American troops swarmed over half the Breton peninsula today, thrusting nearly to the port of Nantes at its base and advancing to within 85 miles of Brest at its extremity.

The thrust by the 2nd Army was bringing closer a possible major German retreat to the Seine River 70 miles to the east and the opening of the way to Paris.

Giving up 50 square miles of territory in a five-mile retreat, the Germans south of the Canadian sector east of the Orne were declared in a front dispatch to be moving their forces back and forth in great confusion.

The fall of Villers-Bocage left the Nazis with the choice of either pulling out or running the risk of having their forces trapped in a V-shaped wedge between the Odon and Orne Rivers extending from Evrecy north-eastward toward Caen.

The Supreme Headquarters communique confirmed that the unslackening American 1st Army tank-infantry force driivng west on the Breton Peninsula had reached Loudeac, 85 miles from the great port of Brest at the peninsula's end.

(The Germans told of a penetration to Pontivy, 10 miles farther.)

The American columns driving south of Rennes on two roughly parallel roads to Nantes reached Derval and Chateaubriant, 30 and 33 miles above Nantes respectively.

These American troops also threatened the U-boat base of St. Nazaire, west of Nantes, from near Derval and Chateaubriant, 38 and 40 miles away.

Quebec Election Next Tuesday

MONTREAL, Aug. 5 — (CP) — Voters of Quebec will have a variety of party designations facing them when they cast their ballots in general provincial elections next Tuesday, but only three parties have sufficient candidates entered to form a government and Federal matters have vied with provincial interests in the campaign speeches of all three.

The Liberal government of Premier Godbout has attempted to confine discussions to provincial topics but has stepped into the Federal field on occasion to answer changes of their main opponents—the Union Nationale of former Premier Maurice Duplessis and the Bloc Populaire, headed by 32-year-old Andre Laurendeau.

The Liberals have made their appeal largely on the basis of their record during the last five years.

Premier Godbout lists "a regained Provincial financial autonomy," budgetary surpluses, a provincial hydro, abolition of tolls on provincial bridges, compulsory education and free school-books, reduced electricity rates and new social and labor legislation as parts of the record of his administration.

On the attack, the Premier has described the Union Nationale and Bloc Populaire policies as disruptive anti-Canadian." The Union Nationale he has described as "bunglers whose records and past performances are already too well known" while the Bloc Populaire has drawn his fire as composed of "theorists whose policies and records are not known at all."

Mr. Duplessis has claimed that a Union Nationale government would better protect the provincial rights

Refutes Article Carried By Toronto Paper

OTTAWA, Aug. 5—(CP).—Pensions Minister Mackenzie said in a prepared statement issued last night that a special Ottawa dispatch appearing in yesterday's issue of the Toronto Globe and Mail and subsequently picked up and carried by The Canadian Press was based on an untrue statement and was inaccurate.

(The article said failure of Mr. Mackenzie's department to discharge its duties in providing adequate hospitalization for war casualties extends also to the Soldier Civil Rehabilitation program and that the services had appointed their own rehabilitation branches as a result of dissatisfaction.)

"The article is founded in the untrue statement that the defence departments have 'created their own rehabilitation branches'," said Mr. Mackenzie. "The departments of National Defence have appointed advisers on demobilization. Demobilization has to do entirely with members of the forces before discharge. Rehabilitation has to do with members of the forces after discharge. The two matters are quite separate and distinct."

Aid To 133.

The Minister said that while the article referred to special rehabilitation branches of the forces placing men those branches actually had no responsibility to discharged personnel.

"The facts are that out of approximately 150,000 members of the forces discharged the Department of Pensions and National Health has individual records of 134,020 placements in employment effected by the rehabilitation branch in collaboration with the National Employment Service," he continued.

In June 5,356 men were discharged from the Army and at the end of that month the number of discharged men of all three services unplaced was 2,937. Out-of-work benefits were being paid to only 133.

"With regard to hospitalization the Globe and Mail article is even more inaccurate," Mr. Mackenzie said. "For more than two years past all new hospital construction projects have been dealt with by the Wartime Hospitalization committee, an interdepartmental organization consisting of the directors of medical services of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Pensions Department.

Virulent Attack

"With its strong predominance of serivce personnel the committee is well staffed to anticipate future requirements. The hospital problem has been treated as one by all four departments and there has been the closest co-operation. No patient has been turned down for lack of accomodation. In the hospitals of my own department we have several thousand vacant beds and new beds coming into service every month."

Mr. MacKenzie said the article was an unjustified attack on the Departmental staff, almost all of whom were veterans of the First Great War.

"I would remind those who have read the Globe and Mail article, which was picked up and distributed all across Canada by The Canadian Press, that the Globe and Mail has been engaged for the past year in a virulent political campaign against the present government," he said.

"I have shown that its statements

Cross Border At Virbolis Into Prussia

Speeding Russians Hurdle 2 Rivers Move 20 Miles Daily

By LEWIS HAWKINS
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 5 —(AP)— The Russians have carried the ground war to German soil for the first time since theconflict started by penetrating the northeastern part of East Prussia, Berlin reports indicated today, and Moscow dispatches said "fires are raging in East Prussian towns which now are objectives of Red Army infantry attacks."

The German high command communique said there was fighting in the "Sudauen-Schaken district." Sadauen is the old name for the eastern part of East Prussia between the rivers Inster and Angerapp and the Masurian lakes.

While the battle for Warsaw raged on the Red Army flung strong cavalry forces across two water barriers in a smashing drive to within 30 miles of Krakow, the last big city stronghold of the Germans barring invasion of German Silesia.

Towns Burning

A Transocean broadcast from Berlin said "heavy fighting is going on against Soviet formations which have broken through on the East Prussian border north of Wirballen (Virbalis)."

Virbalis is a frontier post about a mile from the East Prussia frontier. The village itself is two or three miles from the station on the main railway between Kaunas, former capital of Lithuania, and Konigsberg, largest city of East Prussia. It is in this area that the Russians have been reported shelling East Prussian territory for several days.

"Smoke floats over German lands and we can smell things burning," said a Pravda eyewitness report published in Moscow which told of burning East Prussian towns.

Tarnow Menaced

Tarnow, a junction of four rail lines 45 miles east of Krakow, was outflanked seriously by the Russian advances.

The Germans, frantically determined to turn Krakow ino a defensive hedghog position, rushed re-

Railway Smash Kills 46 In U.S.

STOCKHOLM, Ga., Aug. 5 —(AP)— A west bound Atlantic coast line passenger train crashed into the locomotive of a by-passed freight on a siding near here early to-day, killing at least 46 persons, mostly railway laborers going home for the week-end to Alabama.

H. L. Tomlinson, station agent for the railroad, said at least 46 bodies had been found. Nearly all the dead, he said, were negroes, members of a work gang which had been at Doctortown, Pa. Toflison said more bodies were in the wreckage, but he could not estimate the number. An undetermined number were injured.

Turner Rockwell, managing editor of the Valdosta Times, who reached the scene shortly after the crash, said two passenger cars were demolished and two others damaged.

Rockwell said an apparent rail failure hurled the passenger train into the freight as it passed the siding. The passenger cars struck the engine of the freight, one splitting lengthwise. It was in the car that most of the dead were found, Rockwell said.

New Allied Force Aids Tito

British And Canadian Pilots On New Job

BALKAN AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, July 15 — (Delayed) — (AP).—A new Allied air force has been formed for the purpose of supporting Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Partisans and other resistance elements in the Balkans, and has begun operations from bases in Yugoslavia, Italy and Africa.

This dispatch apparently was delayed by censorship until today for security reasons.

The new force is largely made up of R.A.F. and U.S.A.A.F. units included in the R.A.F. squadrons are R.C.A.F. pilots and technicians some of whom previously were based in Italy and operating against German positions in Yugoslavia.

The new Balkan Air Force also includes Italian, Polish and Greek Squadrons. Yugoslav airmen will join it later.

The principal bases will be in Italy, but the force will make use of a number of landing strips in the partisan-held sections of Yugoslavia. The Balkan Air Force is part of Lt.-Gen. Ira C. Eaker's Mediterranean Allied Air Force, and function with the same status as the U.S. 1st and 12th Air Forces.

18,000 Harvesters Needed

Wages Range From $4 To $6 a Day

By GEORGE FINLAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG, Aug. 5 (CP)—Wanted: 18,000 harvesters for prairie wheatlands at wages ranging from $4 to $6 a day.

The most acute harvest-labor shortage since the war, with prospect of a 500,000,000 bushel wheat crop, has brought appeals from government agents throughout the prairies for workers.

Manitoba requires 4,000; Saskatchewan 10,000 and Alberta 4,000.

Labor Minister Mitchell is "confident we will get the crop off in Western Canada this year," but menawhile the problem is "a headache" for prairie authorities.

"At the moment the question of where the workers will come from is obscure," said James McNair, director, Dominion-Provincial Farm Help Service, in Winnipeg fields.

Military authorities are expected to grant farm leave to 4,000 men while an equal number of workers may come from Ontario, but none will be permitted to leave late crop districts. American harvesters may be brought in from the Dakotas.

More than 800 Indians are expected to come from Northern Manitoba,

Retail Stores To Start 48-Hour Week

TORONTO, August 5 —The Ontario Labor Relations Board has ruled as the result of a conference July 26 that the standard working week for employees in the hotel industry, restaurant industry and in retail stores shall be 48 hours, beginning Sept. 1, Labour Minister Charles Laley announced yesterday.

In the hotel industry the maximum work week is exclusive of meal-time periods, and overtime hours of work are permitted as required, subject to agreement between employers and employees, "as long as the present labor crisis exists and the demands of war remain acute."

In retail stores, beginning Sept 1, under the 48-hour week, "daily working hours may be arranged by an employer with his employees to exceed eight hours on a specifed day or days .... but the remaining day or days of the work week shall be reduced by the number of hours worked in excess of eight in any day or days of the work week shall be reduced by the number of hours worked in excess of eight in any day or days" so that an employee shall not work more than 48-hour a week. Overtime is not to exceed 120 hours during the calendar year.

The board met members of the Canadian Restaurant Association Aug. 1 and has ruled that as well as working the standard 48-hour week, restaurant employees must be on the premises nine hours where meals are served to them. In view of the present labor crisis, overtime work is permitted "in ratio per calendar year of 10 0hours for theperiod from Sept. 1, 1944, to Dec. 1, 1944," this extension of overtime to be reviewed by the board before the end of the year. All rulings are based, the Minister said, on mutual consent of all parties concerned.

Act Not Suspended

Labor Minister Daley in announcing the rulings, stated that the Hours of Work and Vacations With Pay Act, passed at the last session of the Legislation, "has not been suspended either as to hours of work or vacations.

"Had the labor situation and the demands for war materials remained as they were when the act was enacted," he said, "it would have been very simple to have it put in effect, but as you know, the demands for war materials became greater, the labor shortage became more acute and so it became necessary for the Industry and Labor Board who are charged with the responsibility of administering this act to give every consideration in the powers they have to administer this act with common sense, having regard for the successful prosecution of the war.

"Therefore," Mr. Daley continued, "on representations from the Department of Munitions at Ottawa it was felt that, in priority war industries considered essential to the full maintenance of the war effort the act should be delayed as to working hours only, not with any intention of changing the 48 hours, but simply permitting a greater amount of overtime or allowing a continuance of hours already established at the prevailing rates of pay for overtime as already set up in most cases by agreements."

No Definite Dates Fixed

Postponements granted are not for any definite date, he said, but only while labor supply is short and war demands acute. The board had met representatives from almost every type of industry in Ontario and of most unions, Mr. Daley pointed out, "and in nearly every case where changes were made, it was by agreement between industry and labor. No request has been made and no suspension of the holiday with pay section of the act has been ordered." Every person continuously employed by the same employer for a year prior to July 1, he maintained, is entitled to receive a week's holidays, based on 2 per cent. of total earnings, the date to be set by the employer and, wherever possible by agreement with employees .

Dewey Optimistic Predicts Victory

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 5 — (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, calling the "problem of friction between local and Federal Governments" solved so far as the Republican Party is concerned, predicted last night his own election to the Presidency in November, "regardless of the war news."

Winding up a series of political conferences after a two-day meeting with other the Republican Governors, the Republican nominee told a news conference a complete unity of thinking had been achieved as between 26 points of views represented by the heads of the State Governments who were present.

"My experience has shown that if you render an important service in government, the people respond," Mr. Dewey said. "This has been a precedent-making event in the service of this country.

A reporter asked if Mr. Dewey thought news of the Allied advances in the European war thetre would benefit Republican chances in November.

"I am convinced that the Republican Party will win, regardless of the war news," Mr. Dewey replied. "I am exceedingly happy at the news of satisfactory military progress."

Jap Troops Flee Hundreds Die

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN SOUTH-WEST PACIFIC, August 5 (Saturday), — (AP). — The Japanese are withdrawing from all their strongpoints in the Geelvink Bay area of Netherlands New Guinea, Headquarters announced today.

The Japanese apparently are trying to evacuate the Manokwari and Nabire areas and are in full retreat, a communique said.

Manokwari is on the coast about 50 miles west of American-held Noemfoor Island. Nabire is one of its flank bases.

The effectiveness of the Japanese 2nd Army, defending Netherlands New Guinea, is approaching its end. "Its losses," Headquarters added, "at best cannot fail to be calamitious."

Several hundred miles eastward in British New Guinea, no new attacks by trapped elements of the 18th Army have been reported. American forces were exploring to the south and east of the Aitape area.

The Japanese made four suicidal attacks Wednesday in a fruitless attempt to break out of this trap, assaulting the left flank of stout American lines along the Driniumor River, 17 miles east of Aitape.

Nine parked planes were destroyed during an aerial strike on Amboina, Wednetsday. The next day, Allied aircraft bombed Woleai and Yap in the Western Carolines with 24 tons of explosives.

which he says the Dodbout government has surrendered to Ottawa.

"The Liberal government has made the Quebec government a simple agency of the federal government," he claims, adding that "the Godbout government which was supposed to be the fortress of our rights has become a cemetery where they are buried." The Union Nationale, he said "is the only party which can restore the essential rights and privileges of the province."

As one thing planned if the Union Nationale is returned, Mr. Duplessis has mentioned formation of a provincial radio network "where we can speak in our own language as long as we wish." He has also referred, without amplification, to "an end to the trust of newspapers in this province."

Attacks Liberals

The Bloc Populaire has attacked Liberals along somewhat similar lines, claiming that the Liberal regime "wants to denaturalize French-Canadians through centralizing everything in the hands of the federal government."

Mr. Laurendeau, who has promised protection of family life and traditions if elected, has told political audiences that "we have no hatred towards anyone; but we have two great enemies—imperialism which gave us two wars within 25 years and economic dictatorship which gave us a crisis between two wars."

He has claimed also that Canada couldn't find money to relieve unemployment before the war "but found billions to kill and to give to England, a country richer than ours."

The C.C.F.—with 24 candidates, the largest of the smaller groups in the provincial field—has campaigned on a program of public ownership of public utilities and natural resources, public ownership of breweries and distilleries under the Quebec Liquor Commission, private farm ownership, farm credits, and economic and social security for workers.

RIDING DE LUXE

Peterborough citizens taking their afternoon constitutional up George street wondered if they were seeing things Friday afternoon, when a Packard sedan whisked by with a plump pony nonchalantly standing in the back seat, with her head out the window, enjoying the ozone. An intrepid Lakefielder, bringing his pony in to Peterborough, had hit upon this novel method of transportation de luxe. This no doubt, is the new, streamlined, "pony express."—C.N.

Top Grade Eggs Up Receipts Are Light

TORONTO, August 5—Continued light receipts, coupled with a good demand, again lifted prices for top-grade eggs on the Toronto produce market yesterday. Movement of the lower grade egg receipts continues to drag, but even in this section there was an increase of a cent a dozen yesterday in the price quoted to th retail trade on "B" grade.

Prices to shippers were increased to 39 cents for 'A" large, 37 cents for medium and 29 cents for pullets. To the retail trade, "A" large were quoted at .2, medium at 41 and pullets at 33 cents. Out-of-town movement has been light, with small shipments to Nova Scotia and Newfoundland.

There was no change on the butter market, prices for Ontario solids holding at 33¾ cents for No. 1. Offerings were again light. Odd car of Western butter was sold at 34¼ cents. General offering price was 34⅜ to 34½ cents, but no sales were reported at this figure.

Robot Casualties Continue To Mount

LONDON, Aug. 5—(CP)—More of the German's flying bombs reached Southern England and London in daylight today, after two relatively quiet nights.

Two robots caused damage and casualties in residential areas last night. Five persons were killed when a direct hit demolished a sub post office and two adjoining cottages.

In one district a fire watcher, alarmed at the nearness of an approaching robot, dived into the river. When he came up the bomb had exploded.

Last night's casualties fell far short of those from Wednesday night's record barage. A clear night sky enabled defenders to spot the bombs before they got far inland.

Long lines formed in London's stations last night as bank holiday crowds sought trains to take them to safer spots. The robot attack in daylight yesterday sputtered to its lowest point since eight weeks ago.

Military reports indicated the Russies advance through the valley of the Upper Vistula, which reached the dizzy pace of more than 20 miles a day this week, was bound to slow down at the outer defences of Krakow, but Red Army generals were expected to have the city under siege soon.

Pound Warsaw Gates

Rokossovsky's forces still pounded at the eastern gates of Warsaw. It was believed in Moscow that his position there has bettered in the last 24 hours, despite stubborn German resistance and heavy counter-attacks with strong forces of tanks which struck from the north and north-east.

No sensational advances were reported from points three miles from the East Prussia border, where the Russians were shelling the enemy on his own territory.

Marshal Ivan Cherniakhovsky apparently was spreading out over a huge area and massing large numbers of troops—in fact an entire army—for the assault upon East Prussian and Northern Germany.

His forces captured 300 localities yesterday west of Kaunas on both sides of the highway leading to Konigsbreg, East Prussian capital, and southwest of Mariampole. Capture of Nowa Wies put one column within four miles of Suwalki and within 16 miles of East Prussia.

The Moscow communique announced the capture of Goryslawice, 37 miles northeast of Krakow, and Nowy Korczyn, on the Vistula seven miles southeast of Goryslawice. The intermediate towns of Stopnica and Pacanow were captured in a total bag of 100 localities.

Food Costs Up Index Unchanged

OTTAWA, Aug. 5—(CP). — The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today its official cost-of-living index, calculated on the basis that 1935-1939 equals 100, stood at 119.0 at July 1, unchanged from June 1 and leaving the wartime increase still at 18.1 per cent.

Fluctuations in the index are not reflected in wages, as cost-of-living bonuses were merged with basic wage rates in February under the Federal Government's wage-control order.

Price increases within the food group were balanced by declines in the fuel and lighting and the home furnishings and services groups.

Substantial advances in quotations for potatoes, lamb and the higher quality cuts of beef and lesser ones for carrots and eggs were mainly responsible for a rise in the food index from 131.1 in June to 132.0 in July. Prices for poorer quality cuts of beef and cabbage averaged lower.

The fuel and lighting index dropped from 112.5 to 108.9, following general reductions in domestic electricity rates in Quebec and scattered decreases in Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, and Ontario. Minor declines for cleaning supplies reduced the home furnishings and services index from 118.4 to 118.3.

Other group indexes remained unchanged, rentals at 111.9, clothing at 121.5, and miscellaneous items at 109.0.

When Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced the merging of the bonus with basic wage rates last December, he said the Government would review the whole program of price and wage control if the cost of living increased more than 3 per cent, and remained at that level for two consecutive months.

The adjusted cost-of-living index stood it 118.4 at Oct. 1, 1943, and this level was used when the cost-of-living bonus was merged with basic wage rates in February.

Seek To Learn Which Flier Clipped Rommel

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 5 —(CP Cable)—Allied fliers in France are trying to determine who was responsible for knocking out of action Field Marshal Rommel, German ground commander reported by the Germans to have suffered injuries and brain concussion as the result of an Allied air attack in Normandy.

Group Capt. Paul Davoud of Kingston, Ont., said pilots of his Canadian Typhoon group in France are checking to see where each plane was at the time Rommel might have been hurt and "every other squadron in Normandy has been doing the same thing."

He told a press conference that from the look of things Rommel no longer was "directing this particular operation because the Germans are acting like children."

Rommel was a "pretty hot" general, Davoud said, and there was little indicating that a "hot" general was in command of the retreating Germans.

One of the recent chores of the Typhoon has been to seek out German headquarters for blasting with rockets and while "it could have been anybody" whose attack injured Rommel, Davoud said, the Canadians are hoping they were responsible.

Storm Sweeps West Ontario

By The Canadian Press.

One Ontario man was killed and another injured yesterday in an electrical storm in Western Ontario during a heat wave extending from Eastern Canada to the Prairie Provinces.

Donald D. Ridley, 43-year-old farmer of East Zorra Township, was killed by a bolt of lightning as he was driving a binder on his farm near Tavistock.

Gordon Dill, in West Zorra, was injured when lightning set fire to his father's barn as a group of men were threshing oats. Flames destroyed the building and its contents while the Embro Fire Department and a volunteer bucket brigade prevented the flames from spreading to surrounding buildings.

Ottawa sweltered under an unofficial 100 in the shade and members of the House of Commons fanned themselves languidly with official papers.

A number of Government departments closed early when staffs complained to paper sticking to their moist fingers.

Throughout Ontario thousands of persons sought relief at lakesides, while others were forced to stay in the cities and bake in temperatures which ranger mrom 79 to 99 degrees.

Mass Artillery

To oppose possible 8th Army crossings on either side of Florence, the Germans have massed artillery on the heights around Fiesole, three miles to the northeast. From there the enemy has direct observation of Allied movement in the Arno valley.

A message reaching the Allied command from the Florence National Committee of Liberation said the Germans had evacuated inhabitants of the city from the entire north bank.

A British force moving along both sides of the upper Arno and well east of Florence captured Rignano, 3½ miles south of the important junction point of Pontassieve.

Only minor progress was reported on the remainder of the 8th Army front, while on the Allied 5th Army's sector along the lower Arno, American artillery and mortars pummeled enemy movements and gunposts.

American medium bombers carried the burden of yesterday's air attacks, with steady hammering of enemy communications in northern Italy and southeastern France.

6-Day Battering

Brittany—opposed so far only by ineffectual isolated German garrison forces—brought invasion troops for the first time into territory of strong Maquis resistance, where front line co-operation with French forces of the interior is possible.

In Maquis Area

In the Department of Morbihan bordering the Bay of Biscay in Southern Brittany, French patriots for months have been blasting German communications and skirmishing with the Nazis. In these battles some 1,400 Germans have been reported killed against loss of 200 members of the Maquis.

South of the area of the British triumph in the Nocage country the Germans still had a salient several miles wide and several miles long jutting up into Allied territory between the contested City of Vire and the Orne river, but this is being rapidly battered in by several parallel Allied spearheads shoving east from the Avranches area.

The Americans were driving east from Brittany as well as up the peninsula. They captured and passed Fougeres, 30 miles northeast of Rennes, and farther northeast struck to within little more than a mile of Barentan, 24 miles east of Avranches.

South of Mortain there was no indication of any co-ordinated German defense line. Light Allied Patrols had fanned out through most of the 19-mile are between Fougeres and Barenton, six miles east of Mortain.

Among the towns captured by the British in the Odon-Orne sector in addition to Evrecy and Esquay were Feugerolles, Amaye, St. Martin, Vieux, Ste. Honorine Du Fay, Le Mont and La Lande.

The British were on the west side of the Orne river a mile south of the point where wounded Field Marshal Rommel's anti-tank screen stopped Gen. Montgomery's east bank push two weeks ago.

The Allies how have overrun virtually half of the northwest France area extending east to Paris and bounded on the north by the Seine river and on the Soutaiqinnx Obmire river.

In this area they have left to reduce a block roughly 100 miles wide and 150 miles deep with no natural defence line short of the Seine.

This whole northwest quadrangle roughly is only one-sixth of France, but it and a similar block to the north, being closest to Britain, were where a majority of the German troops were concentrated.

The drive on Nantes simultaneously was closing in on its twin port of St. Nazaire, only 30 miles to the west. St. Nazaire is France's leading shipbuilding centre. Recently it was a major German U-boat base.

Extend Act To Care For Newest Veterans

OTTAWA, August 5 — (CP). — Pensions Minister Mackenzie announced yesterday an Order-in-Conucil extending the War Veterans' Allowance Act to include service members of the present war who have suffered disabilities which are not pensionable but which make them unable to care for themselves.

A statement said their inclusion is on the same terms as apply to veterans of the First Great War.

The Order-in-Council also brings under the terms of the act men who served both in this and the last war, but who did not see service in an actual theatre of war. Under previous provisions, only those who were pensioners or who had service in an actual theatre of war could derive benefits under the Act.

A third class of veteran also will benefit. These are the men who served in the North-west Rebellion. They previously did not come under the terms of the Act, which was restricted to veterans of the First Great War and the South African War.

Shun Intemperate Activities Warning of Solomon and Paul

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL.

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Aug. 6 is Proverbs 1:7-10; Jeremiah 35; 5-10; 1 Cor. 9:24-27; I Thess. 522, "And every man thatt striveth in the games exerciseth self-control in all things).

SOLOMON is presumed to have written the Proverbs in Jerusalem around 1000 B. C. They more than sustain his reputation for wisdom. From to-day's lesson we read: "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge; but fools despise wisdom and instruction.

"My son, hear the instruction of thy father, and forsake not the law of thy mother:

"For they shall be an ornament of grace unto thy head, and chains about they neck.

"My son, if sinners entice thee, consent thou not."

Haven't you read of criminals saying, when they were being punished for their misdeeds, "If I had only listened to what my father told me," or "If I had only done as my mother taught me!" It is good to memorize the words of Solomon. There is no telling when they will be recalled to mind in after years—maybe in a time of great temptation. The picturesque language of the Bible will help you to remember all of the quotation, the last words should stick in your mind, "My son, if sinners entice thee, consent thou not."

Personal Note Stressed.

In the book of Jeremiah, the personal note is stressed more than that of any of the other prophets. He tried to make the children of Isreal see that the course they were pursuing was one that would eventually end in their destruction, but he only gained the enmity of rulers and also of the prophets of the church. He himself was descended from a family of priests, and vowed from his birth to the worship of Jehovah.

Word came to Jeremiah to go to the house of the Rechabites and and to set wine and drink before them. Little is known about the house of the Rechabites, only that the founder was Jonadab who appeared as the ally of Jehu in the overthrow of the house of Ahab. The Rechabites had taken a vow through their ancestor that they would drink no strong drink, nor build houses, nor sow seeds, nor plant vineyards, but would dwell in tents all their days. Therefore when wine was set before them they refused to drink it and referred to their vow, saying that they would continue to obey the command of their fathers.

In his letter to the Corinthians Paul illustrates the point he wishes to make by referring to the Olympian races. Anyone who strives for success in any athletic field must keep himself physically fit or he has no chance to win or to stay in the race. We all know this. The rules of training must be strictly adhered to.

If these rules are good for athletes, why not for all of us and for all of life. Intemperance will play havoc with our bodiies, and also our souls. In the race of life—so much more than a mere athletic race or game— we want to win, do we not? as Paul did. Remember his words, "And every man that striveth or victory exerciseth self-control in all things."

"Abstain from all appearance of evil," St Paul wrote the Thessalonians. What is evil? The editor of our notes on the Sunday School lesson tells us an excellent rule by which we may measure this.

Amusement, he says, is not wicked. We need some amusement for refreshment. Now, when we are planning some fun for ourselves, we should ask ourselves the question, will the particular amusement do us good, make us feel refreshed in body and spirit; or will it do us harm? If we put this question to ourselves, and answer honestly, we have the answer to our problem.

Inner Power Acts As Leaven

By REV. E. R. JAMES

Jesus said: The Kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal till the whole was leavened.

St. Matthew 13:33

Why did our Lord speak in parables? He desired His hearers to think. Today we have universal education as far as possible but do the people think? "Time," an important weekly, is spending much money in advertising to persuade people to think. "Where there is no vision the people perish" is the scriptural title of this advertisement. Plain people heard this parable and nodded their heads in approval as they saw mentally the woman take the leaven and hide it in three measures of meal till the whole was leavened. A natural common sense act if she needs good bread for her family. Some went home thinking. Only St. Matthew gives us this parable. It makes it appeal to the bread maker. What does the leaven teach?

"The woman took the leaven and hid it in three measures of meal". The leaven works from the centre outwards. "The Kingdom of heaven is within you" is a principle defined by our Lord. The kingdom or rule of God is within you and its laws must take possession of your mind and heart and conscience, which is the centre of all true life. From the centre it will touch all the acts and duties of life. Everything will be controlled by the laws and principles which the Lord taught in His Gospels. There must be the inward inspiration and moving power through the operation of the Holy Spirit to drive out evil suggestions and thoughts.

Centuries before Jeremiah prophesied: "This is the New Covenant which I will make in those days, saith the Lord. I will put my law in their minds and write it in their hearts; and I will be their God and they will be my people'. Jer. 31; 33. Bishop Westcott tells us that this Scripture is unique in the Old Testament. Jeremiah was the first to teach that religion consisted of a personal relationship with God. It is not merely outward respectable conduct that is required by a real conversion of heart and mind. There is to be no portion free from that inspiration from within. This is to be the power of the new life transforming the man's character.

The leaven does not change the matter or the meal. The barley will not become wheat. But the leaven puts a new power into the meal bringing out its best. It infuses a new force. This is the work of Christ in the heart of a man. He takes you in all your strength and weakness and your sins and slowly transforms you into the new man in Christ Jesus Our Lord. The Lord looked at Simon and prophesied: "Thou art Simon, thou shalt be called Peter, the rock man". The condition of the change is: "Follow Me". It is helpful to remember that Our Lord seldom calls Simon by his new name Peter; he has not yet become worthy of it.

The leaven works slowly. "Till the whole is leavened". It is a startling truth for this rapid generation and a stumbling to many. We are affected by the rapid age to expect quick results. Yet all good work takes time to develop; time for thought and a thorough understanding of the principles of your profession or trade. It is so in Christianity. Perhaps the gravest social evil of those days was slavery. Yet Our Lord or His Apostles never said a word against slavery. They taught the slave to do the best he could, be honest and upright. But they laid down a principle which takes time to develop and is still developing. "Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself". In time the chains of slavery were broken. The Apostolic Church taught the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man which takes time to realize.

Leaven creates fermentation and stir. When Christ enters a man's heart He creates strife and arouses opposition from the strong man within? Satan hates the invasion. This will always be so. "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me" is the watch word of the Christian.

The leaven must be fresh to do its work, daily you must pray and read Holy Scripture and meditate upon it. The daily grace will be given you according as you ask for it. God knows your weaknesses and He will make you strong only when you ask for strength.

Thou therefore, my son, be strong in the grace that is in Jesus Christ.

Canadian Birds

By G. H. RICHARDSON

BY G. H. RICHARDSON

As you wander afield taking note of shore-birds, you are soon struck with the difficulty of distinguishing many of the sandpipers. They seem to be all arrayed in buffs and browsn, are much of a size with very, very little to definitely separate the species. Gradually with increasing familiarity the small points become distinctive.

You notice how one bird, commonly seen, is of starling size, while the others art a trifle smaller. Comparing this bird with others as they toddle around, crossing and recrossing each other's path, you become aware that this larger bird has a slightly more sloping forehead, and particularly that, where in the smaller ones the brownish tone on the neck and breast gradually fades out to the white oft he abdomen, in this bird the buff and white are sharply defined. This is the pectoral sandpiper's best field mark.

Distinguished by Calls

Call notes are useful in distinguishing birds, too, and the pectoral's "creak, creak", while apt to be overlooked if heard alone, stands out by comparison with the thinner, sharp squeak of the least sandpiper or the mellow faint whinny of the semipalmated sandpiper. Comparison becomes the key to what is otherwise difficult, and after all, it is not likely to be the fleeting glimpse of some bird which we remember, but the complete picture of some common activity watched and enjoyed, say, as we sit peacefully eating a picnic lunch.

Bobolink

Even as we move from one vantage point to another, bordering a mud flat, we encounter other birds in the reeds and bushes, as well as shore-birds. Bobolinks are foregathering for departure. First they have to moult, the males adopting the plumage of the females for the winter. For two or three weeks they remain quiet, only the odd twanging note betraying their presence. Yet you sense in this very stillness a secret activity, a waiting for something. Then one day no bobolinks fly up from frequent spots as you approach, no sound is heard, and you realize that they are gone until next May.

Off to the Rice Fields

They will soon swarm over rice fields in the south, and while we think of their fine plumage and ecstatic songs in sunny June fields, the rice growers are annoyed by the depredations of "rice-birds of grab buffs and browns!"

The warblers are getting restless, and little bands flit through the trees as they drift south, giving only faint lisping calls. Among those so actively in evidence just now is the water-thrush. This species with its heavily streaked breast and brownish color generally resembles the pattern of a thrush. Some warblers are given to tailwagging, but this bird eats them all. It is nearly in a class with the spoted sandpiper for wagging its rear end. It is about 4½ inches long, and ususally eats small molluscs, crustaceans and insects, but I remember seeing one pull a fish over an inch long out of a stream and tustle with it. It took a great deal of hammering to still its struggles and it looked to me too big to go down the bird's throat anyway. It was still wracking it on a rock when I was obliged to leave.

Power Through Self-Discipline

Scripture—Prov. 1:7-10; Jeremiah 3-:5-10;I Cor. 9:24-27; I Thess. 5:22

"My son, hear the instruction of thy father, and forsake not the law of thy mother," is written in Proverbs 1, the 8th verse.

"And I set before the sons of the house of the Rechabites pots full of wine, and cups, and I said unto them, Drink ye wine."

The Rechabites said we will drink no wine, neither will we build houses, but live in tents, thusobeying the voice of our father.

"Every man that striveth of the mastery is temperate in all things," Paul wrote the Corinthians.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 5, 1944

A Quarter Of a Century Of Leadership

On the 7th of August, 1919, William Lyon Mackenzie King was chosen to succeed Sir Wilfrid Laurier as national leader of the Liberal Party; on Monday next Mr. King will celebrate his twenty-fifth anniversary in that position. But it would be unfair at this time to write of him solely as a Liberal leader, for there are many thousands of Canadians outside his party who admire him and wish him well; what is more, he is recognized everywhere in the world as a man who is more than the head of a powerful group within Canada; he is known as the only man of our time who works in direct and undisputed succession to those giants of our history who are called the Makers of Canada, and as one of the most brilliant statesmen of the British Commonwealth.

• • •

Those who never leave Canada, and who do not keep in touch with contemporary opinion in Great Britain and the United States through periodicals, are sometimes surprised by the high regard which well-informed people in those countries have for Mr. King. To them, he is our only figure of international stature; to them he is already a world figure, assured of a prominent place in the history of our time. But as everyone knows, a man's own countrymen are always the last to discover his greatness. Canadians who have followed Mr. King's career through his twenty-five years of leadership and his seventeen years of power have seen both his successes and his failures, and sometimes they have taken more trouble to understand the failures than the successes. For Mr. King has made all his mistakes at home: never once has he faltered or failed us when he represented Canada abroad.

• • •

There is only one other statesman of the British Commonwealth with whom Mr. King may fittingly be compared, and that is Field Marshal Jan Smuts. Both men lead nations in which the weakness of divided race is inherent; both men are astute politicians; both men are unfaltering liberals. King and Smuts have on two occasions prevented the British Empire from following courses which would have hampered the free development of the Dominions and which would have narrowed the conception of our Commonwealth; both men have seen what English statesmen have not always seen—that the free development of British ideals and principles of government cannot be assured by exclusive dependence on Britain. Both men have been roundly abused in their own countries for the opinions which have won them the respect and trust of the rest of the English-speaking world. In the history of the British Commonwealth, as successor to the British Empire, there are no greater names than those of Jan Smuts and Mackenzie King.

• • •

As a social reformer within his own country Mr. King's position has been a curious one. Canada is a deeply conservative country, and it has been said with some justice that we never accept an idea until it has been common currency in either Britain or the United States for at least a quarter of a century. It was in 1918 that Mr. King wrote Industry and Humanity, A Study In The Principles Underlying Industrial Reconstruction, and since then he has seen the New Deal cause a stir in the U.S., and the demands and achievements of the Labour Party alter the economic outlook of Britain. But all that time he has quietly been leading Canada into a modified New Deal of its own, and encouraging as much labour legislation as the county was ready to accept. Anyone who questions his sincerity and his achievement as a social reformer may study the record of the past 25 years and see what has been done. Not all the plans of Industry and Humanity have yet been put in action in Canada, though they have been tried elsewhere; but as soon as Canada is ready for reform it gets it from Mackenzie King.

• • •

Mr. King's celebration comes at a time when we are, we hope, near the end of a bitter war. His leadership of our country during the past five years, so often and so rancorously questioned at home, has never once been questioned abroad. The long-standing friend of Roosevelt and Churchill, the yokefellow of Jan Smuts in the building of the Commonwealth, has worked valorously with his old comrades for Allied victory. Canada, so fortunate in many aspects of this war, has been greatly fortunate in having as her leader a statesman not merely of national, but of international stature—a man accepted as an equal and a trusted colleague by the acknowledged leaders of the forces of freedom. On Monday Canada may well admit her debt to Mackenzie King, though it will be another 25 years before she is able to reckon how great a debt it is.

On Speaking The King's English

We all tend to be sensitive to, and critical of, the idiosyncracies of speech which we notice in others, and deaf to our own oddities. Here in Canada we speak of "the English accent" and "the American accent", as though we were the only true guardians of pure and undefiled English, and as though Canada did not provide the listener with a wide variety of accents. But we are not all as bold as the St. Thomas Times-Journal, which writes thus:

"The one place where English should be purest but is probably the worst, is in the capital of the British Isles and of the Empire—London. There is no worse murderer of the King's English than the Cockney, or indeed any Londoner, whether born within the sound of Bow Bells or not. Millions of English people drop their 'aitches' and put them where they should not be. The average Englishman will speak of an evening 'piper' instead of paper, and say 'I dount now' for 'I don't know". No matter how many English words creep into the Scottish tongue, no Scotsman will ever juggle his 'aitches' or pronounce know as if it were 'now'."

Has the man who wrote this ever been in London? If so he must have taken care to mix with only one stratum of the population, or he could not write so assuredly about "the average Englishman". We have never met an Average Englishman, or an Average Canadian or an Average American, for that matter. They all appear to us to be individuals, and some of them speak good English and some do not. Undoubtedly many Englishmen talk about 'pipers' and drop their aitches, just as many Canadians call water, "wadder" and call their aunts, 'ants'. But we do not therefore dismiss the whole Canadian people as slovenly speakers.

The fact of the matter is that very few people are conscious of how they speak; it takes a good deal of time and application for a man to learn to hear himself objectively. About the only people who speak faultlessly are actors and actresses who have had many years of professional training (not in Hollywood) and they are the best models to follow. Most of us who speak English do so carelessly, without much regard either for pronunciation of vocabulary, and we do well to reform ourselves in this respect before we reach across the ocean to reform others.

Taxing Merchant Seamen

Parliament has just uncovered the disgraceful fact that Canadian merchant seamen are expected to pay Income Tax while serving outside home waters. This is to say that a Canadian merchant seaman who is now in a German prison camp will return home after the war to find an Income Tax bill waiting for him, with interest added to the total for delayed payment. Could any treatment be more shabby?

Of course this unfairness must be inadvertent. Everybody knows that our merchant seaman have done as much as any of the three armed services to fight ths war, and have taken desperate risks with good-temper and philosophical acceptance of their lot. At the time when the greatest job of the Canadian war effort was to get food and supplies to Britain as quickly and as plentifully as possible it was the merchant fleet which did the job, and many merchant seamen lost their lives in the service as honourably as flyers who were shot down, or soldiers who fell in battle. It is a scurvy trick to tax them on the money they have earned in the danger zones; it was not love of money, but love of country which took them there.

Let us get rid of this iniquity at once!

Diary Of A Country Bumpkin

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: Another perfect day. It seems to me that every Sunday this summer (except the one I chose for a picnic) has been unusually beautiful. I had a great deal of typing to do, and did it outdoors. Like a great many other people who use a typewriter constantly I have never learned how to operate one of the things properly, and I do not suppose that I ever will. I can type with two fingers as fast as I can think, and I do not make many mistakes. But if I have to write something which demands real concentration, I write it with a pen; not a fountain pen, but a straight pen which has to be dipped every eight words. I have a theory that the typewriter has had a bad effect on English prose. Too many authors peck out their books on portable typewriters, and the mechanical clack of the machine gets into their style. It is fatally easy to be garrulous, fatuous and superficial on a typewriter. The pen provides a check and a discipline for the man whose thoughts are apt to run away with him.

◇ ◇ ◇

MONDAY: To the movies and saw a film called "The Cross of Lorraine." Although I am sure that every incident in this film could have been duplicated a dozen times in German prison camps, it failed to hold together, somehow. A film can be 'like life,' and yet be wholly unconvincing if the artistic conception which shaped it was bad, or insufficient. People who yearn for movies to be 'like life' don't know what they are talking about; a film must be a work of art first, and it may be like life incidentally....In this film a great deal of French and German dialogue was included, and the audience seemed perfectly at home with it, and followed the story without difficulty. Now why, after the war, should we not have some good foreign films shown in our movie houses? The audiences could follow them with very little help, and we should have a relief from the perpetual, unnatural sweetness of the Hollywood philosophy of life. People who have seen French and Russian films will know what I mean.

◇ ◇ ◇

TUESDAY: While passing a beverage room today a car stopped beside me, with a wedding party inside it; the groom and the groomsman got out with anticipatory grins on their faces, and hurried into the tavern; the bride, holding her bouquet and looking like a meat-axe, stayed in the car with her mother; she did not want to go inside in her white satin finery. At the door the bridegroom paused, removed the carnation from his buttonhole and threw it into the street. It seemed to me a pity that the first pleasure which he chose after his marriage was one in which his wife could not share; I hope it is not a bad omen for the marriage....Talked to a man today who is making some rhubarb wine. He has no crock to stand it in, so he used a large vase which normally sits in his front hall for the reception of umbrellas. I have been promised a sample of this umbrella-stand vintage when it comes to maturity.

◇ ◇ ◇

WEDNESDAY: The war brings about some astounding metamorphoses. Two years ago a friend of mine went into the Navy; he was modest, retiring fellow who taught philosophy at a small Baptist college, and he hardly liked to raise his voice to tell the young female Baptists not to wear shorts and knit in his classes: today he came to visit me—a burly, blustering, red-faced buccaneer, with a hoarse voice and a habit of smoking cigar butts, a handful of which he carried in his pocket; whether he picked them up on the street or bought them from a tramp I hardly dared to ask. Where formerly I had known a Doctor Syntax, I now found myself confronted with a Commodore Trunnion...He gave me some interesting facts about life on a corvette; apparently he slept in a hammock, and owing to the rolling of the vessel he did not really lie down at all, but was stood alternately on his head and his heels all night long. There is only one way to deal with a situation of this kind; you either get used to it or you become a pitiable, seasick wreck. Conquering his academic ulcers by a mighty effort of will, he got used to it. The result sat on my sofa, furiously puffing an old, tired cigar butt.

◇ ◇ ◇

THURSDAY: Commodore Trunnion continued the tale of his adventures today, while I listened like Desdomona to Othello. I see what it is about sailors that attracts women; it is their immense gusto. I asked the Commodore if he intended to go back to the job of teaching young Baptists how to philosophize and rationalize after the war. No, he replied; he was sick of the scholarly life; he wanted to do something which would bring him in some money. "The handsome conveniences of life are better than nasty penury," he said, quoting Locke and thereby showing that he had not entirely forgotten his philosophical training. The quotation naturally led to a political discussion, and he recommended that I should read a book called "Moral Indignation In The Middle Class" which was, he said, an admirable dissection of the Roundheads, the French Revolutionaries, the C.C.F. and similar groups, which he somewhat rudely characterized as "gripe-movements." And thus we talked until it was time for his train, when he departed with a loud seaman's whoop, leaving a faint smell of frizzling human hair from his cigar butt. Yo-ho-ho and 13 ounces of watered whisky, I cried, in farewell.

◇ ◇ ◇

FRIDAY: Business called me to Toronto, the Ontario Babylon. At lunchtime I went into a cafeteria, and while choosing my meal I saw a tray marked '45 cents' on which were handsome dishes of salmon mayonnaise and attractive fruit salads; how economical, I thought, salmon mayonnaise and fruit salad for 45 cents; and so I took one of each and a roll and a cup of coffee as well. But when I went to the cashier's desk my tray cost me a dollar. It is thus that country bumpkins like myself are bamboozled by city slickers. And to add insult to injury, the cashier looked dubiously at my tray and said, 'Are you alone?' I was strongly reminded of the incident in "The Vicar of Wakefield" in which Moses goes to the fair and is sold a gross of green shagreen spectacle cases....In the evening went to a movie, and there were several pictures of Prime Minister King on the newsreel. To test the feelings of Tory Toronto I started some applause, expecting to be thrown out, or at least hushed indignantly. But no; the audience took it up with great enthusiasm. Can it be that the abhorrence in which the Premier is thought to be held in Toronto resides only in certain bosoms which happen to be connected with very loud voices?

◇ ◇ ◇

SATURDAY: By chance an album of gramophone records came into my hands today, of old American sea-chanties and whaling-boat songs; they are the most refreshing things I have heard in a long time. Though I have spent quite a lot of time on ships I have never heard a modern sailor sing, except at a ship's concert, where a steward usually strains "Thora" or "Roses of Picardy" through an ill-fitting mouthful of false teeth. But in the days of the sailing vessels sailors sang at their work, to amuse themselves and to make the work easier. Every ship carried a chantyman, who played the fiddle or the banjo, and led the singing. The words of most chanties were improvised, but the choruses were always the same; the tunes are beyond all praise; a musician who could write such tunes would be one of the great ones of the earth.... Why have we no work-songs nowadays? There is a bank just across the street from me, but I never hear the voices of the manager and the clerks mingled in a rousing song about money; the lawyer upstairs never trolls a merry catch about torts or distraints; and I, as I pursue my sordid routine, am as mute as a canary with moult. People lose much when they lose their fondness for unaffected, informal song.

ECLIPSE

None Of Parliament's Business

(WINNIPEG FREE PRESS)

PARLIAMENT apparently does not believe that its privileges have been infringed by the Bouchard incident, and does not propose to take any notice of it. This is a proper course, the only possible course.

Senator Bouchard was an employee of the government of Quebec. He was also a member of the Senate. In the latter capacity he made a speech which has turned out to be highly controversial in Quebec. The Godbout government promptly dismissed him, an act for which it must accept full responsibility. Whether or no the Godbout government should have done so, is a debatable point. Most people will regret that a man of Senator Bouchard's ability and integrity should have been dismissed because of a speech which, on its face, appeared not to have been intended to produce political repercussions.

This, however, is quite a different point from that being raised by those who see in this action an infringement of the privileges of Parliament. Mr. Graydon, the leader of the opposition of the House of Commons, declared immediately that Mr. Godbout had interfered with the liberties of a member of Parliament and was seeking to prevent his freedom of speech. This, of course, is preposterous.

Senator Bouchard spoke freely in the Senate. Since he was dismissed from his provincial government position he has spoken again and expressed his opinions in newspaper interviews.

No one is curbing his speech or his opinions. No one can curb them. He is a member of the Senate and entirely outside the control of the Godbout government or anyone else, so long as he obeys the laws of the country. He is quite as free as Mr. Graydon, who obviously is raising a spurious alarm simply to make trouble for the Liberal party, of which Senator Bouchard is a supporter.

But Parliament sees rightly that it is in no way involved and refuses to interfere in a dispute between an employer and employee which does not concern it.

Retain Stone Houses In Original

(OWEN SOUND SUN-TIMES)

THERE is a considerable complaint in Quebec that many of the old stone houses of that province are being remodeled and strangely altered with veneers. These changes are no doubt made with the idea of "modernizing" these fine old homes, but in doing so they too often destroy the beauty of the past. So-called simulated brick is being used in reconditioning some of the houses. In other instances cement blocks marked off in squares to represent cut stone is being used.

Many of these Quebec homes have stood for two centuries and they constitute a definite and picturesque reminder of the early days. The homes are still comfortable, but there seems to have developed a feeling that the original masonry does not fit in with modern ideas and should be concealed. This is a serious mistake, and every effort should be made to get people away from this trend.

Here in Grey and Bruce, and in other parts of Western Ontario there are hundreds of old stone houses and for the most part they are being retained in their original form. Many early homes were built from field stone, and they are very beautiful with their varied colours. Other attractive homes were built of limestone rock, quarried in this district. Even now many of the new homes of the best type are built of stone, both in Owen Sound and throughout the district. It is to be hoped the Quebec tendency does not spread to Ontario. If any alterations to exteriors are contemplated they should be carefully planned and then carried out with the same materials which were originally used in the structure. Wherever possible these fine old stone residences should be retained in their original form.

Elephants In Vogue

One might cross the whole of India and never so much as set eyes on an elephant. But in my out-of-the-way corner I suddenly discovered plenty of them. The Balrampur Estate owned fifty, and many of the rent contractors were proud possessors of one or two. Motor cars are necessary to the prestige of the modern maharaja, but his real magnificence is still seen in his elephant stables. For ceremonial processions and for shooting parties, as well as for humble transport service, elephants are still in vogue...

Whenever I went any distance from the village I rode in state on a borrowed elephant. It was the only means of travel....On days when the dust was blowing I used to wish somebody would invent a closed elephant coupe. But in these days of swift locomotion an elephant offers one very distinct advantage. It goes slowly enough to permit one to take in the scenery by the way. Its average rate of speed is just about that of a man, slightly more than three miles an hour....

The night train reach Pachperwa at half past ten. Returning from a day in Balrampur, I would find an elephant waiting to take me the mile and a half to the village. Where else could one have an elephant meet the train? I loved the soft padding across the zigzag embankments of the fields, the swishing of the big ears, the movement of the heavy trunk swinging out to right or left, breaking off wisps of grain. And so home in the moonlight, past the little houses, all dark and still, with the white pumpkins gleaming among the dark leaves on the roofs.—From "Voiceless India," by Gertrude Emerson.

Keeping Up With The Joneses

Rejecting the demand of railway unions for equalization of Canadian and United States rates paid railway men, the National War Labour Board said:

"The whole policy of control of wages and prices in this country is entirely distinct and unrelated to the economy of the United States."

That is true. But the War Labour Board might have gone farther and stated that the whole business of this country trying to keep up with the United States in the matter of wages, salaries, services and what not, is a dangerous business; one which this country simply can't afford.

A good case could be made out for the claim that one of the things which has hurt this country over the past 25 years or more has been its attempt to keep up with the United States: to build as good roads, and to provide as good railway service, and to erect the same large buildings, and to follow its extravagances in public works and what not. For a country of small, scattered population, this policy—a sort of "keeping-up-with-the-Joneses" complex — has clearly been wrong; with a great deal of the debt burden which afflicted our provinces, not to speak of the Dominion, directly attributable to it.

Toward the highest possible standard of living this country should aim always. But that aim must be based on Canadian possibilities and conditions; not directed by the vanity of imagining that we must keep up with our rich and powerful neighbours. With those neighbours, our population being what it is, we just can't keep up in having the "biggest and best."—Ottawa Journal.

MOVING THE BEAVER

Beaver trapped in Algonquin Park are to be set out in preserves at the James Bay area as part of the program to restore fur trapping in that once prfoitable section and so provide a means of livelihood for the Indians of the region.

Undoubtedly the program should be successful. In Algoma District, which had become so denuded of beaver that an embargo on trapping them had to be instituted, they are once more quite plentiful—and this by natural increase in spite of the fact that the embargo was not enforced as rigidly as might have been desired.

There is no reason to doubt but that the fur resources of Northern Ontario and Northern Quebec can be preserved and developed so that trapping may long continue to be a profitable business if proper regulatory and protective measures are enforced.—Sault Ste. Marie Star.

A Bible Message

Then the Pharisees went out, and held a council against him, how they might destroy him. But when Jesus knew it, he withdrew himself from thence: and great multitudes followed him, and he healed them all...

Then was brought unto him one possessed with a devil, blind, and dumb: and he healed him, insomuch that the blind and dumb both spake and saw. And all the people were amazed, and said, Is not this the son of David? But when the Pharisees heard it, they said, This fellow doth not cast out devils, but by Beelzebub the prince of the devils.

And Jesus knew their thoughts, and said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and every city or house divided against itself shall not stand; and if Satan cast out Satan, he is divided against himself; how shall then his kingdom stand?

And if I by Beelzebub cast out devils, by whom do your children cast them out? therefore they shall be your judges. But if I cast out devils by the Spirit of God, then the kingdom of God is come unto you. (Matt. 12: 14, 15, 22-28.)

The Work Of Well-Built Men

The Romans were good teachers. They formed character as well as trained the intellect. They justified an educational program by the fact that it did train the character and prepare young men to serve the state. All down the course of Roman history we find teachers of this sort, whether professional teachers or not. So the mind of the young orator Cicero was formed by Crassus and Antonius; so the boys of Piso were instructed by Horace in the art of poetry as Horace himself had been given by his father lessons in the art of life; so Persius learned a noble Stoicism from Cornutus; and so the mind of young Marcus Aurelius, as we shall see, was trained by his master Fronto to live again that ancient Republican Rome which Polybius had come to describe. Thus Rome was built by well-built men. The Romans liked to hand things down, not only worldly goods, but educated character.—From "The Building of Eternal Rome," by Edward Kennard Rand.

U.S. Soldiers Indifferent To Big Election

By C. R. BLACKBURN,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5—(CP)—United States fighting forces overseas are reported to be indifferent to the forthcoming Presidential election but they are going to be given a chance to vote whether they want it or not.

Plans are proceeding with the determination and detail that would indicate an assumption that casting his callot was first thought now in the mind of every soldier. Only insurmontable difficula soldiier of his chance tovote. ties of place and movement will rob a soldiier of his chance to vote.

There is no way of estimating how heavy the service vote will be and guesses run all the way from 1,000,000 to 8,000,000.

The administraiton wanted a straight Federal ballot acceptable to all States in which the service personnel would mark ballots only for President ,Vice-president, Senators and Representatives in next November's election.

But most States want the ballots to have all the names of Federal, State and local office candidates. and that is how it will be.

However, 20 of the 48 States have approved use of the short Federal ballot in those cases in which an overseas voter applies for but fails to receive the ballot of his State.

Those from the other 28 States will have to use the State ballot or nothing and many belives that, because of necessity of filling out applications and the difficulty of findin ga soldier on the move, only a small percentage of those overseas will bother.

The War Department, Navy and War Shipping administration has the responsibilty of getting the application forms to the overseas forces, returning them when completed .and then getting the ballots bac kto each State for counting.

This tremondeus task, involving millions of forms ,will be handled largely by air. The material has been given almost the highest priority, second only to official dispatches.

King Declares Nazis Outfought

LONDON, Aug. 5 (CP)—The King returning to Britain by air after a 10-day tour of the battlefields in Italy, said in a message tonight that the Germans had been "outgeneral and outfought" on the Italian battlefieds.

The message ,addressed to Gen. Wilson, Commander-in-Chief of the Mediterranean theatre, said:

"I have greatly appreciated the opportunity you have afforded to me of seeing so many of my armed forces and those of the Allies in th Italian theatre of war during the past few days.

"I have traversed the ground from Cassino to the present front line, a distance of some 250 miles, through which, since the middle of May, the 8th and 5th Armies have driven a powerful and highly experienced German force.

"It is true to say that the enemy has been outgeneralled and outfought. This brilliant campaign has added much to the glories of the British and the Dominions and the Allieis armies.

"Such a success could never have been achived without the full cooperation and powerful support of the Royal Navy, the Royal Air Force and their Allied brothers-in-arms.

"I am very pleased to have been able to see for myself some of the splendid work they are doing. Please convey to all under your command by best wishes and my confident belief that final victory will be theirs.

"I pray that the day is not too far distant when I shall be able to welcome you home again.

"George R.I."

Army Requests Another Purge

LONDON, Aug 5 (CP)—The German radio said tonight that "the army has requested Hitler to carry out a purge in the army—to cleanse it of the July 20 traitors," and that Hitler had approved.

"A court of honor is to inquire into the attitude of the generals," the D.N.B. dispatch said. "Its function will be to investigate who had taken part in the plot (the July 20 attempted assassination of Hitler) and those who participated."

Among those on the court of inquiry, the official news agency listed Marshal von Runstedt, deposed commander in France, and frequently reported a victim of the purge. Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the High Command, also was named for the court.

The D.N..B announcement said one field-marshal and four generals were expelled from the army at the first sitting of the court to-day.

The announcement also said that Artillery Gen George Lindermann "deserted to the Russians."

Members of the "Court of Honor" include Gen. Heinz Guderian, new Chief of Staff, Infantry Gen. Schroth, Lt.-Gen. Specht, Infantry Gen. Kriebe, and Lt.-Gen. Kirchheim, D.N.B. said.

Those ousted to-day were listed as Marshal Erwin Von Witzleben, who stormed the Maginot Line and who was accused of being a ringleader in the purported plot; Gen. Felligiebel of the Information units; Lt.-Gen. Von Hase, Maj.-Gen. Stieff, and Maj.-Gen. Von Treschkow.

Chased Hun Sub From Path Of Queen Elizabeth

By JACK BRAYLEY,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Aug. 5—(CP)—A soft-spoken, blond airman who doesn't look as though he chased a U-boat from the path of the Queen Elizabeth quietly answered questions here to-day about that exploit and others.

He is Flt.-Lt. Harold (Boy) Kerrigan, D S. O., D. F. C., of Westmount, Que., one of a group of 300 R. C. A. F. repatriates who arrived here recently.

Last winter the big vessel was speeding through the bleak north Atlantic, and, unknown to the liner's officers, a U-boat lay in her path.

Here at last was the opportunity for which the German navy had been waiting Occasionally their officers had fleeting glances of the big queen ships as they sped across the seas, zig-zagging elusively and outstripping any attempts to catch them.

But this time it was different. The U-booat was in position, waiting silently to launch torpedoes. The sea was calm, conditions perfect.

Then out of the darkness dove Kerrigan and his Liberator crew. It was one of the first times in which searchlights were used in the anti-submarine war and the big aircraft ran over the spot.

Kerrigan missed the U-boat in his first run, but he found the raider when it started to hurl flak at him. He made another run, but the U-boat had submerged. Meanwhile, the Queen Elizabeth, warned of the danger, altered course and put safe miles between herself and the U-boat area.

It was for his work in this connection and in sinking another U-boat that Kerrigan got the D. F. C.

He got the D. S. O. for an attack in which he sunk one U-boat, tried to sink another and then brought his flak-ridden Liberator and wounded crew back to a Scottish coastal command base.

Canadian Leads Daring Flight

LONDON, Aug. 5 — (CP Cable) — Flt.-Lt. J. D. Rice of Springfield. Ont., to-day was named as the captain of one of two aircraft of R. A. F. Transport Command which in one of the most daring flights of the war landed at night among the Yugoslav hills on an uphill runway only 496 yards long to evacute part of a British mission.

Captain of the second aircraft on the flight which took place on an undisclosed date ,was Wing Cmdr. T. N. Francombe of Northumberland, Eng.

The airmen were informed before the flight that the runway was 700 yards long, but found on touching down their Dakotas that it was slightly uphill, only 496 yards long, and in some places fairly soft. They managed to land and get off safely.

Must Bell Sheep Losses Mount In Emily Area

OMEMEE, Aug. 5—(ENS)—Tremendous losses in recent months in sheep and lambs killed by dogs inspired Emily Council, at its meeting in the Farmers' Club Rooms, Omemee, this week to pass a by-law providing that 10 per cent of all sheep shall carry bells at all times while on pasture, and in the case of flocks of sheep and lambs numbering less than 10 a minimum of two bells shall be required.

Present were Reeve Paul J. McGuire in the chair and Councillors Vincent Fee, George Magee, Thomas Morrissey and J. M. Thurston.

The council took action to make an attempt to cut down losses in this category in the face of $356 in the accounts approved applying that 15 sheep and 23 lambs belonging to seven farmers had brought claims against the municipality.

To put the teeth in the by-law, refusal to pay compensation for the sheep killed in the future, should the precaution not be followed, was agreed on ;and all livestock valuers were asked to make the provisions of the law known to sheep owners in their respective territories. The by-law comes into force at once.

The amount to be raised by the municipality in 1944 for secondary schools is $3,009.71, F. L. Weldon informed the council in a communication. Mr. Weldon also advised that old age pensions had been granted to three applicants. Live Stock valuers' reports were received from A. Moncrief, Elmer Hickey, D. M. Costello and Leonard Atwell; and the Road Accounts as presented by Walter Herlihey, Roads superintendent were approved and ordered paid in the amount of $60.00.

Half-Wingers Key Men In Aerial War

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE R.C.A.F. IN ENGLAND, August 5 — (CP) — Forgotten men of the night intruder squadrons are the "half-wing fliers," the navigators who play such a part in making possible the exploits of the full-wing men, the pilots.

It is the pilot you hear of when the Mosquitos come streaking home from their night sorties far into German territory, but without the navigator the pilot could go nowhere, and it might be taken as symbolic that in the modern night fighter the navigator, who used to be back of the pilot, has moved up front.

To-day they sit side by side in the same cockpit, boys like FO. P. Huletsky of Montreal, who won a D.F.C. for his navigating of Sqdn. Ldr. Bob Kipp, D.S.O., D.F.C., of Kamloops, B.C., in the City of Edmonton Intruder Squadron.

Together these two have ranged the length and breadth of Germany under cover of darkness. Together on May 3 they set up a record, destroying four FW 190s in one sortie where navigation was all-important.

Huletsky took them across enemy territory on the way to Munich and near Lake Ammer, 20 miles southwest of Munich, they got their first victim. Then they went on to Grensburg, got two over an airfield, and then on to another airfield for their fourth kill.

Every successful Intruder operation depends on the skill of the navigators whose job demands an inexhaustible patience as well as vigilance and skill. Then, when the enemy does appear in the gun sights, it is the pilot who deals the death blow while the navigator sits back and watches the final triumph go to the man at his side.

The fault probably is with the system of reporting "kills," crediting them directly to the pilots because the pilots themselves appreciate the navigator.

All This And Nanjo, Too

Dr. Len Hall, the Texan rowdy with the world-wide reputation for wrecking his opponents is delighted to have been given a crack at Whipper Billy Watson in the main bout of the Tunney wrestling show at the Brock Street Arena on Tuesday night next. "He is flashy, that Whipper boy," growled the veteran Doc, "but there's a lot he has to learn about wrestling and I'll show him a few things on Tuesday." Promoter Tunney is out to make it a big show for he has booked Nanjo Singh, the Hindoo Horror to meet the flashy Pierre DeGlane in the semi-final and that clash is of main bout calibre. Then two of the fastest boys in the mat game, Joe Maich and Irish Tom Collins, will open the card in record tempo.

Exhibition Tilt Attracts Large Crowd

After the game had been tied 7 to 7 in the eighth inning, Westclox Men's Industrial League softball team, featuring a Westclox Girls' team battery, ran in 2 runs in the ninth, and took the verdict from the Girls, who were using a Men's team battery, with a 9 to 7 count, in a novel exhibition game played Friday evening at Ashburnham Bowl, before a large crowd.

Joyce Withers, pitching for the Men, turned in a 5-hit game, and struck out 5 of the hard-hitting men. Isobel Bullock comprised the other half of the Men's battery.

On the other side, Westclox Girls had the services of Blewitt, Men's team hitting star, and Hopcroft, well-known Westclox pitcher, who fanned 7 of the opposition.

The scoring began in the first inning, when the Men let loose with a series of powerful hits that sent three runs home. Watson singled to centre field, Nicholls bunted with the ball rolling near the third-baseman, Isobel Bullock singled to left field, and Millen also sent one into left, scoring Watson. Jacquith struck out, Spencer was safe on a high one into centre field that was fumbled, and Nicholls took advantage of that play to score. Gannon popped to pitcher, Rowatt struck-out, and Isobel Bullock made a daring steal to the plate.

The Girls ran in 2 runs in the second frame, beginning with Blewitt walking, Nona Whetung singled through short, Hopcroft popped to the third baseman, and Barbara Rome was out at first base, with Blewitt scoring on that play. Verna Patterson bunted safely scoring Miss Whetung.

The Men turned in one run in the second, featuring Nicholls scoring on a hit over third base by Millen.

No more scoring was seen until the fourth frame, when the Girls completed another run. Verna Patterson scored on a triple into left field by McCormick.

The sixth innings netted the Men 2 more runs, and the Girls one. Pearson, scoring on a play that put out Joyce Withers at first base, and Rowatt, scoring on the play that put out Nicholls at first base, ran in the 2 runs for the Men, while Nona Whetung scored on a hit past first base by Barbara Rome for the Girls.

The Men boosted their score by 1 in the seventh inning, when Millen reached the plate on a hit into left by Legrow that allowed him two bases.

The Girls gathered up three runs in the eighth, to tie the game, when Hopcroft batted out a sizzling homer into deep left field, to score Blewitt, Nona Whetung, and the batter.

The final count was reached in the ninth, and the Men wrapped up the game with a 2-run edge, when Legraw scored on a fumbled ball hit into right field. Rowatt, and Spencer slid home on the same play.

The switch of batteries made the game interesting throughout, and the crowd seemed to enjoy this novelty game immensely.

The Girls turned in some clever fielding, and Barbara Rome made a particularly good nab of a high one into left field, by Rowatt in the third.

SPORTS-Day by Day

After a holiday lapse of over a week the City League semi-final playoffs will get under way again Tuesday evening when Plazas and Soldiers will meet in the third game of their best-of-five series. The battle will get under way at 6.45 o'clock and fans and players are asked to note the change in the starting hour, fifteen minutes earlier than the time in vogue since early in the season. In spite of the layoff interest in this series is still red-hot and the resumption of hostilities will be marked by a record attendance Tuesday night. The teams are on an even footing with a win each, Plazas having taken the first game 7 to 6 and Soldiers evening up the series with a 7 to 6 victory in the second battle. With the series now a best-of-three affair Tuesday night's game will be of prime importance and both sides will be seeking to get the jump on the opposition. Plazas who were shy a number of regulars including Eddie Starr in the first two games of the playoffs hope to have a full team for the balance of the series and the Soldiers will also be strengthened by the return of Tony McIlveen. As for pitchers it will be Terry Woods, Frank Stokoe or Dave Wilson for Plazas and Earl Revoir or Pete Procyk for Soldiers.

The other bracket in the City League playoffs will get under way Wednesday night when Switchgear and U.E.W. will battle in the second game of their series. The Union outfit blew Switchgear out of the park in the first game winning 19 to 8 behind steady pitching by Mac McPherson. Union are counting on having the Lindsay smoke-baller Hatty Eakins on hand for Wednesday's clash, and they point out that the Scugog tosser held Switchgear to three hits the last time he faced them. The league leaders, one game down, cannot afford to drop this second fixture and Manager Murph Chambers expects to have his strongest lineup in action realizing that Wednesday's contest is really a crucial affair. He has all three pitchers, Bert Harrison, Ronnie Akers and Fred Elliott, all ready for action, the last two demanding a chance to get revenge for the shellacking they took the last time out. Wednesday's game should be crammed full of interest. There is plenty depending upon the result.

Playing Bigger Game

Reading over the list of winners at the district regattas ten years ago shows unmistakably how Peterborough's athletes have answered the call of their country. At the Kawartha Park regatta in 1934 Dave Rogers scored 18 points to win the Ryrie-Birks trophy. He is now Lieut. Rogers of the R.C.N.V.R. with a record of having played a part in every invasion, Dieppe, North Africa, Sicily, Italy and Normandy. Up at Crowe's Landing in the east end of Stoney Lake some of the prize-winners ten years ago were Bunt Waddell, now Wing Commander Waddell, D.F.C., of the R.C.A.F. and a great record overseas, Ross Pulkinghorn in Italy with the Canadian Artillery, Sam Patte, overseas with the Canadian Army. Doug McPherson, now in the R.C.A.F. and Alex Carlisle, now a lieutenant in the Canadian Navy overseas. At the Juniper Island regatta, Art Wood, prominent in the canoe events, is with the Canadian Army in Italy and Herb Cardwell is an officer in the active army. These are only a few of the athletes whose names were once prominent on the sporting pages who are playing a bigger game at the present time.

Twenty years ago today the Peterborough Central Ontario League club, making a determined drive to grab off the second half invaded Belleville for what was considered a crucial battle and surprised the Quinte team with a 5 to 4 win before what The Examiner next day described as "a big and far from friendly crowd." That was a real battle all the way and the Petes finally won it by pushing over a run in the ninth frame to give them six straight victories. Belleville got away to a great start nailing Al Heckman for five singles and a base on balls in the first inning for three runs and the Quinte fans were jubilant. The Petes however tied it up in the third and went out in front with a run in the fourth. They held that 4 to 3 lead until the last of the eighth when Jack Oullete, Belleville pitcher helped his own cause by singling in the tieing run. However the Peterborough team came back in the first of the ninth with the winning marker. After Tommy Holyman had fanned, Red Legon slammed a double, going to third on a passed ball. Max Swanston was called out on strikes but big Hap Harrison arose to the occasion with a line drive single to centre on which Legon carried the winning run over. Heckman, after his shaky start in the first inning allowed Belleville only three singles for the rest of the game.

Looking After The Kids

Oshawa has a minor baseball association that has been doing a lot to keep the diamond pastime alive and the policy is already beginning to show results. George Campbell shows how the old timers in the Motor City are helping out the movement in the following paragraph from his Oshawa Times-Gazette sport column: "The officers of the Oshawa Minor Baseball Association have announced their plans for the big ball game to be played here on August 19, when the "Old Boys" of Oshawa C.O.B.L. teams of 20 years ago and 10 years ago, will tackle an all-star team picked from the four local Juvenile teams. This promises to be a real attraction, with the entire proceeds going to help finance the fostering of baseball among Oshawa and district boys. "Cy" Dell has contacted a lot of the old-time players, "Bucko" Wilson, "Kipper" Rowden, Walt and Reg Fair, and they are all going to come out and play a couple of innings or so and give the kids a boost. We intend to suggest a few more names within the next week or so. Meanwhile, plans are going ahead and Oshawa sport fans and baseball enthusiasts of the last 20 years should all turn out to support this big game on August 19."

Enough young talent was uncovered in the baseball game sponsored by the Lions' Club at Riverside Park last night to show that there is plenty of potential material in Peterborough for future ball teams, once we really go about the job of building up the game again. The fact that the fundamentals of softball and orthodox baseball are essentially the same is of course a big help. The youngsters have been playing the big ball, small diamond game and the transition from that to baseball is not a startling change. The rules are much the same and the kids have learned to handle a ball, to field and bat, and they are ripe for baseball, as last night's trial game showed. The kids who performed at Riverside Park under Alex Kay as umpire and coach showed a lot of promise. They handled the ball smartly, a couple of good catchers who performed snappily behind the bat were uncovered and the kids gave a good performance. The Lions Club who have secured the necessary equipment to enable baseball to be played and have been encouraging the youngsters to try it out are doing a nice bit of missionary work and deserve thanks all around. Their effort should have the support of all friends of baseball.

Sports Bouts Planned For The Troops

LONDON, Aug. 5 (CP)—The fellows of the Canadian Army who remain in England while waiting to join their comrades in battle on foreign soil must have their entertainment and relaxation. An army sports committee has just completed arrangements that should well satisfy their needs.

Plans drawn up at a meeting "Somewhere In England" discussed proposed summer championships in various competitions such as track and field, tennis, softball and horseshoes, and set tentative dates. The dates must be tentative, of course, because military needs are likely to upset such secondary events without notice.

Already, scores of softball games have been played in various leagues scattered throughout army camps and some preliminary various track meets have been held in preparation for the Army titular rounds.

Sports of all kinds played an integral part in relieving tension and boredom of Canada's soldiers held in concentration areas, without leave, in the weeks of awaiting D-Day. Softball, for instance, was in progress from breakfast time to nightfall in some areas and other competitions included volleyball, tennis, football and track and field.

In one Army area an armored reinforcement unit carried the right to enter the Canadain Army (England) tabloid sports championship by defeating three other teams in a series of events.

Each man of each 10-man team competes in every event on the card in these tabloid competitions. Total points gathered by each team determines the winner. The teams, therefore, are made up of the most versatile athletes in the units.

Joe Louis, finishing up a boxing tour of United States Army camps in Britain before moving on to the Mediterranean Theatre, had a couple of rounds—golf—at Glasgow and admitted he went around in "a hundred and something."

The world champion is a novice at the links game but said he seriously was thinking of "going after a golfing championship one day."

29,166 Honor Connie Mack On Anniversary

By TED MEIER,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 5 —(AP)— There are many tender memories in the life of Cornelius McGillicuddy—Connie Mack to you—but possibly the most poignant was last night's celebration at Shibe Park in honor of his 50th anniversary as a big league baseball manager.

A crowd of 29,166 including many of the game's top figures and famous players of yesteryear, crowded into the park. To get there they disregarded the city's transit strike. Thousand came in automobiles, but the majority walked.

Since he first took the helm of a big league club— at Pittsburgh, Aug. 4, 1894—baseball's "grand old gentleman" has gone up and down the baseball ladder. He has won nine American League pennants with his Athletics and five world titles, as well as winding up in the cellar on many occasions.

Mack has long since, however, become a baseball institution and one of the game's immortals.

"Mr. Baseball" was presented a gold box with a check for $5,000 as a "token of admiration and affection from the sports fans of America."

The big moment of the celebration was the presentation of Connie's living all-time best players. The fans cheered and cheered as, in turn, Connie presented these former stars: George Sisler, first baseman of the St Louis Browns; Eddie Collins, second baseman of the Athletics; Frank (Home Run) Baker, third baseman of the Athletics; Honus Wagner, short-stop of the Pittsburgh Pirates; Lieut. Bill Dickey, catcher of the New York Yankees Walter Johnson, right-handed pitcher for Washington; Lefty Grove, southpaw pitcher for the Athletics; Tris Speaker, outfielder for the Cleveland Indians ,and Babe Ruth "The greatest hitter of all time," Yankee outfielder.

Four McLeod Brothers Possible Future Boxing Champions Of Ireland

BY PETER E. KILROY
Central Press Canadian

DUBLIN, Ireland, Aug. 5 — Meet the "Battling Quads"—Albert, Vincent, David and Malachy McLeod, who between them are pulling down all the boxing honors in Eire. Soon they will be a boxing family quintette, for their elder brother Norman intends to start serious training in the fall.

Sons of genial Norman McLeod, who runs a printing business on Temple Lane South, Dublin, the boys range in age from 10 to 15 years.

Although he is proud of what his sons are achieving in the Irish boxing world, McLeod Senior says, modestly: "There are no ambitions behind it: boxing is their recreation!"

The four brothers climbed the first rung of the boxing ladder of fame at the St. Vincent's Boxing club, Fairview, Dublin, where Jack Rooney, 43, former bantamweight champion of the British Royal Air Force, took the boys step by step through the theory and practice of boxing, until it was found they were proving too good for the other boys in their respective classes.

Youngest Is Toughest

Many of Rooney's boxing pupils have gone on to win championships. His son is Irish army junior lightweight champ. His uncle, Francis Joseph Rooney, has a photographic business in Rochester, N. Y.

The McLeod brothers have fought in the County Dublin boxing championships and honors have been heaped on them.

Albert, 15½ the eldest, is at present in the 98-pound class, while Vincent is 13½ and weighs 77 pounds. David is 12½ years and goes 63 pounds, while "Two-Ton" Tony Malachy, aged 10 years, tips the scales at 56 pounds and as yet has never been beaten.

"I have been boxing for two years, and, of course, I would like to be a real champ one day," Malachy told the writer in an interview at his club, where he had just wound up a session with the medicine ball.

Malachy Started It

This wisp of a lad has already been the runner-up in the 56-pound class in the local championships and recently he won the County Dublin championship—no mean feat for a 10-year-old where there is plenty of tough opposition.

It was "Two-Ton" Tony who started the McLeod brothers toward boxing frame.

"I was returning home from school one afternoon when I met a boy who was carrying a big silver cup," said the youngest Malachy

"I asked the boy where he got the cup, and he told me he won it boxing. I liked the looks of that glittering silver cup, and I was so thrilled with the idea of winning one, that I immediately said: "If you can get a cup for boxing so can I."

Malachy hurried home and rummaged through the closets until he found a pair of boxing gloves. He went in to strict training right away. Very quickly his elder brothers followed him, and they all joined the St. Vincent Boxing Club, a well-known nursery for Irish boxing champions.

Of the four brothers, trainer Rooney thinks that Vincet is the best, and the most likely to follow boxing as a career.

This stripling of a youngster works with a printing firm in Dublin, but is as keen on taking up boxing as a career.

Joseph M. Lynskey, secretary of St. Vincent's Amateur Boxing club believes that Albert, 98-pounder, will wind up the best boxer of the four.

Jack Rooney, summing up his proteges, believes he has the makings of world champions in the foursome.

"If the boys continue their training and maintain their interest in boxing there is the makings of a world champion in each of them," said Jack.

TORONTO, August 5 — (CP). — Ogopogo, the reluctant Dragon of the Okanagan Valley, is back in the news again. The elusive reptile of the deep, the purported fire-breathing monster that sightseeing tourists craned their necks to spot during tours of the famed Okanagan Valley, may be induced to appear as the special feature attraction aot the aquatic carnival in Kelowna, B.C.

Ogopogo is credited with creating considerable interest and drawing many of the curious to witness the swimming and diving events at the regatta. Even if they didn't see him, the visitors always had the hope they might spot the dripping, weed-clothed head of the legendary critter poking above the calm lake waters.

That's rather important for the good burghers of Kelowna, too, because they are hoping some day to stage the Canadian swimming championships in the sheltered inland waters.

So it's up to Ogopogo, if he has any community spirit in his clammy veins, to do his stuff and show himself to the visitors so the Kelowna carnival can become one of the top-notch events on the continent.

Still flying high

Johnny Loaring, champ Canadian hurdler and contestant in the 1936 Olympics, stole the show at a recent track meet at the Navy Training Station in St. Hyacinthe. Although he hadn't raced competitively since early 1943, Johnny captured three firsts and one second to win a brace of cups for his team. Johnny, a lieutenant-commander, is head of the Radar School at the station.

Another well-known athlete at the station is Lt.-Cmdr Alf Hurley of Windsor, Ont., former captain and quarterback of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs when they captured the senior intercollegiate football title in 1939. Alf is head of the Radio Artificer Branch.

Incidentally:

There is one youngster in Ontario bantam class baseball who will be closely watched from now on by scouts of senior teams and probably the pro loops. Stan Stack, 15-year-old Sarnia hurler, tossed a 15-inning one-hitter against London, Ont., the other night—and he fanned 38 men in the process. In eight of the 15 innings, he retired the side by himself, his teammates just giving him moral support.

Beau Jack Wins Decision In 10

NEW YORK, Aug. 5 — (AP) — Pte. Beau Jack won the decision, Pte. Bob Montgomery didn't lose his lightweight title: $35,864,900 in war bonds were sold, and the 15,822 customers, including several hundred wounded veterans,, saw a whole fight show.

So everyone was happy today about last night's fight card in Madison Square Garden, in which the two soldiers, both of whom have held the New York version of the lightweight laurels twice, battled through 10 interesting rounds.

The gate was the largest ever piled up for a fight show. The only way to get in was to purchase a Bond with maturity value of from $25 to $100,000.

All the fighters, promoters, managers, referees, judges and others connectd with the show donated their services, and the Gillette Razor Company paid all the other expenses.

Beau Jack, the former bootblack from Augusta, Ga., who lost the title to Montgomery, won it back from him, and then lost it to him again, was really a fighting man as he punched out his decision in the non-title scrap. The referee and one judge favored the bounding Beau by a wide margin while the other judge called it even.

The two Gladiators have fought 55 rounds to date, and despite the continual slugging there hasn't been a knockdown. Each has won two decisions.

Dodger Recruit Gets Going In Top Style

By JACK HAND.

Ben Chapman, the newest Brooklyn Dodger, saw his name posted in the National Leageu books as a pitcher with a 1,000 winning percentage and a .500 batting average.

Temperamental Ben from Nashville led the American League in base stealing four times lifting 61 in 1931. His record in the Piedmont League as a side-arm hurler inspired Major Leageu interest.

Chapman wasted little time reporting to the Dodgers. He went to the hill to stop Boston, 9-4, last night. Fiery Ben limited the Braves to eight safe blows and left no room for doubt by bashing a double and single, driving in three runs and scoring three more to doom Al Javery.

While Chapman was taking the bows, Bucky Walters climber back on the win wagon stopping St. Louis for the fifth straight time to hang up his 16th victory 5-3 after four futile efforts.

Hal Luby's 10th inning homer gave Bill Voisllle and the New York Giants a 4-3 nod over the Phillies, Ken Raffensberger. Freddy Fitzsimmons' Phils finished the game under protest as they absorbed their 10th straight loss. Chicago held fourth place by beating Pittsburgh 4-3 on Bill Nicholson's 24th homer, coming with a man on in the ninth.

Connie Mack's 50th anniversary as a manager was spoiled by the Yankees, who took a 1-0 game behind Hank Borowy before a night turnout of 29,166. Bobo Newsom was the tough-luck loser.

Chicago's White Sox returned to the first division by trimming Cleveland's Mel Harder, 5-3 on some neat relief work by Jake Wade. Johnny Niggeling tossed Washington to a 7-5 edge over Boston in the first of two but Emmet O'Neill blanked the Senators in the finale, 4-0.

Baltimore Orioles Pull Away From Opponents

(By The Associated Press)

Last night's victory over the Buffalo Bisons was their 21st out of 24 games in Municipal Stadium, and increased their lead over the second-place Newark Bears to 7½ games.

Bobo Palica won his 11th victory, outpitching the Bisons' Forrest (Joe) Orrell who suffered his first league defeat after three victories. Felix MacKewicz helped the Orioles' cause with a home run.

Wayne Collins bested Johnny Maldovan in a tense pitching battle, the Montreal Royals pushing across two runs in the 11th to defeat Newark 3-1. Nick Rhabe, Bear's right-fielder, had 11 putouts.

Orie Arntzen gained his first International League victory after five defeats as the Toronto Maple Leafs defeated the Jersey City Giants 2-1. Arntzen allowed four hits in outpitching Jersey's Frank Rosso.

Scoring the winning run in the eighth inning of the nightcap, the Syracuse Chiefs split their double-header with the Rochester Red Wings, winning 4-3 after the Birds took the opener 3-0. Kemp Wicker pitched two-hit ball for the Birds in the opener for his ninth win, not allowing a man to reach second base.

9,000 Strikers Idle Across Canada

By The Canadian Press

Number of workers idle as a result of strikes in Canada had been cut to 9,000 today — a reduction of 600 from yesterday's total— but the series of disputes which centres largely on relations between Unions and employers had spread to the Pacific Coast.

At Prince Rupert, B.C., 450 members of the Boilermakers and Iron Shipbuilders Union (C.I.O.) were reported to have stopped work in protest at the employment of six yard employees they described as "anti-Union".

The work stoppage at Prince Rupert partly offset an improvement recorded in the Dominion strike picture when 1,100 Stallarton, N.S., coal miners decided to return to work yesterday, ending a five-day strike to enforce the demands of the United Mine Workers (C.C.L.) for government investigation of safety conditions. The government undertook to make the survey when the men resumed work.

3,000 At Halifax

The situation at Halifax Shipyards Ltd., where 3,000 members of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers (C.C.L.) have been out since July 24, appeared somewhat more strained with the Union having ordered 19 maintenance workers from the yards with a charge that the company had violated the Agreement under which the Union consented to maintenance work being carried on.

The shipyard workers are on strike to enforce demands for a Union shop and check-off of Union dues.

In Montreal the transportation system of Canada's largest city was idle for its second day. While it was presumed that all three parties concerned—the Company, the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees (C.C.L.) and the government—were continuing their efforts to have work resumed, there were no indications that actual negotiations were in progress. The strike involves 4,000 workers and results from a dispute about institution of a Union shop.

Strikers have left machines idle in two Ontario plants. At Windsor 500 employees of the Dominion Forge and Stamping Company left the plant in a dispute over wages and other differences with the management. Wages were also the basis of a strike involving 1,100 members of the United Rubber Workers of America (C.I.O.) at the Kitchener plant of the Dominion Rubber Co., where work stopped yesterday.

Women's Institute Hears Book Review

BAILIEBORO, Aug. 5—(ENS)—The highlight of the Women's Institute meeting held at the home of Mrs. Herbert Malcolm was a book review by Miss Hilda Thompson of "Until That Day," giving a graphic description of the plan and action of Nazi Germany to stamp out Christianity against the faith and determination of Christian leaders who dared to stand firm in their belief in the face of death and persecution.

Plans were made and committees formed to hold a refreshment booth on field day, September 4. The Red Cross department reported 14 infant nightgowns and 42 diapers made as well as several sweaters knitted. Letters of appreciation were read from Merton Thompson, Bert Gainer, Norman Fry, Bill Riley, Nellie Park and Gus Anstey for boxes received overseas.

Miss Margaret Dean read an article, "The Boys Will Need Tact From Us," and Mrs. Ada Montgomery read "Darwin's Mistake." A duet, "The Rose of No Man's Land," was sung by Miss Eileen Thompson and Mrs. N. Thompson.

Lunch was served by the hostess, and the next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Harry Gainer on September 6.

Fallis Speaks On Family Subsidy

OTTAWA, Aug. 5.—(CP). — The Senate Friday referred the Government's Family Allowances Bill to its Banking and Commerce Committee after hearing opposition to the provision for reduction of allowances to large families.

Speakers who took part in the debate expressed general support for the principle of the measure, but Senator Iva Fallis (P.C., Ontario) said she considered it was presented with "undue haste" and should be referred to a Dominion-provincial conference before it was passed.

Other speakers included Senator John T. Haig, acting Progressive Conservative leader; Sir Thomas Chapais (L., Quebec), Senator Cyrille Vaillancourt (L., Quebec), Senator J. J. Duffus (L., Ontario), and Senator J. H. G. Lacasse (L., Ontario).

The Upper House passed the bill providing for a floor on fishery products and a bill amending the customs tariff. It will meet again Monday.

Senator Haig said administration of the allowances should be handled by the provinces.

Favors Cash Grants

Senator Fallis said she favored cash grants as a supplement to extended services rather than as a straight allowance.

The measure was being passed with undue haste and without adequate consultation with the provinces.

The duty of the Senate was to prevent hasty legislation and this could be accomplished by not giving second reading, but leaving the measure for consideration with the Government's health bill at a provincial-Dominion conference.

Senator Vaillancourt said suggestions that the plan was intended primarily for Quebec were incorrect. Quebec was proud of her large families and her population, which provided a market for the goods of other provinces. He said racial issues should not be raised to create disunity on a measure intended for the good of Canada as a whole.

Senator Duffus, supporting the bill, said any reasonable amount spent to improve living conditions of children was justified. Health and education should be first charges on a nation.

Claim A Seat At World Table

By FRANK FLAHERTY, Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, Aug. 5 —(CP) — Spokesmen for Canada's two major political parties, directly or by inference, claimed a seat for Canada on the council of the proposed world organization for the maintenance of peace during yesterday's debate on external affairs.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King explained that initially the four great powers, Russia, China, United States and the United Kingdom will be on the council by right, that the other members of the body could be chosen by some process of election.

"In determining what States should be represented on the council with the great powers, it is I believe, necessary to apply the functional idea," said Mr. King.

"Those countries which have most to contribute to the maintenance of peace should be most frequently selected. The military contribution actually made during this war by the members of the United Nations provides one good working basis for a selective principle of choice."

On the basis of military contribution after the big four Canada would stand next on the basis of air power and economic development would be rated high to the big four in what it had to contribute to the maintenance of peace.

Howard Green (PC-Vancouver South) principal spokesman for the Progressive Conservative party said Canada should be on the council. If not on the council Canada should through British Commonwealth consultations make its position known to Britain.

Mr. Green said Canada should not be content with being a leader of small nations, but should set out to be a great nation, associated with Britain in the British Commonwealth.

M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, said he thought Canada might become a great nation sometime, but should be content to fill the role for which it was naturaally qualified at the moment, that of a leader among the small nations.

World peace could not be maintained by the great powers alone, Mr. Coldwell warned. The co-operation of all states was necessary and an adjustment of balances between the big countries would lead only to trouble.

A similar warning was voiced by Mr. King when he said a simple division of the world into "great powers and the rest is unreal and dangerous." Each state possessed, in varying degree, power and the capacity to use it for the maintenance of peace.

The Debate ranged over a wide field which included the post-war settlement of the Japanese problem in Canada, British Commonwealth relations and an international Air Force.

Mr. King announced a three-point plan for settling the Japanese question, a troublesome one to British Columbia for years. It called for exclusion of Japanese immigration after the war, transportation to Japan of all Japanese found to be disloyal by a quasijudicial commission and settlement of the remainder across Canada with no concentration in any one area.

Empire Secretariat

The idea of an Empire Secretariat as proposed by Prime Minister Curtin of Australia found favor with two opposition members Mr. Green and King Hazen (PC—St. John Albert) they were critical of Mr. King said views put forward in the it did not sufficiently stress the Empire tie nor tend to the strengthening of the Empire.

In a brief rejoiner just before the House rose for the night, Mr. King stid views put forward in the House were contrary to those of John Bracken, National Progressive Conservative leader, in a question and answer article in a magazine.

4,000 Canadians Held In France

OTTAWA, August 5 — (CP). — Prime Minister Mackenzie King said in the Commons there are possibly 4,000 Canadian nationals in enemy-occupied Europe and possibly between 2,000 and 2,500 in the hands of the Japanese. The figures did not include prisoners of war.

He said it was difficult to obtain information about the nationals in enemy hands. The Government had 800 acounts into which relief was paid for nationals in Europe, but in many cases the accounts covered whole families and in the others at least two persons.

The relief was only paid to nationals who needed assistance.

Name A. C. Wallace On Prices Board

OTTAWA, Aug. 5—(CP)—Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, announced today the appointment of A. C. Wallace of St. Catharines, Ont., as chief of the board's standards division. Mr. Wallace has had practical experience in the clothing and drygoods business in Ontario for the last 30 years.

Dr. R. T. Elworthy of Ottawa, who set up the standards section 18 months ago, will continue as technical adviser. Since its inception 18 months ago the section has investigated and tested hundreds of articles submitted to the board with claims of degradation of quality. It has also been instrumental in bringing in labelling orders designed to protect the quality of clothing and shoes.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE IN GANG FUED—When rival gangsters squirted 200 shotgun slugs and five pistol bullets into the body of Lawrence "Dago" Mangano, head of the remnants of the old Capone gang, in Chicago's "Little Italy," Rita Reyes (above) miraculously escaped the fusillade, uninjured. She is pointing to the bullet holes in the glass of the automobile in which Mangano was blasted down; with him was "Big Mike" Pantillo, who was wounded. Mike had taken Miss Reyes along for the ride. Mangano died in the Chicago Bridewell Hospital two hours after the shooting.

Flier Dodges Rocket Shells

Attacked by rocket shells and harassed by several fighters, with a warm reception over the target in the form of heavy flak, PO. Borden (Bob) McCullough, 27, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James McCullough, Ellen street, Port Hope, has written home a description of one of his trips with the R.C.A.F. Bomber Group over Germany. "We had quite a bit of excitement," was the way he put it.

A pilot of the famous Bluenose Squadron, he has been overseas more than a year. This particular raid was carried out over Sterkrade in the Ruhr on a recent date. Evasive action enabled the plane, of which PO. McCullough was pilot, to steer clear of the rocket shells. "Where they were coming from I don't know but we saw them in plenty of time to avoid them," he wrote.

Two enemy fighters then attacked in quick succession, the flyer related, but the first was driven off with a well-aimed burst of fire by the rear gunner, and the second, more persistent, kept on attacking until the gunner of the bomber, equally persistent, shot him up so badly that he finally exploded.

After leaving the target and getting away from the flak, "the rest of the trip was quite tame and we arrived back none the worse for our experience," the Port Hope airman said.

PO McCullough graduated from No. 5, S.F.T.S., Brantford, and instructed there for a short time before going overseas. He has two sisters, Mrs. Gordon West and Mrs. Percy Martin, living in Port Hope and a brother, Clifford McCullough, lives in Toronto.

IT'S THE HEAT

The hot dry weather drove several people to the parks to sleep Friday evening, and Confederation Square particularly had its quota of visitors. Not bothering about the proverbial park bench, the heat escapists just made themselves comfortable on the bare ground, and slept the night away. Some could have been making their get-away early this morning, before sightseers made the rounds to investigate.

ELEPHANTS TO PIGS.

Ian McRae's elephants (at the C.G.E.-Genelco picnic) will be replaced on Tuesday, Septemebr 12, at Nicholls Oval by blue-blood pedigreed pigs that are going to be shown at the Quinte-Kawartha Yorkshire Club's picnic. This is an advance notice by Frank Paterson and Jim R. Turnbull, official livestock grader at Canada Packers. Improvement of the breed of the hog papulation of four or five counties of this district is the purpose of this new agricultural organization. Breeders are expected from Hastings, Northumberland, Durham, Victoria and Peterborough Counties.

AT RENFREW RACES

Arthur W. Blade of Ottawa is still keeping his interest in the harness horse races. He was starter at the Renfrew track several days ago, recalling to any Peterborough reader the days when he used to bring them down to the wire at the Peterborough Exhibition at Morrow Park.

TAXES DUE AGAIN.

Just to interject a solitary significance of Civic Holiday into the plans and prospects for the long week-end, it may be mentioned that the second instalment of the municipal taxes is due at the City Hall on Wednesday next. Tax Collector S. A. Couper remarked this morning to the Examiner that many of the citizens have been making their payments this week, the office has been exceptionally busy in spite of those hot "dog days" as ratepayers remembered their civic obligations.

LAKE BOAT TRIP.

Altar boys, and girls of the junior choir of Immaculate Conception Church, who attended morning masses during the year, and 12 girls from the junior choir of St. Peter's Cathedral, who also had attended morning masses dcring the year, were guests this week of Rt. Rev. F. J. O'Sullivan on a boat trip. Accompanied by Monsignor O'Sullivan and Rev. Kilen, Rev. Lynch, and Rev. Greenan of Immaculate Conception parish, the group motored to Young's Point, and there boarded the steamer for an enjoyable trip through the lakes.

ARRIVES HOME—After an absence of more than four years overseas, Captain G. Hudson Hall, son of Lt.-Col. Gordon W. Hall and Mrs. Hall, 88 London street, arrived home Thursday on a visit for a few days with his parents. Captain Hall has been attached to the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals. His experience overseas included a period in Italy where he contracted malaria fever. He is a graduate of Queen's University in electrical engineering and also of Royal Military College, Kingston.

Coal Workers Frozen On Jobs

OTTAWA, Aug. 5 — (CP) — Men employed in the loading, storing and distribution of coal are granted postponement from compulsory military service and are prohibited from voluntarily enlisting until Feb. 1, 1945, under the terms of an Order-in-Council tabled today in the Commons by Labor Minister Mitchell.

The order is intended to ensure adequate manpower supplies for handling fuel during the winter months. Similar provisions are already applicable to coal miners.

Chickens Displayed In Large Quantities

With crowds swelled by the coming long week-end, the main attraction at the Farmers' Market this morning seemed to be chickens—all sizes that sold generally from 35 cents. Tender roasted fowl went for 50 cents a pound, and hens sold for 30 cents a pound.

Plenty of cucumbers were in evidence, with the prices ranging according to size, but generally priced at 2 for 5 cents. Potatoes were dealt with over the counters at from 30 to 35 cents a 6-quart basket, with onions, carrots, and beets going for 5 cents a bunch, and eggs ran the gamut from 32 cents to 38 cents a dozen, depending on grade. Butter beans were on hand to be sold at 10 cents a box, and the Winchester broad beans made off with the same price level.

Raspberries vanished at 20 cents a pint, blueberries were to be had for $2 a 6-quart basket, and thimbleberries sold for 40 cents a quart. Radishes went for 5 cents a bunch, marrows for 10 cents each, green peppers for 5 cents, and a few squash at 15 cents each. Corn sold for 35 cents a dozne.

Tomatoes began to make a big appearance at the market, and this morning the red and generally ripe fruit sold for 75 cents a 6-quart basket.

Mrs. Campney Injured In Fall Down Stairs

HAVELOCK, August 5—(ENS).—Mrs. Sarah Campney, 87, is confnied to hospital here suffering from bruises and internal injuries as a result of falling down the steps leading to the basement of her home. She was starting to go upstairs to retire, and remembering that she had left the alarm clock in the dining-room, returned to get it, without switching on the lights. There are three doors beside each other and she mistook the one leading to the basement for the one leading upstairs.

Canadians Serve In Bermuda New Naval Base

Alfred O. Phillips, former linotype operator on the composing room staff of The Peterborough Examiner, writing from Bermuda where he has been working some time, states that the Royal Canadian Navy has set up a new naval base at that point.

He will be remembered by many, particularly because he was weather recorder for several years. He states in his letter that the news of the new base will particularly interest Peterborough people who have sons stationed at that point, but censorship regulations does not permit any further amplification of this news.

* * * *

For the first time since His Majesty's Dockyard was built the port of St. George's is to be a naval base with the official announcement yesterday that "a training base for the Royal Canadian Navy will be commissioned shortly at St. George's under the name H.M.C.S. Somers Isles." It is the first occasion that the Royal Canadian Navy has established a base at Bermuda.

While further official information is not available, it is understood by the Royal Gazette that the Canadian naval training base may only be in operation for the duration of the war. However, this would obviously depend upon the strength at which the Canadian Navy will be maintained after the war.

An insignificant force before the war, the Canadian Navy has in the past few years expanded tremendously and inhabitants of these islands will likely have the opportunity to note some of its present scope.

Canadian naval personnel is already in the islands, but official confirmation has been awaited by the Royal Gazette for more than a month. In fact, it is not possible as yet to disclose the name of the Canadian commanding officer.

Rumours have been general during the past few months that H. M. S. Malabar would be taken over by the Canadian Navy. However, these have been dispelled by the announcement which has been made. It is understood by the Royal Gazette that H.M.C.S. Somers Isles will not interfere with the activities of H.M.S. Malabar—the naval barracks of the Dockyard—but on the contrary will be supplementary to it.

It may be said that there has been a training base for British ships at H.M.S. Malabar. The new arrangement can be taken as a continuation of it. It was ascertained that the Canadians were searching for a place as a training base where climate was more suitable than that in Canada for year-round provision of facilities. Bermuda therefore becomes even a greater bastion than she has been since the establishment of the American Bases.

It is learned that the Wellington Barracks have been made ready for the Canadians, and East Enders are looking forward to added prestige for St. George's Port.

Said the Mayor of the Town of St. George, His Worship Leon D. Fox, in an interview with the Royal Gazette: "I am sure my townsmen will coming the Canadians to St. Geocome the Canadians to St. George's. Our harbour has been busy with quite a few ships anchored in it, but certainly as a naval port it will become even busier. On behalf of my townsmen I want to offer every co-operation to our newest visitors. (The United States Army Base is located at the East End).

Mr. Fox and other St. Georgians envisioned that the "olde towne" would experience a certain amount of extra business from the latest development, but the emphasis of all was upon the fact that St. George's hospitality would not be found wanting.

Inquest Reveals Immediate Aid Could Not Have Saved Mahood

A rider recommending that the victim of any accident should be given the benefit of medical attention as soon as possible was included in the verdict presented by a coroner's jury of five men which sitting under Coroner Dr. Herb Young in the police court Friday night, inquired into the death of Robert Mahood, 36, in St. Joseph's Hospital in the early morning of July 29.

The jury found that Mahood died from a brain hemorrhage and heart disease, following an accident on Highway 28 on the evening of July 28.

According to the evidence presented Mahood had fallen after getting out of an automobile near Nick's Camp around 6:30 o'clock Friday evening and was put in the back seat of the car and allowed to remain there until early Saturday morning when he was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital and died shortly after being admitted.

Dr. Robert Young who attended him at the hospital gave it as his opinion that even if medical aid had been called immediately after the fall his life could not have been saved. "He would have been a very bad risk for an operation even from the start," said Dr. Young.

Dr. C. B. Waite, government pathologist, who performed the autopsy, declared that it was "only remotely possible" that something might have been done if a doctor had seen Mahood immediately after the accident.

Companion's Evidence

Principal witness was Leslie Booth, Waterford street, who was with Mahood from the middle of the afternoon previous to his death. Booth said that Mahood, driving his car, had picked him up on Water street and suggested going for a drive.

Booth swore that Mahood had told him that he had previously had eight or nine beers.

The witness stated that noting Mahod's condition he had suggested that he Booth, should take over the driving but his companion rejected the suggestion. When however Mahood swung his car wide in making the curve at the filtration plant, Booth said that he suggested that they should get off the highway for a while and accordingly they had turned off Highway 28, up a side road and had remained there for several hours, during which time Booth said that Mahood drank about a quart of beer.

On the way back into town the witness said that Mahood did not drive badly but after passing Nick's Camp, Mahood suddenly stopped the car and told Booth to take the wheel. Mahood then got out to walk around the car but when he did not appear at the other door, Booth looked out and saw his companion prostrate on the ground beside the car. "I moved him around from the side of the car to the back," said Booth, adding that he noticed a small cut on the back of Mahood's head and bruise over his temple.

"When I asked him how he was he opened his eyes and said 'O.K.'" Booth testified.

Drives Back To Town

Then witness told of getting Mahood in the car and driving into town with him. He said that he had known him to sleep for hours after drinking and so on this occasion he had decided to keep his companion in the car until he awakened. He had driven him to the home of Gerald Garvey, Armour Road, and eventually Garvey had got in with Booth and the two drove over town and finally to the home of a relative on Water street, after stopping for sandwiches at Harrison's store. After spending a couple of hours there with Mahood still in the back seat, the two had driven back to Garvey's house where they remained until 2 o'clock when it was suggested that they should drive over to a restaurant. Mahood had shown no signs of waking up and by that time the calling in of a doctor had been discussed. Finally after finding the restaurants closed Dr. Bob Young had been called on the telephone and had instructed them to take Mahood to St. Joseph's Hospital which was done.

"After one of the Sisters had first seen Mahood," said the witness, "she told us that the man should have been taken to the police station. Later however she said that Mahood was dying."

Practically Dead

"He was practically dead when I saw him at the hospital at 4 o'clock," Dr. Robert Young stated. "There was nothing that could be done for him. I remained with him for half an hour or more and he died ten minutes after I left."

Dr. Young stated that Mahood had a chronic rheumatic heart condition of long standing and was suffering also from acute alcoholism.

To Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, Dr. Young stated that he did not think Mahood's life could have been saved if he had had medical attention immediately after the fall.

Dr. C. B. Waite, Government pathologist, gave the report of the autopsy, showing that the primary cause of death was a hemorrhage of the brain. There was also small fracture of the skull. Dr. Waite said that the post-mortem examination had also disclosed the presence of a large tumor at the base of the brain.

"It would eventually have killed him," Dr. Waite said. "He might possibly have lived a year. It would have been impossible to operate."

Dr. Waite said there was a bruise on Mahood's right temple and a cut on the back of the head.

In answer to a juror the witness said that he did not think that the amount of beer Mahood had drunk had anything to do with his death. "It probably was the cause of his falling, though," he said.

Dr. Waite added that it was only remotely possibly that prompt medical aid might have been able to do something for Mahood.

Herbert Dack, Fred Mason, and F. S. Coyle, Lakefield, and William Udell, all of whom were on the scene shortly after Mahood had fallen were called. They stated that they had noticed no sign of drink about Booth. Mason said that in response to a suggestion from some one he had telephoned for a doctor.

Didn't Wait For A Doctor

Udell said that Booth had put Mahood back in the car and was gone before Dr. Gordon arrived. Witness said that Mahood came to and told Booth to get him out of there. He could not say whether or not Booth knew that a doctor was on his way.

Recalled to the witness box Booth said that he had asked a man to call a doctor but did not know whether he had got one or not. When Mahood had said that he was "O.K." he thought he had better get him away.

"If I had known he was hurt I would never have moved him" the witness stated.

Gerald Garvey corroborated Booth's evidence as to what happened while Mahood was being driven around and left in the back seat of the automobile and Harry Tudhope told of Booth coming to his service station trying to get oil at 7:20 o'clock. Mahood, he said, was in the back seat of the car at the time.

Addressing the jury Coroner Dr. Herb Young said that the principal evidence had been that of Booth and remarked that the latter had impressed him as a witness who was telling a straightforward story. He suggested that it was up to the jury to say whether or not Booth had acted as a reasonable person would have under the circumstances or whether some criticism should be made. He also pointed out that they might include a rider stressing the desirability of prompt medical attention for persons who had suffered a fall.

"That would be more useful than those open verdicts that some juries seem to like to bring in," said Dr. Young.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. examined the witnesses and W. J. Arthur Fair was present with a waiting brief in behalf of Leslie Booth.

Good Neighbors Pass $1,000 For War Victims

If there ever was a time when good neighborliness is needed to help the robot victims in Britain it is right now, thousands being killed and injured, and property damage running extremely high from this latest type of vicious warfare against non-combatants that the world has ever seen.

A thousand dollars in quarters and nickels would make a huge pile of coins, and naturally would take considerable raising in coins of these denominations, yet that is now an accomplished fact by a relatively small group of loyal women known for sometime now as the Good Neighbor Group.

Commencing some two and a half years ago from an urge on the part of Mrs. P. Kitchen and Mrs. W. Townsley living beside each other on Ware Street, to do something to help the bomb victims in Britain, their quiet steady work over that period of time has grown into something that is really in a class all its own, through the splendid cooperation and assistance of a group of similarly minded ladies, whom they attracted and interested in the opportunity for doing a real service in this worthy cause, through the local and district fund operating for that purpose.

Their latest gift of $29.00 came as the result of three euchre parties, which were held in the homes of Mrs. H. Siddal on Park St. S., Mrs. S. Siddall on Park St. S., and Mrs. N. Gillies on Aylmer St., all of whom by reason of this had a special part in raising this latest gift, through the making of their residences available for the occasion.

The Canada Bread Co. Ltd., donated a cake for a draw at the latter of these three mentioned parties, adding its share also in assisting to raise the amount mentioned, and the total now attained by this splendid continuous work stands at $1,001.05, a tribute to their zeal which merits congratulations to all concerned.

Alongside of their gift comes one from four school children, Barbara Harris, Patsy Williams, and Dougie and Shirley Lustic, who sold lemonade on the afternoon of August 3 to raise the $3.08 credited in their name today. These youngsters not only turn their school leisure to worthwhile use, but also make it the occasion for doing much good to people really in need.

Aquarium Show Aug. 16 and 17

Since the successful show held jointly by the Eastern Ontario Gladiolus Society and the Peterborough Aquarium Society about one year ago, a much more widespread interest in both societies has taken place, with the result that a much bigger and better event of a similar nature is being held in the Market Hall on August 16 and 17, the entire proceeds of which will again come to the fund.

The Aquarium Society again plans to give an aquarium of tropical fish planted and inhabited as a door prize, and a draw for five prizes will be held on each of the two nights. Tickets for these which also afford admission to the show on either night, have been on sale for some time at 25 cents each or five for one dollar.

Information can be gained in detail from F. H. Storey, sec.-treas. of the show committee at telephone number 9292, or address 130 Maria street, this city.

Cody Deplores Forest Losses.

TORONTO, August 5 — Destruction of Canada's forests by public carelessness must be brought under rigid control if any national plan of security is to be made workable, declared Dr. H. J. Cody, President of the University of Toronto, in a public statement to-day.

"Small wonder that every class of Canadian expresses alarm at Canada's pace of forest-burning," President Cody added, "when we are pondering ways and means of employing more people after the war than ever in the country's history. The age-old foundation for jobs and wages is the soil. On nearly sixty per cent of Canada's soil, nothing but timber can grow. It is the final and the only crop. From that domain of timberlands we now produce more employment than from any other resource except agriculture. Unlike agriculture, mining or fisheries, the forests are exposed to devastation by fire, and such devastation either must be severely curbed by government action and public assistance or this nation will face tragic consequences.

"Canada has overcome diffioulties far surpassing the forest fire problem. We can remove this blot whenever we decide to set about it."

Court Levies Fine For Careless Driving

Following an accident on Highway 28 near Nick's Camp Friday night Richard Toner pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving before Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning and was fined $10 and $2.50 costs.

Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure who laid the charge said that Toner had been driving a Sunshine Dairy truck south on Highway 28 and claimed to have been blinded by the headlights of a northbound car. His truck had got over on the shoulder of the road and then into a deep ditch where it turned over on its side. No one was hurt and the vehicle was only slightly damaged.

Officer McClure stated that he believed that Toner had been using the truck without the permission of the owner.

Police Officers Raid City Dwelling

As the result of a police raid early this morning on an apartment at 543 Park street, David Quinlan was charged before Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning with operating a common gaming house at that address and eight other men with having been "found in."

Quinlan pleaded not guilty to the charge and was remanded until next Thursday with bail fixed at $500.

The other eight Neil Harrington, Edward Alberico, James Chalmers, Martin McNee, Wm. Crowley, Peter Calabrese, M. Weingarten, and Michael Sullivan, also pleaded not guilty to the "found in" charge and were remanded on bail of $250.

Income Tax Due Before Aug. 31

OTTAWA, Aug. 5—(CP)—Income taxpayers who took advantage of an extension granted payments originally due April 30 are nearing the end of their four-month period of grace and will have to make payment by Aug. 31 to avoid penalties.

Balances due on 1943 taxes were originally payable April 30, but in March Revenue Minister Gibson announced that while returns would have to be filed by that date payment could be delayed until Aug. 31 without incurring the five per cent. penalty.

Official sources give no indication of the proportion of tax-payers who took advantage of the extension but it was assumed to be large. Since the extension was granted the compulsory savings part of taxes had been eliminated, giving a measure of reliev to some of those who were concerned as to how they would meet the payment.

BAG FULL OF SMARTNESS—It's a grand and sensible fashion, this over-the-shoulder bag, commodious, and leaving the hands free. Mark Cross offers this version in the fine leathers for which this house is famous. Made of deerskin or capeskin, it ties with leather thongs tipped with polished horn, and has a hand-stitched change purse. Matching gloves add to this trim and functional fashion. —By Alice Alden.

Umbrella Mending Helps Citizens Beat Shortage

With umbrella production drastically cut, and all stores on a quota basis, those handy little gadgets are becoming increasingly scarce, and are being treated with much more respect. They really are things that no one pays any particular attention to, until they become conspicuous by their absence, and the job they do becomes appreciated. It's surprising how many people are now carefully putting up their umbrellas, and just as carefully letting them dry in a safe spot before closing them up again.

All is not lost however, if the family's one and only rain-keeper-offer suddenly develops a rip. Manufacturers, when they found their production cut, immediately opened facilities for repairing them, and practically every large store has arrangements for sending them away for refitting. A survey of several Peterborough stores showed that damaged umbrellas were being brought in at the rate of one a day, and in others, one every two days. Not only is the frame recovered, but any mechanical defects are also remedied at a reasonable charge.

An attractive and serviceable array of materials in rayon, nylon, and art silk are on display for the customer to choose from, and satisfaction is assured in the fine, careful, hand finished articles which are returned. At first, before labor shortages became critical, quick repair and returning of umbrellas was assured, but now, with many key men in war jobs, and others on holidays, it takes a good deal longer to get the "bumber-shoots" back again ready for action. However, it will look like new and give a good many more seasons of service after a thorough overhaul.

Plaids Popular

Plaids, gay with bright colors, and ever-popular Roman stripes are topping the lists in recovering materials, but navy blue, brown and black, in plain materials have a steady demand. All-over patterns as well as flowered and border patterned materials are extra-smart when finished, and will suit the most particular taste.

Another scarcity, steel, has made it impossible to give even the umbrellas that are being turned out, an all-metal construction. The ribs, of course—just ten now instead of the pre-war 16 notice—are metal, but the shaft is now camouflaged, light-weight wood. In repairing, broken ribs are mended not replaced and the complete frame is given a thorough overhaul, and missing parts are replaced.

So hereafter, regard your humble umbrella with a new respect, and treat it kindly. In the fall, an umbrella is man's best friend, even thought it has a tendency to be left behind at the wrong times, in theatres, or to dribble on the little woman's polished floor.

Women In Home Do Important Work

ROSENEATH, Aug. 5.—(ENS).—Mrs. Mackenzie Rutherford, of Colborne, president of Women's Institutes for West Northumberland district ,was guest speaker at the meeting of the local branch held Thursday in the town hall. Miss Jessie Johnson and members were hostesses. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. C. Grigg, immediate past district president.

In an address, "The Home in a World at War," Mrs. Rutherford defined the home as an institution built on love and quoted a man's definition of a home as a place where he belonged, was loved, where he could relax, and a place he remembered as a kitchen and his mother baking.

Attractive Decorating

The duty of a homemaker was to make the home inviting and a centre of attraction, said the speaker, declaring that woman sets the spiritual standard of the home and can do a tremendous job in keeping a home happy and full of optimism. She spoke of the home of fifty years ago where entertainment was found within it and the Sunday spent at church with all members in the family pew. Mrs. Rutherford was of the opinion that the moral standard was never so appalling as it is at present and juvenile delinquency so prevalent.

Preceding Mrs. Rutherford's address Mrs. J. W. Pacey read a poem, "Canadian W.I." outlining the history of the organization, its development and accomplishments.

Mrs. George Mouncey will be hostess for the September meeting. R. C. Banbury, agricultural representative for Northumberland, will be guest speaker, and Mrs. B. Thackeray, district convener of agriculture and Canadian industry, will be program convener.

Growth of W.I.

Mrs. B. Thackeray gave a resume of the growth of Women's Institutes, national and international.

Fenella branch members were guests of the local branch and presented the program, with the president, Mrs. Frank George, in charge. Miss Evelyn Atkinson played a piano solo, "Violet"; Mrs. F. Minor sang "Ramona"; Mrs. George Harvey read "California Joe's Courtship and Marriage"; and Miss Margaret Knox played "The Bells of St. Mary's" as a piano solo.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

As this is the season for canning, my talk today will be along these lines. There is nothing a housewife likes better than to get a few new recipes to try, so I will confine my whole column to this kind of recipe today. I know if you try them you will be well pleased.

Tomato Marmalade.

1 quart ripe tomatoes, 1 lb. sugar, ¼ cup seeded raisins, 2 lemons. Peel tomatoes and cut up in slices. Slice the lemon very thin. Put all ingredients into a sauce pan and cook slowly 1½ hours, or until mixture is the consistency of marmalade. Bottle and seal.

Peach Conserve.

1 basket peaches, 1 pound Sultana raisins, 4 oranges, rind of 2 chopped fine, 1 lb. blanched almonds, sugar equal to weight of fruit. Boil until thick. Bottle when cold, and seal.

Home Canned Tomato Soup.

1 basket tomatoes (do not skin them), 1 head celery, 4 onions. Boil all together, strain and add 2 tablespoons salt, ½ cup graulated sugar, ¼ teaspoon red pepper, ½ cup flour, creamed with ½ cup butter. Boil until soup thickens and bottle. Add milk when serving.

Plum Conserve.

5 lbs. blue plums, 5 lbs. sugar, 1½ lbs. seeded raisins, juice of 3 oranges, rind of 1 orange, juice of 2 lemons, ½ lb. blanched almonds. Pit plums, but do not peel. Dissolve sugar in fruit juice and add fruits. Cook until a glaze forms over the surface. Add nuts to mixture. Pour into sterilized jars and seal with paraffin.

Grape Marmalade.

1 pint of grape pulp, ½ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon cloves (ground), ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon allspice, rind of ¼ lemon. Boil slowly for about 30 minutes. Stir constantly. Before putting into jars remove the lemon rind. Pour into sterilized jars and seal with paraffin.

Grape Jelly.

Mix one quart of grape juice with one quart of apple juice, and boil for 20 minutes. Add equal amount of heated sugar and boil 5 minutes. Swim. Pour into sterilized jars. Seal with paraffin. To make blackberry jelly, use the quart of blackberry juice in place of grape juice, all other ingredients the same.

Spiced Pears.

Cut 4 lbs. of pears into quarters. Cover with 2 lbs. sugar, 2 tablespoons each of ground ginger and cinnamon, and mix thoroughly. Let stand overnight. In the morning bring slowly to the boiling point, boil 15 minutes, add 1 pint diced pineapple, 1 diced lemon with peel, ½ lb. blanched almonds, heat thoroughly, put in jars and seal.

Meats are the chief sources of proteins needed for the daily rebuilding of muscle tissue. The larger cuts are being shipped, so the smaller cuts and the more perishable parts make up a large proportion of the meats left for civilian consumption. Smaller cuts include chops and shanks.

Spareribs With Sweet Potato Stuffing

2 cups mashed sweet potatoes, ¾ tablespoon minced onion, ⅜ cup cokde rice, 1¼ cups minced celery, 1½ tablespons melted fat, 2 teaspoons salt, dash of pepper, 3 pounds spareribs.

Mix first 7 ingredients thoroughly, break spareribs through centre and remove any surplus fat. Spread potato mixture on bony side of half of ribs. Place in baking pan, season meat and dredge with flour. Cover bottom of pan with boiling water and cook in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 1½ hours or until tender. Instead of stuffing given above, you can use a sage stuffing or, if desired, place cored baking apples on top of spareribs about 45 minutes before meat is done.

Stuffed Cubed Steaks

4 cubed steaks (1 pound), ¼ teaspoon salt, little pepper, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup soft bread crumbs, ¼ teaspoon poultry seasoning, 1 teaspoon minced onion, 4 tablespoons melted butter, 2 tablespons water, 1-3 cup cooked rice, 2½ cups canned tomatoes, ¼ teaspoon salt. Wipe steaks with damp cloth, roll in mixture of salt, pepper, and flour. Combine crumbs, poultry seasoning, onion, 2 tablespoons butter and water to make a stuffing. Place steaks with cut-side up and cover each with ¼ of the stuffing. Fold steaks over stuffing, fasten with skewers and place in greased shallow baking dish. Place rice around meat rolls and add tomatoes, salt and remaining butter. Cover dish and bake in moderate oven about 1 hour.

Liver Rice Loaf

1 pound ground liver, 2 tablespons bacon fat, 1 tablespoon grated onion, 1 teaspon salt, 1 tablespoon minced pimiento, 1 teaspoon celery salt, 1 cup water, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup coked brown rice, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Brown ground liver in fat, add onion, salt, pimiento, celery salt. Heat, add water, cover and cook 5 minutes. Drain well, thicken liquid with flour, boil a few minutes and add with remaining ingredients to the liver mixture. Shape into loaf and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about half an hour.

Beef Patties and Bacon.

Season one pound of lean beef ground (this may be meat left from the week-end roast) with one tablespoon minced onion, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, add ¼ cup bread crumbs and 1-3 cup of milk, and mix thoroughly. Shape in patties, wrap each in a slice of bacon and fasten with toothpick. These may be either fried in bacon fat or broiled.

American Chop Suey.

1-3 package egg noodles, 1½ cups canned tomatoes, ½ cup grated cheese, 1 large onion (sliced), ¼ cup oil, ½ pound lean beef (chopped), 1 stalk celery, Soy sauce, salt and pepper.

Method: Cook noodles in large amount of boiling salted water 10 minutes, drain and return to kettle; then add tomatoes and cheese and stir until cheese is melted. Saute onion in oil until slightly yellow, add chopped beef and stir until well browned. Add celery cut in thin, long strips. Add to the noodle-cheese mixture, season to taste with Soy sauce, salt and pepper, and heat thoroughly. Serve

Queenie Hope Pledges Vows Wearing Ivory Satin Gown

Standards of phlox and gladioli, complemented with status, formed a lovely floral background for a pretty wedding in St. Luke's Anglican Church this afternoon, when Iris Gardenia (Queenie Hope), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hope, R. R. 7., Peterborough, became the bridge of George Edward Walker of Otonabee, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Walker of Listowel. Rev. A. J. Arthur officiated. Miss Margaret Flowers at the organ, and Mrs. E. Foster with her violin, softly played music throughout the service. The full choir was in attendance, and sang the wedding hymn. Mrs. W. J. Davies was soloist, and sang "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in floor-length ivory satin on princess lines, with sweetheart neckline and long sleeves, coming to a point over each wrist. The front panel of the gown, embroidered with roses, was taken from the bride's mother's wedding dress. Her finger-tip veil of white net fell from a halo embroidered in seed perals, and she carried a bouquet of cerise and white gladioli, with status. She also wore a tiny gold cross.

Wedding attendants were Miss Iris Forbes as bridesmaid, and little Gwenyth Hope, aged two-and-one-half, as flower girl. The bridesmaid was gowned in floor-length blue frosted organza on long torso lines, with full skirt, and sweetheart neckline. She wore a shoulder-length white net veil, a tiny gold cross, and carried pink gladioli. The dainty flower girl was frocked in floor-length pale pink sheer, with tight-fitting bodice, buttoned at the front neck to waist, Peter Pan collar, and a full skirt. She wore a pink Dutch bonnet, and carried a basket of sweet peas.

William Purcell, nephew of the groom was best man, and the ushers were Donald Forbes ,nephew of the bride, and Arthur Newmaster, nephew of the groom.

IN MEMORIAM

BRYANS—In loving memory of our Mother and Grandmother, Mrs. J. W. Bryans, who died August 5th, 1941.

We were always welcome,
No matter when we came.
That old face in the doorway,
Always smiled the same.
She'd have a clean apron on,
Her white hair all ashine
And always glad to see us come,
That dear Mother of mine.
We were always welcome,
No matter what the weather,
How she always loved to get
Her family all together.
She'd have the house all shining clean
And have a special treat
And heap our plates with filling food,
She loved to see us eat.
And since she is gone, it's not the same.
The world is bleak and bare,
We miss her every place we look
And she just isn't there.
I like to think when life is done,
Wherever heaven may be,
That she will be standing in the door
Up there to welcome me.

—Sadly missed by children and grandchildren.

BRYANS—In loving memory of Mrs. J. W. Bryans, who died Aug. 5th, 1941.

I have every comfort I could wish,
And attended with thoughtful care,
But though the house were full
I always miss the one not there.

—Sadly missed by Husband, J. W Bryans.

CARD OF THANKS

First Boys' Camp Opened In 1889

All Y.M.C.A. boys' summer camps across Canada are booked to overflowing, and it is expected that 13,000 or more youngsters will be given a healthy holiday before the summer is over, Nelson McEwen, boys' work secretary National Council Y.M.C.A., said in an interview today.

"In all there are about 40 Y.M.-C.A. boys' comps in the Dominion," he said. "They are open to all classes regardless of race or sect."

Mr. McEwen said camping is no longer considered merely an opportunity for boys to get into the fresh air. "It is a chance for them to learn how to live in a Christian democracy."

"Surprisingly enough most camps this year have an adequate staff of supervisors," he said. "Teachers and even private citizens, realizing the values of a camping experience to boys have taken a week or more of their summer vacations to assist in this work."

"It is not always remembered that the Y.M.C.A. pioneered in organized boys' camping. The first boys' camp was opened at Chance Harbor, N.S., in 1889. This being the Centennial year of the world Y.M.C.A. reminds us of the first Canadian camp."

Would Avenge Brother 15-Year-Old Returned

MONTREAL, Aug. 5—(CP)—Fifteen-year-old Norman May is on his way back to Midland, Ont., foiled in an attempt to stow away aboard a Britain-bound Liberator of the R.A.F. transport command.

Young May was sent home to resume his schooling after R.A.F.T.C. officials and police officers thwarted his stowaway attempt. He said he wanted to get overseas to avenge the death of his brother, Chief Stoker Petty Officer George May, who lost his life in the sinking of the passenger ship Caribou off the Nova Scotia coast.

Harvest Begun In Manitoba

The season of the western harvest has begun, according to this week's report by the C.N.R. The first carload of barley was threshed and freighted from Letellier, Man., July 31, and wheat cutting will be general in the southern district in the next week or 10 days. But, in the north, work will not be in full swing for at least three weeks. The first barley yields have been averaging 30 bushels to the acre.

"Prospects are excellent for heavy crops in the Prince Albert, division of Saskatchewan. Weather conditions have been satisfactory. Harvest will not be general for two or three weeks. Alberta estimates are 25 to 30 bushels of wheat, or better; 50 to 60 bushels of oats; 40 bushels of oats. Peace River district yields will be spotty."

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

—By J. R. Scott

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, August 6.

Sunday's horoscope is a contradictory one, with promise of much activity and uprooting of a devastating nature as well as of a stabilizing and enduring quality. The malefic force may be aimed at disrupting and removing old and no longer constructive conditions in order that new projects may be built upon firm and enduring foundations. Accidents or injury should be guarded against and strife set aside in order to reap sound returns for worthy effort and skill.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of difficulties and sudden reversals, precedent to rebuilding firm and enduring foundations upon unstable and unproductive conditions or circumstances. Grasping the situationwith aggressive but well-considered efforts and ingenuity should result in surprising denouement, but be prepared for tests, disappointments or accidents.

A child born on this day may have much ingenuity and creative ability, with many sterling qualities making for success after trials and reversals.

For Monday, August 7.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a very progressive and expansive state of affairs, with sudden opportunities to be grasped with swift and decisive operations in order to reap rich and astonishing rewards, after many trials and peculiar entanglements. Be carefud of undercurrent assaults and shun erratic impulses. The domestic or afectional scene also may have strange complications unless safeguarded.

Those whose birthday it is may have a surprising opening for putting over new and original projects or strange though clever ideas or innovations. This must be grasped quickly and with sound sense and reason and not erratic or emotional iregularities or impulses. Decide with care or work with bold strokes and ingenuity. In all relations refrain from strife, confusion, and dangerous intrigues or entanglements. Domestic and affectional affairs also may need consideration.

A child born on this day may have much latent talent and skill of unusual scope and ingenuity.

For Tuesday, August 8

Despite delays, postponements, stubborn obstacles or other frustrating circumstances, there should be excellent promise of putting over ventures, deals or objectives of magnificance and scope. This may be accomplished by bold attack, novel and original plans or methods, supported by the hearty endorsements of public interests or of employers, superiors or others of influence and high position. With the persistent attack on obstacles and intrigue managed with prudence and shrewd tactics, there should be astonishing culminations, with much satisfaction and joy of a social, domestic or affectional nature. Industry and sagacity should triumph.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of outstanding accomplishments of scope and far reaching significance, promising financial success, increased prestige and influence, with recognition and support from those in high places, although this may have to be wrested from tenacious obstacles, delays, impediments and difficulties as well as a malicious entanglement of sinister forces. Shrewdness, well-developed plans and tactics, acumen and persistent work should attract the friendly support of employers or of public officials. All should bring personal gratifications in the domestic social and sentimental relations.

A child born on this day may have originality, exceptional initiative and skills, but may be obliged to wring success from adverse circumstances, obstacles and double-dealing. Its later life should be happy and satisfactory.

HUSBAND'S VALUE WIFE'S WORTH

First Aid to Prosperity, Spur to Ambition, A Safety Valve and Vent for Temper

How much is a wife worth? The Bible says that the price of a good wife is above rubies. All men, however, do not put the same value on brides, for the other day a sailor flatly refused to pay $3.50 for a marriage license on the grounds that he was not going to be overcharged.

Inasmuch as the O.P.A. has not yet gotten around to rationing wives and the supply exceeds the demand, it is somewhat difficult to put a ceiling on them. But while we are waiting for Mr. Bowles to take the matter up and settle it, it may be loosely said that a wife is worth to her husband just whatever he thinks she is. For, curiously enough, a wife's intrinsic worth has nothing to do with the way her husband values her. Some of the poorest wifes in the world are the most cherished, and some of the best are thrown out on the scrap pile.

So, wives being a matter of taste with men; it is impossible to put any fixed price upon their heads, nor does any man know when he marries what he is getting in a wife. He may have drawn the capital prize. He may have gotten the booby one. Nobody denies that marriage is a chancy business, that we go into at our own risk.

Extravagant Wife Poor Investment

The Biblical definition of the high-priced wife is one "who looketh well to the ways of her household and eateth not the bread of idleness, and who doeth good and not evil to her husband all the days of her life." And that rating still goes. For, no matter what other charms and virtues a woman may have, if she isn't a good housekeeper and a thrifty manager and easy to live with, she is a poor investment as a wife.

But, aside from her utilitarian qualities, a wife possesses certain other attributes that make her invaluable to her husband, even if he doesn't recognize them. One is that she is a first aid to prosperity. She is a spur in his side to do the best that is in him. Few men ever achieve any notable success until after they get married. It is only when a man has a wife and children to support that he gets out and hustles. Also, a wife is a man's only protection against his grafting relatives. Every bachelor is the foredoomed victim of his family who think that as he has no children of his own to support, he might as well support theirs.

A wife is an asset as a safety valve. Being able to vent on his wife all the suppressed temper and nerves and frustration that he dared not display in public, saves many a man from a mental blowup, or losing his job. Nor can the worth of wives as press-agents be computed in dollars and cents, for when a wife sings her husband's praise she carries conviction. People think she knows him.

And, finally, how priceless is a wife who tells her husband's white lies for him; who writes his letters to his mother for him; who does all of his social chores, and who stands between him and bores and generally greases the skids of life for him!

This is why it is impossible to put a price tag on wives, but it explains why widowers are nearly always in such a hurry to re-marry.

STRAINING FOR TOPS

FUNNY BIDDING is done sometimes by tournament players who are straining every fiber to pull better scores than others may get out of each hand. Some of these reckon that, if luck follows them, these tactics will enable them once in a great while to win a big event from much better general players, giving them very bad scores when things don't work right. One of these expressed it thus: "Wouldn't you rather win one tournament and get nine bottom scores than finish in the middle ten times?"

All concerned knew South for the style of competitor he is. So East continually passed, though amply able to support his partner's clubs, with the idea of ultimately sandbagging South, which he did to his regret. But can you imagine bidding those hearts four times without showing diamonds or even supporting the suit after North bid it? This fellow was after a better score than was dealt in the cards, and he got it. And it just enabled him to win the tournament from a pair which was stronger in many ways.

West led his singleton diamond, the K winning and South very carefully putting the 9 on the trick. He promptly finessed the Heart Q, took the A, then led the J to East's K. The spade A was cashed for East's second trick, but that was all. He returned the club 3, but the A won. Followed then the heart 10 and 9 to settle East's trumps, the diamond A and 10, then the 3 to the 7. Diamonds finished the hand, the good spade K not even being needed.

Soldiers Giving Blood At Clinic Hail From All Parts Of Canada

Once a week between 45 and 60 men stationed at the Military Training Centre here are present at the Red Cross Blood Donors Clinic to donate some of the precious life giving fluid which has become so valuable on the battle field. Some give it because they have relatives or friends serving overseas and other boys say that since they expect to go overseas eventually, they might have need of plasma and would like to have had the satisfaction of contributing to the blood bank.

The men in attendance week after week come from all parts of Canada and other parts of the world as well. Last Thursday, "Soldiers Night," the donor from farthest away hailed from British Guiana. He is Pte. E. E. Brown, who was in his last year of medicine at the University when he joined the Army.

Army Appeal Stirs Strikers

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 5 — (CP) — Philadelphia Transportation Company workers whose three-day walkout has slashed war production, voted last night, a few hours after the United States Government seized the system, to obey an army appeal that they return to work Friday.

The workers' decision was announced by James McMenamin, chairman of their "General Emergency Committee" following a mass meeting at a car barn already taken over by the army.

Maj.-Gen. Philip Hayes, commanding general, 3rd Service Command, was designated by the War Department "to see to it that the trolleys, busses, subways and elevated lines on which Philadelphia war workers depend for their transportation resume normal operations at their regular starting time beginning tomorrow."

The work stoppage, which began Tuesday morning in protest against upgrading of eight Negro workmen was referred to the President by the War Labor Board yesterday, after sporadic violence in which at least 13 persons were taken to hospital.

Gen. Hayes said that "production of radar equipment, heavy trucks, incendiary bombs, flamethrowers and many other critical itmes needed by our fighting men is being held up because of the inability of Philadelphia war workers to get to their factories and work benches. Our chances for speedy victory over the enemy are being lessened by this tie-up. Our troops ....will have to pay the price in increased casualties unless this threat to production in removed immediately."

Philadelphians walked or hitchhiked to work again in drizzling rain. Army and navy installations and many war plants sent trucks to bring in employees.

Disorder subsided today after the outbreaks of yesterday in which Negro gangs smashed windows of white-owned stores and whites and Negroes suffered beatings.

8-Year-Old Suspect

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 5—(CP)—Provincial police yesterday questioned an eight-year-old boy in connection with the shooting of 12-year-old Lena May White of Madoc last Friday. The girl is in hospital here in serious condition. She was shot in the abdomen with a bullet from a .38 calibre rifle.

Community Picnic

CAVAN, Aug. 5—(ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. O. V. Carley and the young people of Cavan and vicinity had a hike and picnic supper this week. Their itinerary took them along the eighth line to Mr. A. Ferren's farm where they had supper followed by a treasure hunt. The remainder of the evening was spent in contests, story telling and community singing.

Close 2 Plants

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5—(AP)—A new cut back in aluminum production, involving the closure of two plants and curtailment of a third, last night followed a War Production Board announcement that 48 per cent of the entire 1944 armament program was completed at mid-year.

SPLIT YOUR HONORS

Among the many rules to guide you in the mechanics of sound play, none is more important than that which veterans call "splitting honors." This play applies when you hold touching honors of intermediate height, such as a king and queen, a queen and jack or a jack and ten, together with one or more small cards. It is nearly always best to play one of those on a small card lead, so as to compel an opponent to use a higher one in order to take the trick, thus promoting your adjoining honor.

Against that contract in a rubber game, West led the spade 3. The declarer after some study decided to play the 9 from dummy, whereupon East used the 10 to force the A.

South did not know it, but he had already ruined his chance to make his contract. He ran five tricks in clubs, scored the heart A, and then staked his entire chances on the heart J finesse. When this lost to the Q, he dropped the rest of the tricks to the spade K and a diamond shift.

If South had played the spade J on the first trick to force the K, the Q would have been set up, so that South could have run nine tricks at once, including two in spades, two in hearts and five in clubs.

If West bids both spades and hearts, North clubs and South winds up in 4-Diamonds, what is the correct defense?

District Head Visits Marmora Legion

MARMORA, August 5—(ENS)—A special meeting of the Marmora Branch 237, Canadian Legion, was held in the Council Chamber on Thursday evening to welcome District Commander George Gimblett and Zone Commander Robert Hotrum on their official visit to the branch. Also welcomed to this meeting were several members of the Peterborough Branch who accompanied the Commanders.

T. E. Pritchard, the local president, called upon the District Commander to open the meeting. Thet Commander voiced his pleasure at being present, and said he hoped that the branch would grow and mentioned that he was endeavoring to visit all branches in his territory during his tenure of office. Mr. Hotrum said that it was his first official visit to a branch in his zone. His words of encouragement to the branch were closely followed. He also stressed the duty of the Legion to welcome the men who return from this war as well as to bring into efective unity those who served in the First World War.

In his address, District Commander Gimblett summarized what the Legion had done, was doing, and was prepared to do for the ex-service men. He briefly outlined the legislation which the Legion had worked to put through, not only for the ex-soldiers, but also for the boys in the present war. He touched upon the Legion's war services and its educational policies. Referring to rehabilitation he said that Peterborough had one of the most outstanding rehabilitation committees in Canada, and yet the same could be done for rehabilitation pro ratio in Marmora.

Special Campaign.

Two other matters were urged by the speaker, that of every member being a reader of the Legionary, and also the strong advisability of every branch working hard for the membership campaign allotted to the months of July and August.

Mr. Hotrum, at the request of some comrades, then spoke on a proposed zone picnic, and asked that the branch specify shortly its views on the matter. The branch then reverted to general business. The matter of the annual decoration service was introduced. A motion was passed that Decoration Day be held on August 20 so as not to clash with that of Campbellford arranged for the previous Sunday. Rev. E. M. Cadigan of St Andrew's United Church, Marmora, will be invited to give the address. A committee to arange for the procuring of flowers and decoration of the graves was appointed, consisting of Past Presidents W. Mumby and W. Bedore, and Comrades A. Bartlett, H. McWilliams, N. Hipson, C. Tandy, and J. Laird. It is hoped to procure a band for the ocasion as in former years. Special mention will be made at this service of those who have paid the supreme sacrifice overseas in this present struggle.

By motion, the secretary was asked to write a letter of condolence to Lt.-Col. and Mrs. Hubert M. Jones on the loss of their son overseas, the Colonel being a native of Marmora who went overseas from the village early in the First World War.

Poles Believe Future Bright

MOSCOW, Aug. 5—(AP)—Premier Stanislaw Mikolajzk of the Polish government in London prepared today to open discussions with the rival Polish Committee of National Liberation after conferring with Premier Joseph Stalin for 2½ hours last night.

The fact that the Polish premier will discuss matters with the Polish Committee in Moscow was hailed as a good sign here for foreign missions which continued to look on the situation with reserved optimism.

Mikolajczyk kept in touch with the British and American ambassadors reporting on his talk with Stalin and reiterating that Stalin had made a deep impression upon him.

Mikolajczyk was said to have been appreciative of the way the Soviet leader received him and the frankness with which the conversations were carried out.

Coincident with the discussions, the trades union magazine, Waf and the Working Class, declared that assertions by any one that the Soviet system would be imposed upon Poland were lies.

"It is clear now that only elements which would form around the Polish National Committee and continue along with it will have any place in the future," the magazine added.

No official statement was issued after the Pole's talk with Stalin.

The Soviet press expressed the view meanwhile the Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski, commander-in-chief of the London Polish government forces, and his intimates were unacceptable to the Russians and that the Polish committee was the proper government for the unification of Poland politically.

Exclude Japs From Canada After The War

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Aug. 4—(CP)—A preponderance of power in the hands of the United Nations would not be sufficient to maintain a lasting peace after victory has been won, Prime Minister Mackenzie King said today in the Commons during a lengthy statement on Canada's external affairs.

Opening a debate on external affairs, Mr. King said that "if the new world system is to be conceived in terms of power alone, peace may be kept for a time, but not for long."

Security alone was not enough to ensure peace. There had to be action in a large number of lines, in particular the direction of raising standards of living. The whole effort should be directed towards "lowering the temper of nationalism and thus diminishing national rivalries and reducing the importance of frontiers."

Mr. King said that it was sometimes suggested in Canada that the British Commonwealth should speak with a single voice in the post-war international set-up. In reply to the suggestion he quoted with approval a statement made in Ottawa by Prime Minister Peter Fraser of New Zealand that no one government of the Commonwealth could speak for other governments.

3 Main Points

At other points in his address, Mr. King said:

1. The government had decided on a policy of complete exclusion of Japanese immigration to Canada after the war.

2. Canada has received no authoritative invitation to join the Pan-American Union.

3. That the next two weeks may witness battles which will go far to decide the fate of the German stronghold both in the east and the west.

Membership in the Pan-American Union was being considered by the government, but any action in that direction would be delayed until after the war.

The gigantic Russian offensive has "hurled back the enemy on a scale never dreamed of in modern warfare" and in Normandy the advance of the Allied forces was steadily continuing, said Mr. King.

Allies Advance

Canadian forces on land, sea and in the air were participating in the war in Italy and Western Europe. In the Orient the war against Japan was being pressed by land from India and China as well as by sea. The war, once one of survival had become one of liberation.

In various parts of Europe underground forces in large numbers were engaging the enemy, he continued. Throughout the war they had hampered the enemy. In the period of liberation they would be of great value. The attitude of Turkey and Finland illustrated the crumbling German position.

These events all came as result of plans made at conference such as those of Casablanca, Quebec, Cair and Teheran. The Casablanca and Quebec conferences were essentialally devoted to military plans. The Cairo and Teheran conferences dealt partly with political matters and were calculated to impress neutrals and sattellites with the determination of the United Nations to achieve total victory.

It was essential that the United Nations carry on into the peace period "the machinery of military, political and economic co-operation which have proven so successful in war."

The first thing to be done was to win the war and win it as quickly as possible. The people of Canada as a whole had never mistaken or doubted the real issue in the war. It was important that they realize and properly fill Canada's role as "an emerging world power" in the post-war period.

Canada Near Peak.

Canada was near the peak of her war effort.

It was hard to look beyond the actual battle to the period of peace, but preparalton was essential. The price of war had been great, but it would be greater before final victory was won.

No effort should be wasted to bring about peace and security, and to make sure that the sacrifices of war were not in vain.

Organizing for peace was one of the chief topics discussed at the conference of Empire Prime Ministers in London last May, said Mr. King. And such organization would be discussed in Washington this month by reprsentatives of the United States, the United Kingdom, Russia and China.

Mr. King said the League of Nations had been instituted after the First Great War as a means of keeping the peace through co-operation. The League had proved inadequate because of a lack of co-operation.

Mr. King said a new world council had been proposed as a central agency for watching over the peace. The four Great Powers would be represented on the council, and other nations would be given some representation through a method of selection yet to be worked out.

The present proposal was that the United Kingdom, United States Russia and China be permanent members of the council of the world organization.

In selecting additional nations for the council it would be necessary to apply the "functional principle,' that those nations should be chosen which had the greatest contribution to make.

"If the new world system is to be conceived in terms of power alone," said Mr. King, "peace may be kept for a time, but not for long."

American Drive Gives Hitler His Own Dose

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The fast-moving drive into Brittany seems to be developing into a race to determine whether the American armored columns can overrun the great peninsula with its magnfiicent ports before the weakened Germans can bring up reinforcements.

Thus far the Americans haven't encountered any organized Nazi front, and resistance has been comparatively light. This has been due in considerable degree to the fact that the Germans have had to pull many troops out of Brittany to defend their tottering Normandy line.

Of course we don't know how strongly theports of Brest, St. Nazaire and Lorient—the chief objectives—may be garrisoned. However, we get some measure of enemy weakness in our walk-over at the Breton capital of Rennes. This is a pivotal rail and highway centre and the Nazis would defend it to the best of their ability.

If the Germans aren't already holding the ports strongly, their prospects are slim. By capturing Rennes the Americans have severed the main railroad into the peninsula and one column is thrusting swiftly across the base of the big triangle towards St. Nazaire while another heads for Brest at the apex.

Although the southern two-thirds of the base is still open, the Allied air armada is rendering communications devilishly precarious. The sky navy is a major factor in this battle of lightning movement which may teach Hitler something about the blitz warfare he initiated in 1939 with so much bombast.

The Breton peninsula is a pearl of great price. Not only will its fine ports greatly increase our capacity to pour troops and material into France but—and this is of great importance — Hitler's U-boats have been using Brest, Lorient and St. Nazaire as prime bases from which to raid Allied shipping.

Mother Of 3 Strangled At Her Home

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Aug. 5—(AP)—A mother of three children was found strangled to death this morning at her home in the Pine Acres housing project, scene of a similar slaying last February.

Police Superintendent Thomas Considine said the body of Mrs. Miriam Kennedy, 25, was discovered on the floor of her bedroom by her husband, Alvie Kennedy, who had returned from work in an aircraft plant. Part of her underclothing was found tied around her throat, he added.

Considine quoted Mrs. Kennedy's son, James ,eight as saying he was awakened by noise in his mother's bedroom. He attempted to open the door, but it was held shut from the inside. He said.

"I kicked on it and screamed, then I ran back to my room and a little while after a man came in," the boy told police. "He was naked. I screamed and tried to hit him but he grabbed me by the throat and choked me and then threw me over on a chair."

The slayer departed through an open window, from which a screen was removed.

Only a few hours before the slaying, police had been summoned to the Pine Acres section to search for reported prowlers, and found screens torn from windows of four other houses. A woman reported to police she fought off an assailant in her home.

Mrs. Dorothea Newgarden, 40, mother of [illegible] led to death in a vacant house in the [illegible] about two blocks from the Kennedy home. The killer was never apprehended.

WE CAN'T HAVE ALL THE GAS WE'D LIKE!

CANADA is able to supply only 15% of her own petroleum needs. The balance must come from the common pool of the United Nations. Seventeen gallons of every twenty used by this country must be imported in the form of crude oil from this barely-adequate petroleum products pool. Six gallons of every ten must be shipped to us by ocean tanker—at the risk of men's lives, at the risk of precious ships.

Today, with great military campaigns in full swing in Europe, in the Pacific, in Asia—every possible tanker is needed to keep up the pressure of attack by the Allied fighting forces. Every drop of this "fighting" gasoline and fuel oil must be carried vast distances across dangerous seas. Tankers must travel slowly in convoy; they must travel circuitous routes; they must return over thousands of miles of submarine-infested oceans, empty.

Today, war is making insatiable demands upon the crude oil resources and transportation facilities of this hemisphere. Here in Canada we dare not ask for quantities of petroleum beyond our bare, essential needs. We cannot justifiably ask for more than we are using now. This is why gasoline stocks on hand in Canada, as of March 31st, this year, were 55,000,000 gallons less than at the start of rationing on April 1st, 1942.

From Canada's total ration must come all the needs of the Dominion's armed services at home, all the needs of our war industry, of agriculture, and of essential transportation. It is not surprising that little is left for other civilian use—for our motor cars and trucks.

Keep these facts before you at all times. Remind yourself that every gallon we can do without means just that much more for the Allied fighting forces—that it means the release of vital tanker transportation to move Victory gasoline and fuel oil to the battlefronts of the world.
